Talk New Suit At Chicago in Clearance Row

Independents Say Offer On Rentals Refused

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Independent exhibitors here are considering the advisability of bringing a new action against distributors based on their alleged inability to obtain increased clearance by offering to pay higher rentals for pictures and charge proportionately higher admissions, it is reported.

The action, if it develops, would be separate from an anti-trust suit which 100 independent exhibitors here are preparing to bring as a group against B. & K. and distribution companies. This action charges that the granting to B. & K. of an extra week of clearance between "C" houses and first-week-of-release constitutes a violation of a consent decree entered into by B. & K. in 1930, involving the settlement of litigation instituted against the circuit by Marks Bros., former operators of de luxe theatres in strategic neighborhoods. Rosenberg, Toomin & Stein, attorneys for the independents, say this action will be filed some time next week.

Local independent exhibitors, like-

Allied Joins Appeal On Local Sales Tax

Allied of New Jersey has been granted leave to file a brief as amicus curiae in connection with local distributors' answers to the appeal of the city comptroller from that part of the appellate court's decision which held that film rentals of theatres outside the city limits were not subject to the two per cent sales tax, even though such theatres were serviced by New York exchanges.

Distributors, also, are appealing on their own behalf from the appellate court's ruling that film rentals collected within the city are subject to the tax. Hearings are expected to be set for about Oct. 25 in the Court of Appeals at Albany.

I. A. Brings Coast House Under Union

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—Projectionists' Local 150, I.A.T.S.E., won its first point in the independent theatres closed shop drive today when a temporary settlement was reached between the union heads and committees

Kent Wards Off Interviews As He Sails on GB Impasse

With three men staunchly guarding his suite, Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, yesterday sailed on the Normandie having successfully warded off attempts by ship news reporters who tried to reach him for a last minute interview on latest developments in the M-G-M Twentieth Century-Fox-G.B. deal.

He goes to London in an effort to iron out the impasse currently blocking the negotiations.

The trio on watch were Isadore Lincer, transportation head of the company; Hugh Strong, who generally superintends the Twentieth Century-Fox home office building and also handles personnel, and Kent's chauffeur. Lincer spent his time as sentinel outside the cabin, Strong in and out of the stateroom, while the chauffeur remained in the suite.

With the score three to one against him, MOTION PICTURE DAILY's ship-news reporter took the easiest way out and asked Lincer to act as liason, which he did. After a long minute, Lincer came back with the information that: "Mr. Kent says you know as well as he does what he's going over for; and there's nothing to add."

Just as the reporter was given the Union-Theatre Pact Settled in Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—The operators here today reached a settlement of their contract with exhibitors on practically the same general terms as last year. No salary increases or deductions were made, according to report.

The operators' union committee will bring the matter before a general meeting of the membership tomorrow for ratification. The operators' demand for an increase of 20 per cent in salary was not granted, nor was the exhibitors' demand for lower wages on overtime. It is understood both parties are satisfied with the terms, which will become binding if the union membership ratifies the contract tomorrow.

"Adverse" $189,000 In 31-Day Run Here

"Anthony Adverse" tallied $189,000 in the 31-day run at the Strand. Although most of the Warner executives preferred to continue the showing of the picture at the Broadway house for another week to 10 days, Harry M. Warner ruled that "Stage Struck" be immediately booked so as not to hold up the releasing schedule.

In the first week, the gross totaled

Out of Danger

Budapest, Sept. 30.—Joseph Pollak, who was seriously injured when he either fell or was pushed off the Orient Express en route to Belgrade a few weeks ago, today was declared out of danger. He will be confined to the Jaanos Sanitorium five more weeks.

Actors' Guild Seen Heading Toward Union

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30.—The election of Kenneth Thomson, secretary of the Screen Actors' Guild, to a vice-presidency in the California Federation of Labor is interpreted by many here as an indication that the guild is girding itself for union action. Yet if any fireworks are in contemplation, the guild is carefully guarding its plans.

The SAG is increasing its membership and confident in its growing strength, but is making no official statements. An unofficial spokesman, however, views the election of Thomson to the labor federation post as a key contact that eventually will command union cooperation and support. However, there exists no known pact between the guild and organized labor

Several Roxy Plans Expected on Oct. 9

More than a half dozen plans of reorganization for the Roxy are expected to be filed in the Federal Court on Oct. 9, the date set by Judge Francis G. Caffey for that purpose. Several film companies are reported interested in the rehabilitation of the house, but whether any will file plans is problematical.

Judge Caffey returned yesterday from a vacation in Italy. It is expected that after reorganization plans have been filed, it will take several months before the court approves a new setup. Howard S. Cullman, trustee, probably will have a plan incorporated in the bondholders' committee report.

Negotiations are understood to be

See No Hope Of Dropping "Early Birds"

Cullman's Refusal to Up Price Is Reason

With Howard S. Cullman, trustee of the Roxy, adamantly refusing to budge from his refusal to increase the morning price, little hope is seen for the Broadway, 42nd St. and Eighth Ave. houses eliminating "early birds" and adopting a 5 P.M. evening admission scale.

A committee of leading local exhibitors was to have interviewed Cullman in the hope of persuading him to change his stand, but this was never done, the theatre owners apparently feeling such a mission useless after the trustee told MOTION PICTURE DAILY on two occasions he would not accede to the wishes of the other interests.

Since the Broadway plan was first discussed, the new Criterion has opened with a 25-cent morning price. After a four and a half week run on "Anthony Adverse" at a 40-cent price up to 1 P. M., the Strand is planning to retain this figure.

Consolidated Amusements with a string of theatres on Eighth Ave., Harry Brandt and Max A. Cohen with a number of units on West 42nd St., will not alter the 10-cent opening charge, they say, until the Broadway houses tilt their scales. The Broadway houses are waiting on the Roxy

Frisco Deal Closes Argument with "U"

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—Universal and the Golden State and T. and D. Circuits have ironed out their difficulties. A two-year product deal has been struck by both interests.

Charles Skouras of Fox West Coast is understood to have stepped into the situation and did much to bring about the understanding which led to the deal. J. R. Grainger, accompanied by W. J. Heineman, Universal's west

Philadelphia House Planned by Al Boyd

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Al Boyd, former managing director of the Fox which is now being operated by Warner-Stanley, is understood to be shaping plans for a new downtown theatre at 16th and Chestnut on what is now an open lot. The capacity probably will be 2,500.

A. H. Blank and Son Reach Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 30.—A. H. Blank arrived here today to meet his son, Raymond, who has just been discharged from the Royal Victoria Hospital at Montreal after recovering from a serious operation.

With Mrs. Blank also here, the Des Moines theatre operator plans to spend the next three weeks at the Ritz Carlton. He says he's a new man now that his son has come through the way he has and for the next 21 days ease and quiet will be the order of every day.

Schenck Expected From Chicago Today

Nicholas M. Schenck, head of Loew's and M-G-M, is due back from Chicago today, having accompanied his brother, Joseph M, who is ill, as far as the Windy City.

Nicholas Nayfack, an attorney, accompanied the chairman of the Twentieth Century-Fox board on the rest of the trip. Nayfack is bound for the M-G-M studios.

Fifty Attend First Ohio Tax Gathering

CINCINNATI, Sept. 30.—Approximately 50 exhibitors and representatives of producers, legitimate theatres and baseball attended the first of seven regional exhibitor meetings at the Netherland Plaza here yesterday to formulate plans for organized opposition to reinstatement of the 10 per cent admission tax, suggested as a means of reducing the estimated $1,500,000 loss to the state if a constitutional amendment carries at the November election to exempt food from the sales tax.

P. J. Wood, secretary Ohio I.T.O., explained in detail the effect on the industry if the tax is restored, and suggestions were made as to handling the situation.

Nelson Trowbridge, manager of the Cox, represented the legitimate interests, and Lewis M. Crosley, co-owner of the Cincinnati Reds, was present in behalf of baseball.

The second meeting was held at the Kirwin, Lima, today.

Seek More Liberal Detroit Child Law

DETROIT, Sept. 30.—Plans to seek a more liberal local ordinance governing the attendance of children at film theatres were made at a meeting of theatre operators called by Fred Frahm, deputy superintendent of police, and Eleanor Hutzel, head of policewomen. At present it is unlawful for an exhibitor to allow minors to attend during school hours or after 8 P.M. unless accompanied by an adult. Police have been permitting an hour's grace from the 8 P.M. regulation.

The new ordinance to be sought will ban minors during school hours and children under 14, unless accompanied by an adult, after 10:30 P.M. and between the ages of 14 and 18, after 12:30 A.M. The session was attended by H. M. Richey, Allied; Cliff Geisman, United Detroit Theatres; E. E. Kirchner, R. Fourbeck, Alex Schreiber, Associated Theatres, and Nathaniel Goldstick, assistant corporation counsel.

Policies Are Set in 3 Brooklyn Theatres

With the Fox now in the Brooklyn pool operated by Si Fabian, the policies for this house, the Paramount and Strand have been set. The Paramount will show "A" attractions on an indefinite run plan, all "B" films will be booked into the Fox, and action pictures, such as those dated at the Rialto on Broadway, will be featured at the Strand.

"Anthony Adverse" today will begin a third week at the Paramount. Weekend prices have been increased at the three houses.

O'Donnell Heading East

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—R. J. ("Bob") O'Donnell, general manager of the Interstate Circuit of Texas who has been visiting here, leaves for two weeks in New York Sunday night.

Ash Heads N. O. House

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30.—L. N. Ash, formerly manager of the Liberty, has been named manager of the Strand here.

A Breen May Act

Hollywood, Sept. 30. — Tommy Breen may be the Tom Sawyer in "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" for Selznick International after all.

Joseph I. Breen and Mrs. Breen have withdrawn their objections, and it's now up to Selznick to make a selection from the flock of candidates.

Young Breen was picked out by a Selznick scout at a Beverly Hills school.

His Brother's Wife Is August Champion

"His Brother's Wife," produced by M-G-M, was the winner in the group of six Box Office Champions for August, as compiled by Motion Picture Herald. Three of the six were M-G-M films.

Following "His Brother's Wife," in the order named, were: "Mary of Scotland," Radio; "The Green Pastures," Warners; "San Francisco," M-G-M; "To Mary—with Love," Twentieth Century-Fox, and "Suzy," M-G-M.

Blind, Deaf Child Attends Film Show

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Sept. 30.—Wesley Booth, who has the Booth here, tells how a blind and deaf child saw his show.

The child was brought in by two attendants from the State School for the Blind here. One attendant sat on one side helping the child follow the plot of the picture by delicate finger signs on the wrist. On the other side, the second attendant used the wrist signs to interpret the dialogue.

Other blind school children frequently attend the Booth and are able, in a measure, to follow the plot through the dialogue.

Conrow Named Erpi Operating Manager

L. W. Conrow, former general manager of the eastern division of Erpi, has been named general operating manager, reporting to Whitford Drake, executive vice-president. Conrow will have charge of all installation and service east of the Rocky Mountains.

Conrow's supervision will include the headquarters operating department divisions, which will be combined with the eastern and central headquarters divisions, the latter to be abolished as separate entities. He also will have charge of the merchandise department.

Signs Halperin Order

Justice William P. Collins in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday signed an order directing Referee Jacob Marks to take the testimony of Edward R. Halperin as a judgment debtor and witness for Academy Pictures Distributing Corp. in connection with the judgment for $10,878 obtained by Amusement Securities Corp. Halperin was directed to produce all records and papers, particularly a contract with Maurice Conn on the production and financing of certain films.

300 at Testimonial Dinner for Sarnoff

More than 300 employes of RCA, NBC, RCA Communications and other affiliated organizations attended the dinner last night at the Waldorf-Astoria for David Sarnoff, president of RCA, honoring him on the completion of 30 years in the radio industry.

General James G. Harbord, chairman of the board of RCA, presided. Numerous telegrams of congratulation were read. Sarnoff was presented an inscribed platinum watch and a scroll, the latter from the Veteran Wireless Operators' Ass'n. Entertainment was provided by Mme. Kirsten Flagstad of the Metropolitan Opera, Jessica Dragonette and others.

Kern, Dreyfus Will Discuss Harms Deal

Jerome Kern, vice-president and a director of Harms, is due from Hollywood next week, and Louis Dreyfus, head of Chappell music company, is scheduled to arrive from London on Oct. 12 to discuss with Warner executives a change in control of Harms, Inc., a Warner subsidiary.

An offer has been made the Dreyfus Brothers to take over operations of Harms with the understanding Warners are to get half of the profits. Max Dreyfus, who has been here several months, will not do anything about the Warner offer until he personally talks the matter over with his brother and Kern.

Schulberg Signs Aviator

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30.—B. P. Schulberg has signed a TWA pilot, LaVerne Brown, to an acting contract. The producer saw him twice recently while on his way to New York and back to the coast by air. Brown's name will be changed to John Trent for the screen.

Film Flyers Are Killed

NAPERVILLE, ILL., Sept. 30.—Wilma Shuster, script girl; Ralph Biddy, cameraman; Howard Adams, director, and Oscar Hanoid, pilot, were killed in an airplane crash here yesterday after flying over the Burlington's streamlined Zephyr.

Polish Unit Arriving

A Polish film unit will arrive in New York tomorrow on the Batory, motorliner of the Gdynia-America Line, to film scenes for "An American Adventure." Parts of the picture were shot aboard the ship en route here.

Looking 'Em Over

"Men of the Plains"

(Colony-Grand National)

When gold-stealing bandits become too much for the local sheriff to handle and he appeals to the Federal Government for aid, the authorities assign Rex Bell to clear up the flurry of lawlessness. With his aides, Bell in time tracks down his clues, obtains evidence and, as expected, finally rounds up the gang for a noisy, exciting and tragic finish. Interwoven in this mainstay of the plot are the misguided love affair of Joan Barclay, a crooked banker and the murder of Bell's close friend. The film unreels with the required amount of violent movement against outdoor backgrounds and will be satisfying to western film audiences.

The direction was handled by Robert Hill. The screen play is by Robert Emmett from the story by Robert Hill. The cast in addition to Bell and Miss Barclay includes George Ball, Charles King, Forrest Taylor, Roger Williams, Ed Cassidy and Lafe McKee.

Production Code Seal No. 2,487. Running time, 62 minutes. "G."

"Stage Struck," now current at the Strand, was previewed on Aug. 7 from Hollywood.

"Craig's Wife," opening this morning at the Radio City Music Hall, was previewed by wire from Hollywood on Sept. 12.

"Texas Ranger" at the Paramount, "Great Ziegfeld" at the Capitol, "Dodsworth" at the Rivoli and "Give Me Your Heart" at the Criterion are holdovers.

The popularity of the leading 87 "hit" songs broadcast during 1934 experienced an 80 per cent decline during the following year, E. C. Mills, general manager of Ascap, asserted yesterday in discussing the results of an analysis of radio programs for 1934-'35.

The Ascap analysis showed that the 87 leading songs were played over the two major networks 1,255,669 times in 1934 and 252,025 times in 1935. The analysis covered more than 30,000 programs, Mills said. The decline in the popularity of the so-called standard or classical music amounted to only 19 per cent, according to the analysis.

This year Ascap plans to make a similar comparison of the 1936 fate of the "hit" songs of the preceding year. More than 100,000 radio programs of the large networks and smaller chains will be studied, it was said.

Tries a New Service

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30.—Dan Thomas, chief of publicity for Walter Wanger, is trying a new service on 900 drama editors. He is sending a weekly news column, dealing not only with productions on his own lot, but with those of other important companies. Thomas' name is widely known because of his long association with NEA as Hollywood correspondent when his features were sent to 700 papers.

Other studio publicity chiefs have agreed to cooperate.

Lemar Building Corp. has been chartered to operate theatres by M. S. Cook, A. L. Raughley and J. M. Townsend.

Short Subjects

"March of Time—No. 2"

(RKO)

The Time reel, in this, its second issue of the third series, continues to maintain the high standard of interest, significant reporting and genuine entertainment value in production which has characterized it since its inception. For general audiences it has punch and dramatic incident, for higher type patrons it "nut-shells" developments of the time.

Herein are three episodes, on Labor's internal strife, on the sharp reaction to England's long-imposed church tithe, and on the business of football in this country.

Spearhead of the labor fight is John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, who brings to his battle to supplant the American Federation of Labor's craft union system with his industrial unionism, strength of personality, a gift of oratory and considerable numerical support. This episode is a sharply etched portrait of Lewis and a panoramic view of the labor situation at the same time.

The reenactment of an active opposition to the collection of the tithe, decreed many centuries ago, calling for England's farmers to pay one-tenth of the produce from their lands for the support of the Church of England, adds considerably to the effect of this episode. Queen Anne's bounty is the name of the organization into whose hands has been placed the difficult task of collection.

In the final episode is pictured the situation revolving about the generally accepted fact of the subsidization of college football, timely with the current opening of the new season. The Carnegie Foundation expose of subsidies is cited. There is presented the interesting contention of Prof. George Owen of M.I.T., who declares that players should share in the game's profits, openly, instead of being compensated in an undercover fashion.

No production code seal. Running time, 21 mins. "G."

although the SAG is aiming at friendly alliances with studio labor groups, similar to that by which the latter group obtained closed shop.

If there is to be a showdown between actors and producers, the actors guild is thoroughly mindful of the experience of the Screen Writers' Guild and does not propose, therefore, to go off half-cocked.

The Producers' Ass'n already has discussed the reported SAG plans, but can do nothing about them until some step is taken or demands made. Local newspapers, which are patently anti-union labor, profess to see in the individual action of members of the guild in sending contributions to the relief of the strikers at Salinas a definite bid on the part of the actors for labor friendship. The guild officers, on the other hand, maintain such contributions were personal gestures and have no organizational significance.

Unionizing Desired

Unofficial spokesmen for the SAG have no hesitancy in declaring they want the guild to convert itself into a regularly constituted union. Thomson's position appears to be that he is not so much in favor of a closed shop as he is in favor of a guild shop. This would mean that the SAG is always open to new players and to stage actors in keeping with its agreement with Actors' Equity.

Whatever final action the actors' guild may take will not be determined until it can display solidarity of membership and command opinion that will induce support of the entire group as well as the necessary sympathy of studio labor groups whose aid would be required to make any sweeping action effective.

Downtown Will Open As Denver First Run

DETROIT, Sept. 30.—Detroit's total of first run theatres will be increased to eight with the opening of the Downtown, formerly operated by RKO, on Oct. 9 or 16. It will be operated by Joseph J. Cavanaugh, receiver, under the direction of the Wayne County Circuit Court. Clem Pope, who formerly managed the house for RKO, will be manager.

No major product being available, the house will play entirely independent product. It has not been determined whether double bills or single bills and vaudeville will be used. Cavanaugh had several deals on for the Downtown, but decided to open the house himself.

To Talk Patman Act

Members of the Independent Theatre Supply Dealers' Ass'n will hold a special three-day meeting, starting Oct. 14, at the Congress, Chicago, to discuss the Patman act, which is understood to have caused the independent equipment men no little concern.

Under the act discriminating discounts are forbidden and a uniform plan of discount must prevail for all dealers and their accounts, it was stated yesterday. The bill has been in effect since June 29, it was added.

George Graham of Denver, president of the association, will preside. Attorneys for the various equipment distributors differ as to the interpretation of the Patman act, and it is hoped a mutual understanding of the cardinal points will be brought about.

G. B. List to Sterling

George W. Weeks has closed with Sterling Far West circuit for the entire G. B. 1936-'37 program in the circuit's 14 Seattle houses.

Weeks has accompanied Arthur Lee, G. B. vice-president, to sales meetings held in New Orleans. They are expected to return to the home office Monday.

disappointing news, in walked John D. Clark, C. E. McCarthy and Percy Kent, later being joined by Pat Casey, who had arrived from the coast on the Century an hour before and was still unshaved. Casey spent about 15 minutes with Kent and said there was no business discussed, but bon voyage greetings exchanged.

During the interval that lapsed while Casey and the Twentieth Century-Fox executives were in Kent's room, reports were around that the president of the company was "very nervous and not feeling so well." Except for the persons mentioned and Mrs. A. Sisto, sister of Mrs. Kent, there were no other visitors until the liner pulled out.

Effort was made to cloak the sailing in secrecy. Kent's name did not appear on the passenger list, the purser said he had no record of the name. Finally the man in charge of the office where passports are checked denied anyone by the name of Kent was a passenger.

Whether by coincidence or not, Mrs. E. Beddington Behrens, wife of the British financier and member of Myers & Co., also is on the same boat. Her husband sailed last week on the Queen Mary after conferring with Kent and Joseph M. Schenck on the three-company pact.

Kent is scheduled to return by Nov. 1. He will meet Arthur M. Loew, head of the M-G-M foreign department, in London next week. Loew is due to arrive in London tomorrow. He sailed on the Empress of Britain.

Mrs. Edward G. Robinson, Benny Davis, Sally O'Neill, and Jose Iturbi also are London-bound on the same boat.

"Ramona" Up In St. Louis; Gets $16,500

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—"Ramona" at the Ambassador, despite the loss of an afternoon show due to a fire in an underground conduit of the Union Electric Light & Power Co., made the best comparative showing in a week filled with high class competition. The $16,500 beat the house average by $7,500.

"Anthony Adverse" did big business for the Fox with a take for the week of $18,500, beating average by $4,500.

In its third and final week at Loew's, "The Great Ziegfeld" took $9,900, just $100 below house average. It was estimated this attraction grossed $57,000 for the three weeks. The price scale was 35c and 65c. It has been many months since any picture here has approached such business over a three-week period.

The Missouri, Orpheum and St. Louis also went above their averages for the week. Strong business at first, second and subsequent runs in recent weeks is accepted as an indication that this section has definitely come out of the depression.

Total first run business was $70,700. Average is $55,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Sept. 24:

"RAMONA" (20th-Fox)
AMBASSADOR — (3,018), 25c-35c-55c, 7 days. Gross: $16,500. (Average, $9,000)

$100,000,000 Is Fox Guess of 1930 Value

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 30.—William Fox testified here today in his bankruptcy proceedings that "as of Jan. 1, 1930, I was under the impression that I was worth about $100,000,000," a sum which he said was "mainly my shares of stock in Fox Film and Fox theatre corporations. He added, "I found soon afterward that I had estimated wrong, for I sold it for $15,000,000 in cash and $3,000,000 in notes, got a five-year contract on the advisory board of Fox Film at $500,000 a year and shortly thereafter got another $3,000,000 in notes."

During the remainder of the day Fox related from memory how his fortune had shrunk with the stock market, how All-Continent Corp. foreclosed on most of his remaining collateral for defaulted loans last December and how his remaining odds and ends were sold to All-Continent for $50,000. The five-year contract, he asserted, was carried out for only two years and his only income since 1930 has been from interest on invested capital and from dividends on stocks which he owned. He told also of a gift of $300,000 to his aged father.

Everett Partride and Eugene O'Dunne, of Washington, agents of the U. S. Internal Revenue Dept., which has a huge income claim against Fox, attended the hearing today.

"His Steps" for Topeka

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30.—"In His Steps" will be given a premiere in Topeka, Kan., home of Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, author of the novel.

"Ziegfeld" Is $9,000 Leader In Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 30.—"The Great Ziegfeld" took a fine $9,000 at Loew's State. This was better than the gross at the Brown, earlier in the season, when the picture took less in two weeks at $1.65 top. It was held over another week.

"The General Died at Dawn," dualled with "Lady Be Careful" at the Rialto, went into second place with a gross of $6,400, $1,900 over average for that house. "My Man Godfrey" and "Postal Inspector," coupled at the Strand, held a consistent pace, and wound up with $3,800, $300 over the line.

"Anthony Adverse" made a showing out of the ordinary, when it was held for three weeks. The takings, however, were light throughout the run. The gross for the final week hit a low of $2,400, about $1,100 under par.

Dog races at the Jeffersonville Kennel Club, across the river in Indiana, are continuing to provide plenty of opposition. The weather has been favorable for theatre attendance, days are warm, and evenings cool.

Total first run business was $24,000. Average is $19,300.

Estimated takings for the week ending Sept. 24:

"THE GREAT ZIEGFELD" (M-G-M)
LOEW'S STATE—(3,000), 38c-55c, 8 days. Gross: $9,000. (Average, $5,500)
"THE GENERAL DIED AT DAWN" (Para.)
"LADY BE CAREFUL" (Para.)
RIALTO—(3,000), 15c-25c-40c, 8 days. Gross: $6,400. (Average, $4,500)
"MY MAN GODFREY" (Univ.)
"POSTAL INSPECTOR" (Univ.)
STRAND—(1,500), 15c-25c-40c, 7 days, 2nd week. Gross: $3,800. (Average, $3,500)
"ANTHONY ADVERSE" (W.B.)
MARY ANDERSON—(1,000), 44c-61c, 7 days, 3rd week. Gross: $2,400. (Average, $3,500)
"THE BRIDE WALKS OUT" (Radio)
"WHITE ANGEL" (F.N.)
"THREE CHEERS FOR LOVE" (Para.)
"SPENDTHRIFT" (Para.)
KENTUCKY—(900), 15c-25c, 7 days, split week. Gross: $1,600. (Average, $1,500)
"IT HAPPENED ONE NIGHT" (Col.)
"BLESSED EVENT" (W.B.)
"ONE NIGHT OF LOVE" (Col.)
"I SELL ANYTHING" (F.N.)
OHIO—(900), 15c, 7 days, split week. Gross: $800. (Average, $800)

German Showmen Plan Visit to U. S.

By J. K. RUTENBERG

BERLIN, Sept. 20. — The Berlin branch of the Ass'n of German Cinema Proprietors plans a visit to the United States next spring to study distribution and exhibition in that country.

The group will be headed by Wilhelm Siegfried, of the Berlin section. Arrangements for the trip are now being made.

German distributors will release approximately 150 features this season, Ufa leading again with 30. The three American companies operating in Germany, Paramount, M-G-M and Twentieth Century-Fox, will offer 12, 12 and eight respectively, for a total of 32. Most of the new product already has been trade-shown, with general release starting within a few weeks, when the Berlin first runs are completed.

Cut-Rates and Duals Curbed By Contracts

Riders Being Used in 50 Cities on Big Films

Cut-rate admissions, including the use of double features and giveaways, are being curbed in approximately 50 cities as a result of the use by first run theatres of a contract rider regulating exhibition practices in subsequent runs in connection with the playing of outstanding feature pictures.

The rider first came into use a year ago in the Hoblitzelle circuit in Texas and, since has been upheld by the state courts there as legally enforceable. As a result of the court decisions, the rider has been utilized by numerous first runs throughout the country and its use is reliably reported to be increasing this season.

Under the terms of the rider, the first run theatre employing it agrees

Leonard Quits "U"; Hirsch in Ad Post

J. Albert Hirsch yesterday was appointed advertising manager of Universal, in the place of Charles Leonard, who resigned. The appointment was made by P. D. Cochrane, director of advertising. Hirsch has been Leonard's assistant for the past six months. Leonard said yesterday he has no immediate plans for the future. He will take a vacation, probably in Hollywood, for a few weeks, and will decide on his future affiliation upon his return.

Before joining Universal, Hirsch was with Paramount for nine years as assistant to A. M. Botsford in the Publix Theatres advertising department. He was also a member of the Paramount eastern editorial board. Hirsch will assume his new duties next Monday.

Center Assessment Decreased $100,000

The Center Theatre in Radio City has been assessed in the tentative valuation list for 1937 made public by the Board of Taxes and Assessments, at $4,500,000, which is $100,000 less than the present year's valuation. The RCA Building, in which many film company home offices are housed, represents a greater assessment increase than any other large building in the city, jumping from $26,500,000 to

B. & K. Firm On Dual Plan Says Balaban

Action of Independents Will Not Halt Move

Regardless of what action independent exhibitors may decide upon, B. and K. are determined to go through with their swing to dual features in Chicago, John Balaban stated yesterday. The plan will not embrace the Loop, but will include all other units in the circuit.

"The only reason we have not gone to doubles so far," he explained yesterday, "is because we did not want to start the new policy with last year's product. Last season, some of the Chicago exchanges were successful in preventing exhibitors from switching to twin bills. We, therefore, do not want to embarrass them by launching our plan with that product.

"However, the old releases will be cleaned up in about four weeks and then we will be ready to go."

Name Hand as Bunn Assistant at Erpi

Stanley Hand, Erpi central division general manager, has been appointed assistant general sales manager of the company. C. W. Bunn is general sales manager of Erpi.

Hand was formerly New England division manager for Pathe, and was with First National and Warners in executive sales capacities. He has been with Erpi for the past eight years and has been at the Chicago headquarters of the central division for the past four years. It is expected that Hand will make his headquarters at the home office in the near future as a result of the new appointment.

FCC Has Complaint Naming Bowes Hour

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Federal Communications Commission officials have before them a complaint against Major Bowes' Amateur Hour, filed by one Ray Halper of New York, charging that Bowes is exploiting amateurs and committing a fraud upon the public by using talent obtained from booking agencies.

In all probability no action will be taken on the complaint, the commission being without power to censor programs. Officials of the commission did not take the matter seriously, explaining that everyone with a grievance comes to them for relief, and citing a telegram from John Foster, campaign manager for Earl Browder, Communist, asking the commission to get the latter out of jail in Terre Haute so that he could broadcast.

At the commission it was said that a number of factors must be taken into consideration with respect to the

Late September Key Takes Off Sharply to $1,744,332

Late September grosses fell off sharply after the Labor Day week spurt, the total for the week ending Sept. 25-26 being $1,744,332. This figure was $62,018 below the previous week and $345,812 under the four-year peak reached Labor Day week.

The decline last week was scattered and apparently dependent upon releases, as 15 of the 29 key cities reporting to MOTION PICTURE DAILY registered gains. This was especially marked in New York where the $341,182 total was $37,832 ahead of the previous week.

The number of first runs in operation has shown a gain since the first week in September. The total has increased from 163 at that time to 177 last week.

Reade Plans New Circuit In 100 Spots

Theatres to Be New and Seat 600 to 1,000

Walter Reade yesterday revealed the formation of a new national circuit, to be known as American Community Theatres Corp., capitalized at $5,000,000, and with himself as president, at a press luncheon at the Astor. One new theatre in each of 100 cities within a period of five years is the initial intention, Reade declared.

Associated with Reade in the new enterprise are L. N. Olmsted, vice-president of American Seating; Frank V. Storrs, who is a partner in other Reade houses; Carl E. Schuster, statistician; Charles J. Bryan, associated with Reade for the past 30 years, and Walter Reade, Jr.

With four sites already selected, two in upper New York State, one in New Jersey, and one in Connecticut, American Community intends to construct on an average of 20 to 25 theatres a year over a five-year period, Reade stated yesterday. The new structures will replace obsolete buildings "and fill the want necessary in other communities, where no first class theatre exists."

The plan will not be limited to the east, but will extend from coast to coast and into Canada. More than $500,000 has already been set aside by the sponsors for the project. The first two units will be started in 30

Council to Continue Booking Bill Fight

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—That the M. P. Research Council intends to persist in its effort to secure passage of the Neely-Pettengill block booking bill was apparent at a meeting here.

Dr. Claud H. Shull, dean of the Junior College, called upon his hearers to help enlist a million persons in support of the measure.

The chorus of criticism against films was not unanimous, however. While some speakers were calling for a "restraining hand" on Hollywood and describing pictures as a social problem others defended the industry and expressed appreciation for improvement in films.

Giannini En Route Here

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 1.—Dr. A. H. Giannini, chairman of the board of directors and president of United Artists, left here by train yesterday for New York, accompanied by his family. He will be in New York for three weeks, engaging in home office conferences.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

SEVERAL Mondays ago, we looked up suddenly and there before us from the trusty typewriter was a line or two commenting on Allied's repeated determination to divorce production from exhibition by legislation. It was Abram F. Myers who, in outlining the program, stated the bills will be patterned after "acts preventing the ownership and operation of saloons by breweries . . ." To which our observation was "since when has a keg of beer been protected by copyright?" Thereafter silence until Myers forwarded interesting correspondence from Washington in which he remarked that this was what they were saying behind our back. That being the case, the idea now is to bring it into the open for the benefit, perhaps, of others who may be interested as well. . . .

S. D. Kane, executive secretary of the Allied Theatre Owners of the Northwest, Inc., headquarters Minneapolis, wrote Myers, saying in part:

I enclose herewith for your edification a copy of page 2 of MOTION PICTURE DAILY of September 14.

It struck me that several happy answers were at your disposal.

You might, for instance, inform Mr. Kann that kegs of beer have been protected by copyright ever since Anheuser-Busch decided not to call their product "Schlitz."

In addition, since when has Hollywood received the congressional medal for respecting the copyright laws?

Myers to Kane:

Your suggested reply to Red Kann's editorial is an apt one and if I were to reply publicly to Red I would make use of it. The copyright bugaboo conjured up by the Hays Association has been well propagated. General Johnson swallowed it hook, line and sinker, and he claimed to be a lawyer. His reliance on it in his correspondence with Dr. Lowell was the crowning absurdity of the NRA fiasco. It is not remarkable, therefore, that Red, who does not pretend to be a lawyer, should fall for it.

A copyright is not a matter of natural right but of legislative bounty. The constitutional provision empowering Congress to enact copyright and patent laws is not self-executing and Congress can at any time destroy all copyrights by the simple expedient of repealing the copyright statute. All Congress needs do to include copyrighted articles in any restrictive legislation is to provide that the act shall apply to all commodities in interstate commerce "whether copyrighted or uncopyrighted." This has been done with respect to patented articles in Section 3 of the Clayton Act. Such a clause is contained in the Neely-Pettengill Bill.

It continues:

Moreover, the copyright law is not a bar to the enactment by the states of remedial legislation in pursuance of their police power where such acts necessarily relate to copyrighted articles. Red Kann should remember that State censorship laws providing for the censorship of copyrighted films have been upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States. In fact, there is a line of decisions by that court upholding state regulations of and prohibitions upon the use of patented and copyrighted articles whenever justified in the public interest.

The protection of the public health, safety, morals and welfare is supreme over the special privileges enjoyed by copyright and patent owners.

In the meantime, I question whether anything can be gained by entering into a public controversy with Mr. Kann regarding his editorial. All exhibitors understand the predicament of the trade papers which are dependent upon the organized producer-distributors for advertising. In the case of MOTION PICTURE DAILY we must admit that it has given us a break in the matter of news and certainly Red Kann is the ablest of the trade paper editors. We cannot insist that he accept our point of view; in fact, if he or any of his brethren sided with Allied in any of its major policies we would all drop dead. Red is much too considerate to inflict any such shock upon us.

Which makes it quite complex. However, that portion of Myers' letter in which he declares "the protection of the public health, safety, morals and welfare is supreme over the special privileges enjoyed by copyright and patent owners" most emphatically finds us in agreement with the spirit, if not the letter, of such interpretation. Public safety, morals and welfare assuredly would be more jealously safeguarded if some of the Hollywood effort were never to be undertaken in the first instance. You might even extend it to embrace public health by less exercise of anger and, therefore, less rising of the blood pressure and consequent effect if such a suggestion were to be observed.

As to the compliment on the conduct of our job, there is always to be remembered that in modesty reposes modesty. It'll get Myers a nice Christmas card anyway. . . .

No attempt will be made to cash in on the Astor case when "Dodsworth" plays the Interstate Circuit in Texas. Bob O'Donnell is seeing to it. In Dallas, where the picture goes into the Palace, the keynote will stress Walter Huston's stage tour which came to a temporary rest at the Melba in that city. "We are handling Astor as if she never had a diary," remarks O'Donnell, thereby proving he's a smart operator and pointing up the policy for others elsewhere to pursue. . . .

Hollywood's latest lovebirds, Joan Blondell and Dick Powell, come up the bay on the Santa Paula from California Tuesday morning. Warners are organizing an air jaunt with swoopings low over the bay, hand waving and more of the same sort of thing. Sid Rechetnik has been diligently plying the telephone for word of our decision. "Will you go?", he asks. The reply is simple and direct.

We will not. . . .

Phila. Re-hearing To Come Up Monday

A rehearing of the Perelman case involving the legality of anti-double feature clauses in exhibition contracts is scheduled for Monday in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia. The rehearing was sought last spring following the court's ruling that the clauses were unenforceable. Morris Wolf, Philadelphia attorney, will represent all major distributors involved in the case with the exception of Paramount, which will be represented by Louis Phillips and Edwin L. Weisl.

Superior Made Plaintiff

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Samuel H. Hoffstadter granted a motion substituting the Superior Seating Co. instead of James H. Adamson as plaintiff in an action for $3,232 against Warners and the Stanley Co. of America. The suit arose over an alleged breach of agreement in connection with the installation of 2,068 seats in the Grand, Pittsburgh.

The defendants have entered a denial to the allegations and have asserted that the installation was unskillful and defective.

Weisman Made Defendant

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice William P. Collins signed an order yesterday appointing Milton C. Weisman as a party defendant in connection with a suit brought by the Lexington Ave. & 59th St. Corp. against the Fox Theatres Corp., William Fox and the receivers for Fox Theatres Corp. Justice Collins' order explained that William E. Atkinson had resigned as receiver for the Fox Theatres Corp. and that the other receiver in connection with this action, John F. Sherman, has died.

Warners Buy 30 Acres

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 1.—Warners have completed the purchase of 30 acres of property adjoining the back lot of the studio. The space will be used for outdoor sets.

Cut-Rates and Duals Curbed By Contracts

with the distributors to maintain an advanced minimum evening adult admission, in return for which the distributor agrees to sell the same picture only to such subsequent runs as will agree to charge no less than an agreed upon minimum, usually 25 cents in all cases where the first runs' minimum is more than 40 cents.

The rider also provides that the specified minimum evening adult admission for the subsequent runs shall not be modified by the showing of a second feature on the same program with the one covered by the rider, or by the use of giveaways or any other form of gratuity constituting a bargain admission. The distributor agreeing to the use of the rider safeguards its provisions by including the necessary restrictions in the contracts for the subsequent run engagements. Failure of the distributor to do so permits the first run either to cancel its contract or bring action against the distributor in the courts. Breach of the agreement by a subsequent run makes it liable either to an action for breach of contract or the loss of further film service.

Facilitates Price Raises

In addition to effecting genuine curbs on cut-rate admission practices in many local situations, the rider is credited with having aided subsequents in boosting their admission scales and worked a benefit throughout entire localities, as a result.

The enforceability of the riders against subsequent runs was contested by R. C. Glass, Dallas exhibitor, in a case brought against Hoblitzelle, which resulted in the first runs' contracts being sustained by the Supreme Court of the state. The riders are believed to be available from all major distributors under the usual bargaining conditions.

Brains to Be Basis of Warner Chorus Jaunt

Warners chartered a plane to transport a limited number of girls of the chorus of "Gold Diggers of 1937" on a three-week trip to exploit the picture in 24 cities across the country. There are 200 girls in the chorus of the picture; all wanted to make the trip and the plane's capacity is 16.

Busby Berkeley, dance director for the picture, solved the problem. He designated the stunt a demonstration "that girls can be both intelligent and beautiful," and further simplified the selection of the passenger list by ruling that "above all, the girls making the trip must be intelligent and able to sing and dance."

At last reports there will still be a couple of vacant seats in the plane which will leave the coast about Nov. 15 and arrive here in December.

Selznick Signs March

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 1.—David O. Selznick has signed Fredric March for the forthcoming "A Star Is Born," to be made in Technicolor. Production is set to start this month.

days, Reade said, in towns within a radius of 200 miles of New York and with a population of from 5,000 to 30,000.

A. W. Smith, Jr., who has been linked with Reade's plans, is not interested. There will be no selling of stock, it was asserted. "We are going to permit local representatives to operate, after we get the thing going, without salary, but on half of the profits," Reade added.

The independent exhibitor head pointed out he has been considering the idea for the last year, and as a result of a survey conducted by Olmsted and Thomas W. Lamb, architect, it was decided that the time is ripe for building modern and up-to-date theatres in many small cities. None will be built in New York City.

Cost of building a theatre in towns of 5,000 population will approximate $30,000; from 5,000 to 10,000 people, $40,000 to $50,000; 18,000 to 25,000, $75,000. No theatre will cost more than $75,000.

Receipts Jump Prompted Move

"About 50 per cent of the 18,000 theatres in the United States are obsolete," Reade stated after referring to figures gotten up by Olmsted. "They are totally inadequate for the amount of money handled," he added. "The gross average theatre business of a town with a population of from 5,000 to 10,000 is from $50,000 to $60,000 a year. The small community has been neglected and cheated," he said.

Operating 40 theatres, Reade declared the new program and development are the result of the tremendous increase in box-office receipts this year. The theatres will seat from 600 to 1,000, contingent on the size of the town. There will be no balconies in any of the structures in order to provide for television apparatus.

In keeping apace of the times, Reade declared that whenever an important event such as a sport event or political speech is on the air, it will be broadcast from the stage of each of his units. Tuesday night, the shows in all Reade theatres were stopped for the broadcast of President Roosevelt's speech.

Skouras Back on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 1.—Charles P. Skouras is back at his F. W. C. desk, having completed an inspection trip through the Fox Rocky Mountain district with Rick Ricketson. Accompanying him were Bud Lollier, Bill Lyris and Dick Dickson.

Several days were spent hunting in Wyoming.

To Visit Music Unions

David Klein, candidate for the executive board of Local 802 of the A.F.M., will leave Oct. 8 for Hollywood. He will visit musicians' unions en route to obtain reactions to the picketing campaign, started in New York, to bring about the reemployment of musicians in film theatres.

My Deah!

San Francisco, Oct. 1.—Eyebrows were raised and lorgnettes were trained upon John McGlade, deputy superintendent of schools, at a luncheon of the Ass'n of University Women.

In the midst of a discussion of "better" films and their educational possibilities he admitted that his biggest film thrill in a long time was the Louis-Schmeling fight picture which he saw in Germany.

Alperson in Sale of 16,850 G. N. Shares

43,396 shares at the end of that month. Carl Leserman, vice-president and general sales manager of Grand National, disposed of 2,500 shares during August, reducing his holdings to 2,900 shares, the report showed.

Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production of Twentieth Century-Fox, during August sold 20,000 shares of common stock of that company. At the close of the month Zanuck held 162,130 shares of common and 21,946 shares of $1.50 cumulative preferred stock. John D. Clark, general sales manager and a director of Twentieth Century-Fox, acquired 200 shares of that company's common stock during August, bringing his holdings to 201 shares.

Alperson West on Studio

Consolidation of Grand National's studio activities will be discussed by Edward Alperson, president, during a coast visit of several weeks. Alperson leaves for Hollywood tonight to confer with Philip Krasne, Grand National attorney, on the subject. At present, the company is using three different studios.

Accompanying Alperson west is Sidney Biddell, head of the talent and story departments, who will confer with Douglas MacLean on James Cagney's second picture for Grand National.

"Godfrey" Strong in Pitt.

In a telegram to James R. Grainger, Universal's general manager of distribution, John P. Goring, manager of the Fulton in Pittsburgh, says "My Man Godfrey" opened its fifth week in the Smoky City to SRO business despite a heavy rain. The film, says Goring, broke the house record on the 25th day of its showing and, according to present indications, seems headed for a seven or eight-week run.

complaint against the Bowes program, among them the possibility that he cannot get sufficient amateur talent to fill his time, also that booking agencies have many on their lists who have never made a paid appearance and who are seeking to break in.

It is not anticipated that any action will be taken against Major Bowes, or that the complaint will be used against any station carrying his program when application is made for renewal of license.

Major Bowes said yesterday, when informed of the complaint, that he knew nothing about it, characterized it as ridiculous, and concluded, "Of course, we don't use professionals."

Bowes Is Air Leader

The Major Bowes Amateur Hour, according to the Crosley report, which appraises radio programs on the basis of their public appeal, is the leader of the ether lanes. The program is now broadcast from 9 to 10 P.M., Eastern Standard Time Thursday over the Columbia network, sponsored by Chrysler Motors, having recently switched from Sunday evenings from 8 to 9 P.M., Eastern Standard Time over the NBC system under the sponsorship of Chase and Sanborn.

$27,500,000, an increase of $1,000,000. The total assessment on Rockefeller Center buildings is $76,800,000, compared with $75,400,000 for 1936. The Music Hall and RKO Building was valued at $11,500,000.

Among Broadway theatres assessments for the most part showed decreases from the 1936 figures. The houses and their tentative 1937 valuations are: Loew's State, $3,850,000; Palace, $1,200,000; Mayfair, $1,675,000; Roxy, $3,425,000; Ziegfeld, $980,000; Astor, $1,700,000; Globe, $1,000,000; Strand, $3,200,000; Rivoli, $1,550,000; Capitol, $2,400,000; New Criterion, $6,500,000; Rialto, $3,000,000.

In the Bronx the Grand was assessed at $1,100,000; Keith's Fordham, $835,000, and the Paradise, $1,325,000. In Brooklyn Loew's Kings in Flatbush was assessed at $1,175,000; Loew's Metropolitan, $1,100,000; Loew's Melba, $450,000, and Fox Flatbush, $5,965,000.

Loew's Movie-Goer Out

Volume one, number one of Loew's Movie-Goer, new monthly paper for Loew theatre patrons, was distributed yesterday. The publication, an improvement over Loew's Weekly, goes many steps ahead of the regular program. In addition to the usual advance material on new product, coming attractions and star gossip, the paper also carries by-lined feature stories and advertising.

Plan "Blossoms" Opening

Imperial is negotiating for a Broadway theatre in which to hold the premiere of the new version of "Broken Blossoms," produced by Twickenham in England and released by Imperial here. The film stars Dolly Haas and Emlyn Williams.

Philadelphia Golf Draws Crowd Today

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—With a record number of golfers, the annual Variety Club and Exhibitor of Philadelphia tourney gets under way here tomorrow.

A goodly presentation of New Yorkers, despite the competition of the World Series, is looked for.

Major prizes have been contributed by individuals and companies including those from James R. Grainger, National Theatre Supply, Edward S. Herman, Republic, Ross Federal, Globe Ticket, John D. Clark, Western Electric, George J. Schaefer, W. Ray Johnston, RCA Photophone, Harry H. Thomas, G. B., Jules Levy, Ned E. Depinet, M. E. Comerford, Harry M. Warner, Major Albert Warner, Joseph Bernhard, Warner theatres, Jack Cohn, Wilmer & Vincent, March of Time, National Screen Service, Paul Terry, Bob Mochrie, Universal, Earle Hammons, Fortune Films and WCAU.

A dinner dance will highlight the evening.

Chicago Operators Adopt New Contract

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—The projectionists' union here today accepted the terms of the new contract and adopted the agreement at a membership meeting called to ratify the settlement reached by a union committee and one representing local exhibitors. The settlement was reached yesterday, and was in the nature of a compromise.

No change in the basic wage scale was effected for the new contract. The only changes in the existing agreement were of minor importance and concerned isolated cases. The new contract will run until Sept. 1, 1937.

The local here still persists in its refusal to use the 2,000-foot reel, and Chicago exchanges are supplying new pictures in 1,000-foot reels.

No Dough, No Show, Avers London Cast

LONDON, Oct 1.—"Transatlantic Rhythm," a musical review with Lupe Velez, Ruth Etting and Lou Holtz in the cast, is expected to fold after its opening performance tonight—providing it opens.

James Donohue, cousin to the F. W. Woolworth fortune, was backing the production but halted his cheque writing recently. Members of the cast who claimed salaries were due them plan to put on a single performance tonight at the Adelphi in an effort to realize something on the time spent in rehearsal. A sellout is reported.

Academy Committee Set

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 1.—Elected as members of the executive committee of the Academy Technicians' Branch for the coming year were: Ray Wilkinson, Fargiot Edouart, Fred Gage, Nathan Levinson, Wesley C. Miller, Van Nest Polglase and John Arnold. The three last named were reelected.

Shift London Runs

LONDON, Oct. 1.—M-G-M is transferring "The Great Ziegfeld" from His Majesty's to the London Hippodrome from Oct. 12 to Christmas. "Romeo and Juliet" will got into the former theatre.

Grainger Plans Return

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—J. R. Grainger, having reached a settlement in the product deal between Universal and Golden State circuit, is planning his return to New York. It will probably be Saturday.

Short Subjects

"Night Life of the Bugs"

(Universal)

Oswald, the rabbit, is out camping. In the middle of the night he is aroused by the cry of a queen bug and rescues her from a renegade woodpecker. In gratitude she reduces him to insect-size and shows him a bit of buggy night life. The invention and animation from that point are very effective and have a good measure of novelty. It ends up with Oswald, after resuming his natural size, settling up with the outlaw bird. An entertaining cartoon offering. Production Code Seal No. 2,450. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Pardon My Spray"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

An exciting and well made number of the Sports With Bill Corum series. Boats are the subject. With beautiful and ingenious camera work, the subject reveals the thrills and fine points of yacht racing and outboard motorboat competitions. The camera catches all the movement of the shifting of sails, maneuvers and the spills and excitement of the power craft. Fine material and plenty of interest. Definitely a pleasing item. Production Code Seal No. 01,157. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Beach Combers"

(Universal)

Oswald goes to the beach and leaves Elmer, his dog, standing guard over his lunch. Mrs. Duck's offspring after a few attempts make off with the basket and take it into the ocean. The dog pursues. Menace in the form of an octopus comes on the scene. Much consternation results with Elmer finally rescuing the ducklings. It makes the grade. Production Code Seal No. 2,266. Running time, 8½ mins. "G."

M-G-M in Dallas Tieup

Dallas, Oct. 1.—First actual tieup between Hollywood and little theatres started here today as the drama school of the local group began its fall season. M-G-M has agreed to accept one student from the school next spring. Fifty aspirants to film careers have registered for the course.

The agreement was effected by John Rosenfield, critic on the Morning News. He took a Centennial beauty winner to Hollywood, Geraldine Robertson, and secured a six-month contract for her.

Joe Oulahan Injured

Cincinnati, Oct. 1.—Joe Oulahan, Paramount manager, was painfully bruised when his auto overturned on a slippery road in the Kentucky mountains. He was returning to Cincinnati from a business trip.

Zanuck Signs Catlett

Hollywood, Oct. 1.—Darryl F. Zanuck has signed Walter Catlett to a term contract for Twentieth Century-Fox. The actor is currently playing in "Banjo on My Knee."

Greenfield Called In Fox Bankruptcy

Atlantic City, Oct. 1.—Albert M. Greenfield, Philadelphia banker and realtor, has been summoned to appear for questioning when the William Fox bankruptcy proceedings are resumed here next Tuesday.

Because Federal Referee Robert E. Steedle under the law could not subpoena a witness from another state, Walter Hanstein, also of this city, one of the creditors' lawyers, took the matter to Judge John Boyd Avis in Federal District Court at Camden. He petitioned Judge Avis to order Greenfield's appearance and this was granted.

The creditors' counsel wish to question Greenfield about dealings in which, according to earlier testimony, Greenfield acted for Fox in some stock purchases.

The customary Thursday hearing was not held today because of a religious holiday.

Set Joint Operation Of Louisville House

Louisville, Oct. 1.—The Fourth Avenue Amusement Co. and Loew's are jointly operating the Brown here, just reopened after having been closed since last May. Dale Houston is manager.

J. Graham Brown, owner of the Brown Hotel and the theatre, remodeled the house completely, while the two companies are furnishing product. Loew's has the local franchise on M-G-M, Columbia and United Artists product, while Fourth Avenue has Universal, Twentieth Century-Fox, Radio and Paramount. The Brown will be used as an outlet for surplus product and for holdovers which are not quite strong enough for a second week at Loew's State or the Rialto, each seating 3,000.

Goetz Has Celebration

Cincinnati, Oct. 1.—Joe Goetz, manager of the RKO Paramount, deluxe neighborhood, staged an elaborate celebration for the theatre's fifth anniversary. The Mayor, Rabbi James G. Heller, Rev. W. P. O'Connor, Rev. H. Gradison Hill, RKO officials and film editors were on the welcoming line. Refreshments were served in the lobby.

The affair assumed proportions of a civic event, and was accorded liberal space in the dailies, accompanied by Goetz's picture.

Briskin Schedules Eight

Hollywood, Oct. 1. — Samuel J. Briskin has scheduled eight pictures for October at Radio. This will be the third consecutive month in which eight pictures have been launched at that studio. Those to start are: "Criminal Lawyer," "Mother Carey's Chickens," "They Wanted to Marry," "We, the Jury," "Michael Strogoff," "Miss Custom's Agent" and "Coast Patrol."

Try Cut Rate Tickets

Cincinnati, Oct. 1. — What is equivalent to a price reduction from the established 42-cent rate, including tax, at the Mayfair, independent, playing foreign product, is the sale of patrons' tickets offered at $2 for six admissions. The tickets are good for any show at any time.

Aboriginal S. A.

Cincinnati, Oct. 1.—Whether the exhibitor from a nearby small town was deficient in his enunciation, or thought he was booking an Indian sex picture, is not known. The fact remains, however, that said exhibitor, when visiting local exchanges, mentioned that he would play "The Lust of the Mohicans."

Hollywood's Press List Drops to 254

Hollywood, Oct. 1.—A total of 254 accredited Hollywood press correspondents are listed in the new Producers' Assn. roster which will be mailed out to studios within the next few days. The new figures show a definite cut in the ranks of the accredited press which numbered 293 at the end of last July when the last listing was compiled.

During July the list jumped from 263 to 293.

Of the new list, 48 are members of the foreign press and the balance from free lance magazine, trade and wire services.

St. Louis Auction Set

St. Louis, Oct. 1.—Assets of Skouras Bros. Enterprises will be sold Oct. 22 on the Civil Courthouse steps, and separate bids will be received on over 52 per cent of the stock of the St. Louis Amusement Co. by Nelson Cunliff, trustee in bankruptcy.

Independent Product Is Gaining—Johnston

Increase in the number and cost of independent productions with the utilization of current events as story themes is predicted for the near future by W. Ray Johnston, president of Monogram.

"I am convinced," said Johnston, "that the independent has a certain advantage over the large producer in that he can utilize the flexibility and rapidity of his production methods to keep in step with world developments and offer to the public topics of interest such as the strife in Spain, the rise of Fascist groups or national elections while they are still of absorbing interest to everyone."

Johnston feels that the market outlook today is favorable to independent production and adds that the increase in that direction will raise standards generally by "stimulating a wholesome rivalry."

Lou Rogers Working On Series of Films

Lou Rogers is preparing a series of pictures for state right release, the first to be "The Comeback" featuring Max Schmeling. Sam Taub makes the radio announcements while fight comments are handled by Benny Leonard.

Exhibitor Is Candidate

Littleton, N. H., Oct. 1.—Jack Aemes, veteran exhibitor and theatre circuit head in New Hampshire, has tossed his hat into the political ring and will run for state senator from the north New Hampshire district.

CRITICS HAIL FRED SCOTT IN SPECTRUM'S NEW MUSICAL WESTERN ROMANCE RIDES THE RANGE
A CALLAGHAN-BUELL PRODUCTION

HERE'S WHAT THEY SAY!

Film Daily —NICELY PRODUCED MUSICAL WESTERN WITH ENTERTAINING STORY AND INTERESTING ACTING AND ACTION . . . Audiences liking clean-cut yarns of ranch life will enjoy this feature whose story gives Fred Scott, singing western star, ample opportunity to show vocal, pugilistic and riding skill.

Motion Picture Herald—Scott has a good voice and an agreeable personality, auguring well for favor with western adherents, as this is the first of a series of six productions starring him.

Box Office —In addition to a pleasing romance, some fast riding and several most realistic set-tos, this first western in a new series follows the present popular trend by providing two spots for the handsome young star, Fred Scott, to display his baritone voice to advantage.

Hollywood Reporter—FRED SCOTT OKAY AS WESTERN STAR . . . He speaks his lines and rides a horse well and is a good mixer in the rough and tumble fisticuffs which are an essential part of these opuses . . . This leads to a goodly amount of six-shooting, fast riding, plenty of acrobatic fist fights, plus a number of songs.

Showmen's Trade Review—Good performances by Scott, Marion Shilling and Cliff Nazarro and some excellent baritone singing by Scott. Film is paced swiftly and goes places in a hurry . . . Plenty of riding and shooting and interesting horse "White King."

Film Curb—Plenty of fights, hard-riding, gunplay and a bit of romance . . Scott has a pleasing voice and there are two rather catchy numbers.

Mexico Plans Import Rules As State Aid

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 28.—Additional state aid for Mexican producers is embodied in a measure drafted by the Ministry of Finance and submitted to a special committee for consideration. The measure is admittedly designed to give the Mexican producers the chance they must have if they are to survive in the face of the overwhelming competition of foreign product.

Under the terms of the proposal Mexican and foreign distributors would be limited in imports to the equivalent of 20 features a year for each firm. Further, no other foreign distributors will be registered, no one firm is to be permitted to represent more than one producer under a single authorization, and a system of interchange would be established, whereby distributors of foreign product must handle at least one domestic film for every five or six imported, assuring exhibitors of the domestic film on an identical basis with that of the imported product.

When the committee has rendered its decision on the measure, the ministry will act to make it a law. The Government recently exempted Mexican producers from the payment of income tax on the proceeds of their product.

The Mexican operators of a local theatre are planning a court test of the application of a presidential decree of last year exempting theatres from paying the municipal land tax if they give performances of a cultural nature. The suit will seek an injunction to restrain the local treasury department from collecting 12,000 pesos it claims as land tax on the theatre. The city attorney contends the decree applies only to legitimate theatres, and that the operators are operating entirely as a film house, and therefore are not entitled to the exemption.

A deal has been completed whereby the domestic product of Cinematografica Latino Americana, S. A., one of the most important native producers, will be distributed in Czechoslovakia. Features and shorts are included. The deal was aided by both Governments, which are seeking to stimulate mutual trade relations.

Unnamed producers, said to be from Hollywood, are planning the establishment of studios in Southern California for the production of pictures in Spanish for the Mexican and Central American markets, according to reports.

Drastic Film Import Rules Up in Austria

By HANS LORANT

VIENNA, Sept. 24 (Via Hindenburg).—Complete new import regulations for films with regulations both as to price to be paid and the number of films that can be brought in during a year are proposed to the Government by a committee of producers, distributors and exhibitors.

The regulations are drastic and are intended as a basis of negotiation. The object, it is stated, is to reduce competition.

Under the terms of the proposal a committee representing all branches of the industry would be named to submit recommendations for the Minister of Commerce, who would be authorized to reject a film proposed for import and have final jurisdiction on other details.

Full details would be necessary on each film—casts, name of the firm owning the world rights, author, composer, etc., total production expense, how much the Austrian distributor has to pay for the rights, either flat rental or percentage, and the terms of the payments.

The committee would be authorized to bar the importation of a film where the terms are considered too high, and no other firm would be allowed to import it for six months after rejection, even though the terms had been revised downward.

Austrian branches of foreign firms would be allowed to import films without approval if no advance payment is required and no percentage guaranteed, but permission can be refused if the committee feels the distributors' expenses would be greater than the prospective receipts.

At the beginning of every season, the committee, under the proposed plan, would fix the number of imports to be allowed. Licenses would not be transferable, if a distributor failed to use up all his licenses. New firms' permits would be based on their financial resources.

Backers of the plan feel that prices paid to foreign firms would be completely regulated and that competition will be limited.

"Showings of "The Great Ziegfeld" and "Romeo and Juliet" at the Salzburg Festival were so successful that Felix Bernstein, M-G-M manager here, believes outstanding films should be made a part of the official program each year, he says.

Premieres at the festival would benefit the industry at large, he contends. His idea is that the pick of the new releases each year should be submitted to an official committee, with the understanding that the names of rejected films should be kept secret to protect distributors.

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" has been released in several Vienna houses. The picture is doing good business and critics agree that it is a technical advance over "Becky Sharp."

The Hungarian censors have barred "Thunder in the Night," a Twentieth Century-Fox picture based on the stage play, "A Woman Is Lying" by Laszle Feder, noted Hungarian playwright. The play ran for several weeks without objection from the authorities.

Gangster films, formerly confined to neighborhood houses, have achieved a new popularity here, and the fashionable Kreuzkino has been showing thrillers for several months. The two big hits of recent weeks have been "Chicago Gangster" and "Prisoner of Shark Island."

Willy Forst's new picture, "Burgthester," is nearly complete. It has been sold in England and will be shown at the Academy, London.

Gloria has started a new film at the Tobis-Rosenhuegel studios called "Flowers from Nice" with Erns Sack in the leading male role.

Jan Kiepura's "Opernring," produced by Gloria, won a gold medal at the Biennale in Venice.

A Day's Work

Kansas City, Oct. 1.—John McManus, manager of Loew's Midland, had a rather long day on duty last Saturday. The theatre opened at 8:30 A. M. in preparation for a Mickey Mouse birthday show for children, beginning at 9:30. Approximately 300 adults and 900 children braved the rain. At midnight the late show went on, and lasted until after 3:00 A. M. Sunday morning, more than 18½ hours later.

Scophony Reveals Its Television Expenses

LONDON, Sept. 19.—First report of Scophony, Ltd., covering the period from April, 1935 to March, 1936, reveals that this television development company spent £21,704 on "technical development of inventions." Formed as a private company with an issued capital of £140,000 in £1 shares, Scophony became a public company on June 4, the £1 shares being divided into four 5/- shares and the nominal capital increased to £300,000. There was an issue of 640,000 of the shares of new denomination. In July, 140,000 shares were offered at a premium of 50 per cent and were all taken up. The directors of Scophony, Ltd., in addition to S. Sagall, the technical expert, are Sir Maurice Bonham-Carter, financier; Oscar Deutsch, managing director of the Odeon circuit; Arthur Levey, American film executive, and E. J. Wyborn. They are at present working without remuneration. Some time ago Scophony, Ltd., claimed that it had perfected television to the point at which projection of a theatre size picture was practicable.

Extension Of School Films Use Planned

There are only 10,097 projectors now serving 17,000,000 school pupils, according to the findings of the Government and the American Council on Education, and a Federal grant is being considered to widen the use of films in education, it is said in an article in Motion Picture Herald.

The anticipation of such extension is seen as opening the way for large potential profits for the industry in a field which is not considered direct competition with established theatrical exhibition.

Last January, the Herald says, the Office of Education of the Dep't of the Interior, headed by John W. Studebaker, began a study of the situation now and its future possibilities, with the cooperation of the American Council on Education, of which George F. Zook is president. A questionnaire was addressed to all superintendents of schools in every city with a population exceeding 5,000. Requested was information on the frequency of use of audio-visual aids to teaching, a list of equipment owned, and the problems attendant upon a visual education program.

Purchase Plan Needed

A total of 9,000 replies were received, representative of nearly 17,000,000 pupils in 83,000 grade and high schools.

The questionnaire indicated 10,097 projectors in use, 27,573 slides and 12,342 radios, showing a ratio of 620 pupils per slide, 1,683 pupils per projector and 1,277 pupils per radio.

The greatest need expressed was for some plan permitting the purchase of equipment, with the assistance of a Federal agency. The educators are seeking reduced prices and time payments, and the assurance that the equipment will be standard in quality and size. Inspection and certification by the U. S. Bureau of Standards are seen as possible, and desirable, through a Federal purchase plan, the Government unit and Education Council pointed out.

Films Recommended to Students

The council has compiled an index of all available educational films, and will turn its attention to new sources of production of such material. The report points out that already approximately 4,500,000 American students are being urged to see selected films.

The survey indicated that films are used more extensively in the teaching of science than in any other subject, with travel and geographical material ranking next, followed by historical films.

C. M. Moon of the Dep't of the Interior declared: "Close collaboration of educators, producers and Government officials is needed if the vast potentialities of the educational film are to be developed."

A SERIES of advertisements in TIME, The Weekly Newsmagazine, are carrying news, gossip and intimate experiences of theaters in the seven major districts of the U. S. showing the March of Time. They also offer 650,000 interested buyers of TIME a complete list of all theaters showing the March of Time, classified by states and cities. Five of these advertisements have appeared, more are scheduled. Already thousands have written for and received the lists with the name of the theater in their town underscored—perhaps the name of your theater.

Here again is exclusive March of Time promotion that sends the customer direct to your theater. Ask your local RKO man for samples of these lists and the booklet "The First 59"* which contains brief summaries and interesting pictures of the important and dramatic news-stories covered by the March of Time since its invention.

*Already shrewd managers are stimulating interest in the monthly issues of the March of Time by distributing this booklet with its exciting talk-provoking stories of past episodes to their patrons. Copies in bulk may be obtained by writing March of Time, 460 West 54th Street, N. Y. C.

Deal Is Not Terminated Despite Setback--Schenck

More Delays In Sight for MPTOA Talks

Several Sales Heads Out Of Town or Leaving

Further delays in bringing about a showdown on M.P.T.O.A.'s 10-point trade practice program appeared inevitable yesterday and indications are slight that any decisive action on the part of all major distributors can be had next week.

Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, arrives from Philadelphia today to press for further action on the program. He conferred yesterday with Lewen Pizor of Philadelphia and O. C. Lam of Rome, Ga., both members of the exhibitor organization's trade practice committee, and will spend the early part of next week conferring with other M.P.T.O.A. officers here, such as Walter Vincent and Frank C. Walker.

No arrangements for meetings with sales heads of the large distribution companies have been made by the M.P.T.O.A. officials for next week and several days may be required before any appreciable number of such meetings can be set. Moreover, John D. Clark, Twentieth Century-Fox sales head, left last night for the coast on a trip of several weeks' duration; Neil F. Agnew, Paramount distribution chief, is planning a trip to the coast, and James R. Grainger, Universal general sales manager, is not expected

Warners Ask Detail In Plagiarism Suit

A motion was made in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday on behalf of Warners asking a bill of particulars in the suit for $1,000,000 brought by Ferdinand Voteur charging plagiarism. The Intrastate Theatre Corp. was named as a co-defendant.

The plaintiff claimed that prior to January, 1935, he wrote a dramatic work, titled "Resurrection Morning," which he sent to Warners. It was returned after many weeks, he declared,

Deutsch Invades the West End of London

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Oscar Deutsch, head of the Odeon Circuit, probably England's fastest growing chain, will invade the West End of London with acquisition of the Alhambra in Leicester Square. He plans to rebuild it into a deluxe theatre.

Roxy Pays 20th-Fox $62,000 on 2 Films

Film rental paid by the Roxy to Twentieth Century-Fox on two pictures, "Girls' Dormitory" and "Sing, Baby, Sing," totaled $62,000. The first picture was held for two weeks, for which the distributor received $28,500; the second, which wound up a three-week run Thursday night, netted Twentieth Century-Fox $33,500. The gross business for the third week was $36,365.

In both instances the Roxy pulled the pictures, which could have played another week, and waived protection so that RKO and independent circuits in Greater New York could get bookings. The withdrawals were effected in a spirit of cooperation, according to the theatre management, as the Roxy has no circuit or any distributing affiliation.

A similar occurrence took place about 10 days ago when the Paramount yanked "The General Died at Dawn" after it had garnered $36,600

20th-Fox to Stress Multiple Star Casts

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.—Multiple star casts are being stressed by Twentieth Century-Fox in the lining up of talent for "Seventh Heaven," "Wife, Nurse and Doctor" and "The Last Slaver."

Tentatively scheduled for "Seventh Heaven" are Simone Simon and Robert Taylor; for "The Last Slaver," Wallace Beery, Franchot Tone, Loretta Young, and Clark Gable; for "Wife, Nurse and Doctor," Myrna Loy and Warner Baxter.

Dualing Clause Not Restraint, Is Claim

The contention that the use of the anti-double feature clause in exhibition contracts involves no restraint on interstate commerce will be argued by distributors for the first time next week, when a rehearing of the Perelman case attacking the validity of the clauses is held before the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in the city of Philadelphia.

The Federal court reconvenes on Monday and indications are that the duals case, which is tenth on the court's calendar, will be reached on Tuesday.

The rehearing was granted to distributors on their plea that the court had misconceived some of the testimony and had been guided in part by other testimony which was either incompetent or improper.

The circuit court found that there was conspiracy among distributors to use the anti-double feature clause, which, unless reversed as a result of the rehearing, would invalidate the

Rodgers Says M-G-M Will Not Quit Ross

Reports M-G-M would break away from Ross Federal Checking Service and branch out with its own checkers were denied yesterday by William F. Rodgers, general sales manager.

The company is now "experimenting" in two spots with its own men on certain ideas it has in mind, Rodgers said. The territories are New York and Boston, where checkers have been working three weeks on a plan which,

Hits Consideration by Ostrers of Maxwell Bid for G. B.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.—Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of Twentieth Century-Fox, emphatically stated upon his arrival here today that negotiations have not been terminated in the G. B.-Twentieth Century-Fox-M-G-M deal. Schenck, in a sarcastic vein, hit at the Ostrers for their consideration of a competitive bid from a source believed to be John Maxwell, of British International, with the statement that the same opposition concern had offered £1,750,000 for the interest of Twentieth Century-Fox in G. B. But, said Schenck, "we refused, feeling that we had committed ourselves to go through with the original deal."

Schenck said that Isidore Ostrer told him that his (Ostrer's) brother felt that the competitive corcern's offer should be considered inasmuch as they made the higher bid. However, said Schenck, since Twentieth Century-Fox has initialed the final papers, it is ready to carry out the terms of the agreement.

Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, will remain in London to continue negotiations. Schenck will remain here until March

Watching 'Adverse' Charts Keeps Warner Men Enthused

By SHERWIN A. KANE

When the sales and publicity departments over at Warners get to talking of "Anthony Adverse" (and when don't they?), they make frequent references to two long lists of figures. One is a chart of the picture's grosses and the other is the number of records of one kind or another which it has broken up to now. Occasionally, in their enthusiasm, they get the lists confused and read off a box car figure from the "records broken" list when what they were hunting for was "Anthony's" first run take in Seattle or Jacksonville. The lists are fairly interchangeable, however, and the on the third week. Exhibitors and exchange executives were clamoring for the picture. With this kind of gross, the usual policy of the Paramount is to hold the attraction.

"My Man Godfrey," on its second week at the Music Hall, tallied $73,000, which was good. "Craig's Wife," which opened Thursday, registered a $11,000 day. The Palace was fair with "Swing Time" on a single bill, getting about $7,200 for the week. The second week of "The Great Ziegfeld" at the Capitol was above average with $38,000. "Don't Turn 'Em Loose" finished a 10-day run at the Rivoli with $10,000.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Big Broadcast of 1937"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.—A wealth of values is included here, resulting in high quality entertainment and nice exploitation potentialties. The picture gives audience or exhibitor all that either looks for in a film. Both the spectacularly mounted celebrity revue and the inside radio station comedy-romance of this new edition under its well-known title sparkle with music, dancing specialties, excitement and fun that make desirable amusement moving with speed and precision.

A thin, but pleasing, story serves as an effective vehicle for a parade of film, radio and concert notables. Burns and Allen, sponsoring a broadcast in Jack Benny's station, order him and Ray Milland, a talent agent, to round up a top-notch program. Thus the ball is started rolling hilariously. Milland brings in Shirley Ross, a kidding hick announcer, to set the stage for a comedy conflict between himself and Benny for the girl's affections. Gracie Allen and Martha Raye gum things up delightfully and Miss Ross goes innocently high hat.

From the celebrity parade that follows these sequences come Frank Forest singing in modern rhumba style and Bob Burns with a running story full of gags characteristically interrupted by Miss Allen and Miss Raye and followed by a Benny Goodman orchestra serenading Benny Fields, the fast-dancing Eleanor Whitney and Louis Dapron. Applause greeted the rendering of a symphonic number by a symphony orchestra under Leopold Stokowski. Photography concentrates on the hands of the conductor to show how he achieves his orchestral effects.

As Benny and Milland chase all over New York in an effort to find the disappointed Miss Ross, the climax is reached in a sumptuously produced radio wedding in which she marries Milland.

With the players listed performing in highly creditable style, the picture does not miss a beat in putting over its amusing entertainment. Five Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin numbers assure plenty of musical content. The topical original by Erwin Gelsey, Arthur Kober and Barry Trivers, adapted by Walter DeLeon and Francis Martin, is a pleasing comedy-romance and light drama aided by the special effects of Gordon Jennings and Paul Lerpae. Theodore Sparkuhl's clever photography and the direction of Mitchell Leisen combine to endow the production of Lewis E. Gensler with plenty of verve and dash.

"The Gay Desperado"

(Pickford-Lasky-United Artists)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.—Here is box-office for any theatre. Original and different, the film's entertainment is there. In its character, the show is a broad farce-comedy melodrama, embellished by lilting music and the interweaving of an intriguing, romantic love-interest thread. It is handsomely mounted and the fact that Lucien Andriot's photography several times stimulated applause, tips off the film's artistic production.

The cast headed by Nino Martini, Leo Carrillo, Ida Lupino, Mischa Auer, Stanley Fields, Harold Huber and James Blakely, does a nice job, the best performances coming from Carrillo and Auer.

Much credit must be given Leo Birinski for his unique, original story; to Wallace Smith for the screen play that is loaded with fun in situation and dialogue; to Rouben Mamoulian for direction technique.

One hilarious surprise, interluded by Martini's singing, follows another in the story. Carrillo, the worst bad man in Mexico, has a passion for music, yet he wants his bandits to emulate up-to-date American gangster methods as they are practiced in films. He makes Martini, a shooting gallery theatre singer, a member of his gang so he can hear his voice. Kidnapping Miss Lupino and Blakely, an eloping couple, Carrillo goes off to make a ransom business alliance with Fields, a Chicago Mobster, leaving Martini to guard the prisoners. The singing Martini and Miss Lupino fall in love in the most approved slapstick, low-comedy fashion, while Blakely escapes.

Fields plots to hi-jack Carrillo and give him the works, but is upset. With the tables turned on Fields' mob, the epitome of all the screen's public enemies, Carrillo delivers them up to the American authorities, gives Miss Lupino to Martini, sends Blakely home and rides off to indulge in more of his old-fashioned Mexican banditry.

With Martini's singing to charm the intelligentsia and the satirical action-backed story probably long enough to amuse the masses, the show has considerable appeal. Certain to benefit by word-of-mouth advertising, the film has an inherent exploitation quality enabling showmen to go to town.

Bondholders of GTE End K. C. Litigation

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 2.—Six General Theatre Equipment bondholders who sought to intervene in the bankruptcy cases of the Fox Midland and the Fox Rocky Mountain circuit properties in U. S. District Court here April, 1935, have decided against further litigation.

General Theatre Equipment bonds held by the plaintiffs were listed at around $6 and $7 when the litigation was instituted. Shortly after C. A. Randolph and R. R. Brewster filed the action, the Chase National Bank, which, with Fox Film, Fox West Coast and others, was defendant, went into the Wilmington, Del., court which had jurisdiction over the General Theatre bankruptcy, and proposed a settlement of General Theatre claims arising under the two company's previous relationship. The terms of this settlement, accepted by the Delaware court almost a year after its proposal, called for a release of Chase from the claims and granted bondholders of General Theatre certain rights, including the right to exchange bonds for stock in the new Fox company.

This settlement was responsible for a rise in the value of the bonds, now quoted at around $35.

"Our people are satisfied with the results of that settlement," commented Randolph in announcing the abandonment of any further litigation.

K. C. Show Brings Fine

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 2.—Judge Thomas V. Holland in the North Side Municipal Court has fined Breckenridge Fagin and Robert F. Lakenan, Jr., $250 for showing "Ecstasy" at the Royal Sept. 22 without a permit from the city censor.

Roy W. Rucker, attorney for Fagin and Lakeman, appealed the fine to the Circuit Court.

back from a west coast trip until the end of the week. With Warners still refusing to participate in the trade practice confabs, this leaves only the sales heads of M-G-M, United Artists, Columbia and RKO, of the major distributors, available for meetings next week.

It is believed here that Kuykendall will make no decision on the procedure to be adopted in re-visiting the sales heads until after his conferences with other MP.T.O.A. officials. This might mean that no regular schedule of meetings would be attempted during Kuykendall's current visit, but that distributors would be communicated with and asked to make known their final decisions on the trade practice program without further delay.

resultant discrepancies seldom amount to very much.

Both of the lists are long and the figures impressive. The reader has difficulty in recalling, after laying them down, that the Normandie, Queen Mary and Empire State Bldg. were pretty big in their day, too.

There are two performances among the picture's many notable ones thus far, however, to which the distributor points with pride. One is that it has and is playing New England circuits on a single feature policy without any contract restrainer to bring that phenomenon about, and the other is that when it played Milwaukee it had the tavern proprietors complaining like an exhibitor mass meeting on the morning after a rainy, Monday night which had an all-Star Hollywood broadcast on the air.

Singled, Even in N. E.

To say that the single featuring of "Anthony" in New England is not remarkable in view of the picture's length—its running time is 139 minutes—is to display a sad lack of knowledge of New England exhibition. True, a second feature on the same program might be mistaken for a short subject, anyhow, but that makes little or no difference to your Yankee audience. Doubling with "Anthony" was discouraged when Grad Sears, Warner general sales manager, refused to make any allowance in terms for the use of a second feature. This is credited with inducing the M. & P. Circuit, which had its first run in the Boston territory, to play the picture alone at the outset, and its performance is said to have done the rest.

The same policy of the distributor in refusing to make no allowance for a second feature on the same program is to apply wherever "Anthony Adverse" is sold. Negotiations are now under way with the RKO metropolitan circuit on that basis. If closed, the picture will play RKO's neighborhood first runs on a single feature basis and for one-week stands. Loew's metropolitan "subway circuit" will follow RKO with the picture, also on a single bill policy.

Advanced Admissions the Rule

The picture was generally released Aug. 29, but had a limited number of pre-release engagements prior to that date. Including those engagements, "Anthony Adverse" had grossed $1,650,000 in 271 first runs up to Sept. 26. Its opening was the signal for advancing the admission scales in a number of the theatres in which it played. Warners point with pride to this circumstance and, also, to the fact that a number of the houses which were enabled to boost admissions on the strength of the picture's draw, maintained them at the higher levels when the run was over. The increases mostly were in houses with a 40-cent top, which was uniformly increased to 55 cents.

The advanced scales, naturally, contributed to the grosses which the picture has turned in, but its records include new attendance figures, as well. In its first run engagements to date, "Anthony" has eclipsed the comparable grosses of "Gold Diggers of 1933," the picture which Warners have been using as the yardstick for measuring maximum gross possibilities in individual theatres and territories. Total gross of "Gold Diggers" was $2,250,000. The distributor anticipates a final gross for "Anthony" well over that figure.

Its individual records are headed by an opening week gross of $17,184 at the Warner, Milwaukee, where it remained for three weeks. The former house record was $13,800, held by "Top Hat." "Gold Diggers" grossed $10,566 in its opening week at the same house.

Closed Box-Offices Frequent

The length of the picture reduces the "spill" at the theatre to such an extent that box-offices of many of the houses playing it have had to be closed for hours at a time after capacity has been reached. The problem thus presented was solved in some instances by booking the picture into large weekly change houses for opening runs instead of into the smaller houses operating on indefinite run policies. This was resorted to in Chicago, where the picture played the 4,400-seat Chicago for a two weeks' gross of $80,000, and then was put into the smaller Apollo for an indefinite run.

It played three and one-half weeks at the Denver, Denver; then continued its first run at the Aladdin and Broadway. Following its three weeks at the Warner, Milwaukee, its first run was continued at the Strand. After two weeks at the Palace, Rochester, the run was continued at the Regent. Its holdover record is a lengthy one and the new house records for both gross and attendance are numerous.

Film's "Head Start" Important

"Anthony Adverse" was, of course, a "natural." The book was one of the most widely read and discussed novels of recent years. It had a tremendous "tailor-made" audience, and, lavishly advertised and publicized, it came from the studio already sold to the public on a grand scale. Had it not been a record-breaker, its failure would have been more difficult to explain than its success now is. And yet its performance is news because it is surpassing in precise and impressive fashion all of the marks which consign a picture to that limitless classification of "just another good one."

As a Warner publicist put it: "Naturally, we weren't expecting 'Adverse' to be a 'stiff,' but we weren't looking for a surprise like this, either."

Show Must Go On (?)

London, Oct. 2.—The sore-beset revue, "International Rhythm," financed by the Woolworth fortune heir, Jimmie Donahue, may continue after all—for a while, at least. The entire cast has decided to stick, with the exception of Ruth Etting, who has walked out, planning to sail on the Normandie for home Wednesday.

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's and M-G-M, may not sail for London on the M-G-M-Twentieth Century-Fox-G. B. deal after all, it was indicated yesterday. He has not booked passage on any of the Southampton-bound liners scheduled to leave Hudson River piers in the next few weeks, and, as far as it could be learned, he has no plans for sailing.

Arthur M. Loew, head of the M-G-M foreign department, is now in London for the purpose of looking into the deal. He will be there several weeks before heading for the Far East. Whether Loew's presence in London will make unnecessary the ultimate appearance of Schenck on the other side could not be learned.

Para. Combs Studios For Cocktail Party

Paramount fine-tooth combed the Hollywood studio to gather the cast of honor guests for a cocktail party to be held, tossed or poured in Le Perroquet suite of the Waldorf-Astoria on Monday from 5 to 7 P. M., etc.

The cast (definite): William LeBaron, managing director of Paramount production; Wesley Ruggles, producer-director; Ernst Lubitsch, producer-director; King Vidor, producer-director; Irene Dunne, star; George Raft, star; William Frawley, contract player; Travis Banton, fashion designer; Elizabeth Patterson, player; Margaret Perry, player. The cast (possible): Gary Cooper, Randolph Scott, Leopold Stokowski, Benny Goodman.

U. A. Group Converging

United Artists currently is in a dither over a concentration of its own luminaries. Nino Martini, of course, is here and already has had a cocktail party at the Waldorf Thursday.

Dr. A. H. Giannini and his son, Bernard, arrive from Hollywood today. Likewise does Walter Huston, lead in "Dodsworth." Rouben Mamoulian, director of "The Gay Desperado," arrives tomorrow. Tay Garnett, who directed "High Treason," starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. for Criterion of London, disembarks from the Queen Mary Monday and Fredric March hits town from Hollywood the following day.

B.I.P. Product Deals in U.S. Being Held Up

Action Awaits Ostrers' Decision on Sale

With control of G. B. still in the balance and no definite decision as yet reported to have been reached by the Ostrers to sell their holdings, B. I. P. executives in London are holding up all proposed distribution deals for product in the United States, it was learned Saturday.

Budd Rogers, American representative for the company, is understood to have sent over five different deals for approval in the past few months. No action, it is said, has been taken on any of the proffered offers, the understanding being that if Maxwell is successful in his bid with the Ostrers he will most likely organize a new exchange system here for the handling of the combined product of his producing companies and G. B.

G. B. has its own sales force in this country, but physical distribution is Legion Approves All Of 11 New Pictures

Of 11 new and reissued pictures reviewed by the National Legion of Decency in its list for the current week, seven were classified as unobjectionable for general patronage and four as unobjectionable for adults, of which group two were reissues. The films and their classification follow:

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage—"Alibi for Murder," "Bulldog Edition," "The Captain's Kid," "Daniel Boone," "The Gay Desperado," "The Longest Night," "Undercover Man." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults—"Accusing Finger," "Ein Walzer Fuer Dich" (German), "Informer" (Reissue), "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" (Reissue).

8 Permits Denied by Moss in 18 Months

Applications for eight theatres planned on Park, Madison and Fifth avenues have been denied by Paul Moss, commissioner of licenses, in the last year and a half, it was revealed by the Fifth Ave. Ass'n., which is behind the campaign to keep theatres off these avenues.

The contention of the association is that the tone of the streets would be lowered if new theatres were to be constructed; and that the amusement district should be a unit by itself.

Circuits, Overbuilding Key; Booking Hurdle Seen Licked

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Captain A. C. N. Dixey, organizer of the Independent Exhibitors Distribution Co., Ltd., now in the process of formation, has declared that a legal means exists to meet the possible obstacle to his plan, which lies in the Films Act prohibition of the booking of films which have not been completed. It had been pointed out that the option on planned product which would be held by the exhibitor-shareholders of the new company might be regarded as a contractual commitment on films still unmade.

Dixey, however, gave no indication of exactly how he proposes legally to avoid the booking situation. In a prospectus addressed to exhibitors, Dixey outlined the proposed security split of the £200,000 ($1,000,000)

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The domination of product by the major circuits in the country is viewed here now as the chief obstacle to the eventual conclusion of an agreement relative to the serious problem of overbuilding, which has been a center of attention here for a long time.

It is contended in criticism that the major circuits would be in a position to break down any such arrangement at any time it ceased to be to their advantage, and that in view of the close association with distributors, the establishment of such a joint committee as has been proposed would leave the major theatre units relatively stronger than now, in comparison with the strength of the independent exhibitors.

Studio Work Drops With 41 Shooting

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—Fifteen new pictures went before the cameras last week, but with 17 finished, studio activity dropped another notch from the week preceding. Forty-one features and two short subjects were shooting as compared to 43 features and one short the previous week.

Twentieth Century-Fox registered one of the busiest periods since the Zanuck-Schenck interests took over the studio, with nine pictures in work. This was the high in activity for the majors. Fifty-nine features were being edited and 27 were scheduled for work within two weeks.

New films that went to the sound stages during the week were: "After the Thin Man," "Captain Courageous" and "Nobody's Baby" at the M-G-M, the latter a Roach contribution; "Arizona Mahoney" at Paramount; "Street Girl" and "Quality Street" at Radio; an untitled color film at Re-

Mack D. Weinberger Heads General Sales

Mack D. Weinberger, well known in the independent sales field, has been named general sales manager of General Pictures by Fenn Kimball, president. The company which originally announced a program of 24 features has increased its schedule to 34, including one group of eight outdoor musicals in color. Robert E. Welsh is vice-president in charge of production and is now in Hollywood preparing to shoot the first picture at the RKO Pathe studio.

Dr. Giannini Plans To "Get Acquainted"

Dr. A. H. Giannini, president and chairman of the board of United Artists, arrived from Hollywood yesterday to spend several weeks at the company's headquarters, largely for the purpose of "getting acquainted with the staff," as he put it. This is his first trip to New York since he resigned as chairman of the board of the Bank of America National Ass'n to become the ranking administrative executive of the United Artists Dist. Corp.

On Saturday he and his son, Bernard, undertook their first bit of business by attending the World Series game as guests of George J. Schaefer.

Kuykendall to Talk With MPTOA Leaders

Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, who arrived here on Saturday, will confer with other officials of the exhibitor organization today on the procedure to be adopted in obtaining formal decisions from distribution companies on acceptance or rejection of the organization's 10-point trade practice program.

Indications are that no further meetings with individual sales heads will be held unless requested by distribution executives. The M. P. T. O. A. officials may simply remind distributors that their final decisions, which were promised the exhibitor trade practice committee early in the summer, are overdue and may ask that they be presented to the M. P. T. O. A. officials within a definite time.

Another Move Coming to End "Early Birds"

Exhibitor Leaders Plan Renewed Discussion

Another effort will be made to bring the Broadway, 42nd St. and 8th Ave. theatres in line and join the parade of units which already have eliminated "early birds" and adopted a 5 P. M. evening price scale, it was learned Saturday. Exhibitor leaders will meet again within the next week or two to try and straighten out the remaining weak spots.

"Too much work has already been done to kick over the plan," a spokesman stated, "and every attempt will be made to have every theatre in the metropolitan area in the move."

Objecting to the inference by MOTION PICTURE DAILY last week that little hope was seen for the Broadway, Eighth Ave. and 42nd St. houses aligning with the others, Max A. Cohen, secretary of the exhibitor committee, in a letter to this publication revealed that it was Harry Brandt, president of the Brandt circuit and the I.T.O.A., who was responsible for holding up the Times Square units from becoming a part of the price-lifting movement. He added that his group of theatres as well as the Mayfair and the Consolidated houses were ready to eliminate the morning price,

By RED KANN

THE things that get in print:

"The legends have been similar for years and Will Hays always remains. . . . However, they say John Boetigger, the President's son-in-law, will succeed Hays when the latter's contract expires shortly."—Walter Winchell in the Daily Mirror.

Walter, who is prone to devastate competing columnists by thumbing the files for dates on which he ran the information first, is being told now that on May 16, 1935, MOTION PICTURE DAILY pulled a nifty, little scoop all of its own. That edition carried the exclusive on Hays' new five-year contract, which became effective with the expiration of his old pact in the spring of this year. . . .

Tied by binding agreement, then, until 1941, any talk about an event five years from date becomes ridiculous in any business and more particularly in this. Moreover, the story about Will Hays and exactly how he stands is now an old one. It may achieve some purpose not exactly clear, we admit, to serve it up before you once again. Hays, for some time now, has never stood in better grace with his principals, his position never stronger. When the half-decade contract was offered and accepted by him over a year ago, he had slightly less than twelve months to run. Stories had been breaking the newspapers from time to time and, at that time, in more recurring frequency that Jim Farley or Al Smith were to replace Hays. Covering the ground complete, it is accurate to state that the articles were unfounded in fact and in negotiation and traceable to propaganda or poor reportorial enterprise, probably the former. . .

But among his satisfied employers were several who became disturbed. Not so the Hays Office itself where the frequency with which the fable of "Hays Quitting" or "Hays to Be Replaced" bobs up has stamped the rumors with the aura of an old chromo, no longer worth worrying about and certainly not rating denials. The decision of early '35, however, was to throttle wildcat reporting by the most effective sort of counter-attack—a new contract. It was given to Hays, of course, not to prove the newspapers wrong, but to continue him in a sorely-beset post, well executed. From time to time, on the other hand, Hays has been caught in the middle of conflicting interests and, by that we mean, the opposing views of his own group on given matters. It never was any position to envy and to describe the sensation as uncomfortable is going modest in the extreme. The history of the M. P. P. D. A. includes a number of such chapters; but it must also be remembered well up front that it likewise has, in an unbroken continuity, its identic, central figure. . . .

It was in 1933 when Hays gathered the company heads for a quick trip to Hollywood for the purpose of straightening out many matters which had gummed themselves in the beautiful manner so often achieved in Hollywood. The actual results of that junket have been discussed on several occasions in this column, our recollection being one of faint cheers for the accomplishments. One result, nevertheless, did emerge from those day and night, and generally futile, sessions. Hays was the result. A stronger Hays, a better supported Hays and also a Hays on whom the leaders of the major interests were glad to lean more heavily. From that day on, his position has been more powerful than ever before and his curve of influence in the inner councils a rising one. . . .

Here is the simple truth of the situation. Not quite so simple to comprehend, on the other hand, is why some matters go laggard in and around the Hays headquarters. Many months have passed since Ed Kuykendall and the M.P.T.O.A. held a series of round robins with distributor heads on a program designed to ease the life of the exhibitor. The influence of the Hays organization in that headed by Kuykendall is a well-known equation and, obviously, the exhibitor-distributor conclaves would never had been called at the outset if an earlier planned procedure had not declared for a willingness to do something about them. . . .

For the provinces, no doubt, Kuykendall finally hit the front pages with a statement indicating recourse to legislative means if the distributors continue to fail of their promises. Nobody was kidded, not even a little bit fooled, the known circumstances being what they are. Ed, for publicity purposes, professed readiness to go the hard way which, goodness and Dave Palfreyman know, has been hard enough. So much, as a consequence, has been said about the ten point program and so pitifully little done that the staff here, as others no doubt react, issues forth with a large and oversized groan anytime the situation comes up. Now Kuykendall is back in town, ready to start the whirligig all over again to what end might well be asked of Hays. . . .

Pleasant and rotund Doug Churchill, amiable Hollywood correspondent of The New York Times, furnishes the latest wonder story from Wonderland, to wit:

> Being funny pays in Hollywood. Bob Burns, who likes to think of himself as a male Cinderella, is an example. A year and a half ago with $10 in his pocket and his now famous bazooka under his arm, he appeared on the Rudy Vallee radio show. This week he totaled his income and found that he will receive $180,000 from Paramount, $75,000 from RKO, approximately $30,000 from a cartoon strip for which he will write the dialogue, $100,000 from radio and personal appearances and an undetermined amount in royalties from two firms which are marketing a toy version of the bazooka.

In his "Today" column in the Hearst newspapers, the same chain which thinks the $4,000 a week Hollywood player is writhing under producer-imposed serfdom, Arthur Brisbane runs this:

> We go up and down quickly in the United States, particularly in new enterprises. William Fox, once one of the most energetic, successful of moving picture men, now a bankrupt, tells the court that in 1930 he was worth one hundred million dollars; now he has only "odds and ends," meaning only a few hundred thousands, here and there.
> One other well known, able moving picture man refused sixty million dollars cash for his holdings a short time ago. What was then worth sixty millions melted to nothing.

And so the weekend closed on a note of mystery. . . .

Grainger Starts East

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—James R. Grainger leaves on the Chief tomorrow for the east. The Universal sales manager, having cancelled his projected trip to Dallas, will stop in Chicago for a day before continuing on to New York.

Canavan Not Candidate

Edward Canavan, present president of Local 802 of the A.F.M., to which post he was appointed, has declared he will not be a candidate for the office at the union's first election, in December. He may join the executive staff of the A.F.M.

M-G-M Re-Signs Three

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—M-G-M has signed new contracts with Luise Rainer, James Stewart and Una Merkel.

Trade Board Is Endorsed In Australia

By CLIFF HOLT

SYDNEY, Sept. 11 (By Air Mail via London).—Nearly 240 theatreowners in New South Wales this week endorsed the principle of the Film Board of Trade, which will quickly take shape now as the tribunal governing trade issues. The Board will be a registered company limited by guarantee and will have legal status.

The articles of association to be prepared for registration will provide for these objectives: theatre license contol, standard film contract, rejection, free gifts, one shilling or higher minimum admission charge, program footage and censorship. A dragnet clause will be added which reads: "Also any other matter that has been referred to it (the Board) with the ratification of the Distributors' Ass'n., the Exhibitors' Ass'n., Hoyts Theatres, Ltd., and Greater Union Theatres, Ltd."

"Most Important Step"

The personnel of the board is expected to be as follows: For distributors, Sir Victor Wilson (president M.P.D.A.), N. B. Freeman (M-G-M), Herb McIntyre (Universal), Ralph R. Doyle (RKO); for the circuits, Stuart F. Doyle and Ken W. Asprey (Greater Union), Charles E. Munro (Hoyts); for independents, W. R. Harrop and J. Cloonan. Dan Carroll will be chairman. The creation of the board is considered the most important and progressive step taken by the industry in Australia for years.

A preliminary statement issued by Charles E. Munro, managing director of Hoyts, discloses the net profit of the company for the year ended June 30 at £61,089. Proposals for the construction of three new theatres were revealed also.

This figure, which is subject to audit, constitutes a record in respect to operations of the company during the past six years, the annual profit since 1931 being as follows:

1932	11,039x
1933	25,283
1934	52,802
1935	50,825

x Loss.

Out of the latest profit two half-yearly dividends have been declared, making a total distribution of six per cent on the "A" preference shares and five per cent on the "B" preference capital. The amount of the dividend is £46,500.

Progressive Methods the Reason

"The policy of consolidating and improving the company's business by maintaining the theatres on a high plane architecturally, the installation of the latest devices for the comfort of patrons and the establishment of a superior standard of programs and presentations, has enabled this improvement of more than £10,000 to be shown," Munro said.

"The profit position for the past 12 months is also a reflection of the progressive methods adopted in operating. It is proposed to continue the present policy of modernizing all theatres which have not as yet been treated in this manner, and to expand the circuit by the erection of new theatres in a number of situations.

"A sum in excess of £46,000 was expended during 1935-36 in redecorating several theatres while others were completely rebuilt. A new theatre of modern design was erected at Windsor, Victoria.

"Plans for the construction of three additional theatres have already been completed and some contracts have been placed and others are in process of negotiation for their building."

Shift M.P.T.O. Meeting

SEATTLE, Oct. 4.—The annual convention of the M. P. T. O. of Washington has been postponed for one week, to Oct. 23. The date of the Northwest Film Club's annual Movie Ball has been changed also. Club officers have chosen the Eagles' Auditorium as the scene of their party, and have contracted for Tommy Thomas' NBC orchestra.

John R. Odell Dead

DETROIT, Oct. 4.—John Ripley Odell, veteran Detroit exhibitor, died suddenly at his home in Grosse Pointe Farms. He had been suffering from heart trouble for more than a year, but apparently was not seriously ill, as he had visited the Film building the day prior to his death. He was born in Shelby, Mich., Sept. 25, 1879. After being associated with the Campbell Soup Co. for a few years, he came to Detroit and entered the theatre business.

Of late he had operated only the Frontenac here, but in years passed he owned the Harmony, Dunbar, Buchanan and Oakman Boulevard theatres.

He is is survived by his widow, a son, three daughters and a brother. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

William Schlee Married

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4.—The marriage of William Schlee and Miss Helen Class took place recently in Baltimore. Schlee manages the Gwynn for the Durkee Circuit.

Purely Personal

R. H. COCHRANE returned Saturday from a visit of several weeks at the Universal studio. He went directly to his home following his arrival.

RUBE JACKTER missed JEROME SAFRON at the World Series games. The entertainment value would be far-reaching, if only SAFRON were here to plague his brother Columbian.

BUDDY CANTOR, WMCA's film commentator, is off to the coast on a six-week leave of absence during which he will line up personalities and gather material for future air programs.

ELIZABETH PATTERSON plans to leave for New York and a vacation immediately after the completion of "Go West, Young Man," at Paramount.

HAROLD BERKOWITZ of the Warner legal staff will be in Philadelphia today for the rehearing in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals of the Perleman case.

AL BERNIE, young mimic, has been signed for an engagement at the Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans. LOU IRWIN arranged the deal.

BROOKS ATKINSON, drama critic of The New York Times, has returned from Russia where he covered the Moscow Theatre Festival.

LOUIS FRISCH has invited every local exchange manager and important exhibitor to his son's wedding on Sunday.

HARRY M. WARNER says his coast trip was no vacation. He adds there was plenty of work to do and he did it.

MILT KUSELL is smoking his cigars these days, having dropped his chewing habits.

LYNN FARNOL flies to Hollywood Tuesday and expects to return by Friday.

"Dormitory" Doubles Par In St. Paul

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 4. — "Girls' Dormitory" led the list of money-makers in the Twin Cities' first run houses this week with "The Great Ziegfield" coming in a close second. The former show doubled a $4,000 average at the St. Paul Orpheum, while M-G-M's musical gave the State a $4,500 gain over a $5,500 par.

"It's Love Again" rang up a gross of $5,000 for a 100 per cent gain at the Minneapolis World and "Kelly, the Second" nearly tied the mark at the Tower with an intake of $2,500 over a $1,500 normal. "My Man Godfrey," in its second week at the Minneapolis Orpheum, did an average business, while the same show opening at the Riviera grossed $5,500, bettering average by $2,000.

Total first run business in Minneapolis was $31,900. Average is $25,500. Total first run business in St. Paul was $19,000. Average is $14,500.

Raise Petroff Budget

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4. — Grand National has increased the budget for the Boris Petroff musical, "Hats Off," so that a ballet sequence may be included. Mae Clarke and John Payne have leading roles, and so pleased is the producer with the rushes that he is planning to team them in a second musical if permission can be obtained from Samuel Goldwyn who has Payne under contract.

Crescent Picks Fourth

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—Crescent Pictures' fourth historical action drama will be "Star of Empire." Howard Higgin will direct his own screenplay of his own original story which deals with the entrance of Nevada into the Union.

Imperial Opens Two

Imperial Distributing Corp. has opened offices in Seattle and Detroit. Harry Jallen is Seattle manager, and F. Raoul Cleaver heads the Detroit office.

"Ramona" Ace Draw In Cincy, $14,500

CINCINNATI, Oct. 4. — "Ramona was the ace draw in an otherwise sluggish week, made so by opposition of night football, intervention of Jewish holidays and rain. The Indian love opus brought the RKO Albee $14,500, up $2,500 on the average, and it was moved to the RKO Capitol for a second stanza.

"My Man Godfrey" was good for a $450 overage at the RKO Grand, grossing $32,000 on its second downtown week. All of the other houses were in the minus column, bringing the aggregate figure down to the lowest in several weeks.

Total first run business was $52,450. Average is $58,700.

Estimated takings:

Week Ending Oct. 1:

"RAMONA" (20th-Fox)
RKO ALBEE—(3,300), 35c-42c, 7 days. Gross: $14,500. (Average, $12,000) Moved to RKO Capitol.

Seek Columbus Building

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4. — Samuel X. Schwartz & Co., Cincinnati realtors, have offered $225,000 to Columbian Bldg. & Loan for the Columbus Auditorium, the negotiations being conducted through real estate brokers.

It is understood several local men are interested in the offer and plans call for the formation of a company to modernize the structure for entertainment purposes.

Singer Takes N. O. House

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 4.—The Mort H. Singer interests have taken over the Liberty and will reopen it Oct. 23. Victor Meyers, manager of the Orpheum, will manage both theatres. The lease is for 10 years and will involve approximately $125,000.

The Liberty will have the pick of the products of RKO, Columbia, Warners and United Artists.

"Mast" to Start Soon

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—Colbert Clark is making ready to start "Two Years Before the Mast" at Republic within five weeks. This film has the biggest budget of the year at Republic. A star is being sought.

Dissolve Theatre Firm

ALBANY, Oct. 4. — A certificate has been filed in the office of the secretary of state dissolving Fairport Theatres, Inc., Gloversville.

It Was Eckman

His "best Bronx Piccadilly English" actually was Sam Eckman's at the dinner to William F. Rodgers at the Waldorf earlier in the week and not the "dubbed" voice of Louis Nizer, as reported. Eckman spoke for a wax recording in London and mailed the disc in time for the function.

"Ziegfeld" Pulls $12,000, Houston

HOUSTON, Oct. 4. — A week of rains in Houston, and near floods in adjacent territories failed to halt the fall revival in local theatres, led by "The Great Ziegfeld." The picture pulled $12,000 at Loew's State where average is $7,000, and was held. It grossed $10,000 during its first showing at advanced prices.

"Yours for the Asking" struck popular fancy at the Metropolitan, taking $7,500, but "Stage Struck" at the Majestic fell to $6,700. Average at both theatres is $7,000.

The Kirby had an average $5,000 week with "Secret Agent," "Two Against the World," "A Star for Tonight" and Bank Night.

One small night club opening gave little opposition, and a sudden police and grand jury campaign against gambling helped theatres. Bank Night at the Interstate Theatres was not molested in the police drive.

Total first run business was $31,500. Average is $26,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Sept. 24:

"SECRET AGENT" (G.B.)
KIRBY—(1,450), 15c-35c, 3 days. Gross: $2,000. (Average, 7 days, $5,000)
"TWO AGAINST THE WORLD" (W.B.)
KIRBY—(1,450), 15c-35c, 1 day. Bank Night. Gross: $1,000. (Average, 7 days, $5,000)
"A STAR FOR TONIGHT" (20th-Fox)
KIRBY—(1,450), 15c-35c, 3 days. Gross: $2,000. (Average, 7 days, $5,000)
"THE GREAT ZIEGFELD" (M-G-M)
LOEW'S STATE—(2,750), 25c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $12,000. (Average, $7,000)
"STAGE STRUCK" (F.N.)
MAJESTIC — (2,250), 25c-50c, 7 days. Gross: $6,700. (Average, $7,000)
"YOURS FOR THE ASKING" (Para.)
METROPOLITAN — (2,600), 25c-50c, 7 days. Gross: $7,500. (Average, $7,000)

Buys Missouri House

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 4.—J. J. Kametz has purchased the Princess at Bunceton, Mo., from C. A. Woolridge, who opened the theatre about six months ago. Kametz planned to open a house at Burlingame, Kan., several weeks ago, but the deal failed.

Five to Harmon-Ising

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—Merrill Gibson has been added to the Harmon-Ising staff as animator, and Howard Baldwin, and Paul Murphy have been signed as assistant animators. Maurice Day and Charles McGirl have joined the company's writing staff.

M-G-M Holds Stewart

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—M-G-M has signed James Stewart to a new term contract. The actor has just finished in "Born to Dance," and has been added to the cast of "After the Thin Man," which W. S. Van Dyke is directing.

"Your Heart," Show, Detroit Top, $25,300

DENVER, Oct. 4.—"Give Me Your Heart," with Borrah Minnevitch heading a stage show, turned in the best showing of a rainy week here. The take at the Michigan was $25,300, which passed par by $5,300.

At the Fox "Craig's Wife" pulled $24,000, with a vaudeville bill headed by Block and Sully. This gross was over normal by $4,000. "The General Died at Dawn" went $1,200 over the line with $11,200 at United Artists.

Total first run business was $68,100. Average is $60,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 1:

"THEY MET IN A TAXI" (Col.)
"YELLOWSTONE" (Univ.)
ADAMS—(1,770), 10c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $3,500. (Average, $5,000)

"Enemy's Wife" and Boles Montreal Best

MONTREAL, Oct. 4.—"Public Enemy's Wife" went to $15,000 at Loew's with John Boles on the stage.

"My Man Godfrey," the main film attraction at the Princess, was good for $9,500, with "Sing, Baby, Sing," top feature at the Capitol, rating $10,000. "The General Died at Dawn" collected $10,000 at the Palace in the face of keen competition and the second week of "Romeo and Juliet" as a roadshow at His Majesty's made $7,000.

The first big local football game of the season and grand opera at the Imperial formed chief opposition. The week's weather bordered on summer heat.

Total first run business was $51,500. Average is $46,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Sept. 26:

"SING, BABY, SING" (20th-Fox)

but reneged when they learned Brandt would not increase his admissions.

Cohen's letter follows:

"Referring to your article under date of Thursday, Oct. 1, in which it is stated that there is no hope of dropping early birds, the writer, as secretary to the body of exhibitors working toward eliminating this practice, wishes to call to your attention the fact that the Broadway situation is by no means hopeless. With the amount of progress made throughout the metropolitan area, there is every indication that the plan, as originally contemplated, can be carried through for the benefit of all concerned.

Claims Readiness to Boost

"Referring to the statement in which the writer is claimed to have said he would not alter the 10-cent opening price until the Broadway houses tilt their scale, please be advised that Mr. Moskowitz of the Loew organization and Max A. Cohen were ready to tilt the scale at the Mayfair plus the writer's houses if the Brandt houses and Consolidated would follow suit. As a matter of fact, both Mr. Moskowitz and the writer were ready for the tilt on Saturday, Sept. 5, and on Sept. 4, Consolidated Amusement telephoned the writer stating they were ready to tilt, but they understood Mr. Brandt would not tilt his prices because the Mayfair intended remaining at its original A. M. prices.

"The writer informed Mr. Bolignino of Consolidated that he would immediately communicate with Mr. Moskowitz to find out the correctness of the statement and the writer was informed by Mr. Moskowitz that he was prepared to tilt prices at the time set at the Mayfair if the other popular priced houses would follow suit regardless of present A. M. prices at other Broadway first run houses.

Brandt Said to Have Refused

"This information was imparted by the writer to Mr. Bolignino who informed the writer that he had again spoken to Mr. Brandt who, in turn, had informed him that regardless of the Mayfair tilt, Brandt would not increase the morning prices.

"The writer is going into this matter at length because there seems to be an intimation in the article that hopes for eliminating early birds are more or less futile and inasmuch as your paper is in favor of progress in this industry, this thought must be immediately dispelled.

In the event the other houses boost, it is very likely Howard S. Cullman, trustee of the Roxy, will change his opening charge from 25 cents to 35 cents. In a letter to MOTION PICTURE DAILY, he expressed a willingness to discuss "any comprehensive movement for the benefit of the industry."

Cullman's letter in its entirety follows:

"In your issue of Oct. 1, you quote me as 'laconically advising operators of motion picture theatres to mind their own business.' I think the operation of their own theatres is their own business, the same as the operation of the Roxy Theatre is the business of the trustee responsible for the stewardship of same.

"However, may I respectfully suggest that I have never, directly or indirectly, made such a statement as attributed to me in your publication, and that I believe for the best interests of the Roxy Theatre Corp. the existing scale of prices in effect is the proper formula. The results speak for themselves.

"You have from time to time attempted to suggest that the Roxy Theatre was responsible for the 25c-to-1 P. M. price prevalent in first run houses on Broadway. This is not the case. I have been and am willing, and my doors are always open to discuss any comprehensive movement for the benefit of the industry—producer, distributor or exhibitor, and the implications that I have taken a different attitude are not only contrary to fact, but are based on a false assumption.

"In my opinion the only co-operation that the industry has shown in the exhibition field in the metropolitan area, has been to cut one another's throats."

planned capitalization of the company. The division calls for £100,000 in £1 six per cent participating shares and 1,000,000 two-shilling ordinary shares.

Exhibitors are allowed to subscribe for ordinaries, with the promise that applicants for 500 or more shares will have the option of booking the company's product on more favorable terms. Directors are required to purchase shares amounting to at least £500,000. In a covering letter with the prospectus, Dixey reiterated that the board of directors of the company will include four exhibitor representatives, two financiers, a specialist in distribution and a production authority.

Dixey is holding a series of meetings in various key cities explaining the purpose and makeup of the new company and seeking pledges for stock subscription. The minimum requirement is £50 for each theatre. All money thus subscribed is to be held in escrow by Barclay's Bank here until a release is given by the directors of the company when it is legally formed. Nominations have been requested for the exhibitor directorate posts at the meetings.

Meeting Set for Oct. 8

Dixey has promised to hold a second meeting here on Oct. 8, at which time he is expected to announce the total number of theatres from which subscriptions have been received thus far.

The prospectuses outlined as well a production program, listing films with Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, by Alfred Zeisler, to star Anna Sten; by Roy W. Neil, with players including Roland Young, Jean Hersholt and others; by Gitta Alpar, John Craig and Thomas Whitely; Franco-London; E. Roditi, who is said to have Douglass Montgomery and Jane Baxter contracts in negotiation; Vogue Prod., and Bigum-Carls Prod. Arrangements for other product are under way, it is understood.

a solution of the problem was taken when major circuit representatives, in a meeting with the redundancy committee of the CEA, or exhibitor unit, agreed that a new appeal should be made to the KRS, distributor organization, to appoint a subcommittee to confer with an exhibitor subcommittee with the object of formulating a definite plan.

The KRS had rejected an earlier appeal from the CEA for cooperation on the ground that all exhibitors, majors and independents, had not agreed among themselves. The CEA-circuit meeting served as an answer to that point.

The meeting, in effect, confirmed the belief that the problem must be handled by action within the industry. The basic principle of attack, as outlined at the summer conference at Eastbourne, is that all building plans be submitted to a joint CEA-KRS committee. In the event of promoters continuing with their plans despite committee disapproval, all distributors would withdraw product from the exhibitor.

Still to be decided is a formula upon which to base a determination of the necessity of a new theatre in a given situation. One suggestion is for a population-seating ratio.

Urge Building Information

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4. — Plans are being urged in England to provide that licensing authorities which pass on new theatre building adopt a method by which existing exhibitors may know when a new theatre is planned, as one means of combatting the problem of overbuilding, it is pointed out in a report to the U. S. Dep't of Commerce from Henry E. Stebbins, assistant trade commissioner in London.

It is urged also that the licensing authorities, of which there are 750 in the country, acquaint the secretary of the local branch of the C. E. A. in advance when plans of a new theatre are to be submitted.

Fourteen Days' Notice Required

The trade commissioner cites one method in use, which, it has been suggested, would enable all interested parties to be informed beforehand. The procedure is followed by the Warwickshire County Council, and provides for the submission of the application 14 days before the meeting of the licensing authority, in addition to actual building plans. Further, the applicant is required to post prominently on the site involved a sign recording the intention of building a new theatre.

The report declared that there are now plans and applications being made for the construction of 59 new theatres in Great Britain and nine in northern Ireland. In the 17 cases where seating capacity is known the total is 23,882 seats.

Blackstone Adds Two

The Blackstone Agency has added Carl Laemmle, Jr. and George Hirliman to its accounts. Ruth Schwerin, who handles the film end of the company's business, will personally contact both new interests.

handled through Twentieth Century-Fox exchanges.

A number of B. I. P. pictures last season were distributed on this side of the ocean by First Division. The company is being liquidated by Grand National, which recently completed negotiations with Associated British Film Distributors for the release of one film, and possibly more later on, through its domestic exchanges. This deal leaves B. I. P. without a distributing outlet for the time being.

Dickinson Circuit Theatres in Drive

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 4.—A direct attack on political competition is being made by the 25 Glen W. Dickinson theatres.

In an effort to keep people showminded through pre-election speeches and other fanfare of the presidential election's home stretch, the circuit is conducting "Movie Month" which will last until Nov. 7.

Substantial prizes will go to the five managers showing the best percentages over quota, which is 10 per cent over a year ago. Standing will be estimated by taking both gross and net profits and dividing the total by two.

Managers have a free hand in developing ideas. The home office will make only a few suggestions as the campaign goes along.

Raise Price in Houston

HOUSTON, Oct. 4.—For the first time since 1930 a major Houston theatre has raised admission prices. Loew's State's top price has been increased to 50 cents from 40 cents, in effect after 3 P. M. Tickets bought before that hour are 35 cents, and the balcony remains at 25 cents all day.

Meriden Houses Up Scale

MERIDEN, Conn., Oct. 4.—Admission prices have been raised five cents all along the line at Loew's Palace and Leo Ricci's Capitol here.

Delay Hartford Opening

HARTFORD, Oct. 4.—Harris Bros. have set Oct. 16 as the new opening date for the State. The early part of the week will be confined to two all film changes, with stage shows added on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, admission for the latter to be increased from the 20-cent top to 30 cents. Paramount product will be shown second run with the vaudeville. Bank Night will also be used, to start Oct. 20, with a $100 stake. To date the house has booked Paramount, G. B. and Columbia product.

Shift Seattle Manager

SEATTLE, Oct. 4.—Roy Bialkowski has been appointed assistant manager of Hamrick-Evergreen's Fifth Avenue, moving over from the circuit's Blue Mouse. He succeeds Monte Norman, who is moving to California where he will remain in the theatre field.

Form New Fox Units

DOVER, Oct. 4.—Fox Great Falls Theatre Corp. and Fox Western Montana Theatre Corp. were formed here, listing a capital of $1,000 each. The incorporators are Ethan Allan Hitchcock, H. Blackmar Johnson and William Wilkinson of New York.

Brandt Has Conn. Spot

Harry Brandt has bought a site in Malden, Mass., on which he will build a new theatre. Brandt has six other sites in the state. He now operates 68 houses in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

To Remodel Plaza

Plaza Development Corp., which has leased the Plaza in the Bronx, damaged by fire several years ago and never reopened, and will rehabilitate the house for reopening shortly.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Ladies In Love"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—Novel in its plot and with a similarly unique character alignment, this one proves an interesting departure from the usual in film fare and, by reason of cast names alone, seems destined for box-office returns. The picture, basically, will appeal to the feminine contingent, but it is produced with skillful showmanship to draw general patronage, as well.

Sincere performances and keen direction embellish production values. Janet Gaynor, Loretta Young, Constance Bennett and Simone Simon are the motivating personalities in the plot which usually carries through romantic interludes of equal importance without concentrating on one individual more than another. Miss Gaynor is a tie vendor, Miss Young a cabaret dancer, Miss Bennett a model and Miss Simon a youngster who grows up over night to compete in love.

The theme centers on the hopes, dreams and aspirations of the three first mentioned who share an apartment together in glamorous Budapest. One wants a home and babies, another a wealthy husband and the other independence and her own business. Miss Gaynor gets her wish for a home-loving husband by becoming the fiancee of Don Ameche, a young doctor, only after an amusing situation with Alan Mowbray, a great stage magician, who believes himself irresistible. Miss Young loses a tempestuous love bout with Tyrone Power, Jr., a handsome count who weds royalty, and Miss Bennett playing with Paul Lukas for fun falls in love too late, losing him to Miss Simon.

The roles are all played sympathetically with understanding and simplicity. Edward H. Griffith directed with fine, human feeling. Hal Mohr's photography colors the story. B. G. Sylva mounted the production handsomely. Melville Baker provided an excellent screen play with smart dialogue from the Ladislaus Bus-Fekete play.

Production Code Seal No. 2,563. Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

"Along Came Love"

(Rowland-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—Sentiment rather than story is the appeal herein, and the picture should receive its best response from audiences who favor that type of entertainment.

Essentially the story concerns Irene Hervey, department store basement clerk, who falls in love with the ancient conception of the constellation Orion at an astronomy lecture and finds her idol personified by Charles Starrett, a medical student.

The lovers, facing the usual problem of poverty, are aided in a solution when Miss Hervey's mother, Irene Franklin, marries Ferdinand Gottschalk, owner of the store, but not until after H. B. Warner, as Starrett's sponsor, has persuaded Irene that giving up Starrett is best for his protege's career.

Bert Lytell's direction appeared handicapped by technique of the screen, being at best only in sequences which could have been played on the stage. The original screenplay by Austin Strong is augmented by additional continuity by Arthur Caesar. The supporting cast includes Doris Kenyon, Charles Judels and Frank Reicher. Suitable chiefly as a supporting feature, the picture should please in some situations.

Cinema Arts Issued

A "Preview" issue of Cinema Arts, new de luxe publication of film activities and interests, made its appearance over the weekend. According to its sponsors, A. Griffith Grey, president, and E. A. Tropp, publisher, the publication "aims to reflect the new mode of motion pictures" and will be a quality motion picture magazine for discriminating readers.

A painting of Jean Arthur gets the cover and 19 pictures receive special editorial treatment. In addition, there are articles by Rouben Mamoulian, Ralph Rolan, Benjamin De Casseres, Homer Croy and Norman Anthony, among others. Executive personalities receive attention, as well as professionals.

Mrs. Fox Loses Point

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 4.—Federal Judge John Boyd Avis in Federal District court has ruled that Mrs. Eva Fox, wife of the former producer, must place all records of the All-Continent Corp. in a neutral place, preferably a safe deposit box, where they are to be available to Referee Robert Steedle who is conducting the bankruptcy hearings in Atlantic City. The court ruled, however, that they must be opened by Steedle only in the presence of a Fox representative.

Buys Yiddish Musical

Ken Murray has acquired the English speaking rights to the Yiddish musical show, "Shlemiel," which he will stage on Broadway this fall.

Thalberg Will Filed For Probate in L. A.

the residence occupied at the time of Thalberg's death together with all furniture, automobiles, jewelry, boats and personal effects. Bequests of $10,000 each are left to Hattie Heck, Abe Heymann, Dora Heymann, Jetchen Maier and Morris Heymann. The will states that a trust fund has been created for William and Henrietta Thalberg, the producer's parents, and that this trust will be enlarged to have a value of $150,000. This is in addition to other generous life endowments for the parents.

The residue estate is to be divided into several funds which will be administered by the trustees. A fund consisting of the income on property valued at $100,000 will be paid monthly to Silvia Weingarten, Thalberg's sister, as long as she lives.

Large Fund to Miss Shearer

Fund two, consisting of property equal to one-third of the entire balance after the establishment of the first trust fund, will be paid to Norma Shearer as long as she lives.

A third fund will consist of equal allocations to each of the Thalberg children living at the time of the distribution of the estate, and another fund to the descendants of any child dead but survived by descendants.

The net income of each fund will be paid monthly or quarterly.

The witnesses to the will were Goldie Appleby of Culver City, Vivian Newcomb of Hollywood, and Earl R. Levy of Los Angeles. The will was dated June 12, 1935, and was drawn by attorneys Loeb, Walker and Loeb.

Music Drive May Be Extended to Phila.

A music union picketing drive, similar to that being conducted in New York by Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians, is expected to get under way in Philadelphia within a week, it was learned Saturday.

A. Tomei, president of Local 77 on the A. F. M. in Philadelphia, was in New York for several days last week conferring with executives of Local 802 and studying the picketing drive and the reaction to it. A mass meeting of Local 77 is scheduled to be held on Tuesday in Philadelphia for consideration of the extension of the drive to that city. It is anticipated here that approval will be voted and that the campaign will start there a few days after the meeting. Jacob Rosenberg, secretary of Local 802, will be the chief speaker at the Philadelphia meet.

It was said that the local affiliates of the A. F. M. in 21 cities have contacted Local 802 here for information relative to the campaign. However, no definite commitments on participation have been received with the single exception of Philadelphia.

Two more have been added to the list of theatres being picketed in New York by union members. The additions are the Victoria, a Loew house, and the Regent, an RKO theatre.

It was said at Local 802 that there is no intention of relaxing the drive to attempt to induce the reemployment of union musicians in film houses which are equipped with stage or orchestra pit, and that the campaign will be continued indefinitely.

Data for Cut In Tokyo Tax Is Requested

By TETSUYA MORI

Tokyo, Sept. 13.—The Tokyo Chamber of Commerce and Industry has addressed letters of inquiry to the theatres of the city, designed to gather material on which to base suggestions for the reform of the taxation system as it affects the film business.

The Japanese Government is planning virtually a complete reformation of the tax policy in general, to be effective next year. The inquiry instituted by the local chamber is regarded as very necessary, since the majority of the exhibitors here, in the country's leading entertainment center, have found business so poor that they are protesting vigorously against the present tax rate.

Under discussion here is a plan whereby S-Y and Takarazuka, the two leading first run circuits showing foreign product, would arrange joint purchases of foreign product in order to obtain the films at a more favorable figure. Prior to this discussion was a joint declaration to the 10 foreign distributors here that the two circuits would not be interested in mediocre product.

The distributors countered with a plan for joint action to counteract the circuit arrangement. As far as can be learned, the two circuits are splitting the foreign distributors into two units, each circuit to buy only from one group, thus eliminating competition and possible higher rentals which might result therefrom.

Indicative of the conclusion of some arrangement between the two circuits is the fact that "Modern Times" and "Things to Come," both United Artists releases, will be shown simultaneously in the houses of both circuits.

A deal of outstanding importance in the business has been completed here in the merger of the distribution activities of the Toho Film Distributing Co., which was formed only a few months ago and has since increased its capital from 500,000 yen to 1,000,000 yen, and Nikkatsu, a producing firm.

The move makes the new combination a strong competitor of Shochiku-Shinko Co., a producing-distributing company which controls an important theatre circuit.

Nikkatsu has begun the production and distribution of 16mm. cultural and educational films, in cooperation with equipment manufacturers. The 16mm. material has become increasingly popular in governmental and educational circles.

Shochiku, Toho and Nikkatsu, the three leading Japanese producing companies, are concentrating intensively on the production of films designed for the international market, including the United States. Superimposed English subtitles are part of the plan.

As a means of promoting the use of cultural and educational films throughout the country, the Japan M. P. Assn. plans a national film festival to be held probably in mid-October, with the cooperation of the Home Office of the Government. With that as a starting point, it is expected that within a year a Government requirement will compel all theatres to show educational subjects as part of their programs.

Theatre receipts in Tokyo, showing a marked and normal increase over the totals of the summer months, were at least 20 per cent higher during the first week in September than for the same period last year.

Short Subjects

"False Alarms"

(Columbia)

Applying their antics to a story set in a fire house, the Three Stooges do their familiar stuff, which, although somewhat standardized, still manages to get laughs. Missing out on alarms and back-talking to the station's captain the boys are saved by the soft spot in their superior's heart and ordered to wash the hose. Curly rolls it out into the street where it is cut up by passing trolleys. A bucket is heaved and its contents hit the captain. They spoil his suit cleaning him up and are kept on only until they can pay for it. The second reel is given to their cutting up while they are trying to beat the engine to a fire in the captain's car. They do, only to find that Curly rang the alarm to introduce them to a couple of girls. Again taking the captain's car, they speed it back, smashing into a light pole. The car runs away and with the chief after them they lure it up and into a truck and disappear up the road. It is fairly good slapstick stuff. Production Code Seal No. 2,288. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Musical Airways"

(Mentone-Universal)

Sibyl Bowan, as the publicity director of a dirigible company is at her wit's end when Marlene Dietrich, Greta Garbo, Beatrice Lillie and Mae West fail to show up for the airship's floor show. But when the show goes on Miss Bowan does her string of impersonations in excellent fashion and the result is clever bits of mimicry. Miss Bowan, in the various characters, introduces Cappy Barra's Harmonicas, Audrey and Wesley Catri, juvenile tap dancers and the Four Eton Boys. It unreels as effective farce. Production Code Seal No. 01,140. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Gus Van's Garden Party"

(Mentone-Universal)

A nicely turned offering. The entertainers to be seen include Miller and Massey, modern dancing, a double quartet of girls and a few numbers by the chorus. Van steals the show doing, in his distinctive manner, a dialect number. Fairish entertainment. Production Code Seal No. 01,149. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"In My Gondola"

(Columbia)

Plenty of imagination went into this Scrappy cartoon. The result is good entertainment with much spectacular excitement. Set on the Venetian canals the story has Scrappy boating with his girl. Scrappy's dog gets involved with a musical lobster and while chasing him along the canal bottom annoys a swordfish. Here a cleverly drawn chase is worked in with the pup being rescued just as he is about to be run through. A comic, spaghetti eating sequence concludes. Production Code Seal No. 2,482. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Camp Meetin'"

(Radio)

Using a camp meeting background, the Hall Johnson choir, acting in a slight story of raising funds to send their pastor to a Birmingham conference work in their fine choral singing. The resounding, throaty numbers injected into the script on various occasions include "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," "Standin' in the Need of Prayer," "Great Day" and "Dere's a Jubilee." It captures the negro actors' inherent capacity for comedy and enthusiasm for church singing. A fairly good number. Production Code Seal No. 2,508. Running time, 16 mins. "G."

"Going Places No. 27"

(Universal)

The variety and good photography of subject, as usual in the series, makes a fine grade of informative entertainment. In its three parts the reel shows glimpses of the tuna fishing industry in Italy, a champion bubble blower of Buffalo and a collection of superb shots of Crater Lake in Oregon. Lowell Thomas narrates in interesting fashion. Production Code Seal No. 01,165. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Football Flashes"

(Columbia)

An appropriate item to play for the approaching football season. Starting with shots of rigorous training, the piece continues with some of the most outstanding plays that featured last year's games. Ford Bond narrates. Production Code Seal No. 01162. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Interstate Shifts Collins

Houston, Oct. 4.—E. E. Collins, city manager of Interstate Theatres, Inc., here for eight years, has been transferred to San Antonio in the same capacity for Interstate. Al Lever, manager of the San Antonio Majestic, will assume Collins' duties.

Dickinson Men Shifted

Kansas City, Oct. 4.—Several managerial shifts have been made by the Glen W. Dickinson circuit.

R. S. Helson has been named manager of the Dickinson at Osage City, Kan. Ralph Kiefer, formerly in the booking repartment goes to the Dickinson at Parsons, Kan. F. P. McGinnis, who has been assistant manager, takes over the State at Larned, Kan.

Howard Sexton has replaced Glen W. Dickinson, Jr., as manager of the Dickinson at Junction City, Kan. Young Dickinson has returned to Kansas University. Bob Parker is managing the Chief at Marceline, Mo.

N. E. Business Rises by 27% Reports Show

Boston, Oct. 4.—The continued upward trend of business throughout New England is indicated by the report that retail sales for 1935 amounted to $2,700,000,000, 27 per cent higher than the 1933 total. The figures are taken from Government reports issued to the Boston conference on distribution.

The total number of employes has increased 13 per cent, from 290,649 in 1933 to 327,443 in 1935, the report showed.

Wisconsin Index Jumps

Madison, Wis., Oct. 4.—Factory payrolls and the per capita weekly earnings of factory workers reached new post-depression high points during August, being higher than in any previous month since June, 1930, the State Industrial Commission reports.

Wisconsin factory workers averaged weekly earnings of $23.01 in August, 1936, compared to $20.88 in 1935, $13.97 in 1932 and $26.51 in August, 1929.

Factory employment increased in 21 out of 31 of the principal industrial cities of the state during the monthly period, July 15 to Aug. 15. In August, 1936, there were 1.5 per cent fewer workers on factory payrolls than in August, 1929, but total factory employment in August, 1936, was 1.7 per cent greater than in August, 1935.

Kentucky Employment Gains

Louisville, Oct. 4.—A decided improvement in business conditions in Kentucky was reflected in the report of the state director of the National Reemployment Service, showing that 1,355 persons were placed in private jobs during August.

Private employment during August brought the total for the first eight months of 1936 to 7,788, against 5,238 for the same period last year. Of the 1,355 given jobs, 335 were reemployed in Louisville. Total placements during the month for Louisville and the state were 4,782. A total of 9,163 drought victims have been given WPA jobs in the state. Two more counties, Edmonson and Lyon, have been designated drought areas in Kentucky, and efforts are being made to obtain an increase in the WPA quota of 10,000 jobs.

Talk Deal in Louisville

Louisville, Oct. 4. — Negotiations are under way for the Brown here to be taken over and operated jointly by the Fourth Avenue Amusement Co. and Loew's. The Brown has been closed all summer. The Fourth Avenue Amusement Co. operates the Strand and Rialto.

FWC Buys at San Jose

San Francisco, Oct 4.—F.W.C. has purchased the Padre at San Jose from W. L. Gleason. This gives F. W. C. three first runs there.

Hyman Levin's General Theatres will reopen the West Portal after remodeling which cost $30.000. The house will be renamed the Empire. New sound has been installed.

General Gain In Ohio Sets Theatre Pace

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4.—Business in practically every line in Ohio and nearby territories is at the highest point since 1930, with department stores materially increasing their commitments in anticipation of the heaviest holiday trade in years, a survey by MOTION PICTURE DAILY reveals. Industries in many situations are operating at capacity, with production lagging behind orders. A large number of industries are operating on a three-shift basis or extending their hours considerably in excess of normal.

This general improvement is reflected in the number of new theatres already completed or under construction, representing the greatest activity in the past five years. The same applies to modernization and reopenings.

Allison A. Abel has just opened the 375-seat Oak, local neighborhood house, which he converted from the site of a former post office sub-station.

The Parsons, also a local neighborhood, operated by W. H. Rowland, has a new marquee of the latest type.

The Berea, a new modern house at Berea, has been opened by P. E. Essick and associates, of Cleveland.

J. L. Hatcher has a new $100,000 house under construction at Xenia.

A new 490-seat house, to be known as the Roxy, is being built by George Swisher, at Massillon, at an estimated cost of $25,000.

Plans $100,000 House

MPTOA Moves To Be Charted In Day or Two

Kuykendall Confers with Exhibitor Leaders

The course to be adopted by the M. P. T. O. A. to obtain action by distribution companies on the exhibitor organization's 10-point trade practice program will be decided today or tomorrow following conferences between Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, and other officials of the organization.

Kuykendall conferred with Lewen Pizor of Philadelphia, and O. C. Lam of Rome, Ga., in Philadelphia last week, and with other M. P. T. O. A. officers earlier. Yesterday he met with Frank C. Walker and Walter Vincent, and additional conferences are being arranged for today or tomorrow.

The M. P. T. O. A. president reiterated yesterday that officers of the organization are of the opinion that the next move in connection with the proposed trade practice program should be made by the distribution companies to whom the program was presented for consideration and action

Dual Rehearing in Philadelphia Today

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—The rehearing of the Perelman action against major distributors, attacking the validity of the anti-double featuring clause in exhibition contracts, will be heard tomorrow by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here. The court reconvened today and the Perelman action is tenth on the calendar.

The new hearing had been granted on the distributor plea that the court had misconceived some of the testimony and had been influenced in part by

Lesser Gets Rights To Burroughs Works

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5.—Sol Lesser has acquired the rights to all of the published works of Edgar Rice Burroughs, author of the Tarzan stories, as well as to his published works for the next five years. For the next five years Lesser will produce one Tarzan feature a year to be released through Twentieth Century-Fox.

Burroughs remains a director of the Burroughs-Tarzan Co., which will continue to produce original material supplied by the author in addition to its other product.

Laemmle, Jr., Planning 3-4 In First Year

One Play Acquired and James Whale Signed

Carl Laemmle, Jr., plans to produce from three to four pictures the first year under his own company name, Laemmle Prod., Inc., which is to be formed shortly, he revealed yesterday when he returned on the Queen Mary with his father after a four-month vacation in nine foreign countries.

The first play has been purchased, options have been obtained on three other literary pieces and James Whale has been signed to direct at least one picture. "Nine Officers," a play dealing with the Boxer rebellion, by George Frasier, is the initial acquisition. This also may be put on as a play in New York, but Laemmle said he wasn't certain at the moment. Options have been taken on Alfred

Minneapolis Bill Seeks to Halt Building

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—An ordinance restricting the building of new theatres until the Minneapolis population has reached 550,000 and which would put film houses in a sort of public utilities class, was introduced at a public hearing before the City Council Committee on Ordinances and Legislation.

Following heated debate, the matter was referred to the legal department for an opinion as to constitutionality. Further discussion of the matter will be held at the next committee meeting in two weeks.

Provisions of the proposed ordinance stipulate:

Studio Progress Assures Releases, He States

Universal will increase its production schedule to 52 pictures for the 1937-'38 season, R. H. Cochrane, president, said yesterday following his return from a three and one-half weeks' visit at the company's studio. The list will be comprised of 46 features and six westerns.

Cochrane was enthusiastic over the progress made at the studio under the direction of Charles R. Rogers, vice-president in charge of production, and William Koenig, general manager. He said that the efficient functioning of the studio organization during the first six months of the present regime was what decided the company on stepping up next year's production schedule to a picture a week.

"The studio completed 24 pictures in the past six months of operation," Cochrane said. "In addition, 22 scripts are complete and ready for shooting. We will meet every release date this season, something that Universal has been unable to do for the last four or five years, principally because the company had not been properly financed. Last year, for example, we announced 36 features, but delivered only 22. This

New Play Has Film Idea, But Hollywood Could Do Better

Motion Picture Daily,* with this edition, extends its function to embrace reviews of plays on Broadway with both eyes definitely turned toward possibilities in vehicles, players and treatment for ultimate motion picture use.

Somewhere in the plot essentials behind "Lend Me Your Ears" lurks a motion picture. The play, which opened at the Mansfield last night, however, merely pointed the way and yet it was not even a new way, for already from time to time travesties on the American political scene have been essayed in Hollywood with variable results, most of which have been unsatisfactory.

The comedy by Philip Wood and Stewart Beach and offered to a public which, it is hoped, will be indulgent, by Peters, Weenolsen and Field ties in newspapers, their circulation, a small town hardware merchant who spouts Bartlett's quotations by the mile, in pretty broad strokes that would have been better if they had been as effective as they were wide, depicts how club-forming women, newspaper publicity and the radio can lead by the nostrils the dumb herd, sometimes known as the public, on a year we will deliver every one of the 36 features and six westerns which have been announced, and we will deliver them on schedule," the Universal president said.

Cochrane's studio visit was the longest he has ever made in Hollywood.

"I learned a lot, myself," he said, "and was able to give the studio some of the viewpoints of exhibitors."

Cochrane was impressed by the number of new personalities at the studio being groomed for featured work and sees the solution of the company's casting problems and the loss of time and money resulting from them. He reported that 72 new personalities have been added to the Universal roster. He added that the company has 11 ranking directors under contract, as compared with three under contract six months ago.

"The studio is also ahead on stories for the first time in several years," Cochrane said. "All this means economy of operation, insurance against waste and deliveries according to schedule. I am grateful for the fine spirit of cooperation shown the company by other studios and also by the theatres. Our studio reorganization has been completed and its executive personnel is on a permanent basis except for the fact that an assistant to Rogers and Koenig will be named in the near future in order to relieve them of some of the excess work both are doing. They are working night and day and they shouldn't have to."

"Delay in Sun" for "U"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5.—Universal will produce "Delay in the Sun," from the novel by Anthony Thorne, as a special. The story, which has a Spanish background, is being adapted by Robert Presnell, who will also produce, and is being rewritten to bring in scenes of the present revolution. The cast will include Alice Brady, Charles Winninger, Wendy Barrie, Cesar Romero and Louis Hayward.

Team Doris Nolan-Dunne

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5.—Universal will team Doris Nolan and Jack Dunne, skating champion, in the leads of "St. Moritz." The production will be on a lavish scale. Walter Lang will direct under the supervision of Morrie Ryskind. Production will start as soon as Miss Nolan finishes in "Top of the Town."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Libeled Lady"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5.—Elements presaging box-office popularity are skillfully blended in this semi-sophisticated, hokum-tinged farce comedy. Following the "cheating cheaters" premise, the story is briskly fresh, sparkling with fun in dialogue and situations. Presenting stellar names in the leading roles, the show is elaborately mounted and Jack Conway's sensible direction keeps things moving at a rapid pace.

Spencer Tracy, an editor, gets in hot water when his paper prints a wild scandal yarn concerning Myrna Loy, a socialite. He engages William Powell, a libel suit quasher, to boil down the legal menace, meanwhile marrying him to Jean Harlow, his girl. The suave Powell, in dealing with Walter Connolly, Miss Loy's father, plays upon that gentleman's fishing phobia, thereby establishing himself in the good graces of the family. Miss Loy, suspicious that Powell is a sharpshooter, is first coldly aloof, but gradually succumbs to his charm. Meanwhile Miss Harlow, who married for the sake of the paper, is getting sore because Tracy is giving her the perpetual run around and demands that Powell be husband in name as well as in fact.

Comedy suspense which gives the story a unique and punchy climax, brings the four together following Powell's marriage to Miss Loy. The complications of the situation are explained away by a hilarious, action-laden sequence in which it is revealed that Miss Harlow's several divorces make the marriage to Powell illegal. Miss Loy calls off her suit against the paper and Miss Harlow starts Tracy toward the altar.

In adapting the Wallace Sullivan original, Maurine Watkins, Howard Emmett Rogers and George Oppenheimer have provided the principals with intriguing situations and dialogue. Powell, Miss Loy, Tracy and particularly Miss Harlow build entertainment values and realism in colorful and exciting fashion. While this quartet carries the brunt of the story, their actions are dextrously aided by Connolly, Charley Grapewin and Cora Witherspoon. In producing the picture Lawrence Weingarten has stressed the comedy angle.

A laugh-fest for class-mass audiences, the film is rife with commercial qualities in personalities, story and production values that should make selling it a pleasure.

"We Who Are About To Die"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5.—Suggested by David Lamson's highly publicized book, this is stark drama produced with grim realism. It cuts scathingly at crooked politics and depicts the inhumanity of prison existence, refraining at the same time from any preachment. It suggests that crime itself rather than capital punishment should be deterred.

The story concerns the plight of John Beal, framed by payroll thieves and convicted of a killing. Ann Dvorak, his sweetheart, enlists the aid of Preston Foster, a detective, to establish Beal's innocence. After adventures in which Foster is fired by politicians and several counterplots are introduced, Beal is saved when a death row riot gives the added seconds needed to save him from the gallows.

Christy Cabanne concentrates the direction to vividly picture the psychology of the condemned and builds intense suspense by cleverly spacing the action between the happenings in the prison and outside. The supporting roles are expertly handled by Russell Hopton, J. Carroll Naish and Ray Mayer as crooks, also by Landers Stevens, Bryant Washburn and Wilfred Lucas, as police, and Howard Hickman and Willie Fung as death row inmates. The screen play by John Twist is a workmanlike job and the dialogue rings true from beginning to end. Because of the sombre nature of the picture it should be played with a lighter subject, but it can stand alone as a main attraction.

Feist, M-G-M Denials In

Answers setting up general denials to the allegations were filed by Leo Feist, Inc., and M-G-M Corp. to the copyright infringement and injunction suit brought by Harms & Co. in Federal Court against them over the song, "Do I Remember," the song as used in "Suzy." Both defendants also set up a defense in the form of an admission that "Feist exercised certain rights with respect to the composition."

Warners Sell a House

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 5.—Warners have sold the Trenton here to the syndicate operating the Paramount. W. A. Thompson will become manager of the Trenton.

Neuman's next novel, a new play to be written by Thomas Mann, winner of the Nobel award, and "Soul Without a Face," an anti-war story by Friges Karinthy.

Laemmle, Sr., will not be associated with the company, it was stated. He has retired and will leave for his coast home in about a week. The impression around the trade is that Laemmle is financing his son.

Distribution has not been set, according to Laemmle, Jr., who said he was negotiating with several companies and hoped to close a deal before he returns to Hollywood in six to eight weeks.

No stars were signed while he was abroad, but he has options on several, Laemmle, Jr., stated. Each production will cost about $500,000 and will be "A" type product. While abroad, he said he saw from 40 to 50 plays and interviewed about 100 authors. He also attended the film festival in Venice, he added.

Jerry Horwin, who accompanied him, has been named scenario editor for the new enterprise. He will make his offices on the coast. John Wildberg is attorney and New York representative, with the Blackstone Agency handling publicity.

Studio space will be rented, Laemmle added. He said he didn't know where he would make his headquarters.

added. Morris could not state whether any of the pictures would be shipped over for American release.

No changes in the distribution setup were made while he was abroad, Morris declared. In England everything is fine, but the Continent is disturbed over the devaluation of currency, he said.

Warner has extended his vacation a few weeks. He's visiting W. R. Hearst at St. Donat's Castle, Switzerland.

The pool follows a similar arrangement entered into more than a year ago between the two companies, and covering several south side neighborhood houses here and in Oshkosh. Kvool has been named general manager under the new arrangement, which involves about 20 houses in six cities, including Milwaukee, in the state.

Pope Back in Detroit

DETROIT, Oct. 5.—Clem Pope has returned to this city and will reopen the Downtown on Oct. 15, with a policy of first run films and vaudeville. The house formerly was operated by RKO. Pope resigned from RKO in Providence last week.

last June. Methods of hastening distributor action are being weighed, but Kuykendall said that it was unlikely that any additional meetings with sales executives would be held unless requested by the distribution companies.

"If distributors fail to act on the proposals which have been made," Kuykendall said, "or if they act unfavorably, I will call a special meeting of the M.P.T.O.A. board to define a further course of action. We are sincere in our belief that the program we are seeking involves no concessions which are unfair or unreasonable. If the program cannot be attained by the procedure we have followed, the M.P.T.O.A. definitely will call for legislation which will provide the same or greater trade practice reforms. The directors' meeting would define our procedure under this policy."

Decision Within a Week

The exhibitors' program calls primarily for the elimination of the score charge, an increased and unconditional cancellation privilege and the establishment of local conciliation boards for the settlement of local trade problems.

Kuykendall plans to remain here for about a week, by the end of which time he expects the fate of the trade practice program will be known.

Looking 'Em Over

"Cavalcade of the West"

(Futter-Grand National)

A minor epic of the west, with the initial ride of the pony express as its basic theme and a tale of the lost son returning to the fold worked in for dramatic effectiveness, this western will be liked by the action film fans.

The smiling and hard-riding Hoot Gibson, the moving force of the film, makes things move along with proper action and pace. Marion Shilling is the heroine and Rex Lease the lost outlaw son, who returns to the more peaceful aspects of pioneer life on the frontier.

Incidents of the exciting era are handled well in the direction of Harry Fraser. The screenplay was executed by Norman Houston.

New Play Has Film Idea, But Hollywood Could Do Better

political barnstorming tour with Congress as one terminus and the presidency, beyond and perhaps.

Walter C. Kelly, "The Virginia Judge"—40 years on stage, in vaudeville and in an occasional film—plays the lead in the sort of role which, by this time, must be like log-rolling to him. He was slightly nervous at the debut, but in the casual exigencies of the role acquitted himself neither with blame nor with particular distinction. The rest of the cast, including Jane Seymour, Mary Holsman, Bertha Thorn and Robert Williams, was what might be described as routine. Clyde Franklin tussled valiantly with a Republican boss part and did the best he could, which was ahead of the others.

In one set, but in three acts with the designing credited to Cirker and Robbins and the stage direction to Leo Bulgakov, "Lend Me Your Ears" drew its title from "Julius Caesar" by that up and coming playwright, W. Shakespeare. But right then and there, all resemblance ceased.

McGuinness a Producer

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5.—James K. McGuinness will function temporarily as an associate producer for M-G-M in order to relieve pressure on other producers. McGuinness, a contract writer, will start immediately to look for material for an undetermined number of pictures.

Alperson, Rowland Talk

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5.—Edward Alperson, president of Grand National, met with Richard Rowland tonight for conferences on their proposed deal.

Rowland will vacate his educational quarters Tuesday, after which Sherman Prod. will take over the premises.

Miss Michael Improving

Bulletins from the Doctor's Hospital at an early hour this morning reported Gertrude Michael as "a little bit better."

BEEVILLE, Tex., Oct. 5. — Henry Hall, local theatre owner, donated a complete air-conditioning plant for the proposed new $30,000 Baptist church here.

Spencer Worried

Hollywood, Oct. 5.—Spencer Tracy is taking singing lessons and, while assiduously at the task, expresses the fear that he will be hailed as a "sissy" at any minute.

Bank Night Actions Brought in Denver

DENVER, Oct. 5.—Bank Night as operated by the Lucky Seven theatres here will soon get its day in court following the filing of suits by two dissatisfied customers. Frank Hickey, attorney for the theatres, said that the action will be fought to the finish, because they claim that the registrants did not comply with the conditions.

Mrs. M. C. Morain, who claims that she was represented on Sept. 8 by a so-called courtesy registration card given her at the matinee performance, is suing for $1,000 which she asserts that she won. The management denies that it has or has had in its possession a courtesy card registration for Mrs. Morain.

The other defendant, Robert L. Voth, says that he was standing outside one of the theatres, June 16, when the name was called as "Roth" and that he did not answer because he did not know that his name had been drawn. His suit is for $200. Trial has been set for Oct. 19.

B. D. Cockrill, manager of the Denham, says that these are the first complaints he has had since the plan was started by them in August, 1935. Since then $92,000 has been given away in amounts from $500 to $2,400. The Lucky Seven have 62,000 registrations.

Bank Night Case Up Soon

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 5.—The Supreme Court of Kansas on Oct. 7 is scheduled to hear the quo warranto proceedings brought early last spring by Clarence V. Beck, attorney general, against Fox Midwest on a charge of operating a lottery in the use of Bank Night.

Roland Boynton, former attorney general, is representing Fox and Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., the latter owner of Bank Night patents.

limited to 62 until the population reaches 550,000 and that thereafter licenses be limited to one for each 10,000 population increase. (At the present time, there are 62 theatre licenses outstanding although several of the buildings are closed.)

Theatres must be not less than 1,200 feet from church or school.

Parking space for patrons must be provided as follows: up to 400-seat capacity, parking space for 200 cars; 400 to 600 seats, 300 cars; in excess of 600, at least 400 cars. No theatre will be permitted to operate unless it has the required parking space available for patrons.

Suggested by "Theatre Men"

These provisions, however, apply to theatres and licenses established in the future. Present theatres would be unaffected.

Alderman Edwin I. Hudson, chairman of the committee, introduced the proposed ordinance. In reply to the question of who proposed and prepared the action, Hudson said that "a group of people went to the theatre men" and started the idea. The proposal is reported to have sprung "from this group of theatre men."

Theodore Hayes, representing the Minnesota Amusement Co., told the group that while his firm was not active in the promotion of the ordinance, it was "in sympathy with it." He argued that the more theatres there are, the more the theatre standard is reduced. In addition he endorsed provisions concerning schools and churches.

Monopoly Charge Made

Asked what he thought of the measure, Assistant City Attorney John F. Bonner said that if the only motive of the measure was to restrain competition, the council would have no power to enact it. That, however, he added, was not the whole problem, since the council does have the right to supervise theatres with respect to police and fire hazards.

Protesting the ordinance, speakers declared that to restrict the number of theatres to 62, is to provide a monopoly and that it would hamper building trades and company expansion.

Supporters declared "there are too many theatre seats in Minneapolis now," and that it was "inadvisable to add film houses in suburban districts."

Dinner for McCarthy

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 5.—The local Variety Club will honor L. J. McCarthy, film buyer for Fox Midwest and an organizer of the local club, at a dinner tomorrow at club quarters. He will leave this month to become assistant to Nat Levine of Republic on the coast.

Dinner for Bragin

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Saul Bragin was given a farewell dinner at the Hotel Sherman by B. & K. executives. He has resigned as booker to join Warners Theatres in Cleveland as assistant to Nat Wolff.

"Dodsworth" $18,000 Hit In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—"Dodsworth" was the big noise of the week. It went $6,000 over average on an $18,000 take at Loew's State.

Three of the downtown first runs had repeat shows, it was cold and rainy and new competition was introduced with the opening of the Hanna for legitimate shows.

"Don't Turn 'em Loose" was good for $6,755, up by $2,755. "The Great Ziegfeld," in its third week at Loew's Stillman, held up to $7,500. "The Girl on the Front Page," with "Folies Parisienne" on the stage, was strong at $19,000, over par by $4,000.

Western Changes Name

PORTLAND, Oct. 5.—Western Sound Equipment Co., of Portland has changed its name to Western Theatre Equipment Co.

Paramount Expands Far East Activities

Paramount's activities in India have been expanded, Charles Ballance, general manager for the company, stated upon his arrival yesterday on the Queen Mary on his first trip in two years. He plans to be here three weeks during which time he will visit his brother, Harry G., in Atlanta, and the studios on the coast. He will depart Friday for the south and later return to sail on the Rex.

The company has had only an office in Calcutta. It recently opened one in Bombay where new headquarters have been set up. In addition, representatives have been added at Lahore, Punjab, Rangoon, Burma, and Colombo, Ceylon, he said.

"Business has picked up," Ballance asserted, adding he was sure improved conditions will be reflected throughout the world. There is a lot of native production going on in India and a good number of the 600 theatres in the country play the home made product. Most of the company's releases are scheduled for Indian distribution, the Paramount executive declared, and big plans are on foot for "The General Died at Dawn."

"We are developing a fine organization in India," Ballance said. "S. Ganguli is general manager in Calcutta and Frank Kennebeck is manager of the Bombay office." En route from India, Ballance met Fred Lange, head of Continental activities for the company, in Paris, and John W. Hicks, Jr., head of all foreign affairs at Paramount, in London.

Name Convention Head

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—Mrs. W. J. MacLachlan, former president of the Cleveland Cinema Club and vice-president of the Ohio M. P. Council, has been named chairman of the convention committee of the Ohio M. P Council, which will meet here Oct. 28-29-30. Convention headquarters will be at the Cleveland Hotel, but business sessions will be held in the Chamber of Commerce.

Asks Injury Damages

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5.—Mrs. Elizabeth W. Coey has filed suit for $10,000 in Common Pleas Court here against the Northside Amusement Co., operating the Garden, as damages for injuries she alleges she suffered during an explosion in the house on May 21, 1934, as the result of a union battle. Improper protection for patrons is charged against the theatre.

Midland to Run Dual

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 5.—Loew's Midland, for the second time in its history, will show a double feature beginning Oct. 9. The films are "Craig's Wife" and "Adventure in Manhattan." On a recent day, 41 out of 44 subsequent runs advertising in the newspapers were showing double bills, a new high for the practice here.

Two Charge Plagiarism

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5.—Dorothy Farnum and Margretta Cort, writers, have filed suit in Superior Court here, seeking an injunction against Radio, alleging plagiarism in the production of "I Dream Too Much," film starring Lily Pons. They ask further showing of the film be halted and seek a financial accounting.

Mailbag

Lois Jacoby of the Goldwyn office recently parted with her appendix. Taking her pen in hand, she writes from her home:

"Thanks so much for The Daily which cheered me immensely during my stay in the hospital. Even without my appendix, it was good to learn what 'My Man Godfrey' grossed in Minneapolis."

"Ziegfeld" $14,000 Lead in Providence

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 5.—Another week of above-par grosses caused exhibitors to grin and predict the coming season will be a banner one. In its second week at Loew's State, "The Great Ziegfeld" upped the usual $12,000 take by $2,000 and the Albee caught a neat $8,500 with "My Man Godfrey," which was held over.

"Sing, Baby, Sing" at the Majestic took in $7,500, which was $500 to the good and the Strand was a like amount over par with "The General Died at Dawn," which garnered $7,000. Fay's, with a revival of "State Fair" and vaudeville, caught $7,200. The usual gross is $7,000.

The weather was crisp and fair and the only major opposition came from the start of the football season.

Total first run business was $44,200. Average is $39,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 1:

"THE GENERAL DIED AT DAWN" (Para.)

K. C. House Sets Record

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 5.—The Plaza, Fox Midwest's ace subsequent here, broke all attendance records last Sunday, when "Rhythm On The Range" played to 6,000 people. This was in spite of rain and of the Jubilesta, the $125,000, eight-day show with which Kansas City introduced its new Municipal Auditorium.

U. A.-National Deal Set

Signatures are scheduled to be affixed either today or tomorrow on the master contract between National Theatres and U. A. for the showing of the distributor's 29 features next season over the entire circuit. Spyros Skouras will sign for National while George J. Schaefer will do likewise for U. A.

Hits Proposed Texas Tax

AUSTIN, TEXAS, Oct. 5.—Gov. James V. Allred's recommendation for a 10 per cent state tax on film admissions would require theatre owners to pay one-fifth of their gross intake in taxes, former Senator J. J. Strickland, theatre attorney, declared here. He cited the Federal levy of 10 per cent on tickets over 40 cents.

"Godfrey" Is 4th Week Top In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5.—In spite of World Series broadcast opposition and an appearance here of President Roosevelt, "My Man Godfrey" held up to $7,800 in its fourth week at the Fulton. This was $3,300 over a first week normal.

"Dodsworth" pulled a strong $13,000, up by $2,000, at the Penn. "Swing Time" held up to $7,000 in its second week at the Warner, and "Craig's Wife" was strong at the Alvin with $7,250.

Total first run business was $47,050. Average is $37,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 1:

"CRAIG'S WIFE" (Col.)

Coast Technicians Have Busy Schedule

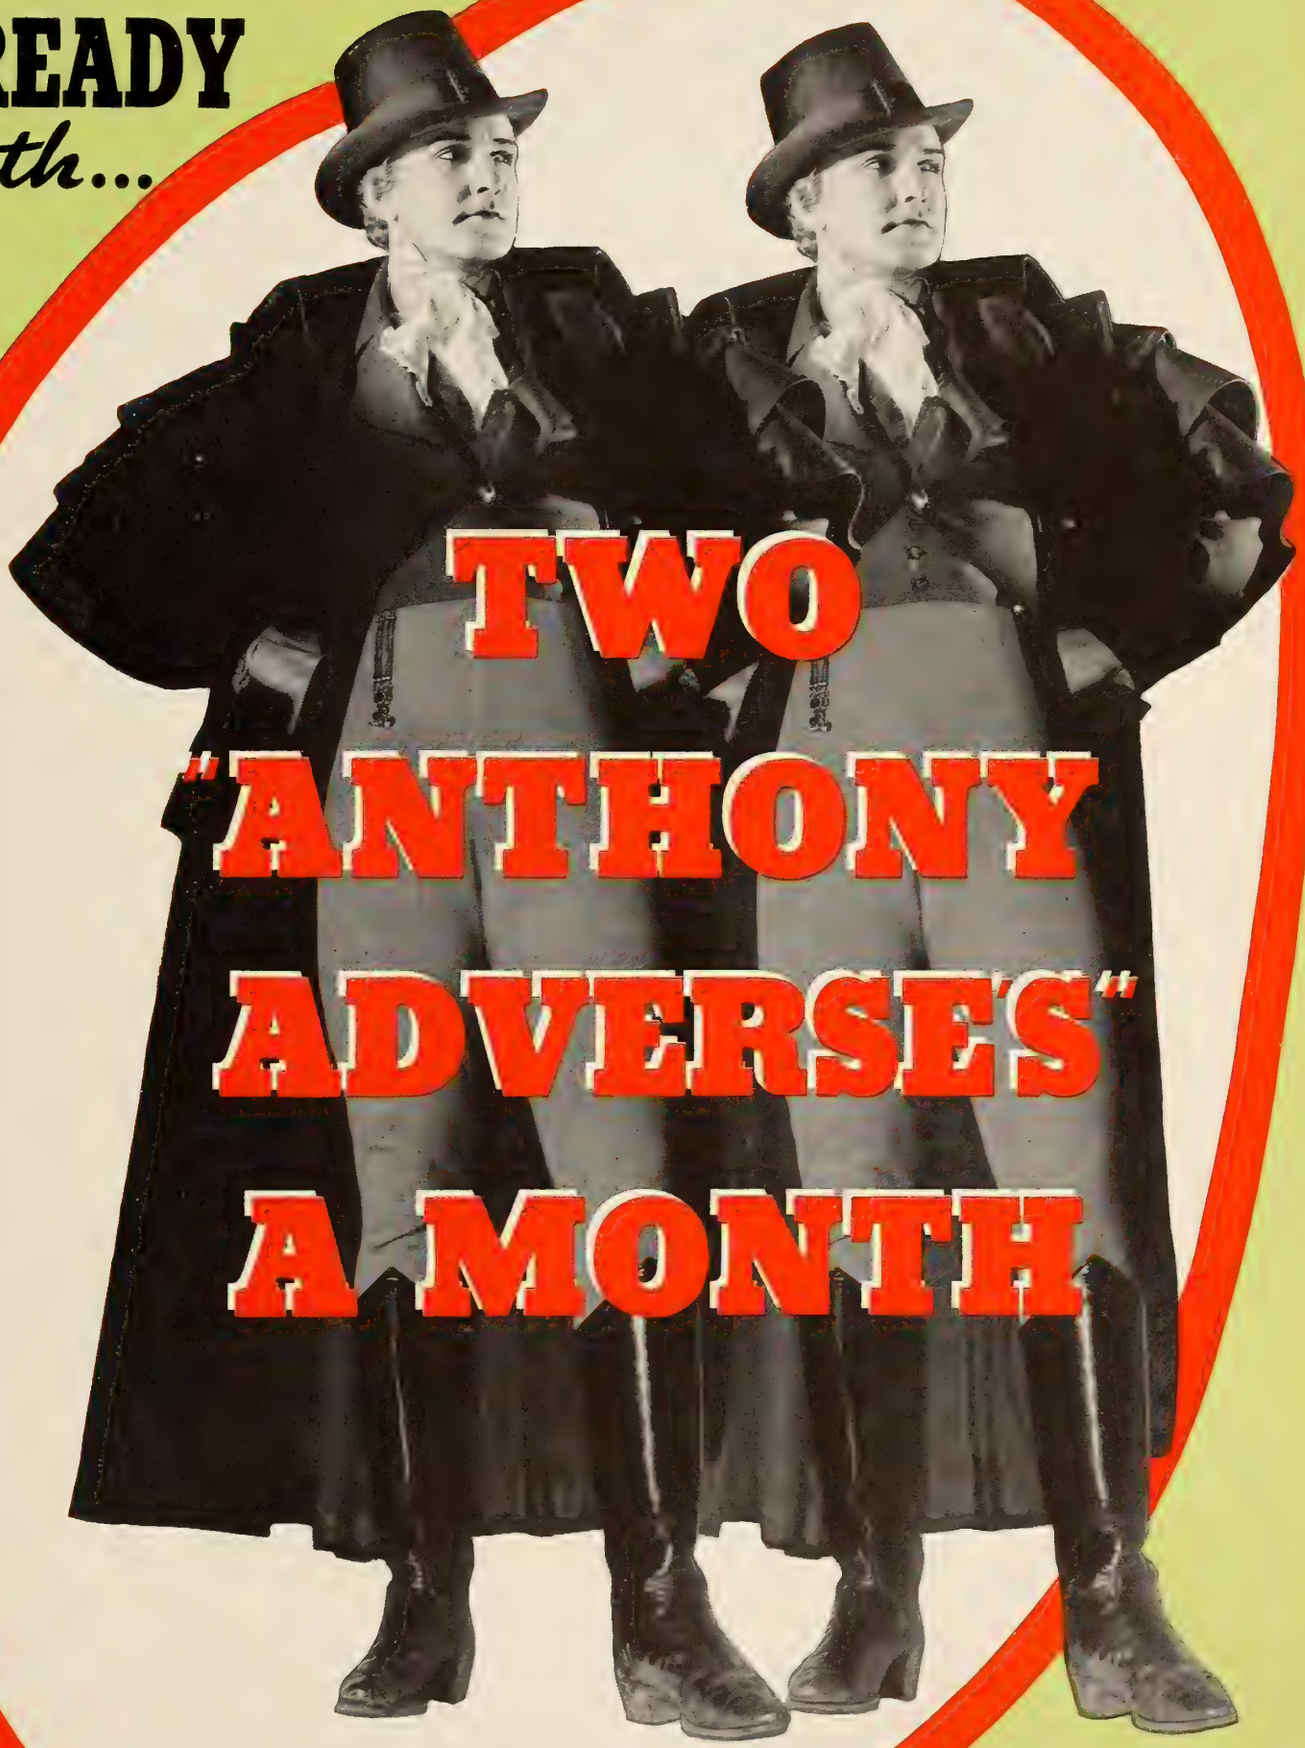
HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5.—Studio technicians enlisted in the Academy Research Council cooperative technical program will have a heavy schedule of meetings, tests and demonstrations during the coming two weeks.

Starting with a meeting of the committee on industrial education, under the chairmanship of Dr. J. G. Frayne, Monday, the week's schedule includes a series of demonstrations of the Hawkins Safety Projector Device at the Roosevelt Hotel, Tuesday; a meeting of the sound recording committee Wednesday to continue discussion of sound reproduction characteristics and possible standardization of reproduction in the theatre; an all night meeting of the sound test group of the Silent Camera committee, under the chairmanship of Virgil Miller, at M-G-M Thursday for a series of camera noise analysis tests and the first meeting of the council's advanced class in sound recording next Monday evening.

The schedule calls for a series of film preservative projection tests later in the week at various theatres and a meeting of the council during the next 10 days to consider matters of policy in connection with the cooperative technical program.

Brin Gives Up House

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5.—The Arrow on Main St., has been returned to Mrs. L. Menard, original owner, by L. K. Brin who has been operating it. The policy of the house will not be changed.



Film Sugar Production

CLEWISTON, FLA., Oct. 5.—Camera and sound crews are here to take background shots of sugar production in Florida's "sugar bowl" area in the Everglades. A two or three-reel subject on the industry is planned.

"Heart" with Show $33,000 Boston Smash

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—"Give Me Your Heart," with John Boles and Fred Allen and his Town Hall Tonight troupe on the stage at the Metropolitan, were the big noise of the week. The $33,000 gross was over normal by $11,000.

"The Great Ziegfeld" also went into the money in a big way with $14,500, up by $3,500 at Loew's State, and $18,500, up by $6,500, at Loew's Orpheum.

The RKO Boston, with "Don't Turn Em Loose" and with a stage attraction, "Glorified Follies of 1936" featuring the Three Stooges, took $18,000, which was $7,000 above average. The other RKO theatre, the Memorial, went $500 above average with $11,500 on the fourth week of "Swing Time."

The two Loew's theatres combined grossed $33,000 on the week. The Loew's State did $14,500 which is $3,500 above average playing "The Great Ziegfeld" for the first time at popular prices. The Loew's Orpheum playing same program grossed $18,500 for the week which was $6,500 above average for the house.

"Romeo and Juliet," in its fifth and last week at the Colonial, did a low $6,000.

"China Clipper," with "Love Begins at Twenty," at the Paramount and Fenway, had a combined gross of $13,500.

Total first run business was $115,000. Average without the Colonial is $79,500.

"Dodsworth" Philadelphia Hit, $19,000

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5. — "Dodsworth" cleaned to a record-breaking $19,000 at the Aldine. The picture started big and kept up all week. It may go three weeks easily.

Finishing the second week of its first grind engagement, "The Great Ziegfeld" left the Stanley with a strong $18,000 for eight days. "Romeo and Juliet" winds up its roadshowing at the Chestnut with $8,500 for the fifth and last week.

At the Earle, "Lady Be Careful" and a stage show drew $13,500. This was the last stage show program for some time, as the musicians and Warners have not yet reached an agreement. Both the Earle and Fox are without flesh entertainment, and will probably remain that way for some time.

The weather break on the whole was good, except for one rainy day.

Outstanding competition of the week was furnished by the Detton-Levin wrestling match and a legitimate show, "Stage Door."

Total first run business was $97,900. Average, without the Chestnut, $81,560.

"Hussy" at $9,000 Is Milwaukee Top

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 5.—"The Gorgeous Hussy" with a $9,000 take at Fox's Wisconsin, $1,000 above average, was the week's high. "My Man Godfrey" and "Second Wife" at the Warner placed second with a $6,500 gross, also $1,000 to the good.

With the exception of "The Great Ziegfeld," playing its third week downtown at Fox's Strand, where it grossed $1,800, just $300 above par, other business was off. This was laid partly to the return of the Milwaukee Brewers playing the first three games in the Little World Series playoff here over the week-end to more than 35,000 fans.

Weather for the most part was fair and cool.

Total first run business was $26,200. Average is $24,500.

"Ramona" a $6,000 Draw, Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—"Ramona" did excellent business, $6,000, at the Apollo, $2,000 above the line, and was held over.

Business generally was on the way toward the exceptional mark, but five days of rain cut into it, hurting grosses materially on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, when the downpour was heavy.

"The Great Ziegfeld" held its smash pace well in its second and final week at Loew's, turning in $7,500, $1,500 into the black. At the Lyric "Down the Stretch," with Phil Spitalny and his All-Girl Band, did $8,700, $1,700 up, and "My American Wife," plus "A Son Comes Home," at the Circle pulled $3,600, $400 downstairs.

Total first run business was $25,800. Average is $21,000.

Ballot Error Leads To New Sunday Vote

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5.—Because the Sunday film vote in nearby Waynesburg, Pa., was not submitted to the voters on a separate ballot, Judge Challen W. Waychoff of County Court has held the ban on Sunday films illegal. According to his decision, the local option results in Waynesburg cannot stand and another vote must be taken at the election next month.

Judge Waychoff ruled that placing the question on a separate ballot was mandatory. Thus Waynesburg will vote again on the question next month instead of waiting five years, as usually required by law.

England Hears Government Is Stopping G. B.

Reported Behind Maxwell Offer to the Ostrers

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The British Government is reliably reported to have taken a hand in the G. B. situation by requesting John Maxwell of British International to step in and thus prevent the company from passing to American control. The Government, it is further reported, has promised to extend its aid to help Maxwell attain this objective.

This angle is obviously impossible to confirm, but, if it holds water, it is entirely conceivable that the original Twentieth Century-Fox, Loew deal will collapse on the angle of British control. This has led to financial speculation if Twentieth Century-Fox, therefore, will not consider a sale of its 49 per cent interest in Metropolis and Bradford Trust in Hollywood, Oct. 6.—Joseph M. Schenck said here today: "Twentieth Century-Fox will not sell any part of its interest in G. B."

National Completes Deal for Magnalite

National Screen Service has completed its deal for world rights on Magnalite and has set up the Magnalite Sales Corp. to handle it with Sam Dembow, Jr., in charge as vice-president and general manager. Giannini Meets the Press; A Good Time Is Had by All

By SHERWIN A. KANE

Dr. A. H. Giannini, making his first visit to the United Artists home office since becoming president of the company three months ago, was discovered in such a genial mood yesterday by a large delegation of trade paper reporters who had come to interview him that, perhaps fearful of dispelling such warm humor, only a few, half-hearted attempts to turn the conversation to crass, commercial subjects were made. However, when that happened, it was not long before the Giannini wit had returned the discussion to the loftier plane from which it had descended, and the monotony of business affairs was again forgotten.

For example, some warped reportorial mind which was unable to forget that it had come to get a story, whether or no, sought to discover what Giannini thought of the so-called "problem" which is said to result when everyone in Hollywood gets on a radio program and most every one who should be in a theatre stays home to listen.

Giannini asserted that he was not

Three Plans Pending for Roxy Theatre

With at least three plans of reorganization for the Roxy promised on Friday, Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey is expected to appoint a referee to study each plan and report back in due time, it was intimated yesterday as the date for filing drew near.

In addition to a rehabilitation program planned by the bondholders' protective committee, two important exhibitors, one with a small circuit of his own and the second representing a national theatre company, are expected to vie for operation control.

For the past few weeks, reports have been current the bondholders will recommend approval of a management contract to run for a number of

Distributors To Take Stand On 10 Points

Distributors are expected to notify M.P.T.O.A. officials here of the position they will take in connection with the exhibitor organization's trade practice program by the end of the week, it was learned yesterday. Indications are that definite concessions will be forthcoming from a majority of companies on the three main phases of the program, which are an increased and unconditional cancellation program, elimination of score charges and the establishment of at least a small number of experimental conciliation boards for the settlement of local trade problems.

It is a very young season so far and its blossomings have not been exactly over fruitful, but last night witnessed the premiere of the outstanding play of the new theatrical year. That may sound like a dubious compliment and, indeed, it might be were it not for the fact that "St. Helena," competition if it had any notwithstanding, would emerge as a distinguished play on its own account.

The first in the eminently successful Max Gordon's endeavors so far this fall, it sets him off to an auspicious seasonal beginning again and made his nervous meanderings alongside and down the sides of the theatre

Speculate on Price Control For Pictures

Patman Promises Bill to Regulate Retailing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Considerable speculation over the possibility that the Robinson-Patman Anti-Price Discrimination Act may eventually be extended to films has been aroused in Washington by announcements that Representative Patman of Texas, co-author of the bill, will introduce a measure next winter prohibiting manufacturers from engaging in retail business, with specific provision to include films.

The Federal Trade Commission issued its first citations under the law, indicating its intention of demanding full compliance with the act, and industry generally is now watching to see if the constitutionality of the measure will be met by a challenge in the courts.

It is pointed out by observers in Washington that if Congress enacts legislation prohibiting manufacturers from engaging in retail business proposed by Congressman Patman as a companion measure to the Price-Discrimination Act—it is logical to expect that the latter also will be interpreted by the commission to cover films.

As yet, the commission has given

Dick and Joan are Greeted By Planes, Tugs, Banners

By J. M. JERAULD

Richard Powell and Mrs. Powell—Dick and Joan to most everybody—arrived yesterday on the Santa Paula. New York harbor was the first to know about it. The late sleeping passengers at Quarantine probably would have been just as well satisfied if Charlie Einfeld had let the newlyweds slip into town quietly.

By the time the U. S. doctors had decided there were no epidemics aboard ship planes were buzzing around at a great rate. Three of them had long signs—45 feet long to be exact—reading: "Welcome Dick and Joan." One big Douglass flagship plane of the American Airlines had no streamer, but it contributed to the general excitement.

Aboard were the flying ace of the Warner publicity department, Sid Rechetnik, and a group of newspaper men and a blue-eyed stewardess. Only the stewardess was nonchalant as the plane caromed off the edge of a white cloud and swooped down so the boys could peek into the Santa Paula's smokestacks.

Good Views of Ship Funnels

They would have waved their handkerchiefs at Dick and Joan, but the windows were closed and by the time they discovered the plane was still under control they were over Brooklyn. On the next curve they passed the left eyebrow of the Statue of Liberty and took a five-second detour over the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Sid looked out of the window again and thought the Santa's green stacks had turned red. He was directly over the Queen Mary.

He was about to say something about it when he shot through a cloud and came out over Weehawken.

Somebody asked the stewardess how high the plane was, but before she could answer it was again aiming at the Santa's smokestacks and Dick and Joan. On the next turn the boys had a fine view of Jamaica Bay. The Woolworth Bldg. looked like a white toothpick with a green tip a moment later and Aviator Rechetnik pointed out five tugs with welcoming banners messing up the calm water around the Santa.

"They're blowing their whistles," he explained, pointing.

He may have been right. The starboard wing shot up at a 45-degree angle and there were the Jersey meadows stretched out beneath, but they didn't stay put. In no time at all the Empire State Bldg. was pointing upwards beneath the plane like a shiny toy.

This went on for more than an hour.

Real Welcome at the Waldorf

Sid was just getting a look at the George Washington Bridge when the hostess—her name was Bernardine McDade—asked him if he was fastened in. He wasn't, but he got the straps buckled across his lap in no seconds flat as the Newark Airport came up out of the mist.

A quick trip back to New York by car brought the aerial welcomers to the Waldorf-Astoria about the same time that Dick and Joan arrived and were greeted by Gloria Blondell, Joan's sister, and Regis Toomey.

They'll be in town at least a week and will go to see "Boy Meets Girl."

On Friday Warners will introduce them to cocktails and the newspaper and magazine writers at the Ritz Towers. Then they'll go back to California to rest and make pictures.

Some honeymoon!

Lewin Is Signed as Paramount Producer

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—Albert Lewin, who resigned as associate producer for M-G-M two weeks ago, has signed a long term producer contract with Paramount. He will assume his post at Paramount on March 1, following a four-month trip to Europe. He will serve in an executive advisory capacity, in addition to handling production.

Lewin's resignation, which followed very shortly after the death of Irving G. Thalberg, was based on the clause in his M-G-M contract which stipulated that he had the right to cancel the agreement if Thalberg no longer was available. At that time it was indicated his resignation was to be effective on the completion of "The Good Earth," which he had been supervising, and on which production has been completed.

Shift Streimer Dinner

The Monday Knighters have switched the testimonial dinner for Moe Streimer from the Astor to the Tower Club at the Park Central Hotel on Oct. 20.

Supply Dealers Set Back Discount Talks

The Independent Theatre Supply Dealers' Ass'n has set back the Chicago meeting, scheduled for a discussion of the Robinson-Patman Law on discriminatory discounts, from Oct. 14 to Oct. 17 at the Congress Hotel. Instead of three days, the sessions will be cut to two.

Various dealers have had different interpretations of the Law. The conclave is to be held for the purpose of clearing up any wrong impressions.

General Sets Second

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—"Let's All Sing," based on the current community songfest vogue, will be General Picture's second picture, and follows "Three Legionnaires." Robert E. Welsh, in charge of production, has closed a deal with Abe Meyer to line up songwriters.

Flynn In Adventure

Errol Flynn has written an account of a voyage he took with a friend in a 44-foot boat across 3,000 miles of the South Seas and requiring seven months, which is published in the October number of Cosmopolitan under the title "Beam Ends."

"Dodsworth" Pulls $38,000, 2nd Week

"Dodsworth" garnered $38,000 in its second week at the Rivoli, ending last night. The figure is the same as the initial stanza and indicates the picture will run two to three more weeks.

The Rivoli is the only Broadway house charging 35 cents for "early birds." The State has a 25-cent morning price with loges scaled at 40 cents before 1 P. M.

"Ramona" opened last night at the Criterion following "Give Me Your Heart," which played a little more than three weeks. "Ramona" was reviewed in MOTION PICTURE DAILY from Hollywood on Sept. 14.

Guaranteed Closes Deal

Guaranteed Pictures has closed a deal with Adams Film Exchange for distribution of "Just My Luck" and "Women in White" in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Retitle French Film

The French film which opened at the Filmarte as "Kermesse Heroique" has been retitled "Carnival in Flanders." It is in its third week at the Filmarte.

Akron ITO Dual Ban Placed on Two Films

AKRON, Oct. 6.—The single feature committee of the Akron I. T. O. A., named to designate which of the 1936-37 pictures are banned for double featuring, elected "The Great Ziegfeld" and "Anthony Adverse" for single billing only. The committee announced that these were the only two of the 1936-37 features so far released that merited single feature designation.

An effort to sponsor a drive for an increase of five cents over existing admissions was nipped by Robert Menches, president, who claimed such a move would be folly in the face of unsettled Akron labor conditions, double featuring of all pictures at first run houses, and the established first run 40-cent admission price.

Newsreel Suits Settled

Stipulations were filed in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday in connection with the settlement and discontinuation of two suits alleging wrongful use of the plaintiffs' photographs in newsreels. One was an action of Sidney Franklin, bull fighter, against Fox Film and Fox Movietone News, and the other was a suit brought by Siegfried Steinwall, a ski jumper, against Movietone News, Inc. Notice discontinuing the actions was filed by Attorney Percy Heiliger on behalf of Movietone News.

Golden Host to Allied

Edward Golden, general sales manager of Chesterfield-Invincible, yesterday played host to a number of members of Allied of New Jersey at a luncheon at the Lincoln Hotel, which was followed by a screening of "Missing Girls" at RCA's projection room on Fifth Ave.

Mrs. P. J. Nolan Dies

OTTAWA, Oct. 6.—P. J. Nolan, former mayor of Ottawa and owner of three local theatres, suffered a bereavement in the death of his wife following a stroke in her 60th year. Two sons and two daughters, all of Ottawa, also survive.

Bernard Granville Dead

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—Bernard Granville, 50, film comedian and best known as a New York stage player years ago, was found dead of natural causes in his apartment here last night.

Para. Has Toledo Shots

Paramount News, in its issue of Oct. 14, will include shots of the recapture of Toledo, in Spain, by the rebel forces. Al Richards, editor, has been advised by Arthur Menken, cameraman in Spain, that the films were shipped out of Spain uncensored.

Souland to Produce Here

J. M. Souland has completed arrangements for eastern production in his "Broadway Dance Parade." The "Flapper Pirate Series," a part of this program, is to be started shortly, he says, with George Rand directing.

RKO in Batavia, Java

RKO will open its own exchange in Batavia, Java, Dutch East Indies. Reginald Armour, in charge for the company in Calcutta, will supervise.

ential persons in distribution quarters but declined to disclose either their identities or the results of the conference. He stated that he was proceeding along lines decided upon after consultation with other M.P.T.O.A. officers and that these were not likely to involve new meetings between the exhibitor trade practice committee and individual sales heads. Kuykendall verified the information that he expected to be notified by distributors of their stand before he leaves New York this weekend, and added that he was "hopeful" that their decisions would be favorable.

Cardinal Principle Defined by Pa. Unit

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—The United M. P. T. O. of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware has adopted what it terms a "cardinal principle," declaring it will employ "every active resource at its disposal" to defend any member "found to have suffered any aggressive or unfair act" by any film company, other exhibitor or distributor in the territory, following determination by the organization's grievance committee.

Specifically are cited any film company attempt to exact rentals from a member greater than called for under the company's national policy; any move to increase "unjustifiably" the accepted clearance previously established for a member, and any attempt by a film company to use the threat of selling away from a member in order to compel him to accept a film rental or run determined by the exhibitor organization to be unfair.

Deny Plan to Oust Myers from Allied

said his affiliations with other groups were known and were not grounds for ouster proceedings.

"We know that Myers heads not one, but several companies," Steffes said, "but that has nothing to do with his activities in our group, which he handles satisfactorily. Furthermore, reports that such a drive is originating in Minnesota are pure fabrication. Such action might just as well be starting in the Virgin Islands, for all the truth there is in it."

Bennie Berger, local Allied leader, likewise denied knowledge of any ouster movement. J. P. Clinton, director of the board of governors representing the Duluth section, said here he had "opposed Myers many times in the past when I thought he was in the wrong," but refused to credit rumors that opposition to Myers had become consolidated in definite action by any group.

Arkansas ITO Meets

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 6.—Routine matters were discussed at the annual convention of the I.T.O. of Arkansas which met here last week at the Hotel Marion.

Giannini Meets the Press; A Good Time Is Had by All familiar with the problem and, therefore, could not discuss it authoritatively.

"But," he added, "I have my own opinions of broadcasting. I went on Cecil B. DeMille's program recently and they gave me three minutes in which to tell the story of my life, DeMille used up more than half of that asking me questions. I received no pay, either. DeMille got the money and all I received was a letter a day for the next three weeks from a woman who said I had mispronounced some words and wanted to sell me some courses in English."

Giannini holds several university degrees.

The United Artists' president said he had been informed that Will H. Hays was giving attention to the radio activities of Hollywood personalities and that he was awaiting the outcome "anxiously."

Giannini arrived from the coast late last week and has seen some World Series games since, one of which was a bitter disappointment to him.

"As my boyhood home was on Telegraph Hill, San Francisco, I came to know some of the neighbors' boys. I saw three of them—DiMaggio, Crosetti and Lazzeri—come to bat in the same inning the other day and not one of them was able to do a thing. If they don't redeem themselves today I won't eat Di Maggio's father's fish any more."

Politics Enters, Furtively

Giannini is optimistic about business possibilities for the industry at large; observes that remarkable gains have been made already and that "the industry must regard the present Administration favorably, as a result, don't you think."

He was non-committal about the possibility of United Artists increasing its release schedule by the reported addition of several pictures from Carl Laemmle, Jr., and DeMille. He spoke favorably of Laemmle's production record and observed that the former Universal producer was expected momentarily, "but it's purely a social call, I assume," Giannini said.

Laemmle entered a few minutes later but was unable to add anything to the information concerning his plans which he gave to MOTION PICTURE DAILY on his arrival from Europe on Monday.

Giannini counted off 29 pictures which now figure definitely in United Artists' new season schedule and said that at the moment there were no definite plans for additional releases. Charles Chaplin plans to start one in January which will star Paulette Goddard, but the comedian will not appear in it. In reply to a question, Giannini said that he did not believe David Selznick wanted to leave United Artists and that Selznick had five more pictures to make for the company.

Lauds U. S. "Foreign" Films

He observed that one of the most interesting manifestations in current production to him is the success which Hollywood achieves in making pictures which keep alive European history, culture and traditions, "and the results are better than the Europeans achieve themselves," he said. He mentioned such pictures as "Romeo and Juliet" and "David Copperfield" in this connection.

"The world popularity of American films has been so great from the outset," he observed, "that our customs have become more familiar to some nations than their own. The seriousness of production activity in England and Italy is explainable in large part by the desire of those countries to preserve for their people their own traditions and culture, instead of having them absorb ours. The fact that we have shown that we can make pictures which do that for them better than they can is all that prevents the problem here involved from becoming one of the first magnitude to the American industry."

Giannini plans to remain in New York for three or four weeks.

Metropolitan Deal Closed

United Artists has closed with George Skouras, Louis Frisch and Samuel Rinzler, operators of Metropolitan Playhouses, for next season's lineup in 84 Greater New York houses.

The Skouras Theatres pact provides for 42 theatres, the same as the Randforce contract.

Burr Back on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—C. C. Burr is back in town, having completed a two-month tour around the country selling B. J. S. Prod.

Burr said he had sold 85 per cent of the possibilities on independent exchange deals for six outdoor films starring George Eldredge and six detective stories now being prepared.

Kincey Takes 3 Houses

CHARLOTTE, Oct. 6.—H. F. Kincey, general manager of the North Carolina Theatres, Inc., and its affiliates has closed a deal for affiliation with his circuit of the Carolina, Royal and Bijou in Wilmington. He denies that his company has acquired the Warner Broadway here.

Bishop to Winnipeg

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 6.—Harold Bishop, recently appointed manager of the Capitol here, in succession to R. S. Roddick, has been transferred to Winnipeg by Famous Players Canadian Corp. Bishop is one of the most widely-travelled managers of the Canadian chain, having managed theatres in Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg and Montreal before proceeding to London. His successor here has not yet been named.

Roddick, who had been manager of the London house for eight years, has been appointed district manager for Western Ontario.

Three Plans Pending for Roxy Theatre

years with Howard S. Cullman and Harry C. Arthur at the helm. Cullman is trustee for the Roxy, and Arthur, as head of Artco, which currently holds a management contract calling for three per cent of the gross, has been assisting Cullman for the past three years.

One of the two theatre interests is said to be ready to pay all reorganization expenses in addition to calling in the present $3,500,000 first mortgage for a new one of the same amount. He is understood to have corralled all the financial backing necessary to swing the deal provided the proposed plan meets with the court's sanction.

The second interested party is reported prepared to offer a 15-year lease with provisions for paying taxes and rent of that portion of the theatre lobby owned by the Taft Hotel.

Plan 20th-Fox "Show Window"

With Twentieth Century-Fox getting $62,000 as the rental figure on two pictures which played five weeks and the possibility of the distributor netting from $35,000 to $40,000 on the run of "Dimples," the exhibitor, closely allied with Twentieth Century-Fox, is reported to be anxious to add the house to his string and at the same time use it as a show window for Twentieth Century-Fox.

Under Cullman's operation, the Roxy is said to have made a profit of $200,000 last year. Most of the receivers' certificates of $250,000 have been paid off and all back taxes have been marked off the books as paid in full. Cullman was named receiver after Harry Kosch held the same post for about a year, during which the indebtedness was increased considerably. The receivership was terminated when permission was granted to reorganize under section 77B and Cullman was made trustee.

will be weeded out and the theatres added to other existing companies. Whereas every theatre has been operated by an individual company, the new plan will have some of the companies operating two or more houses.

Under the new Federal tax law no company can file a consolidated report with the result that the losses of one company cannot be marked off against another.

England Hears Government Is Stopping G. B.

order to preserve equities in its holdings which William Fox acquired in 1929 at a cost of approximately $16,000,000.

Sight is not being lost of the virtual domination of the English industry which would rest in the hands of Maxwell should he be successful in acquiring control of G. B. His own chain, Associated British, in combination with G. B., would give him about 700 theatres. On the other hand, one way to end the current impasse could be worked out through purchase by Maxwell of the Ostrer interest and a closer arrangement with Twentieth Century-Fox and Loew, but with Maxwell in control. This would satisfy the nationalist point of view.

Government Said to Be Opposed

Insofar as the Government is concerned, usually reliable sources insist Whitehall wants negotiations for a sale to American interests to fail. In the meantime, it is reported a hitch in dealings between the Ostrers and Maxwell revolves around the former's insistence that the brothers continue in the management at an aggregate salary of £100,000 a year.

S. R. Kent, in on the Normandie, has no statement to make and adds it is not conceivable that there will be one this week.

Arthur M. Loew has not arrived in London as yet, but is still on the Continent.

Evans, Excellent Napoleon In a Splendid "St. Helena"

during the first two acts an unnecessary waste of nervous energy.

"St. Helena," written by R. C. Sheriff and Jeanne De Casalis, concerns itself, of course, with the final years in the life of Napoleon. Elba and Waterloo behind him, the play opens toward the close of 1815 when Bonaparte and his small retinue are deposited by the Powers on the island rock, there to spend the remaining six years of his life in irony, in futile revolt and in final restrospect. There he learned, as he penned it, "resignation, that is the dominion of reason, the real triumph of the soul."

In the title role, Maurice Evans stands far away and above the entire surrounding cast. His delineation of the furies, the tyranny, the humor and finally the resignation which marked the closing chapters of the Man of Destiny's mortal days is a skilful and rich piece of acting. The New York stage may see its equal this season, but, enthusiastic as this sounds, probably it will not witness its superior.

Excellently Mounted

In costuming, lighting and stage design, the play falls effortlessly into the category of better things. In appeal and despite its tendency to sag and hold less tautly toward the close of the second act and in part of the third, "St. Helena" is of drawing power for the discriminating.

In its present form, it is actionless insofar as potential film use is concerned, but it is easy to envision how what is now conversation could be transfused into terms of stirring action and drama. He would be a brave producer, however, who would venture upon any story of Napoleon or, at least, a confident and wealthy producer prepared to advance unhesitatingly into six figures on his negative cost. M-G-M could do it. In fact, it may, for, under its still effective deal with Gordon, the company is in on "St. Helena" for 50 per cent of the cost.

Speculate on Price Control for Films

no indication that it will make such an interpretation on its own initiative, officials privately expressing the opinion that they have enough of a burden in enforcing the law with respect to industries which are definitely covered by it. The commission generally considers picture distribution as a service rather than a selling operation, thus putting it outside the scope of the act, but it is said unofficially that should Congress designate exhibition as retailing the commission would have no option but to extend the Robinson-Patman Act to pictures.

Rouben Mamoulian is just plumb agoin' to lose his faith in mankind and the machinations of a hitherto comparatively kindly fate if anything goes wrong tomorrow.

It's Rouben's birthday (the 38th) tomorrow, and, says the U. A. publicity department: On Oct. 8 the Eastman Theatre opened in Rochester, with Mamoulian as production supervisor; on Oct. 8 "Porgy" began a two-year run on the stage; on Oct. 8 the musical "Porgy and Bess" had its final dress rehearsal, and tomorrow "The Gay Desperado," which he directed, opens at the Music Hall.

If anything slips, it will be tough on Rouben.

Limit Shows in School

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 6.—Because of protests from theatre managers that dramatic and charity organizations were using the Technical School auditorium for performances at very small cost in competition with recognized theatres, the Board of Education has moved to restrict renting of the hall to non-commercial enterprises. A standing committee was appointed by the board to toss out ineligible applications.

"Sing, Baby" Hits $10,300 Chicago Mark

CHICAGO, Oct. 6. — "Sing, Baby, Sing" at the Garrick was the standout attraction on the Loop, hitting a new record with a $10,300 gross. The picture will hold over another week.

Nice weather over the weekend brought the crowds downtown and business equalled that of the Labor Day weekend for the two days. The later days of the week were hurt by cold and rainy weather.

"The Gorgeous Hussy," $18,800, at the United Artists, did very good business the second week. "The General Died At Dawn," at the Roosevelt also rolled up $12,300 for the second and final week. "The Great Ziegfeld" closed a 15-week run in the Loop with a nice profit, at the Apollo.

The Chicago, Oriental, Palace and State-Lake theatres found business above average. "Romeo and Juliet" was un-impressive at the Erlanger.

Campaign Films Booked

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 6.—The State Republican organization has added a film booking bureau to its many activities. The film, which runs 12 minutes, shows Arthur M. Brown, the gubernatorial candidate, at home, at his office and on the stump. It is intended to be shown in small towns the candidate cannot visit, but several of the larger towns have booked the film.

Democrats at their rallies in small towns are showing reels of life in the state CCC camps and the work done by the WPA crews during the floods last spring.

Selznick to Get Medal

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—David O. Selznick shortly will receive the League of Nations medal for the best picture of the past year for "Little Lord Fauntleroy," Selznick International production. The medal, presented to Curtis Melnitz of the U.A. Paris office, is being brought here for the presentation to Selznick.

Reserve Decision in Perelman Rehearing

Circuit Court here with re-arguments to set aside the court's decision of Jan. 16, 1936 which had upheld Judge Welsh's decision in favor of Perelman in January, 1935. Judge Joseph Buffington, presiding judge, and his associates, J. Warren Davis and J. Whitaker Thompson, reserved immediate decision and retired to consider the case. No definite date was set for the handing down of a verdict.

Morris Wolf of Philadelphia, representing First National, Vitagraph, RKO, Metro, Fox and United Artists, and Edward L. Weisl of New York, representing Paramount, maintained that the evidence in the original case clearly indicated that double featuring was harmful to the entire industry as well as to the public. Weisl claimed that the clauses against the practice in the contracts do not constitute conspiracy as interpreted under the Sherman and Clayton Acts. This was contrary to Judge Welsh's opinion that the coincidence of action on the part of the majors in using such clauses was a well-studied plan to accomplish a purpose which is prohibited by Federal law.

Cite Complaints Against Dualing

The attorneys contended that exhibition is purely a local pursuit and that any possible restraint would be so indirect as to be nil. They pointed out that large groups of civic, educational and philanthropic organizations had complained against double featuring.

In rebuttal, B. M. Golder, representing the original plaintiffs, Louis and Harry Perelman, stated that neither the taste of these organizations nor the opinion of exhibitors on whether or not double featuring was good for the public has any bearing on the case. The essential consideration, he said, is the restraint of trade and commerce. He claimed that the evidence showed that under anti-double featuring, fewer pictures were made in Hollywood and fewer shipped and exhibited. He stated that because of the anti-doubles clauses, exhibitors could not show independent product without the danger of losing the necessary major pictures.

Stress Importance of Decision

Weisl pointed out that all majors did not have anti-doubles clauses and added that a decrease in the exhibitors' features is made up in short subjects, educational films, etc. He stated that the majors have not the right to dictate the makeup of programs.

In making their plea that the original verdict be set aside, the attorneys for the majors called to the attention of the court the far-reaching importance of the decision to the entire industry.

Magnalite, trade name for a patented sign device which uses ordinary electrical illumination, a revolving background plate and Czechoslovakian jeweled beads in creating the surprising effect of a high intensity, animated electric bulb sign at a fraction of the cost. The box is permanent, but the advertising message, handled in the form of aluminum plates which fit over the device are interchangeable at the discretion of the purchaser.

Magnalite has its factory in Los Angeles, but an experimental plant has been opened at the Film Center Bldg. with the intention shortly to open a factory in the East and, at a later date, in the Middle West. Dembow already has hired a number of salesmen and is active in the plan to develop his selling machinery on a nationwide basis.

Theatre Use to Come Later

For the present, no effort will be made to serve the theatre field. Contracts for the signs which are made in horizontal and vertical dimensions, approximately 12 by 18 inches, for display in accessible places like store windows have been closed with several nationally advertised products, including Frankfort Distillers, Pabst, Westclox, Ford and Chevrolet.

However, Dembow has demonstrated to a number of important circuit operators as they visited New York in the last few weeks and inquiries already are in as to availability for use in theatre lobby frames. The idea is adaptable to marquee letters and will be adapted for straight theatre use later.

Grinde on Color Short

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—Nick Grinde will direct the two-reel Technicolor film dealing with the life of Stonewall Jackson, "Under Southern Stars," at Warners. Fritz Leiber has the leading role and signed are Henry O'Neill, Fred Lawrence, Jane Byron, Gordon Elliott and Gordon Hart.

Fox Stock Transfers Shown

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 6.—William Fox transferred 5,000 shares of the common stock of Banker's Securities Corp. to All-Continent Corp., his family trust, and 70 shares to his daughter Belle, during last May, the month in which he filed his $9,500,000 bankuptcy petition. This was testified here today by Alfred Blasband of Philadelphia, secretary and treasurer of Banker's Securities Corp.

Eugene O'Dunne, special representative from the U. S. Internal Revenue Dept., which has income tax claims approximating $2,000,000 against Fox, joined in the questioning. He drew out testimony that about that time a large amount of stock which Fox had posted as collateral on loans also wound up in the hands of Bella Fox and Rose F. Leo, Fox's sister-in-law.

Fox Gifts Recounted

Murry C. Becker, of Fox counsel, presented to Trustee Hiram Steelman and further promised a complete list of the gifts which Fox made after selling out Fox Film and Fox Theatres holdings in 1930. It showed $200,000 as given to Jack G. Leo, brother-in-law; $100,000 each to James Francis Burke, Claudius Huston (then Republican National Chairman), Joe Leo and Benjamin Rease (one of Becker's law firm); $200,000 to Belle Fox, $139,000 to Mona Fox, another daughter; $94,000 to Herbert Leitsteen, Fox family bookkeeper; $50,000 each to Harry G. Sundheim and David A. Brown and $27,000 to Aaron Fox, father of the defendant. To his wife, Eva, Fox gave the Woodmere, L. I., estate and a large amount of stock.

Albert M. Greenfield, Philadelphia realtor and banker, was the morning witness as chairman of the board of Banker's Securities Corp. He testified that "Fox was, and All-Continent still is" the largest stockholder in this corporation and that Fox still is one of its directors. "He hasn't attended a meeting in several years," Greenfield said, adding, "we kept him on the board because we considered him of value to the corporation."

Composers' Testimony Read

Depositions of two music composers were filed in Federal Court yesterday in connection with a copyright infringement suit brought by the United Music Co. against Universal Pictures Corp., Gem Pictures Corp., Loew's, Inc., Universal Film Exchange, and others.

The suit charges that the defendants infringed copyrights on three musical compositions entitled "Don Rigo," "Vers L'Horizon" and "Valse Mutine." The United Music Co. alleges that it has the copyrights on these for America, which were given them by the composers, Emile Marcier and Emile Fourdrain. The depositions were taken recently in Paris and both composers testified that they had assigned their interest in these songs to Georges A. Cogniat, head of United Music Co.

Topkis-Ginns Summoned

WILMINGTON, Oct. 6.—Officers and directors of Topkis-Ginns Theatre Co. of Wilmington, have been ordered to appear in chancery court here on Oct. 21 to show cause why they should not be restrained from paying on a $10,000 note allegedly given to Charles P. Thornley as part payment for stock supposed to have changed control of Topkis Bros. Co.

The order, which was issued by Superior Court Judge Richard S. Rodney in the absence of Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott, also restrains the payment of the note pending the court appearance.

According to the bill, the transaction was made to wrest control of the latter company from Abraham Topkis. The action was taken on a bill filed for the Farmers Bank of Wilmington, owner of shares of stock in Wilmington Amusement Co., parent company of Topkis-Ginns, leasor of theatres to Stanley-Warner.

Plan for New Setup in RKO Being Speeded

Negotiations Hinge on Rockefeller Claim

Return of U. S. District Judge Bondy to this country from a European vacation has speeded up efforts to reach an agreement between Atlas Corp. and the Rockefellers on the $9,600,000 claim of the latter against RKO so that reorganization plans can be carried out.

It is understood that general features of a reorganization plan worked out by Lehman Bros. and Atlas call for the formation of a new company with its capitalization to consist of bonds, convertible preferred stock and common stock, with the bonds and some preferred to be offered for the $11,600,000 debentures outstanding and the $1,118,000 secured claims. The unsecured creditors will be offered preferred in exchange for their allowed claims, it is understood, with possibly some common in addition.

At present 2,577,554 shares of common are outstanding. This may be increased, with the present holders receiving common in the new company on an even exchange.

Backers of the reorganization plan estimate the total of allowed claims will be about $18,000,000 out of a total of $55,000,000 filed.

Weinstock to Lead Campaign for ITOA

David Weinstock, local theatre operator, was named chairman of a sub-committee of the Greater New York theatre division supporting the reelection of President Roosevelt and Gov. Lehman at a meeting of the I.T.O.A. yesterday at the Astor.

Samuel Rhonheimer, Maurice L. Fleischman, Bernard S. Barr and Abraham Leff also were appointed on the committee. The first meeting of

Will Make Public Findings On Quota Before Year-End

LONDON, Oct. 7.—The Films Act Statutory Committee, presided over by Lord Moyne, is expected to complete its report and submit its findings to the Board of Trade before the end of December and probably in November.

The committee, entrusted with the task of saying what, if any, legislation is needed to replace or revise the Cinematograph Films Act on its expiration in 1938, has concluded the taking of evidence.

Interest in the trade rests mainly on the extent to which the committee accepts or rejects suggestions put before it for an increase in the quota of British films and the establishment of a minimum cost clause.

The Producers' Group of the Federation of British Industries is striking for an increase in the quota to 54 per cent in the sixth year of the proposed new legislation, comparing with 20 per cent under the current law. However, the producers have told the Moyne Committee that the new provisions, predicated on the total of foreign film acquired by the distributor, merely works out to a maximum bracket of 35 per cent, or approximately one British for every three foreign, principally American, of course.

The plan proposed by the producers for quota on exhibitors would start at 20 per cent and rise to 50 per cent in the sixth year. On the same basis as

Ohio Censors' Cuts Only 17 for Month

COLUMBUS, Oct. 7.—During September the Ohio censors reviewed a total of 619 reels from which but 17 eliminations were ordered. There were no eliminations in 107 reels reviewed for the week ending Sept. 3.

This compares with 542 reels reviewed in August with 27 eliminations ordered.

During September the censors held up "Don't Turn 'Em Loose," which subsequently was passed with all murder scenes eliminated, but later resubmitted and passed in full.

Cinema Club to Give Dinner for Giannini

The Cinema Club will tender Dr. A. H. Giannini, president and chairman of the board of U. A., a dinner at the Waldorf shortly, it was stated yesterday by Will H. Hays at the Grover Whalen luncheon at the club. No date has been set, Hays added, but Dr. Giannini has accepted.

Whalen spoke briefly on the World's Fair to be held in 1939 for which $125,000,000 will be spent with 54 foreign countries represented, including South America, and to which it is expected 50,000,000 people from all over the world will be attracted. Approximately 1,256 acres in Flushing meadows have been set aside by the city for the purpose, Whalen asserted, and "I hope through your great industry to tell the world about it." He referred to the newsreels.

In his introductory speech, Hays described the guest of honor as the "master showman of the generation."

Among those who attended were J. Robert Rubin, Austin C. Keough, Edgar B. Hatrick, Charles D. Paine, Dan Michalove, Stanleigh Friedman, Louis Nizer, Louis Phillips, Dave Palfreyman and Frank Buck.

Para. and Randforce Close Product Deal

Paramount has closed a deal with Randforce whereby the circuit of 51 Brooklyn houses will play the distributor's complete lineup next season. The deal marks completion of every important independent and major circuit deal in the local territory.

Milt Kusell and Henry Randel worked out the Randforce pact with Sam Rinzler and Louis Frisch.

"Rangers" $26,000 In Its Second Week

KRS Asks Cut Of Two-Thirds In New Quota

Present British Law Is Hit in Moyne Report

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 7.—The Kinematograph Renters' Society, distributor organization, urges reduction of the present distributors' quota to one-third of the present quota which calls for one British film for every five foreign films distributed. Foreign films are chiefly American. The society also makes the general statement that the present quota obligation is "so heavy as to be practically impossible of effective performance."

The suggestions were embodied in two memoranda which are included in the second volume of the minutes of the evidence heard in recent months by the Moyne Committee which for some time has been studying the basis of revision for the Films Act, which expires in 1938. The committee is headed by Lord Moyne. The testimony was made public today.

The second volume contains the statements submitted by the K.R.S., National Ass'n of Theatrical Employes and the Council of the Trade Union Congress. Supplementary statements are included from the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n and such individuals as Simon Rowson who had been heard by the committee. Likewise is included a confidential report of the Films Act Advisory Committee.

In the K.R.S. suggestion for reduction there is provision for safeguarding conditions of cost and quality of production. The K.R.S. statement said, "The K.R.S. Council was greatly influenced by definite and emphatic assurances from members representing foreign interests (presumably American) that if the obligation is so reduced they will wholeheartedly comply with the stipulations on cost and quality to insure the production of worthwhile British films."

A memorandum from John Maxwell, head of B.I.P., on behalf of the K.R.S., elaborated the statement, pointing out that the scarcity of skilled personnel makes impossible the production of good films in the quantity demanded at present. He argued that if good pictures were made by American companies on this scale the competition would be serious to British producers. An increase in the quota would produce a mushroom growth of companies and a sequence of liquidations, he contended.

Giving evidence, Maxwell said American distributors are prepared to spend £30,000 to £50,000 per picture under a reduced quota. He disputed the statements of the F.B.I. that the advanced booking clauses of the Films Act had been ineffective or were not enforceable. He said, "They are the most valuable clauses. If anything can be done to strengthen them, let it be done."

Moyne and Maxwell at Odds

Lord Moyne declared, "I should be very happy if we could contemplate a state of things in which no protection would be needed for British films."

Maxwell replied, "I do not think we need it today. I think British production is well enough set to go right ahead." Maxwell challenged the statement of Norman Loudon that B.I.P. and G.B. represent one-seventh of the production interests in the F.B.I. He claimed that with regard to money permanently invested these two companies have at least double the entire amount of the other F.B.I. companies taken together.

Referring to what he termed excessive labor demands, Maxwell said, "In a year or two when they learn sense we shall be able to get the business established on a basis of permanence."

Sir Arnold Wilson questioned Maxwell closely on the issuance by insurance companies of guarantee policies to cover producers' overdrafts at banks.

Eckman Queried on Quickies

Sam Eckman of M-G-M, who was present with D. E. Griffiths of First National, John C. Graham of Paramount and Frank Hill, secretary of the K.R.S., also was questioned sharply by Wilson, who asked Eckman if he has been a leading exponent of the "quota quickie."

Eckman replied, "I do not think so."

Wilson said, "It has been suggested that you hope to discredit British production by the extended use of quickies."

"If I knew who made those statements the law of the land would protect me," replied Eckman.

Wilson, following an interruption by Maxwell, said he was referring to American distributors generally. Eckman also denied that British films were shown at the Empire while the theatre was closed for cleaning, and said that the reason American companies bought cheap British films was that the £25,000 films obtainable were no better than the £100,000 films. Good producers like B.I.P., G.B. and Korda would not release their product through Americans, he said.

Rowson made the point that no American company investing in British production and guaranteeing American release should be absolved from the quota. He also urged the revision of the Act to legalize such exhibitor cooperative schemes as that of Captain Dixey, who plans to issue franchises to exhibitors which might be a breach of the present forward booking clauses.

Ask Quota for Features Only

The main features of the advisory committee recommendations are a minimum cost of £2 per foot, excluding the cost of story, music, director and scenarist. The quota, they suggested, should apply to features only. The distributor should be free to acquire his quota at £2 per foot or, if paying more, his obligation should be reduced.

The exhibitors' quota should be reduced to 15 per cent against the distributors' 20 per cent, it was urged.

The C.E.A. suggested a committee to determine on quality to be composed of one producer, one distributor, two exhibitors and an independent chairman, with the C.E.A. or any group of five exhibitors to have the right to demand a review of a film by such a committee.

King Sees "Godfrey"

London, Sept. 28.—"My Man Godfrey," currently at the Leicester Square, was privately shown to King Edward and his guests at Balmoral over the weekend.

GTC Stockholders Demand Accounting

LONDON, Sept. 28.—A group of shareholders forced through an amendment demanding a profit and loss account, showing gross revenue from theatres and other details, at the annual stockholders' meeting of General Theatres Corp. here.

A representative of the stockholders' committee which unsuccessfully opposed the recent reorganization plan of the company, declared the profit figure shown indicated the writing down of capital had been too drastic. He also said no details were given on the amount charged for film by G. B. Jeffrey Bernerd, who failed of reelection as a director on a show of hands, was elected by a specific vote. The financial report also was accepted by the stockholders. A dividend of 12 per cent was paid on the participating preferred ordinary shares on a net profit of £275,969. No dividend had been paid in the previous year.

Consider Bank Night Ban

DES MOINES, Oct. 7.—An ordinance to prevent Bank Night has received a first reading by the City Council at Iowa City. The ordinance forbids the theatres there to "give or sell merchandise or cash or other products." It is described as the first time a city in Iowa has moved to legislate against Bank Night. Two more readings are necessary to make it a law.

Moyne Group Quota Report Due Shortly is applied to distributors, the exhibitor levy, according to the producers, would in fact, mean 33.3 per cent of foreign film acquired and not actually the 50 per cent bracketed.

Exhibitors, as represented by the C.E.A., on the other hand, have been insisting on a reduction of quota as it applies to them to 10 per cent.

Bernstein Will Have 14 New Super Houses

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Details of the ambitious theatre building plans of Bernstein Theatres, Ltd., already briefly cabled to MOTION PICTURE DAILY, show that of 16 new theatres planned, 14 are in the super class. All of the new buildings will be in the Greater London area, chiefly in rapidly developing new residential neighborhoods.

The following is the program in detail, with capacities and opening dates:

Wandsworth, S. W. London, 2,500, October, 1936; Woolwich, S.E. London, 3,750, February, 1937; Cheam, Surrey, 2,000, March, 1937; North Cheam 1,500, March, 1937; Greenwich, S.E. London, 2,000, April, 1937; Harrow, N.W. London, 2,000, April, 1937; Clapham, S.E. London, 3,000, September, 1937; Bow, E. London, 3,000, December, 1937; Greenford Middlesex, 2,000, September, 1937; Woking Surrey, 1,750, December, 1937.

Plumstead, S.E. London; Woodford, N.E. London; Enfield Wash, N. London; and Gidea Park, Essex; each to seat 1,500 and to be completed in 1937. Welling, Kent, and East Molesey, Surrey, are the other situations.

The completion of these houses will bring the Bernstein "Granada" circuit in the London and Home Counties area to a total of over 40 modern theatres of large capacity.

Rock to Twickenham

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Joe Rock Prod., Ltd., previously releasing through Associated British Film Distributors, Ltd., will, in the future, issue its films through Twickenham Film Distributors, Ltd. Announcing the switch at the Twickenham sales conference, Julius Hagen said Rock would produce eight features in a year. Only one Rock picture, featuring Harry Roy and his band, would be excluded from the output for Twickenham next year.

G. B. Unit Gains

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The annual report and accounts of Associated Provincial Picture Houses, Ltd., controlled by Gaumont British, show profit in the year ended May 31 of £115,236, an increase of £12,360 over the previous year.

A final dividend of four per cent on the ordinary shares makes the return for the year six per cent. Carried forward is £69,214, more than £17,800 above the amount brought in.

Censor Is Reversed In Soviet Film Ban

"The Youth of Maxim," dealing with the 1917 revolution in Russia. Police Censor Joseph Kollar granted a permit for the showing of the film a year ago, but later it was revoked on the ground that the picture deals with Communism and might be hostile to public interest. The American Legion backed the censor.

When the plaintiff asked for a writ of mandamus against the department, Circuit Judge Theodore J. Richter refused the writ, after a personal view of the film, on the ground that he saw no flagrant abuse of discretion.

The Supreme Court decided that the police power to go beyond the wording of the ordinance, rather than the question of discretion, was at stake. It reversed Judge Richter and ordered the permit to be issued.

Oklahoma City Has First Dual Policy shown every other Saturday for a four-day run. This is the first time double features have been used in Oklahoma City as a regular policy.

Bank deposit awards recently were begun at the downtown first run houses operated by Standard Theatres. Up to this month the plan was used only in one or two neighborhood subsequent runs. The four downtown first run houses are hooked up with loudspeakers from the stage of the Criterion and patrons attending any one of the four downtown houses are eligible to win money offered on the night of the drawing.

"Boulevard" Takes $13,500, Montreal

MONTREAL, Oct. 7.—"Hollywood Boulevard" at Loew's took the top place among Montreal first runs with a gross of $13,500, $3,000 over average, considerable assistance being given by George Olsen's Band and vaudeville on the stage.

"Swing Time" did $13,500 at the Palace, where the average is $11,000, and was held for a second week. "The Road to Glory," topping the double bill at the Princess, took $7,500, and "Give Me Your Heart" brought $8,000 to the Capitol. "Romeo and Juliet," in its third and final week as a road show at His Majesty's, did $5,500.

Horse racing at Mount Royal track and the start of big time football formed the chief opposition. Cooler weather prevailed with some rain.

Total first run business was $48,000. Average is $46,000.

Fox Creditors Seek Light on His Gifts

E. Steedle yesterday, the items today ran down to as low as $7,000, though the inquiries were largely confined to 1930.

Argument arose over the definition of "a substantial gift," and Fox, whose bankruptcy petition listed $9,500,000 in debts, $1,600,000 in assets and $100 cash on hand, gravely announced that "even $1,000 would seem to me today a very substantial gift."

Fox also recalled offhand giving $28,000 to help feed the poor of Woodmere, L. I., $10,000 to a Catholic relief fund for the poor in New York, $10,000 to the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, and substantial checks to all kinds of charities that would probably run into a huge fortune.

Under questioning, Fox estimated that his Woodmere estate, which he later gave to his wife, Eva, cost him about $250,000 10 years ago. He also told of many real estate properties in which he held all or part interest, some of which were foreclosed and some given away.

"Rebel" Is Retitled

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 7.—"A Woman Rebels" has been chosen as the final title of the co-starring picture, "Portrait of a Rebel," with Katharine Hepburn and Herbert Marshall.

Cocalis Drops Heights

Sam D. Cocalis has dropped the Heights, Brooklyn, which has been taken over by Abe Levy, who also operates the Warburton, Yonkers.

Looking 'Em Over

"Missing Girls"

(Chesterfield)

Something of the adventures of Martin Mooney, newspaper reporter, whose penchant is the publishing of the inside ot rackets and visiting jails as a consequence of refusal to reveal names before grand juries, are the basis of this film. The result is average gangster-romance fare which will be satisfactory in lesser spots.

It has its quota of action, chiefly in the closing sequence when Federal men round up the gang, but as far as story is concerned it has been done again and again.

Mooney wrote the story and, in collaboration with John W. Kraft, the screen play. Phil Rosen's direction is somewhat jerky, the yarn failing to pull in all of its loose ends until the conclusion.

Roger Pryor is the reporter in love with Muriel Evans, Travelers' Aid Society secretary and daughter of a senator who is pressing for enactment of a legalized betting bill. Sidney Blackmer is the gambling racketeer. Noel Madison, rival, and out to get Blackmer, pins the murder of Miss Evans' father on Blackmer, and Madison kidnaps her and a maid. Pryor, meanwhile in jail for contempt, rallies the Federal men to the attack.

The "missing girls" title must be considered more of a catch-line than indicative of the basic theme of the film.

Nuptial Clearance

When a distributor grants an exhibitor clearance of an hour on a day when both have their promising offsprings scheduled to date their spouses for a permanent booking in life—that is news.

With Phil Meyer's daughter, Berenice, and Louis Frisch's son, Emanuel, slated to marry Jack Weprin and Pearl Gloria Schor, respectively, on Sunday, Meyer has decided to hold the ceremony at 5 P. M. and Frisch an hour later.

Many exhibitors and exchangemen will attend both weddings by shuttling from one to the other via the taxi route.

"Glory" Houston Top With $7,300

HOUSTON, Oct. 7.—"The Road to Glory" led in a slack week here with a take of $7,300 at the Metropolitan where the average is $7,000. "My Man Godfrey" built after a slow start to reach $7,200 at the Majestic. Average is $7,000. "The Great Ziegfeld" in the second week at popular prices, and the fourth week to play at Loew's this year, drew $6,000, against a $7,000 average.

The Kirby had a par week of $5,000, with "Moonlight Murder," "The Big Noise" and "Pepper." The latter picture had a slight edge on the others, drawing $2,200 in three days.

Total first run business was $25,700. Average is $26,000.

Answers Upon 10-Point Plan May Come Today

Formal notification of the stand to be taken by distribution companies on the M.P.T.O.A. trade practice program may be given today. All major distributors with the exception of Warners were reported yesterday to have made decisions on all major portions of the program and only minor details stood in the way of the making of an announcement at a late hour.

There were some indications, however, that the unsettled details might delay the notifications for a few days. Favorable action on the most important portions of the program by a majority of the distributors appears to be likely. The exhibitor program emphasizes the need of an increased and unrestricted cancellation privilege; elimination of the score charge, the establishment of local conciliation boards and the adoption of a short form of exhibition contract. Other

Consolidated Drops Leff-Meyers Talks

All negotiations for the purchase of an interest in the Leff-Meyers circuit of nine theatres in the local area have been definitely curtailed by Consolidated Amusements. The late Jack W. Springer had been associated with Consolidated on the deal, which was abandoned when it was found there were too many ramifications to iron out.

Consolidated has closed product deals with Universal, Paramount, Twentieth Century-Fox and G.B. for its 30 houses in the Bronx and Manhattan. In work are pacts with U.A., Warners, Columbia and M-G-M. These will be concluded in the next few weeks.

Those Gifts Again Up at Fox Hearing

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 8.—Questioning in the William Fox bankruptcy proceedings today concentrated again on the series of gifts the former film magnate made in 1930 and later years.

B. & K. to Resume Dualing on Oct. 16

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—B. & K. today set Oct. 16 as the date for the resumption of double features in its largest outlying houses, which is regarded here as marking the end of the single feature basis which has prevailed in the city for the last four years with but few exceptions.

Warners and Essaness Theatres, according to officials queried following the B. & K. declaration, will not follow suit and will continue on a single feature policy for as long a time as business permits. The B. & K. Uptown, Marbro, Tivoli, Southtown and Riviera will lead off with the duals and they will be followed in picture

Paramount Trustees Allowed Accountants

Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe yesterday authorized the employment by the Paramount Publix trustees of the firm of Barrow, Wade, Guthrie & Co. as special accountants in connection with an action filed in 1934 by the then trustees of Paramount, which named directors and officers of the company as defendants. Judge Coxe limited the compensation to be paid the accountants to $30,000.

Distributors Deny Trust Case Charge

BOSTON, Oct. 8.—The major distributors have entered in U. S. District Court here a general denial of all charges included in the four anti-trust actions brought against them by the Morse and Rothenberg circuit. George S. Ryan is attorney for the plaintiffs.

The suits, filed about two weeks ago, ask triple damages of $100,000 in each case, alleging a monopoly and the restraint of interstate commerce in films. One action, filed in the name of Nashua Theatres, Inc., operating the Colonial in Nashua, N. H., is against Colonial Theatres Co., of Nashua, a unit of the M. A. Shea

Gielgud as "Hamlet" Real Possibility for Hollywood

From Garrick and Booth down through the years to Basil Sidney who did it in modern dress, there has always been "Hamlet." Probably it will ever be thus.

All dramatic actors and all actors who are not dramatic, at one time or another, want to play the melancholy Dane as a crowning high point of their careers. And probably that, too, will ever be thus.

Irving, Mantell, Forbes-Robertson, John Barrymore, Fritz Leiber and Walter Hampden, not to overlook Moissi, are among those who have done it and each in his own way. Last night, John Gielgud, sterling young British actor, himself sprung from a family notable in the English theatre—the Terrys—strode the boards at the historic Empire Theatre, plaintively and pensively, dynamically and moody as the Shakespearian work provided

Smith Joins U. A. As New Sales Chief

Will Work with Schaefer In Expansion Move

A. W. "Andy" Smith, Jr., yesterday was appointed general sales manager of United Artists. He will work with George Schaefer, vice-president and general manager in charge of distribution.

A. W. Smith, Jr.

Smith's new affiliation, since his recent resignation as eastern and Canadian sales manager for Warners, and as a vice-president of Vitagraph, Inc., has been the subject of considerable speculation in the trade. Not long ago he was reported to be considering an association with Walter Reade in the operation of the latter's theatre circuit.

It was said that the appointment

G. B. and RKO Talk Circuit Film Deal

With contracts already signed for the metropolitan area, G.B. is now working on a product deal for the national RKO circuit. The pact will probably be ready for signing in a week or two.

The G.B. pact may preclude the possibility of an RKO national deal with Grand National. The Grand National deal has been on tap for several weeks when it appeared RKO and G.B. would not get together. With the G.B. arrangement virtually set, indications are that no other product will be required.

Delay to Be Asked At Hearing on Roxy

Carlos Israels of White & Case, attorneys for the bondholders' committee, today will ask Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey for a two-week adjournment on the hearing for proposed plans of reorganization of the Roxy.

Several theatre interests with plans for rehabilitation of the theatre will convene before Judge Caffey at 2 P.M., when the extension will be sought.

Tom Moore Is About To Start Producing

Tom Moore, whose exhibition days in Washington date back many years, is about to become a stage producer. He has lined up 16 plays and states he intends producing them at the rate of two a year. The first, about which he is reticent, goes into rehearsals the end of this month.

In his list, Moore yesterday included "The Wishing Well," "Spawn of Satan," "Wild Honey," "Feathers in the Wind," "The Golden Voice," "The Death Mask" and "Milestones of Melody." He added his casts will be composite and drawn from screen, radio and stage.

Earl Carroll Bankrupt

Earl Carroll filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in Federal Court yesterday listing liabilities at $983,892 and assets at $410,646. The biggest liability was $366,632 due to the 755 Seventh Ave. Corp. Harms & Co. is listed as a creditor for $2,500. The biggest asset is salary due him from the Vanities Producing Corp. amounting to $22,300. He also listed among other assets, the interest he has in songs and plays.

Arthur Menken Gaining

Arthur Menken, Paramount News cameraman, who was shot several days ago while with General Franco's rebel forces near Madrid, is reported to be convalescing in a Spanish military hospital near the front.

The bullet passed through his side, but he is expected to be out in five or six days, and word received by Al Richards, editor, is to the effect that he will resume his work.

Dave Gould, dance director, also has been given a new contract.

Briskin Signs Music Writers

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—Samuel J. Briskin has signed Jerome Kern, Dorothy Fields and Herbert Fields to collaborate on future musicals for Radio. Two will be produced annually under the supervision of Felix Young.

Johnston Says Sales Plan Is Shaping Up

Completion of a distribution organization for Monogram Pictures in the near future is predicted by W. Ray Johnston as a result of interest being displayed by exchangemen in the company's new plans. The company may add two serials to the schedule of 28 features and eight westerns which it plans to produce for the 1937-'38 season, Johnston said.

"Evil Genius," a mystery story by Wilkie-Collins, has been added to Monogram's story properties.

Writers Adopt Code

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—The Screen Writers' Guild last night unanimously adopted the code of practice developed by a special committee. The details will not be made public, it was explained, until after the program has been submitted to the Producers' Assn., which is expected to be done next week. Eleven new members were admitted to membership at last night's meeting.

phases of the 10-point program, some exhibitor leaders believe, can be realized through regulation by the local boards. These phases embrace designated playdates, the forcing of shorts with features, overbuying, cut-rate and non-theatrical competition.

Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, who came here last weekend to seek definite declarations of policy on the program from distributors, plans to leave the city tomorrow. If the notifications are not forthcoming today, he may delay his departure. He is scheduled to be in Memphis Oct. 17 for a meeting of the M.P.T.O. of Mississippi, Tennessee and Arkansas, and plans to come east again shortly after the close of the convention on Oct. 19.

Warners advised the M.P.T.O.A. when exhibitor-distributor meetings to discuss the trade practice program were initiated here last June, that the company would not participate in the sessions. Nothing has happened since, so far as could be learned, to indicate that the company's attitude has changed.

and reduces the fixed annual cumulative dividend on the preferred stock now outstanding from $2 to $1.

Under the plan the authorized capitalization of the company would be 500,000 shares of preferred stock, all of which will be outstanding, and 600,000 shares of common stock, of which 449,982 shares will be outstanding. The declared capital will be $7,949,982 in lieu of the $6,524,973 of capital stock heretofore declared.

Phila. Men Arrange For Harmony Dinner

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—Exhibitor leaders here are to stage a harmony dinner at the Bellevue-Straford Nov. 1 to celebrate the recent consolidation of exhibitor organizations into the United M. P. T. O. of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware.

Many distributors' representatives also will be present.

May Protest Rentals

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8. — The UMPTO's grievance committee meets for the first time Friday. As an outgrowth, it is reported a protest committee will be formed to visit exchanges charged with too excessive rentals.

Tri-States Meet Set

MEMPHIS, Oct. 8.—The annual meeting of the Tri-States M.P.T.O. will be held here, Oct. 18 and 19. M. A. Lightman will preside and Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, will address the convention.

and as Guthrie McClintic's stage direction saw it.

Gielgud's was a handsome job in a trying and difficult role. Tall, slender and blonde and reminding frequently of Leslie Howard in diction and in demeanor, he played earnestly and thoughtfully. Too thoughtfully and with too little fire, this reviewer reflects, in the famous "to be or not to be" soliloquy.

How he compares with Hamlets of other days is something which the more daring among the analysists of the theatre will have to provide. Certainly he was given a beautifully contrived production and an excellent cast which embraced Judith Anderson as Gertrude, the queen mother; Barry Kelly, as the murderous king; Lillian Gish as Ophelia; Arthur Byron, whose quiet Hollywood performances rank well up among the best, as Polonius; John Emery, as Laertes, and George Nash, as the first grave-digger.

"Hamlet" is what it is and, if it seemed an unholy length of time and conversation had to elapse before the drama of the duel between Hamlet and Laertes, the end of the mother by poison and the doing to death of the king by his nephew, the blame either rests with Shakespeare or with an age that reacts restlessly to ponderous and slow-arriving climaxes.

Hollywood's interests in last night's premiere, a notable one in ermine and stiff shirts, rests more directly and almost entirely not on "Hamlet," but the portrayer of its title role. He will probably end up with a house in the hills and a swimming pool and the industry with another brilliant actor.

Phila. to Decide on Picketing Next Week

The membership of Local 77 of the American Federation of Musicians in Philadelphia will hold a mass meeting there early next week to decide on an extension of the theatre picketing campaign in that city by musicians. It is expected that picketing in that city will be approved, it was learned here yesterday. Jacob Rosenberg, secretary of Local 802 in New York, where the drive originated, and where it is still being carried on, will be one of the chief speakers at the Philadelphia meeting.

The local here has established offices at 717 7th Ave., as headquarters for the picketing drive in New York. It was said there yesterday that requests for information had come in from other cities, and that in Kingston, N. Y., the local intends petitioning theatre owners for a restoration of musician employment. If that fails, the local will begin a picketing campaign there.

Managers in Accident

BIRMINGHAM, Oct. 8.—P. M. Kennedy, William Coury, Sam Suggs and Frank Nickerson, managers of houses in this city were injured yesterday in an automobile accident while en route to Chattanooga for conferences. Their condition at a hospital here was said not to be serious.

That Night Off

Ridgefield, Conn., Oct. 8.—A committee elected last year by the town meeting to find a suitable place for a theatre will report shortly. The group has been urged by wealthy residents of the Ridgefield Hills section to rush action, since lack of a film theatre has complicated the servant problem.

No films, no domestic service, apparently.

Set RCA Sound for Warners in Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—New RCA equipment will be installed in all Warner theatres in this district, James Coston, Warner theatre manager here, said today. The decision was made, Coston said, following conferences here with Major Nathan Levinson, William Mueller and Frank Cahill, Jr., all of the Warner sound staff.

Cohen to Make Nine

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—Maury M. Cohen, producer of Invincible Pictures, plans a program of nine features for 1936-37. "Ellis Island," first of the series, is now in production with Donald Cook, Peggy Shannon and Jack LaRue heading the cast.

Homer G. Tasker, president of the Society of M. P. Engineers, will broadcast from WHAM in Rochester on Monday on trends in Hollywood from an engineer's point of view. Tasker will be in Rochester for the S.M.P.E. convention there Oct. 12-15.

Funeral of Darby Today

Funeral services will be held at 10 A.M. today in the Church of the Holy Innocents, Brooklyn, for Tom Darby, stage manager of Vitaphone studios, who died Tuesday. The studio will suspend operations for five minutes this morning.

Darby is survived by his widow and son, Tom, Jr., also employed at the studio.

Albany Critic Dies

ALBANY, Oct. 8.—William H. Haskell, drama, screen and music critic for the Knickerbocker Press here for more than 20 years, died suddenly today.

Moss Gives 68 Permits

During the past year and a half, Paul Moss, license commissioner, has approved 68 of 84 applications for theatres in New York.

Smith Joins U. A. As New Sales Chief of Smith to the sales post is in line with the decision of the producers releasing through United Artists to expand their production programs. Samuel Goldwyn, it was pointed out as an example, plans to increase his schedule to 10 features this season. Additions to the distributing force were therefore necessary, it was explained.

Harry Gold will continue as head of the eastern sales division for United Artists, and Jack Schlaifer will retain his post in charge of western sales.

Smith entered the industry in 1914, when he joined Pathe. From there he went to First National in 1924, then became Warner sales manager in charge of the east and Canada, while Gradwell L. Sears, now general sales manager for Warners, handled western sales. Later he was named a vice-president of Vitagraph, Inc.

availability order by other houses of the large circuit outside the Loop. Unusually long pictures which do not lend themselves readily to a double feature program will be the only exceptions to the new policy after Oct. 16, B. & K. officials said.

The pending clearance suit against B. & K. and distributors may be filed by independent exhibitors in Federal court here on Monday, Aaron Saperstein, local Allied leader, said. The action will ask an injunction to halt the granting of extended clearance between "C" week and the first week of release, and also against the use of double features.

opening today the current week's gross is expected to tally about $55,000.

The Palace garnered a mild $8,000 on "Thank You Jeeves" and "Two in a Crowd." The dual feature plan is being abandoned this week for "Anthony Adverse." The Rialto, with "Kelly, the Second," drew a so-so $7,000 and today opens with "Lady Be Careful."

Feist Back on Job

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—Felix F. Feist, Jr., has returned to the M-G-M studio from Phoenix, Ariz., where his wife has been vacationing. He brought her back with him after a three-month rest.

Manheim Appoints Two

N. L. Manheim, export manager for Universal, has just made two new appointments in France. T. Guaitella takes charge of the Marseilles office and G. Lyons gets the Lyons office.

Paramount Trustees Allowed Accountants

approximately $12,000,000 is sought by the trustees in the action. The return of any compensation in excess of a reasonable amount paid to officers of the company from 1927 to 1930; the return of profits made by any of the defendants who participated in the so-called Paramount employes' stock purchase plan, and an accounting for any losses sustained by the company through the buying or selling of its own capital stock in the open market during periods from Oct., 1929, to Jan., 1931, was asked by the trustees of Paramount in their original complaint.

Present indications are that the action cannot be heard for another six weeks.

circuit, and the major distributors. The other plaintiffs, whose suits were filed against the distributors only, are Standard Amusement Enterprises, Inc., operating the Capitol, Elizabeth, N. J.; Elite Amusement Enterprises, Inc., operating the Rialto, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Fidel Amusement Enterprises, Inc., which operated the Cameo in Newburgh, N. Y. All are Morse and Rothenberg units.

It is alleged that because of the defendants' refusal to supply film, the Capitol and Cameo were forced to close in May, 1936.

Those Gifts Again Up at Fox Hearing

$7,000,000 to $8,000,000 family trust, is said to be a chief stockholder, was questioned again.

Other witnesses were Herbert Leitsteen, Fox bookkeeper, and Fox.

Under examination Fox told of giving $250 a week for a time to his father, Aaron, who died last year, and other sums to brothers, a sister and his father-in-law. But he insisted that, "I do not consider sums given to take care of my family were gifts. It was an obligation."

Mineola Fox Action Held Over

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 8.—Further examination of the official acts of William Fox while head of Fox Theatres, Inc. and Fox Film Corp., has been held over by mutual consent until Oct. 13. The decision of Supreme Court Justice Mitchell May, on a contested motion to stay the action pending the outcome of the current Fox bankruptcy proceedings at Atlantic City, is still reserved. Counsel has agreed, Referee Elvin N. Edwards stated, to postpone further action in the examination until the decision is handed down. At least four additional sessions will be necessary, Edwards said, in the event the hearing continues.

Begun nearly 18 months ago by order of Supreme Court Justice Meyer Steinbrinck, the accounting has already run to several sessions, some of which were conducted here while others convened at Atlantic City. The detailed account of the stock transactions of Fox has run to approximately 3,000 pages of testimony, the referee said.

Mrs. Sweenek Loses

Federal Judge Grover C. Moskowitz yesterday dismissed the suit brought by Mrs. Gertrude Sweenek of Brooklyn against Pathe News, which asked $10,000 damages on the grounds that the 200-pound plaintiff had been humiliated by a newsreel release which pictured her taking reducing exercises at "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien's gymnasium. Mrs. Sweenek asserted that she was not aware that the pictures were being made. She received a series of reducing treatments without charge and was paid $1 by the gymnasium, she testified.

Judge Moskowitz ruled that the legal question involved was whether or not the pictures were "news" and held that "so long as large numbers of women are interested in methods of removing excess poundage" the subject properly was news material.

Sues on Temple Pact

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8.—A suit for $500,000, plus a percentage of Shirley Temple's earnings, has been filed here by Jack Hays, an independent producer, who describes himself as the discoverer of the child star. He names as defendants the child's parents, Twentieth Century-Fox and two banks.

Warners Deny Monopoly

A general denial has been filed on behalf of Warners in connection with the alleged monopoly and restraint of trade suit brought by the Franklyn Theatrical Enterprises, Ltd., of Hawaii. Other defendants are First National and Vitagraph, Inc.

Franklyn Theatrical Enterprises is suing for $300,000, alleging breach of contract.

Orpheum Co. Bankrupt

The Orpheum Theatre Co., a Madison, Wis., subsidiary of Stadium Theatres Corp., has petitioned the Federal District Court to adjudge it a bankrupt. A schedule of assets and liabilities was not filed, the petition merely noting that the company had $8,510 in cash in a bank.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Man I Marry"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—One of the reasons why most audiences are going to feel at home with this film is that all of the situations and most of the gags are old familiar friends. The tried and true plot gives Doris Nolan ample opportunity to display her attractiveness and there is enough comedy from the supporting cast to make the film acceptable.

Miss Nolan runs away from her marriage to a silly millionaire to a deserted country home where Michael Whalen, a playwright, is struggling to finish a script. He gives Miss Nolan very little encouragement and it is hard to understand why she likes him. Nevertheless, she falls in love with him and blackmails Nigel Bruce, her amiable uncle, into producing the play. Whalen, who has been bossed by women all his life, is furious at her interference and refuses to deliver the necessary scenes even when Miss Nolan has him locked in a country jail on a flimsy charge.

Chic Sale provides the best performance as a country cop. Cliff Edwards and Skeets Gallagher are funny as drunks wandering for no particular reason through most of the action. Marjorie Gateson, Gerald Oliver Smith, Ferdinand Gottschalk and Harry Barris contribute good performances under the direction of Ralph Murphy. Val Paul produced. The picture is a good bet for second spots.

Production Code Seal No. 2,566. Running time, 79 minutes. "G."

"Sing Me a Love Song"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—With James Melton singing and smiling his way through this musical comedy romance the film stacks up as satisfactory general audience entertainment. The fresh treatment of the trite motivation, plus the skillful insertion of gag interludes featuring Hugh Herbert, a kleptomaniac, and Walter Catlett, a floorwalker, together with Melton's singing, all combine to give the picture substantial entertainment value.

Melton, a department store heir, goes to work in the establishment under an assumed name. In the music department he becomes interested in Patricia Ellis, a song plugger. Incidentally, he gains knowledge of why the store's finances are in the red. Aided by Zazu Pitts and Allen Jenkins, he sings himself into the affections of Miss Ellis and gains the friendship of all the employes.

To give added zest to the straight plot, Raymond Enright in his directing elected to interrupt the action by having the clownish Herbert pester Catlett with some hilarious shoplifting. This bit of padding, together with presentations of the Melton singing, both solo and with chorus, adds measurably to the film's value. It is credibly acted by Melton, Miss Ellis, Herbert, Miss Pitts, Catlett, Jenkins and the supporting cast. The screen play by Sig Herzig and Jerry Wald is based on a story by Harry Sauber. The music is provided by Harry Warren and Al Dubin.

Production Code Seal No. 2,446. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

Short Subject

"Venice of the North"

(Van Beuren-RKO)

One of the "World on Parade" series of travel subjects, this takes the audience to Stockholm, Sweden, where are seen views typical of the spotless, canal-studded city and its inhabitants. Interestingly photographed and well produced, the subject should fill in satisfactory fashion a spot on almost any program.

Pollak Tells Daily Story of Accident

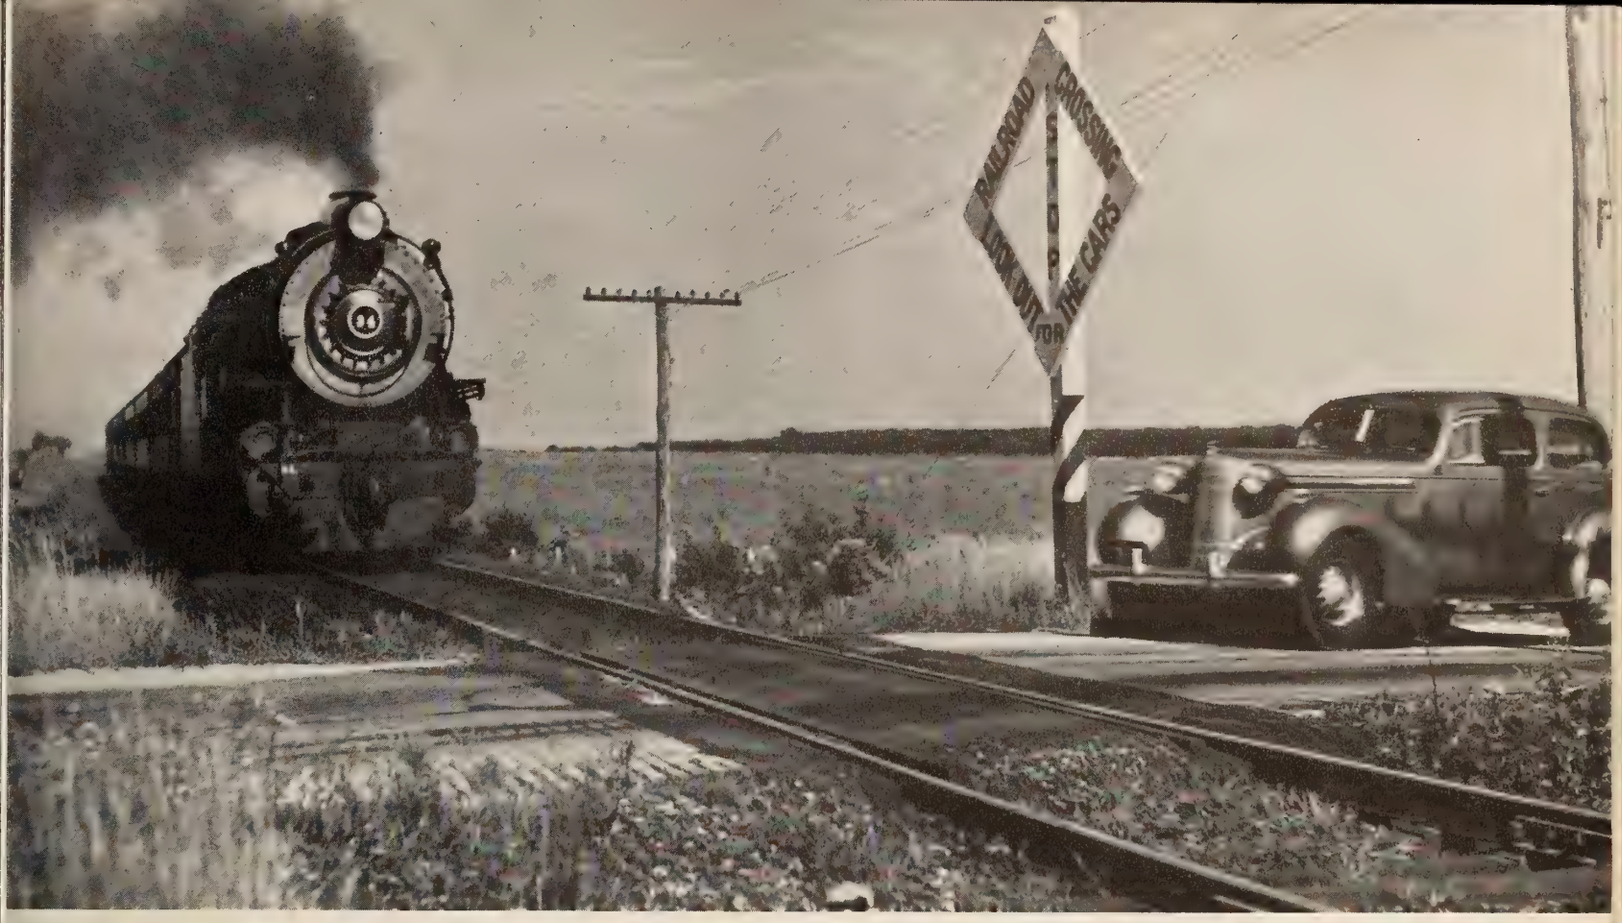
the accident," Pollak, bandaged heavily and pale from the loss of blood, but otherwise cheerful, said. "The train was nearing Budapest when, feeling tired from the journey and wanting to have a wash, I started to go out to the lavatory. It was shortly before midnight. Through the window I saw the illuminated panorama of the town and, fascinated, I started out, missed the right door, opened the outer door instead and fell out of the train. Fortunately, I happened to fall on the signalling wire which connects one watchhouse with the next.



"Best Regards," to America

"The watchman saw that the signalling apparatus did not work and went along the track to see what was the matter. He found me lying on the wire, unconscious, bleeding heavily, severely wounded. Had I not fallen on to the wire, I would probably not have been found until next morning and by that time I would have been dead. As it was, although I had been found 15 minutes after the accident and immediately rushed to the sanatorium, I was in a dangerous condition and the doctors nearly despaired of my life. I had suffered severe bruises and inner bleeding and things looked pretty hopeless. However, the doctors managed to pull me round the corner; I did not die. I will soon return to America. In the meantime, I send my best regards to my American friends."

A noted specialist, summoned by Pollak's medical attendants to examine the patient, said that Pollak was past danger but it would take weeks for him to become fit again.

Says Schools Field For Projector Sale

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Schools accommodating 33,000,000 men, women and children in this country "provide practically a virgin field for silent and sound motion picture projectors and equipment, radios, and the many other similar aids needed in the modern classroom," states John W. Studebaker, U. S. Commissioner of Education.

His statement is contained in a report on a departmental survey conducted throughout the country.

"It is estimated," Commissioner Studebaker states, "that the 33,000,000 persons enrolled in America's public and private schools spend about 825,000,000 hours per week in school as compared with only 225,000,000 hours per week spent in the 15,000 theatres throughout the country by 90,000,000 persons, yet only 750 sound motion picture projectors have been reported as belonging to schools."

The report goes on to say that 81,000 schools are electrically equipped. It says there is considerable renting and borrowing of equipment.

Science films are available, the report indicates, to a greater extent than any others, with the possible exception of travel and geography.

Heffener to Move Office

BOSTON, Oct. 8.—Specialty Pictures, Inc., exchange formed by Roy Heffener to handle the product available following the dissolution of the American Film Exchange, will move into the offices now occupied by Grand National early next month. Heffener is also the franchise holder for Bank Night in New England and Pennsylvania.

German Film to Open

"Ein Liebesroman in Hause Habsburg" (A Prince in Love) will open today at the Tobis, First Ave. and 78th St.

Donald Novis Signed

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—Burroughs-Tarzan has signed Donald Novis to an exclusive contract for four pictures annually for two years. The first will be "Just Another Night." It will start in 60 days.

This is the first move of the company to produce first run attractions on an enlarged operation plan.

To Do Dickens Story

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—Robert Welsh, in charge of production for General Pictures, has signed James Knox Millen, Broadway playwright, to prepare a screenplay of Charles Dickens' "Old Curiosity Shop." Production details will be revealed shortly.

Macgowan on "Alcazar"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—Kenneth Macgowan has been named by Darryl F. Zanuck as associate producer of "The Siege of the Alcazar" scheduled to start soon. Sonya Levien is busy on the story.

20th-Fox Holds Three

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—June Lang, Alan Dinehart and Jane Darwell have had their contracts extended by Twentieth Century-Fox.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Hopalong Cassidy Returns"

(Sherman-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—Reflecting greater production effort and offering a meatier story than its predecessors, this latest Cassidy should prove to be the best attraction of the series to date. William Boyd, now thoroughly at home in the role, gives a smooth performance and, with able support from such players as George Hayes, Evelyn Brent, William Janney and Stephen Morris, makes the unusual action story convincing.

Miss Brent is the menace in the theme. As head of an unscrupulous ring which jumps mining claims, wiping out the opposition with bullets, she rules the community with a high hand until Boyd, at the request of John Beck and Hayes, arrives to establish order. The battle between these divergent elements is softened when the two fall in love but the romance is brought to a conclusion when Miss Brent is killed in the final fight.

Nate Watt's direction is conscious at all times of the essential undertones and drives home its points subtly and without resorting to the obvious. The Harrison Jacobs screenplay is in keeping with the spirit of the Clarence Mulford stories and offers believable dialogue. Pictorially the film has much to offer, the photography of Archie Stout capturing many spectacular backgrounds. As de luxe action entertainment the picture should do well where audiences favor the type.

Production Code Seal No. 2,547. Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

"Rebellion"

(E. B. Derr-Crescent)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—With a good title, but also telling a believable, romantic and dramatic story in which there is considerable human interest, "Rebellion" looks like solid entertainment for audiences going for thrill action films.

In the story, Allen Cavan (President Taylor) after hearing Rita Cansino's complaints of injustice practiced in California on Mexicans by Americans, orders his aide, Tom Keene, there to see that the terms of the Guadalupe-Hidalgo Treaty are carried out. Establishing friendship with Miss Cansino's brother, Duncan Renaldo, romance is suggested between Keene and the girl. Renaldo, dying as he frees Keene from jail, where he has been placed by outlaw leader William Royle's henchmen, Keene sets himself up as the Mexican leader. As Miss Cansino rallies the honest Americans and Mexicans in California, Keene first drives the invading settlers off the Mexicans' properties and besieges Harris in a stolen hacienda. In a sequence full of fighting, shooting, riding and action, Keene bests Harris in a thrill-packed hand to hand melee. In the finale Keene is elected the first civil governor of California and claims Miss Cansino's hand.

Keene, Miss Cansino, Renaldo and Harris contribute convincing performances. Comedy contrast is in the hands of Roger Gray and Robert McKenzie. Lynn Shores directed effectively. In his original screen play John T. Neville intelligently blends historical fact with romantic dramatic fiction.

Production Code Seal No. 2,679. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"A Greater Promise"

(Amkino)

Set in Birobidjan, which formerly was an arid region in eastern Russia, the story of this Soviet importation concerns the migration there of a Jewish family, victims of persecution. It shows their early struggles, hardships and later by virtue of their hard work and application, how a new life is created with security and comfort. That always present element of state glorification is crudely put forward in the final scene.

As a production, technically, it is below the standard which these imports have reached. The photography has a nervous, static quality. From appearances it seemed that a crude type of negative was used.

The performances by members of the Moscow Art Theatre are a redeeming feature of the film. Of particular note is the role of V. L. Zuskin. Other parts are given fine interpretation by Iunya Bi-Brodsky, L. A. Schmidt, L. M. Taits and B. E. Zhukovsky.

There are English titles.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 83 minutes. "G."

Variety Club

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Oct. 8.—The lounge in the local club's quarters is being redecorated and refurnished in modernistic treatment to harmonize with the motif of the adjoining tap room. A new piano has been installed. The place is being made ready for the formal opening of the fall and winter season, set for Oct. 17.

Barker JAMES J. GRADY is sponsoring a film bowling team which will compete for the trophy donated by Tent No. 3.

Columbus

COLUMBUS, Oct. 8.—Variety Club is arranging to entertain large delegations of visiting members and out-of-town exhibitors for the Ohio State-Pitt football game here Saturday. M. R. Clark, president, has taken care of advance ticket reservations.

The club and its guests also will travel by special train to the Ohio State-Notre Dame game at South Bend, Ind., Oct. 31, and will occupy a special block of seats.

Maxwell Says Deal Nears For Ostrers' GB Interest

Would Give 20th-Fox a New Partner and Keep Domination of British Company Out of American Hands

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 9.—John Maxwell appears to have eliminated the possibility of any transfer of control in G. B. to American interests by a deal for the Ostrers' holdings in Metropolis and Bradford Trust. Preliminary signatures are reported to have been signed late Thursday evening.

Tonight, the principals maintained strict silence following terse statements issued during the day. Said Maxwell:

"Negotiations between the Ostrers and Associated British Pictures in regard to the control of Gaumont British have been proceeding for some time in an effort to prevent the company from passing to foreign control. Negotiations are now practically completed and a joint statement of the position by A. B. P. and the Ostrers will be issued on Monday."

From Gaumont British came this: "It is not accurate to say a deal has been completed between Gaumont British and John Maxwell. Discussions have been proceeding between Mark Ostrer and Maxwell and the outcome of these discussions, whatever it may be, it is expected will be the subject of a joint statement next week."

The G. B. statement, it is significant to point out, is not regarded as a correction of Maxwell's but as a comment on the Evening News' story of the Maxwell-Ostrer negotiations.

It may also be that both statements, incomplete as they are, were issued to meet the criticism of the Financial Times on the entire G. B. situation.

Maxwell's name, of course, has figured in all recent reports on G. B. Exactly what he may have acquired, if he has, is not clear here. The known interest of the Ostrers in the company is their 49 per cent of the stock of Metropolis and Bradford, but this is merely approximately 28 per cent of the outstanding G. B. stock. Twentieth Century-Fox holds a similar amount. It would appear, therefore, and in the light of incomplete information that, if Maxwell has made a deal with the Ostrers, Twentieth Century-Fox merely has acquired a new partner.

Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of Twentieth Century-Fox, has repeated several times and emphatically, moreover, that Ostrers cannot

Majors Assure M. P. T. O. A. of Plan Approval

Five Companies Agree to Program Points

Definite assurances that national distributors will approve the major phases of the M. P. T. O. A. trade practice program have been given representatives of the exhibitor organization by a majority of sales companies, it was learned in distribution quarters yesterday.

Indications are that at least five of the eight major companies will agree to the elimination of the score charge, the use of the short form of exhibition contract, the establishment of local conciliation boards and an unrestricted cancellation privilege. While two of the remaining three major distributors are in sympathy with the program and regard its proposals as reasonable and in the best interests of the industry, they are understood to be reserving a formal commitment pending the advice of counsel. Although the program is regarded as being largely one of distributor concessions, at least two of the companies are reported to have expressed concern over the possibility of the anti-trust laws being involved in distributor participation in the program.

Schencks to Oppose

Nicholas M. Schenck stated last night that both he and his brother will militantly oppose the reported deal between John Maxwell and the Ostrers. The matter, he said, will be placed in the hands of his legal department.

Hollywood, Oct. 9.—Joseph M. Schenck, queried today concerning negotiations now in progress in England between John Maxwell and the Ostrers, stated, tersely:

"Sidney R. Kent has full authority to speak for Twentieth Century-Fox in the negotiations now under way between these parties."

U. S. Ticket Tax Gains by $1,732,777

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Federal admission tax collections during the fiscal year ended June 30, last, increased $1,732,777 over those of the preceding fiscal period, totaling $17,112,174 against $15,379,397, it was reported today by the Treasury Dept.

Making public preliminary figures for the fiscal year 1936, Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering announced that taxes collected on box-office admissions amounted to $15,001,741 in the fiscal year 1936 against $13,757,238 in 1935.

Other admission tax receipts, he said, included $578,806 on free or reduced rate tickets against $509,384; $59,849 on leases of boxes or seats against $42,208; $15,380 on admissions

Hits G.B.'s Reluctance to Inform Public

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The lack of information to stockholders of G. B. on the deal with Loew's and Twentieth Century-Fox was criticized in a leading article in the Financial Times, headed "The Gaumont Deal and the Public."

"Investors are becoming restive, and with reason," the paper said. "They do not know whether it is intended to buy them out at the same price as the Americans or, alternatively, for British buyers to undertake to pay for entry in the Metropolis and Bradford Trust.

"Another disturbing feature," the paper continued, "is that the Gaumont directors appear too preoccupied over the proprietary problem to give proper attention to the overdue claims of outside shareholders."

The newspaper noted that the dividend announcement is a month overdue in comparison with last year. "There can be no justification for this seemingly deliberate turning aside by the board from the normal work for which it is responsible to the general body of investors. The continued absence of a dividend decision would inevitably lead to the suspicion that the completion or presentation of the annual accounts (financial statement) is bound up with the outcome of the protracted negotiations."

March Wins Award

Hollywood, Oct. 9.—Fredric March won first honors in the voting of the Screen Actors' Guild for the best performance by a star during August, for his work in "Anthony Adverse."

Ian Hunter, for his performance in "To Mary—With Love," won the first award of the month for the best work by a supporting player.

Warners Up N. E. Prices

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 9.—Feeling its way on the higher admission price policy, Warners Theatres have increased prices from 25 and 35 cents to 30 and 40 cents at the State, Waterbury and Cameo, Bristol. Matinee prices also have been increased to 30 cents. No conclusions can as yet be drawn as to the advisability of the move, B. E. Hoffman states, and the first reports show no comparative increase in grosses.

Stokowski Cancels Philadelphia Date

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—Leopold Stokowski, who was scheduled to make a personal appearance at the Stanley Junction here tonight in connection with the opening of "The Big Broadcast," cancelled the date at the last minute. The event was widely advertised. No reason was given, but it is understood that the action was taken because of the current dispute between Warners and the Musicians Protective Ass'n of which the conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra is a member.

A. A. Tomei, head of the musicians' group, stated that he did not expect Stokowski to appear, though his body had made no official protest. It is said that he had written the noted conductor telling him that his appearance would violate the association rules.

British Exhibitors Endorse Dixey Plan

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The scheme for the formation of an exhibitor-distribution company formulated by Capt. A. C. N. Dixey is being endorsed by meetings of exhibitors in key cities. Resolutions of approval of the principle, and instructions to proceed to actual flotation, have now been secured at Manchester, Liverpool, Leeds and Newcastle.

It is claimed that the Independent Exhibitors' Distribution Co. is already assured of the £25,000 of exhibitor investment asked as a security for the provision of further finance to the extent, immediately, of £175,000 and ultimately, it is stated, of £1,000,000.

Set L. A. Conference

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—John D. Clark, Herman Wobber and W. C. Gehring will meet at the local Twentieth Century-Fox exchange for a conference with John Dillon and his sales force regarding the S. R. Kent drive. After the one-day conference the three will make a tour of all exchanges.

William C. Gehring will leave for the coast next Wednesday to join John D. Clark on a tour of Twentieth Century-Fox exchanges. Clark and Gehring will be back in New York on Nov. 9, when a meeting will be held at the local exchange.

Mayer Promises Exhibit

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9.—An exhibit showing the history of the industry from the time of its inception was promised for the San Francisco Bay Bridges Exposition in 1939 by Louis B. Mayer on behalf of Hollywood producers at an address which he made here last night at the Fairmont Hotel banquet launching National Fire Prevention Week.

A Correction

In yesterday's review of "Hamlet," Barry Kelly inadvertently was credited with the role of the king. Malcolm Keen played the part and delivered one of the best performances of the evening.

Herb Cass Injured

PORTLAND, Oct. 9.—Herb Cass of National Screen, has suffered a broken leg. He will be obliged to wear a cast for the next few weeks.

"Hussy" Hits $18,250, Top In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—"The Gorgeous Hussy" proved a winner at Loew's and rolled up the best gross of the week, $18,250, topping the house average by $8,250. It was held another week.

"Stage Struck" and "Thank You, Jeeves" at the Ambassador took $13,200, or $4,200 above par.

At the Fox "Craig's Wife" and "Adventure in Manhattan," with $11,750, dipped $2,250 below average. The Missouri, with "Walking on Air" and "Case of the Velvet Claws" had a take of $10,500, topping average by $1,500.

The St. Louis did $7,300 with "Girls' Dormitory," a second run attraction, the Louis-Ettore fight pictures and a stage show headlined by Pappy, Zeke, Ezra and Elton. About $8,000 is needed to put this house over.

The weather was not favorable. Some rain and chilly days were mixed in, making the warmth of the family fireside real competition. There was no serious outside competition except some of the political speeches being waffed through the air.

Total first run business was $67,900. Average is $55,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 1:

"STAGE STRUCK" (F.N.)
"THANK YOU, JEEVES" (20th-Fox)

Joe Vogel, Loew's, Inc., executive, who today celebrates his 27th anniversary with the company without fanfare or party.

Montreal Spot Goes To British Pictures

MONTREAL, Oct. 9.—Canada's largest city, two-thirds of the population of which speaks French, is to have an All-British film theatre, this being His Majesty's which has been operated as a legitimate and roadshow house for many years.

Following the close of the three-week roadshow run of "Romeo and Juliet" at His Majesty's recently, an all-British film policy went into effect, according to Arthur Hirsch, president of Consolidated Theatres, Ltd. British pictures were formerly largely booked into the Princess. Allan Spencer, acting manager during the engagement of "Romeo and Juliet," has been appointed permanent manager.

This development was coincident with the news that Famous Players had acquired direct stock control of 19 local theatres operated by United Amusements, with which F. P. has had a booking tieup for some years.

Five Stages Ready At Pinewood Studio

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Five stages of the eight planned have been finished at Pinewood which formally opened a few days ago. The remaining three are in construction. The country house from which the studio draws its name and which is being operated as a club for those working at the new plant currently houses Marlene Dietrich, although she is working in a picture for Alexander Korda at Denham a few miles away.

Garnett to England

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Tay Garnett, en route to Hollywood to direct a film for Twentieth Century-Fox, will return here in the spring to direct the Criterion film of the Scottish border which was abandoned temporarily because of bad weather.

"Broadcast" Reels Long

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9. — Parmount will release "The Big Broadcast of 1937" in 2,000-foot reels. The print will run almost 10,000 feet. For theatres not yet ready to handle the larger reels, a limited number of 1,000-foot reels will be made.

Call Bank Night No Lottery, But Unfair

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 9.—In the opinion of both the district and city attorneys' offices here, Bank Night is not a lottery, but merely "an unfair business practice."

To substantiate their view, the attorneys point to the ruling of State Attorney General James E. Finnegan declaring Bank Night not illegal and to the decisions of the supreme courts in Iowa, New Hampshire and California, which have held that Bank Night is not a lottery.

Efforts will be made to induce exhibitors to drop the practice, Geoffrey Willoughby, manager of the local Better Business Bureau, declared. Where agreements to halt what the bureau calls "lottery features" fail, exposure will follow and in some cases, it was said, requests would be made to public authorities for prosecution. L. Roy Pierce, supervisor for Fox neighborhood houses here, has declared the circuit would not abandon Bank Night in 10 of 16 outlying houses, where it is now being featured.

Drop Bank Night Suit

TAMPA, Oct. 9.—Attorneys for Mrs. Hazel Greene Felix, "Tampa's Public Bank Nite Suit'r No. 1," appeared in Circuit Court and asked that Mrs. Felix's suit against the Tampa for failure to pay her a Bank Night prize of $650 be cancelled. They gave no reason for the request.

The suit against the Tampa was brought 18 months ago. Mrs. Felix claimed that she was outside the theatre when her name was drawn and that she was refused the prize because she had not bought a ticket.

Dick and Joan Study Ritz Towers Mixing

Dick Powell and Joan Blondell, who slipped into town quietly on Tuesday with the aid of a fleet of bannered tugs, a squadron of airplanes, a regiment of ship news reporters and a welcoming committee on the dock, were at the Ritz Towers yesterday.

Warners—meaning S. Charles Einfeld and the publicity boys—thought they ought to know how the Ritz Towers specialists mix 'em and how the newspaper fan magazine writers imbibe them. They found out.

To Do Another "Jeeves"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9.—Sol M. Wurtzel has decided to produce a second "Jeeves" picture. It will be called "Step Lively Jeeves," and Arthur Treacher will again portray the title character. No other assignments have been made.

Schwartz a Grandfather

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9. — Ernest Schwartz, president of the Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors Ass'n, became a grandfather yesterday when a daughter was born to his daughter, Mrs. R. H. Eckhouse, at the Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago.

Guaranteed Sets Seven

Guaranteed Pictures has acquired world distribution rights, exclusive of the United States, for five films featuring Conway Tearle, and on "Riddle Ranch" and "Gunners and Guns." All will be released immediately.

Short Subjects

"Going Places No. 28"

(Universal)

Mustering his own personal recollections, Lowell Thomas' narrative which accompanies this magnificent collection of shots of the scenic grandeur of rugged Colorado, has a note of warm familiarity with the various locations. The short is one continuous and moving sightseeing tour, going up Pike's Peak, passing through the Continental Divide to Iceberg Lake, descending to the bottom of Royal Gorge, visiting mysterious cliff dwellings, etc. It is beautifully photographed. A treat to the eyes, this issue is excellent. Production Code Seal No. 01,166. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Fun in the Fire House"

(Mentone-Universal)

There are camera tricks and enough smart variety in this short to make it a very entertaining little offering. Set in a fire house, the acts of Smith and Dale, Jeanne McCully, a clever tap dancer, Virginia Verrill, and Ferry Corway are given in snappy style. Light and tunefully pleasing. Production Code Seal, No. 01,125. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Plans Musical Units

DES MOINES, Oct. 9.—Hal Bronson of New York has leased the President and will start Oct. 17, with matinee and evening performances, giving musical shows two days a week during the coming season, plans calling for films on the remaining five days. Bronson is negotiating for the Waterloo in Waterloo, Iowa, and for a house in Burlington, planning an Iowa circuit to book each show for a full week.

Warner Club Sets Party

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 9.—The local Warner Club will give its annual formal dinner-dance at the Seven Gables Inn, on Oct. 17, with a special floor show as an added attraction. Reservations for 150 employes in and out-of-town and guests have been received. President H. O'Donnell and entertainment chairman Sidney Weiner are handling arrangements.

Jane Withers' Next Set

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9.—Jane Withers' next picture for Twentieth Century-Fox will be "The Holy Terror," an original by Lew Breslow and John Patrick. John Stone will be associate producer and James Tinling will direct. The cast will include El Brendel, Leah Ray and Joe Lewis. Production will start Oct. 15.

Leases Louisville House

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 9.—The Drury Lane here, former burlesque house, has been leased by Fred Hurley from Dr. Irvin Abell and will reopen on Oct. 15 with a policy of six vaudeville acts and a chorus. According to the terms of the leasing agreement, no burlesque will be permitted at the house.

Add Reicher, Stebbins

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9.—Frank Reicher and Harry Stebbins will appear in "Camille," starring Greta Garbo, at M-G-M.

president, who conferred with sales officials this week, left for Philadelphia last night without making a statement on the results of his visit. His office here, however, said that a statement was prepared prior to his departure and would be released today for publication on Monday.

In distribution quarters it was stated that nothing more than assurances of support for the exhibitor trade practice program had been given, and that it would probably require another three to 10 days before all companies would be able to set forth the specific concessions which each would be willing to make. It was indicated, however, that the concessions, when finally defined, would embrace the four major phases of the M. P. T. O. A. program insofar as a majority of the major companies is concerned.

Finds But One Complaint

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—The first meeting of the grievance committee of the recently formed United M.P.T.O. encountered only one case, that involving a dispute between two exhibitors who were buying product in the same zone. The committee will try to effect an amicable settlement. The protest committee on high rentals has not yet been formed but is believed nearly set.

N. E. Allied Meet Set

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—Arthur K. Howard has set Oct. 13 as the date for the next business meeting of Allied here. Insurance problems coincident with the Lloyds' of London deal will be considered, but it is expected by Nathan Yamins that contracts and other buying problems will be given primary attention.

G. N. Closes Two Deals

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 9.—Grand National here has closed complete product deals with the Glen W. Dickinson circuit of 25 houses and the W. D. Fulton group of eight. James Winn, western division sales manager, has been here for the past week.

G.B. List to RKO

With the closing of the RKO deal yesterday, G. B. has sold every major circuit nationally, it was stated yesterday by George W. Weeks.

Exchange Union Moves

The Film Exchange Employes' Union has moved its headquarters from 356 W. 44th St. to 913 Broadway. Robert J. Murray, president of the union, yesterday emphatically denied rumors that the union is no longer functioning.

Brandts Get Repertory

Harry and William Brandt have acquired the Civic Repertory on E. 14th St. The former legitimate theatre landmark will be renovated and converted into a film house. Work will begin in three weeks.

Kuykendall Sails

Ed Kuykendall sailed last night for Philadelphia on J. Don Alexander's La Vedatte, which is scheduled to take aboard a few select seamen, such as Lewen Pizor, Jay Emanuel, Dave Barrist and Charles Segal, in the Quaker City tomorrow afternoon. Seaman Kuykendall leaves for his waterfront home in northern Mississippi the following day and will cruise from there to Memphis later, returning to New York about Oct. 21.

Defer Consolidated Vote to October 23 was asked by officials of the company after a proxy count disclosed that small shareholders had scant representation at the meeting.

H. J. Yates, president of Consolidated, said that an effort would be made between now and Oct. 23 to obtain the proxies of holders of small numbers of shares. He also agreed to meet, in the meantime, with a committee of stockholders to discuss the proposed plan of recapitalization in detail for the benefit of the minority shareholders who appeared in opposition to the plan yesterday.

Officials of Consolidated said that sufficient shares were represented at the meeting to obtain approval of the plan. They said that 223,217 shares of preferred and 320,855 shares of common were represented by proxy, and 4,754 shares of preferred and 2,862 shares of common were represented in person, constituting a quorum. Of the total, they said, 55 per cent favored the plan.

Report B. & K. Not To Bid at St. Louis

Amusement Co. stock held by Skouras Brothers Enterprises.

Skouras Brothers Enterprises holds 52 per cent of the stock in the St. Louis Amusement Co. The F. & M. interests now control 42 per cent as a result of their peace pact with Warners. They have also perfected arrangements with the Bondholders' Protective Committee for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central theatre, the principal creditor of Skouras Brothers Enterprises, whereby the bondholders will bid in the Skouras company assets and then enter into a management contract with F. & M. through one of the local subsidiaries.

Roxy Plan Hearing Is Off Until Oct. 23

which, if modified, appears as the most acceptable plan.

Attending the brief hearing yesterday were Harry G. Kosch, former receiver for the theatre; Albert Rose of Proskauer, Rose & Paskus, representing Howard S. Cullman, trustee; Irving Cohen of the Paramount legal staff; and a legal representative for Haring & Blumenthal.

sold at excess of box-office prices against $22,172; $117,463 on tickets sold by brokers against $94,595, and $1,338,935 on cabaret and roof garden charges against $953,799.

Analysis of box-office collections shows that increases were noted in all states except Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Washington and West Virginia.

The most serious decreases were $38,000 in New Hampshire, $20,000 in Colorado and $19,000 in Rhode Island.

The greatest increase in box-office admission taxes were shown by California, $188,000, followed by Massachusetts with $167,000; Indiana, $162,000; New York, $82,000; Ohio, $97,000; Illinois, $72,000; Maryland, $60,000, and Minnesota, $49,000.

The 1936 collections represent a recovery of nearly $1,700,000 from 1934, when box-office admission tax collections dropped to $13,343,620 from $14,027,693 in 1933, the bureau's records show.

Figures on the collection of taxes on tickets sold at the box-office, by states, for 1935 and 1936, are shown in the following table:

Alabama	$35,883,89	$38,029.13

Distributor Concessions Coming Soon

Statement Expected on Or Before Oct. 26

Major distributors are expected to make known on or before Oct. 26 the specific changes in sales policies which each is willing to make in support of the trade practice program sought by the M. P. T. O. A., Ed Kuykendall, president, said in a statement issued prior to his departure from New York on Saturday for publication today.

Indicating the favorable nature of the anticipated concessions, Kuykendall asserted that "there is every prospect of ultimate success for our program," and added that "at no time during these long negotiations (to obtain distributor assent to the program) have the prospects been brighter for a genuine and practical solution of many exhibitor complaints and injustices of long standing."

As reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Saturday, a majority of the major distribution companies have given definite assurances of their approval of the principal phases of the program, but an additional three to 10 days would be required to define the specific sales policy changes which would be made. Two of the companies, exclusive of Warners, which declined at the outset to give consideration to the exhibtor program, are concerned about the possibility of the anti-trust laws being involved in a

Expect Wolf Election At SMPE Meet

ROCHESTER, Oct. 11.—The election of S. K. Wolf, of Erpi Picture Consultants, subsidiary of Erpi, as the new president of the S.M.P.E., is expected to be announced today as the annual fall convention of the society begins at the Hotel Sagamore here.

Wolf would succeed Homer G. Tasker, who has been president for the past two years.

Registration of delegates will open the four-day meeting, at which about 200 are expected, to be followed by the opening address of Tasker, reports of the convention committee and the officers, and the election of new officers for 1937.

The long series of technical papers which will feature the convention will get under way today, the first to be "The Development of the Art and Science of Photography in the Twentieth Century," by C. E. Kenneth Mees of Eastman Kodak. More than 30 papers are scheduled.

Mayor Charles Stanton of Rochester will welcome the delegates at an informal luncheon, to which Tasker will reply.

The semi-annual banquet will be held on Wednesday evening at the Oak Hill Country Club, when the S.M.P.E. Journal Award and the Progress Medal will be presented.

The complete convention program follows:

Monday, Oct. 12

9 a.m.—Registration, Sagamore Hotel Roof.
10 a.m.-12—Sagamore Roof, Business and General Session.

Delay on Roxy Due to Talks With 20th-Fox

Differences over terms of the 15-year lease proposed by Twentieth Century-Fox are holding up plans of reorganization for the Roxy, it was learned over the weekend.

Last Friday, Carlos Israels of White & Case, attorneys for the bondholders' committee, was given a two-week extension by Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey when he asked for additional time to work out some of the disputed points in a lease offered by Hughes, Schurman & Dwight, attorneys for the distributor.

In seeking a continuance until Oct. 23, Israels told the court he would be ready to file a plan at that time since he had "nothing in any shape or form that meant anything to the bondholders."

While the committee looks with favor upon the distributor's interest in the house, the bondholders are holding out for a change in the lease. Instead of the provision for a guarantee and percentage of the net, the first mortgage interests are seeking a percentage of the gross in addition to a stipulated rental.

The attitude of the bondholders is that they want to benefit from the receipts and not from the net profits. The point is made that Twentieth Century-Fox spent approximately $16,000 for advertising "Girls' Dormitory" when it played at the Roxy, in addition to $6,000 for "Sing, Baby, Sing" and about $5,000 for the current showing of "Dimples." These monies could be marked off against the profits and

Consent Necessary; Kent Conferring on Tangle With B.I.P. Head

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The conclusion of a deal whereby John Maxwell of B.I.P. would gain control of Metropolis and Bradford Trust, wresting it from Twentieth Century-Fox, and leaving G.B. under British control, appeared yesterday to hinge upon obtaining permission to exercise a stock purchase option from Twentieth Century-Fox.

That permission, as has been indicated before, clearly is the crux of the tangled situation which has developed about the proposed purchase by Twentieth Century-Fox and Loew's of the Ostrer brothers' participation in G.B. Maxwell has bought 250,000 "B" shares in Metropolis and Bradford Trust, holding company which owns 57 per cent of the G.B. stock, from the Ostrers, and holds an option to purchase 5,100 "A" shares, which would give him control there, since the Twentieth Century-Fox holdings amount to 4,900 "A" shares.

Sidney R. Kent, Twentieth Century-Fox president, yesterday went into conference with Maxwell, and it was indicated no statement would be forthcoming until tomorrow.

It is believed here that it will be necessary for Maxwell to obtain the permission of Twentieth Century-Fox prior to an exercise of the purchase option on the "A" shares, which option clashes with the various agreements existing between Twentieth Century-Fox and the Ostrers relative to the disposal of any stock interest.

It is said here also that Kent may

CEA Given Hearing On Theatre Building

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The Essex County Council, which recently declined to hear the C. E. A. in cases where it opposed new licenses on the ground of "redundancy," consented to let them appear against an application for a Walthamstow license on the grounds that the issue of a license would be "against public interest."

The opposition was unsuccessful, but it is regarded as of legal importance that the C. E. A. has established a right of appearance, in all license cases, on these broad grounds.

Fox Returns Optimistic

Lawrence W. Fox, Jr., one of the organizers of Standard Capital Co. which negotiated the purchase of Carl Laemmle's Universal stock, has just returned to this country from a European trip during which he organized branches of his new film financing venture, General Film Industries, Inc.

The English company is to be known as General Film Finance, Ltd. The English company will finance both British and continental production.

Prospects are excellent in England, he says, but not so bright on the continent.

Erpi Promotes Two

G. L. Carrington has been appointed operating manager for Erpi's technical activities for the territory east of the Rockies, with W. W. Simons directing servicing and installation work in the Great Lakes area. The designations were made by L. W. Conrow, Erpi's newly appointed general operating manager. P. T. Sheridan continues in charge of equipment planning and J. P. Dinsmore continues as merchandising manager, both with headquarters in New York.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

ALL accounts are not yet in and the appraisals of the situation vary. Yet the preponderance of available—and mind, you, accurate—evidence combines to place Twentieth Century-Fox in the driver's seat where the Gaumont British deal is concerned. Joe Schenck has insisted on several occasions that the Ostrers cannot dispose of their stock interest in Metropolis and Bradford Trust without the express consent of his company; the binding clause works in reverse, of course. Openly angered by the Ostrers' defection from the original transaction struck in New York in July, Schenck, meaning Joe but including Nick at the same time, insists with an emphatic insistence that he will not sell his interest, thereby implying quite clearly the Ostrers cannot as well. . . .

This would appear to place the purchase negotiated by John Maxwell in London on an "if and when" basis. It requires no sage to observe that the Schencks will not grant the Ostrers the necessary permission, particularly in the light of the strength which the sale-retarding clause gives them. Out of the welter of cables, flashes and conversation surrounding the deal, it would further appear that, as matters potentially stack up, all that has happened has been, or will, to give Twentieth Century-Fox a new partner in Metropolis and Bradford. Once Ostrer, now Maxwell—perhaps. However, actually the ramifications would go beyond. . . .

The weekend cable from London, detailed on page one this morning, significantly points out that Maxwell presumably has an option on 5,100 shares of the "A," or voting control stock, in M. and B. which, to remind you again, controls fifty-seven per cent of Gaumont British. Twentieth Century-Fox controls 4,900 shares of the "A." This proves several things, one of them obvious which is that Maxwell, in that wise, would capture management control. The split-up of the shares in M. and B. also proves that the Ostrers definitely, and secretly, had acquired the pivotal two per cent originally turned over to Lord Lee of Fareham for the purpose of maintaining control of G. B. in perpetual British hands. This is the first time since the deal got hot that the facts have come to light. Many months ago, Mark Ostrer told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that the two per cent had been purchased by his brothers and himself, the matter then sinking into the limbo of forgotten things until the Fox-Loew dealings with Isidore Ostrer returned it to daylight once again. . . .

Now what? Well, it might be a couple of steps. London believes Sid Kent, already in one conference with Maxwell, may work out a cooperative deal. Kent has on his end of the scales the say-so on the Ostrer sale and that's a vitally strategic point. The kernel of any talks with Maxwell, however, is believed to be his insistence or no that control actually remains in London. Sensible to us is the observation that some sort of an arrangement be struck. If the two major interests in G. B. are to proceed at sword's points, the heroine of their drama inevitably and finally must suffer and with her the doughty heroes in combat. . . .

Annual Charity Film Suggested by Cukor

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11.—As a means of raising funds for the industry's needy and replacing all previous methods of solicitation, George Cukor proposes a lavishly produced feature every year with all studios contributing stars, directors, writers and sets for the picture. The receipts from the distribution of the film would be administered by the committee.

Cukor has volunteered to direct the first picture which he hopes will be started by next August.

Knickerbocker Signed

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11.—Darryl F. Zanuck has signed H. R. Knickerbocker to write the script for "The Siege of Alcazar." All screen rights to the Knickerbocker press material have also been purchased.

General Lists Five For Release Shortly

The first five productions on General Pictures schedule of 34 will be "Three Legionnaires," "Let's All Sing," "Prison Ship," "Circus Queen" and "Night Edition," Fen Kimball, president, stated on his arrival from the coast where he conferred with Robert E. Welch, production manager.

Mack D. Weinberger, sales manager, will set the release dates for the first group shortly.

Burroughs Explains Deal

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11.—Edgar Rice Burroughs says that his deal with Sol Lesser for use of some of his stories does not mean that he is retiring from Burroughs-Tarzan Pictures and Burroughs-Tarzan Enterprises. The Lesser contract, he states, is not for all of his works.

Legion Approves 16 Of 17 New Pictures

Of 17 new pictures reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its list for the current week, 16 were approved as unobjectionable for general patronage or for adults, and only one was designated as objectionable in part. None was condemned. The new films and their classifications follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage—"Adventure in Manhattan," "Aufforderung Zum Tanz" (German), "The Big Broadcast of 1937," "The Big Game," "The Case of the Black Cat," "Dimples," "Killer at Large," "The President's Mystery," "Ride, Ranger, Ride." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults—"Heisses Blut" (German), "Ladies in Love," "The Magnificent Brute," "The Man Who Lived Twice," "Mutter und Kind" (German), "Three-Cornered Hat" (Italian), "Without Orders." Class B, Objectionable in Part—"Libeled Lady."

Warner Staying in London to Testify

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Jack Warner, vice-president in charge of Warner production, is staying here to testify in the suit filed by the company to enjoin Bette Davis from working in a Toeplitz production.

Denton, Hall & Burgin, local solicitors for Warners, are preparing the papers in conjunction with the distributor's headquarters in New York. It is expected the action will come up for hearing the latter part of the month.

The Warner action is the first in many years filed by a film company here to restrain a player from working for another company.

Name Evergreen Winners

SEATTLE, Oct. 11.—The prize winners in the third quarter contest of the Evergreen States circuit were: Frank L. Newman, Jr., Portland Orpheum, "A" division; Al Baker, Spokane Fox, "B" division; Ronald Harrington, Portland Oriental, "C" division, and James O'Connell, Rex, Eugene, Ore., "D" division. The state division honors went to the Washington group, headed by Al Rosenberg.

Set Bergner Premiere

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—"As You Like It," British Inter-Allied production of the Shakespearean play, which is released in this country by Twentieth Century-Fox, will have its premiere at Louis Lurie's Geary here Oct. 23. Roadshow policy and prices will prevail for the indefinite run.

To Set I. T. O. Meeting

COLUMBUS, Oct. 11.—Martin Smith, president of the I.T.O. of Ohio, has called a meeting of the board of directors to be held here at the Neil House on Oct. 15 when the directors will set the dates of the annual state convention.

Bachelors Dine Greene

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Oct. 11.—Fred J. Greene, Woonsocket theatre owner, was the guest of honor at a bachelor dinner which was attended by 125 prominent business and professional men. Greene will be married Oct. 17 to Miss Alice R. Connor.

would mean proportionately less if the bondholders took the deal as offered by Twentieth Century-Fox. However, under the bondholders' arrangements the amount of money spent by the distributor for advertising and publicity would mean nothing as the gross percentage would remain the same.

In the event a deal is worked out with the distributor, the bondholders intend to reorganize the Roxy with a newly formed company to make the lease. It is highly likely Howard S. Cullman, trustee, will be elected chairman of the board of the new company. Cullman, with Harry C. Arthur, now has a plan before the committee providing for a management contract, which has been ruled out of the running, it is learned. Harry Brandt's plan, likewise, has no chance.

Strand Lease a Factor

Warners, through Warner Bros. Circuit Management, Inc., has made a rehabilitation proposal through downtown bankers, it was stated. This offer has been rejected on the ground that Warners would not promise any "A" product for the Roxy. The bondholders further are skeptical of the Warner plan in view of reports that the lease on the Strand provides that the theatre has to be torn down by 1941, when the company must erect a 4,000-seat house on the site.

Si Fabian has two bids before the committee. One is to lease the theatre for a long term on a guarantee and percentage of the profits and the second is to call in the $3,500,000 first mortgage bonds for new securities of the same amount, plus reorganization costs. One of the two propositions may have a chance in the event the Twentieth Century-Fox plan does not finally meet with approval of the bondholders, it was said.

A representative for Haring & Blumenthal was in court last week, but it is doubtful whether this group will present a plan. It was pointed out that the second bondholders are working with the first mortgage group on the reorganization and unless H. & B. can get 25 per cent of the outstanding creditors to support a proposal, the company cannot file a plan with the court.

Paramount Seems Disinterested

The fact that Irving Cohen of the Paramount legal department appeared in the court room last Friday has no significance, it was said. This company has not made any proposals and as far as it is known Paramount is not interested.

At least three more formulas have been presented to the bondholders by groups not named. One of the unnamed parties on Friday morning made a last minute effort to revise his plan, but no serious attention was given it. The bondholders hope to work out the Roxy future with Twentieth Century-Fox.

Of all the proposals submitted to the committee, not one provided for the par return in cash of the first mortgage bonds, it was said.

Schwartz Gets Pen

Governor Lehman has conferred a signal honor upon A. H. Schwartz, operating head of Century Circuit, by giving the exhibitor leader the pen with which the chief executive signed the Joseph Bill for the admission of children to theatres.

Schwartz was a prime mover in the campaign for passage of the law, which had been his ambition since he entered the business about 25 years ago. Accompanying the cerise pen is a letter signed by the governor. Schwartz has both framed in his private office.

Trouble Mars First Test of Television

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Inaugurating its "trial transmissions" of television, the British Broadcasting Corp. did not score a very great success, reception of the variety turns being marked by a degree of distortion which at last became invisibility. A failure of water supply leading to inefficient valve cooling was given as the reason. Transferred to another studio, the transmissions came through very clearly.

Announcing "a technical hitch" the B. B. C. stated that transmissions on Oct. 2 and 3 would be confined to films. The original schedule was that films would be used in the morning hour and direct transmission in the afternoons. Main news-reel items shown today were the start of the air race to Johannesburg and the arrival of Beryl Markham after her Atlantic flight.

Shubert-Rialto to Reopen with Duals

F. & M. will reopen the Shubert-Rialto in St. Louis as a first run with dual features on Friday, Harry C. Arthur, Jr., stated over the weekend. He also said that the stage policy inaugurated recently at the Ambassador in that city is highly successful.

Accompanied by his wife and son, Richard Charles; his brother, Edwin, who is to take an executive position in the Mound City; and William Schneider, his secretary, Arthur will leave by car tomorrow to join his two sons and make his permanent headquarters in St. Louis.

One week every month will be spent by Arthur in New York. He also will spend his summers here, during which he will do the film buying for the first runs.

Century Takes Over Cedarhurst Theatre

The Century Circuit this week will add the Central, Cedarhurst, L. I., to its string of theatres, having completed a deal with Moss and Rogers, owners. Harry Shiffman recently booked the theatre for the owners, but dropped out of the situation.

The acquisition of the Cedarhurst house will not affect the pooling deal the circuit has with Skouras. The two circuits had come to an understanding prior to the change in management of the Central.

Leonard on "Maytime"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11. — Robert Z. Leonard has been assigned by Hunt Stromberg to direct "Maytime" at M-G-M. Edmund Goulding had been the director, but resigned because he felt that he had worked so closely with Irving Thalberg on the film that he would not do justice to it under another producer. John Barrymore has been cast in support of Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald.

Indiana May Stay Dark

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 11.—The Indiana, the city's largest house, apparently won't reopen this winter. For the last five years the theatre closed for the summer and reopened in late September. The only show booked is "The Great Waltz," for Nov. 16-18. Art J. Baker, manager of the Circle and Indiana, has nothing to say of future plans.

Members Only Is Rule

Because the committee in charge feels the Tower Club of the Park Central would be overcrowded if guests are permitted, the Monday Knighters have ruled that only members will be admitted to the testimonial beefsteak dinner to be tendered to Moe Streimer on Oct. 20. The U. A. home office representative will be presented with a handsome gift by the organization.

Two Abroad for Walsh

Raoul Walsh has been signed by Criterion, of London, to direct two films which will star Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. The first film will be adapted from the novel, "Jump for Glory." Production will begin Nov. 15.

Maxwell G.B. Deal Hinges On 20th-Fox

find a working agreement with Maxwell to be more advantageous from a business standpoint than the sale of the G.B. shares to Maxwell, at a price governed by the balance sheet of G.B.

However, there is a definite possibility that a deadlock in the negotiations will result if Kent insists that the Ostrers are committed to the Twentieth Century-Fox agreements.

It is indicated that M-G-M is not in the deal, since their connection has been tentative and with Twentieth Century-Fox only. The anticipation here is that Maxwell and Kent will announce an agreement tomorrow.

An important factor in the present situation is that the American deal failed on the British control clause, which is considered highly dangerous to alter in view of the British Government's obvious distaste for the arrangement. It is understood that Maxwell advised Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of Twentieth Century-Fox, during the latter's recent visit here of the Government's attitude toward the deal.

Elimination of Ostrers Expected

Maxwell's plans are understood to call for G.B. and Associated British Pictures remaining as separate companies, with himself as liaison. The early elimination of the Ostrers from the company is anticipated, with Mark probably going out within a year. Drastic economies and executive readjustments are also part of the plan.

Nominally the object in retaining the separate identities of the two companies is to safeguard the rights of the G.B. stockholders, but actually it leaves Maxwell in the clear relative to the bad financial state of G.B.

Maxwell is expected to retain separate the studios and circuits, but obviously the probability exists of the ultimate consolidation of the G. B. and A.B.P. interests, under a complete financial reorganization.

Stock Quotation Advances

Maxwell is paying £1,250,000 for the "B" shares of M. & B. The ordinary shares yesterday jumped two shillings, to 19 shillings, with jobbers refusing to make a price on G.B. shares.

The Financial Times, which Friday in a lead story scored the failure of the controlling interests to adequately inform the G.B. shareholders of the status of the negotiations, yesterday noted in a lead article that the statement on the Maxwell purchase followed almost immediately on the publication of their Friday story. The paper yesterday stressed the fact that no reference was made to the American stake in M. & B., saying, "The consent of these American parties may be necessary. The possibility of their being required to sell their Gaumont interest to A.B.P. cannot be ruled out. Meanwhile, the question of prompt G.B. action on overdue accounts and the dividend becomes no less urgent. The company (G.B.) by its own declaration shows itself not concerned with the fate of blocks of its shares. Forty per cent of the Gaumont ordinary shares is in the hands of the public, representing an interest whose predominant immediate concern is a knowledge of the financial status of the company for the past year."

Starts Ninth Year

London, Oct. 1.—The ninth year of the Films Act began today with the British quota unchanged at 20 per cent for both exhibitors and distributors. The act formally lapses on Sept. 30, 1938, but the general expectation is that it will be renewed or replaced by a similar measure as a result of recommendations of the sitting Statutory Committee specially appointed to consider the situation created by the end of the act.

"Dimples" Gets Big Start at the Roxy gathered quite early and continued throughout the day.

The Capitol, on the third week of "The Great Ziegfeld," tallied approximately $33,000. It is expected the fourth week will end with around $26,000. On Saturday morning, the theatre pulled a novelty publicity stunt for "The Devil Is a Sissy," which will start a two-week run on Friday. A parade of 2,600 juveniles, chosen by the Police Department from 30,000 who have some resemblance to Jackie Cooper, Mickey Rooney and Freddie Bartholomew marched down Broadway to the tune of a brass band and then witnessed a preview of the film.

"Ramona" opened to $3,100 at the Criterion last Wednesday and it is estimated the first week's take will be around $25,000.

Shift Three Managers

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 11.—Frank Dudley, manager of the Tivoli, has been shifted to the management of the Strand, succeeding Olan Fikes, who has been transferred to manage the Rialto in Chattanooga, Tenn. Ellsworth Dye, Jr., formerly of the Empre, has replaced Dudley.

change of their sales policies to meet the exhibitors' requests.

A reference to this is found in Kuykendall's statement in which he says "gratifying progress is being made, I find, in overcoming obstacles and reducing objections of both a legal and practical nature" to effect the ultimate success of the program. Moreover, he reassures such companies that "it should be noted that no formal or informal agreement between M. P. T. O. A. and any one or all of the distributors is necessary; our proposals as submitted in writing with the full approval of our entire board of directors requested definite modifications of sales policies and trade practices on the part of the distributor. All we want is to have them do it."

The principal concessions by at least a majority of the major distributors will embrace unrestricted cancellation, elimination of the score charge, adoption of the short form of contract and the establishment of local conciliation boards, which insure the success of the entire exhibitor program as formulated.

Kuykendall said that he expected to return to New York on Oct. 26.

Tampa Passes Heavy Tax Upon Theatres

provides that all wholesale businesses will have to pay a tax of seven and one-half cents on each $100 of sales. Retail businesses will have to pay a tax of 25 cents on each $100 of sales, and theatres are listed in this class, but, there is a special paragraph devoted to theatres, which provides that each theatre operating Bank Night shall pay an additional tax of $1 on each $100 of receipts.

This clause will hit the Tampa and Victory, both operated by the Sparks circuit; the Ritz in Ybor City and the Royal in West Tampa. Both of these houses are operated by Casino Enterprises.

Cleveland Group to Fight Proposed Tax

CLEVELAND, Oct. 11.—M. B. Horwitz, Henry Greenberger, L. G. Baldwin and G. W. Erdmann, representing the film interests, Alva Bradley, owner of the Cleveland Indians, representing baseball, and J. E. Lambie of Euclid Beach Park, representing amusement parks, were named to a committee to lead the fight against the proposed constitutional amendment eliminating the present three per cent sales tax on food.

It has been proposed to reinstate a 10 per cent amusement tax to help compensate for the $15,000,000 annual loss of revenue which would result from the proposed legislation. Amusement places now pay three per cent of their gross receipts. P. J. Wood, who called the meeting, pointed out that instead of saving three per cent, the public will be forced to pay a 10 per cent tax on a wide variety of articles.

Short Subjects

"The Unpopular Mechanic"

(Universal)

Another Oswald Rabbit offering. It concerns his efforts and success in building a trick radio machine. When the beam from the set hits the Duck family they do Apache dances, swimming, tangoes and some fancy piano playing. All come to grief when the Pup receives wrestling waves and tosses everyone out of the house. It is genuinely amusing with clever animation and pictorial invention. Production Code Seal No. 2,445. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Stranger Than Fiction No. 28"

(Universal)

Following the theme of the title, this number of the issue contains shots of an animal surgeon, wooden training horses for the British cavalry, a method concealing objects in an unlaid hen's egg, and others which have their points. Pretty good stuff. Production Code Seal No. 01,170. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Stranger Than Fiction No. 29"

(Universal)

A racecourse that crosses a highway, a public elevator in Oregon City, Ore., chaining locomotives that would run away, a marine mail carrier, and a golf course in Cleveland that gives $100 for a hole-in-one and other items make up the usual entertainment and novelty to be found in this series. At times a bit strange, but that is a basic requirement, they have audience appeal. Production Code Seal No. 01,171. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Wives" Gets Denver Lead; Pulls $8,500

DENVER, Oct. 11.—"Wives Never Know," with a stage band, nearly doubled par at the Denver by grossing $8,500 for the best showing of the week.

"The Great Ziegfeld" held up to $7,000 in its second week at the Orpheum.

"Stage Struck" took $7,000 at the Denver, under par by $500, and was moved to the Broadway for a second week.

Principal competition this week is George White's "Scandals" for two days, and a walkathon.

Total first run business was $31,000. Average is $28,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 8:

"RAMONA" (20th-Fox)

Mantell-Leff Settle Buying Differences

After an argument over the right to buy product for the Art and the Star in which they are partners, Edmund Mantell and Abraham Leff have turned the job over to Henry Suchman, who has just assumed his new duties.

In addition to the Ritz and Stadium, Mantell operates the Tiffany which is in the competitive vicinity of the Star and Art. Leff has the Radio, DeLuxe, Fenway, Lido, Tower and another house on 172nd St. aside from the Freeman, also in the Star and Art zone. Both partners objected to the other buying because of their other interests, with the result Suchman was called in late Thursday night to act as arbitrator. He came out of the conference with the job and now Leff and Mantell are satisfied.

Naval Officer Signed

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11.—Lieut. Commander Frank Wead, naval flyer whose service career was halted by an injury, has been signed for the Radio writing staff by Samuel J. Briskin. Wead at the present time is collaborating with John Twist on the adaptation of "Coast Patrol," a Wead original.

Named Censor Clerk

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 11.—Hazel Myers, former chairman of the Kansas board of review, who recently was succeeded by Mrs. L. H. Chapman, has been appointed a clerk for the board.

Cleveland Clubs Will Back "Dream" Shows

CLEVELAND, Oct. 11.—At the invitation of the Cleveland Cinema Club, 78 men and women representing 47 of the leading cultural, educational and civic groups of Greater Cleveland, met in the Statler Hotel to discuss ways of lending support to the first popular priced local showing of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," opening at Warners' Hippodrome, Oct. 17.

Mrs. W. J. MacLachlan, former president of the club, said: "You have asked for this type of picture. Now you've got it, what are you going to do about it?"

Leaders of various groups agreed to sponsor certain days, and to have their own members present at the Hippodrome on that day as hostesses. Among those who will have "days" are the Federation of Women's Clubs, the PTA of Greater Cleveland, the D.A.R., the Daughters of the British Empire, the Shakespeare Garden group and the Cleveland Public Library which agreed to erect a Shakespeare book display in the Hippodrome foyer on "Library Day."

Permanence Voted

The group voted to become a permanent sponsoring body for pictures like "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Present at the gathering were representatives not only of the local club groups, but also heads of the English departments of Western Reserve University, Cleveland College, the Cleveland Board of Education, the Catholic organization, Jewish groups. Y.M.-C.A., Girl Scouts, and Boy Scouts.

Speakers were Prof. George Kernodle of Cleveland College, Sidney Dannenberg, head of the local Warner publicity department, and Mrs. Georgia Moffett, secretary of the Cleveland Film Board of Trade.

"Godfrey" Is Philadelphia Hit, $20,000

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—"My Man Godfrey" supplied the cheery news of the week with its $20,000 at the Boyd. It was held for a second week.

Right with it was "Dodsworth's" second week at the Aldine; $14,000, a much better figure than most first week grosses for the house.

The Fox and the Earle, without their stage shows, slipped, though the $13,000 at the former for "Mary of Scotland" and the $12,500 for "Devil Is a Sissy" at the latter probably spelled profits.

"The General Died at Dawn" tilted the average a little with $15,000.

Film men are beginning to eye askance the heat of the political situation here, finding their biggest competition at present from rallies as well as the national political broadcasts.

Total first run business was $88,000. Average is $81,560.

Sign Gordon and Ravel

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11.—Darryl F. Zanuck has assigned Mack Gordon and Harry Ravel to write the musical numbers for "Wake Up and Live" and "Sally Irene and Mary," the two musicals soon to go into production at Twentieth Century-Fox.

Earl Carroll and Harold Wilson will jointly be credited as associate producers on "Sally, Irene and Mary," and Allen Rivkin will write the screen play.

Century to Open Two

Century Circuit plans to open the Elm, Brooklyn, and another theatre in Manhasset, L. I., as yet unnamed, on Thanksgiving Day. Loew's, Sam Rinzler and Edward Rugoff have an interest in the Elm.

The new Triangle, Brooklyn, which was opened last Friday, was built by Century with Loew's as a 50 per cent partner. Century is operating.

Credits Two Directors

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11.—Samuel Goldwyn will give screen directing credit to both Howard Hawks and William Wyler on "Come and Get It." Wyler finished making the picture after Hawks retired from the job.

When you see a HERALD review quoted:

You know it was not written as a vehicle of verbal antics by a reviewer seeking the glorification of advertising display the next week—or merely trying to be smart.

And the Herald, with its articles and editorials widely and continuously quoted in the world press, enjoys a status and acceptance that can not be enhanced by quotation of reviews inside an industry which already knows the Herald above all others.

Herald reviews are inventories of product for the showmen who will have that product to sell on their screens. Herald reviews have no other purpose.

"Godfrey" Is Boston Lead With $21,000

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—"My Man Godfrey" led the field by a wide margin at the RKO Memorial on a gross of $21,000, over average by $9,000.

The only other attraction to make a strong showing was "Star for a Night" which garnered $14,000, up by $3,000, at the RKO Boston with a stage show called "Follow the Stars."

A combination of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "A Son Comes Home" went $500 over the line to $5,000 at the Fenway and $1,000 over on a take of $8,000 at the Paramount.

"The Great Ziegfeld' held up to a par $11,000 in its second week at Loew's Orpheum, but dipped $1,000 under on a take of $10,000 at Loew's State.

LaGuardia Inspects Children's Sections

Assuming a personal interest in the observance of the Joseph Law, which provides for specially designated sections in theatres for children with matrons in charge, Mayor LaGuardia has made his first tour of inspection since the bill became law.

LaGuardia divided the city into four zones in which 105 theatres are located and with Fire Commissioner John J. McElligott visited four houses in the Williamsburg area of Brooklyn. The Mayor found one theatre, the Marcy, which did not have a matron on duty at the time of his visit, and where a man was sitting in the children's section, which is prohibited by the law. A report on the infraction was made to License Commissioner Paul Moss.

It took 13 city officials to make the quick tour of the 105 theatres in the Bronx, Manhattan, Brooklyn and Queens.

Pick Comedians' Next

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11.—Radio will star Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in "Easy Going," an adaptation of "A Pair of Sixes," well known Broadway production of 20 years ago.

"Swing Time" Seattle Hit; Gets $9,400

SEATTLE, Oct. 11.—"Swing Time" grabbed the big money here on the week, $9,400, which was over normal by $2,400, and the musical was transferred to the Fifth Avenue for a run.

The Paramount dual, "The Gorgeous Hussy" and "Star for a Night," was strong with $6,250, and the bill was transferred to the Music Box for a third week. The Orpheum dual, "The General Died at Dawn" and "Women Are Trouble," garnered $6,100, up by $100, and was shifted to the Blue Mouse for an extended run.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11.—Gladys George left today on a tour of seven cities, where she will meet exhibitors, women's clubs and the press in the interests of "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie," in which she stars.

"Dodsworth" Pulls $8,500, New Haven

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 11.—"Dodsworth on the Poli dual with "Sworn Enemy," grossed $8,500, over normal by $1,500, in a week which opened with exceptional Saturday night and Sunday business everywhere.

The Roger Sherman, with "Give Me Your Heart" and "East Meets West," boosted the $4,700 average by $1,200.

The second week of "Swing Time" at the College, with prices raised from the established 25-35 cents to 35-50 cents, hit $3,500, up by $700, while "Wedding Present" and "High Tension" at the Paramount missed the $4,800 average by $500.

The weather was fair and warm. Films were hit by the first Yale football skirmish of the season on Saturday afternoon, but subsequent weekend attendance was increased by the holiday spirit. An overflow from the three evening performances of "Stage Door," new Kaufman-Ferber play, at the Shubert, helped both the Roger Sherman and College.

Total first run business was $22,200. Average is $19,300.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 9:

"SWING TIME" (Radio)
COLLEGE—(1,499), 35c-50c, 7 days, 2nd week. Gross: $3,500. (Average, $2,800)

"Dodsworth Tops Providence Takes

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 11.—Loew's State came under the wire with the biggest take of the week. "Dodsworth" pulled $2,000 over the average $12,000.

Another theatre to better par was the Strand which caught $6,700 with "Wives Never Know" and "Lady Be Careful." Par for the house is $6,500.

Other houses in the downtown belt were below average. "Ramona" and "Postal Inspector" brought in $6,500 at the Majestic, under by $500, and Fay's also was down a like amount with "Isle of Fury" and five acts of vaudeville. "My Man Godfrey," in its second week at the RKO Albee, did $4,400. The usual take is $7,000.

College and prep school football and the World Series broadcasts hurt matinee attendances. The weather was warm and fair.

Total first run business was $38,100. Average is $39,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 8:

"WIVES NEVER KNOW" (Para.)
"LADY BE CAREFUL" (Para.)

Hispano Opens Office

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11. — Hispano Films, recently organized to produce Spanish pictures, has opened offices in the Guarantee Bldg., here. Production will be in charge of Francois B. de Valdez, who will also direct the first two features, with Ramon Peon directing the third. The company has J. J. Marinez Casado signed to an acting contract, and he will be featured in "El Caballero Audaz." World distribution will be handled by Kinotrade, Inc., of New York. The first picture will be made at International Studios and is scheduled to start Nov. 10.

Mascot Case to Go On

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Wm. T. Collins has signed an order refusing to vacate the service of a summons in a $3,000 breach of contract action brought by Mascot Picture Corp. against Rafael Ramos Cobian, exhibitor at San Juan, P. R. The court ruled that because of conflicting affidavits he would delay decision until hearings are conducted by Referee Daniel M. Cohalan. Cobian charges that he was not served, but that someone else was served in the action.

Plan Hollywood Shorts

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11. — Hollywood Newsreel, Inc., has been formed by Erman Pessis and William Klein to produce a series of 26 one-reel subjects. Actor Guild Backs Musician Campaign

The Screen Actors' Guild in Hollywood has telegraphed to Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians backing the local's picketing drive seeking to bring about the reemployment of musicians in film houses.

The telegram, signed by Kenneth Thomson, secretary of the actors' group, mentions the Guild's "wholehearted accord and great interest" in the campaign, and concludes, "the board sends best wishes for overwhelming success."

Local 77 in Philadelphia will hold a public mass meeting on Friday night, at which the mayor is expected to be a speaker, and which it is anticipated, will be followed shortly by the institution of a picketing campaign in Philadelphia similar to that in New York.

"Desperado" Heads For $100,000 Week

"The Gay Desperado," the Columbus Day holiday to its advantage, may gross $100,000 and, perhaps over, at the Music Hall in its first week. The picture will be held.

In its first four days, the film did

Sees Intern'l Technique In Next 2 Years

Within the next two years Anglo-American cooperation will be complete and the public will not be conscious of any noticeable differences in production technique, Paul Soskin declared on his arrival aboard the Normandie yesterday. He is head of the British producing company bearing his name and recently made a deal to make seven features for Columbia at the Amalgamated studios near London.

"Cooperation between the countries is most essential," Soskin added. "My

G.B. DEAL NOT SET; MAXWELL EXPLAINS

ABP Head Asserts Aim Is To Prevent Foreign Domination

LONDON, Oct. 12.—John Maxwell, head of Associated British Pictures, today issued a statement identical with that of G.B. relative to the A.B.P. negotiations looking to acquisition of the Ostrer brothers' G.B. holdings in Metropolis and Bradford Trust, and additionally, stressed the desire to prevent the passage of G.B. control from British to American hands as the influencing factor behind his negotiations for G.B. control. He said he has no fear of American threats to stop the deal by resorting to legal proceedings.

Maxwell's statement declared: "In making the agreement I was mainly influenced by a desire to prevent G.B. passing to foreign control. This agreement secures that. I take the view that if the arrangement with the American companies were carried through it would have meant the passing under foreign control of a huge

Coast Production Shows Slight Gain

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.—No radical change marked the production schedule during the past week. Eight pictures started and five finished, making a net gain of three films in work to raise the total to 43 films actually shooting. No change was made in the total of short subjects which are in production, the number remaining at two.

Activity was quite intensive at Columbia, which raised its quota of active product from three to six. Similarly, Paramount has six, Twentieth Century-Fox eight, and Warners six

Shift in Control Hangs On 20th-Fox Consent To "A" Share Sale

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The ultimate conclusion of the pending deal whereby John Maxwell of Associated British Pictures is seeking to acquire the Ostrer brothers' share in the Metropolis and Bradford Trust controlling interest in G.B., is still undetermined, it was clearly indicated in statements issued here today by Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, and by G.B.

There was no room for doubt in the definite implication in the two statements that control of the Ostrer share in G.B. has not yet passed to Maxwell, and that such a termination of the protracted and complicated negotiations still depends upon permission being obtained from Twentieth Century-Fox for the Ostrers to dispose of their "A" share holdings, as has been consistently maintained.

The "A" shares are the vital voting and controlling portion of the outstanding securities involved in the 57 per cent M. & B. interest in G.B. which is held by the Ostrers and Twentieth Century-Fox, the former with 5,100 shares, and the latter holding 4,900 shares. Maxwell already has

Schreiber Appealing Michigan Trust Suit

DETROIT, Oct. 12.—Attorneys William Henry Gallagher and Adrian D. Rosen have appealed the decision of the U. S. District Court here in the case of Jacob Schreiber against Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan, Inc., and the various local exchanges, to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati.

Schreiber, in the suit, asked an injunction against the defendants to halt an alleged conspiracy to prevent him from obtaining sufficient product for his five theatres. The lower court, in rendering its decision last fall, ruled that the licensing of films was not in interstate commerce and, therefore, the case was not within its jurisdiction. Rosen now asks that the case be decided upon merit, claiming that it comes within interstate commerce and that the lower court erred in its ruling.

Two Houses Closed For Lacking Matron

The Avalon, Bronx, and Marcy, Brooklyn, will be closed all day today as a penalty imposed by License Commissioner Paul Moss after a hearing on infractions of the Joseph Law. Operators of both theatres were declared to have violated the law when inspectors visited and found there was no matron to look after children in the specially designated sections of the theatres.

Another theatre, where it was said adults were found in the children's section, will be given a hearing by Moss this week.

"Gladys George is the stage's most charming gift to the screen this year."—N.Y. Times

"Gladys George gives a magnificent performance in a genuinely touching and absorbing drama, powerful in its emotional appeal and stimulating in its novelty."
—N.Y. Mirror

"Role of 'CARRIE' is a film triumph for Gladys George. 'VALIANT IS THE WORD FOR CARRIE' serves well to welcome Gladys George to a luminous spot in the film firmament." —N.Y. American

"Gladys George gives one of the most moving, eloquent performances in the history of the screen." —N.Y. Telegraph

"From the burlesque of her stage portrayal in 'Personal Appearance' Miss George turns to the challenging demands of the Carrie part brilliantly. Her scenes with young Jackie Moran are masterpieces."

"Godfrey" Is 4th Week Top, San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—"My Man Godfrey" is still the big attraction here in its fourth week. On a dual with "Yellowstone" at the Orpheum it grossed $8,000, over a first week average by $500. This was in spite of a general slump.

The only other attractions to get over normal were "Gorgeous Hussy" and "Three Married Men" at the Paramount and "Dimples" and "The Case of the Velvet Claws," which played at the Fox.

WPA vaudeville at the Columbia and the Duffy stock at the Alcazar offered little competition. The weather was warm.

Total first run business was $85,100. Average is $91,000.

Victory Starts First

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.—Victory Pictures has started production on "Two Minutes to Play," first of a series of sport action features to star Herman Brix. In addition to the U. S. C. football team, the cast includes Betty Compson, Grady Sutton and Sammy Cohen. The story is an original by Bill Buchanan, and Robert Hill is directing under the supervision of Sam Katzman.

Darmour Starts 'Ranger'

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.—Larry Darmour has started "Rio Grande Ranger," next in his series of Bob Allen westerns for Columbia release. The story is an original by Jacques and Ceila Jacard with screenplay by Nate Gatzert. Spencer Gordon Bennett is directing.

society woman who goes to jail because of an involvement in a depression bank scandal in which her husband commits suicide, Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein, the authors, introduce the militant Left Wing lawyer character who represents vigor for the entire cast. It is he with whom the ex-society jailbird finally falls in love, chiefly because, on the rebound, he requickens her interest in what goes on, not within her plush-lined walls, but in the outside world where millions are looking for work and thousands are starving in a land of plenty. Helen Gahagan plays the part.

Clifton Webb, out of musical comedy, is the suave, sophisticated around-the-town character, tired with it all and withal amusing—courtesy of the authors and their distribution of the laugh lines—in love with Miss Gahagan and eventually aroused from his lethargy long enough to turn a political trick on an outrageously smug and die-hard grandfather (Charles Richman) which gives the Left Winger (Ben Smith) a chance at a political life again and the final clinch with Miss Gahagan.

Webb is very good in his languid fashion and Claudia Morgan, as the younger sister who, inferentially, gets her Clifton, is first class in the breezy, modern manner. But the playsmiths, by trying to be clever in their dialogue, either forget to bring their vehicle into some final terminus or depended upon their conversation piece to saunter along, proving little and establishing about the same measure of content.

"And Stars Remain," by stirring up its insides and doing considerable tinkering, conceivably would do for Hollywood. There appears to be little reason, on the other hand, to bother.

Angell Joins Strode

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Sidney Angell, after publicity experience with Columbia, Paramount and others in the United States, has joined with Ronald Strode and Helen Wagstaff as Ronald Strode and Associates. Garrett Klement and the Soskin publicity accounts, among others, are already handled by the Strode office.

Howard in Wanger Pact

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.—Walter Wanger has signed William K. Howard, in London, via telephone, to direct Joan Bennett in "Summer Lightning," which will start in production immediately following Howard's return to Hollywood on Nov. 17.

Jerry Asher Joins Radio

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.—Jerry Asher has resigned from Silver Screen and Screenland, magazines, to join Howard Benedict's publicity staff at Radio. Asher will develop special ideas for the exploitation of Radio personalities.

Quits Seattle Theatre

SEATTLE, Oct. 11.—Robert Williams has resigned as assistant manager of the Orpheum here, effective Oct. 15. He will be succeeded by Clyde Stroud, formerly of the Paramount here.

definite views are that the English public has been educated for American pictures and we shall give them this type of film. The American public also is getting conscious of British films. Several have been shown here.

"I am going to Hollywood in four or five days to sign up writers, technicians and directors. While on the coast I will talk with Harry Cohn, president of Columbia, on sending talent abroad."

Soskin plans to remain in Hollywood about a month. Whatever talent he is able to get from Columbia will serve as a nucleus for his plan.

The Amalgamated Studios will be the largest in England, he said. It will be ready by Jan. 1 and in the new layout every unit will be self-contained with two stages, a theatre and cutting rooms for each producer. Four of his seven pictures will be geared at a cost of $200,000 each, the remaining three, between $400,000 and $500,000 each.

The producer hopes to be able to sign Anton Litvak, who came over on the same boat, for at least one picture.

Litvak and Others Arrive

Anton Litvak is set to make nine pictures for three different companies, he asserted upon his arrival yesterday on the Normandie. After a three-day rest here, he will leave for Hollywood by plane and report to RKO, where he will direct an English version of "Equipage." After that he will do "Joan of Arc" for Warners, then "Wuthering Heights" for Walter Wanger and finally check in again at the Warner studios to start work on a series of five features on a three-year contract.

Claudette Colbert will be starred in "Joan of Arc," Litvak said. Sylvia Sidney and Henry Fonda are to be co-featured in "Wuthering Heights."

Schlesinger Aboard

M. A. Schlesinger also returned yesterday after a three-week visit in England. He said he did not acquire product for South Africa, but was on hand for the air races which his brother, I. W., sponsored, and also to look over Daly's theatre in London which the Schlesinger interests are rehabilitating for films.

Jean Gacon de Cavaignac, head of Cavaignac Films Co., of France, arrived to study production in Hollywood and also to acquire a number of color shorts and cartoons. Last year he produced four French pictures. He is said to be the first to dub French versions of American films. He will remain in New York for about two weeks and then leave for an inspection tour of Coast studios.

Paul Graetz, general sales manager for Paris Export Co., also was on the ship. He is here for a two-week vacation, is not going to Hollywood and attached no significance to his visit. He declared, however, he brought over "Beloved Vagabond," starring Maurice Chevalier, which Columbia will distribute in this country.

Mrs. Spyros P. Skouras and Mrs. E. L. Alperson returned from Lausanne, where Mrs. Skouras entered her daughter in school.

Henry Foster, Ruth Etting, Miriam Hopkins, Flora Le Breton and Dudley Murphy were other passengers. Miss Hopkins has just returned from making "Men Are Not Gods" for London Films. She will head for Hollywood shortly to start work in "The Woman's Touch," by Sam and Bella Spewack. Samuel Goldwyn will produce.

N. Y. Pooling Deals Are in Negotiation

Several important pooling deals in the Greater New York region are in negotiation with details expected to be worked out in the next few weeks.

In one of the arrangements being discussed three major circuits are involved, while in another deal, two powerful independent theatre groups and one major circuit are about to get together on joint operation in a specified area, close to Brooklyn.

Latest of the pools to have been completed was that between Saxe Brothers and Warners in Wisconsin. On Oct. 1, the operation of 20 theatres, 10 in each circuit, was merged.

Past experience has indicated to independent theatre heads, it is said, that pooling deals with major operators in competitive spots where profits are scarce have proved a boon to all parties.

Another recent deal was the realignment of the Kansas City first and second run situation as it affected RKO and Fox Midwest. This arrangement had been discussed for many months before it was closed.

La Barba Sues on Pact

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—Ted La Barba, assistant cameraman, has filed suit in Superior Court here against Paramount, seeking $57,100 damages for alleged failure of the studio to live up to a contract dated Aug. 4, 1933.

La Barba contends that he signed with Paramount during the 1933 strike on condition that the studio obtain membership for him in any organization of cameramen the company completed an agreement with. La Barba at the time was a member of I. A. T. S. E., and claims provisions of his individual contract were not carried out.

Sets Akron Stage Show

AKRON, Oct. 12.—After playing straight films for more than a year, Loew's has inaugurated a stage show policy in connection with pictures. This is in opposition to the Palace, a Monarch unit, and is the first time in many years that there has been stage show competition between two local houses.

Delay Detroit Opening

DETROIT, Oct. 12.—The reopening of the Downtown as a first run, originally set for last Friday, has been postponed a week. The theatre will play double bills of independent product and acts of vaudeville at a 40-cent top.

Quigley Publishing Company,
Rockefeller Center,
NEW YORK CITY. U.S.A.

Dear Mr Quigley,

Will you please forward us a copy of your "Motion Picture Almanac" (1936-37) for which we enclose the necessary money?

Whilst on the point of writing you we would very much like to tell you how much we appreciate your trade magazine: "The Motion Picture Herald", which we always find of the greatest possible use in our theatre business.

As we have been in the business since it was a "business" at all in this faraway country "down under", we have watched, with interest, how your "Herald" has gradually developed into the finely produced edition it is to-day. If you require any information on the picture business in New Zealand, at any time, we will be delighted to do our best - and when we tell you that we have been actually screening motion pictures since 1906 (first as a travelling unit) we should be able to.

With every good wish,

Yours sincerely,

Wolf Elected As President Of S.M.P.E.

the board of governors. Wolf has served two terms on the governing board, and was named executive vice-president in January, 1936. He was also chairman of the projection screen committee of the society.

It was decided that the next two conventions of the organization would be held in New York and Hollywood.

The opening day began with the registration of delegates, and was featured by an address of welcome by Mayor Charles Stanton of Rochester at an informal luncheon, and the announcement of new officers of the society.

Various committee and officers' reports were read during the morning session, and the delivery of the numerous and highly varied technical papers was begun shortly after the convention convened.

The opening paper, on "The Development of the Art and Science of Photography in the Twentieth Century," was read by C. E. Kenneth Mees of Eastman Kodak. The lecture was illustrated.

Afternoon Schedule Full

Following the luncheon the sound and apparatus session was held. R. H. Heacock of the RCA Manufacturing Co., at Camden, N. J., read a paper on "A Record Word-Spotting Mechanism"; C. Flannagan, R. Wolf and W. C. Jones of Erpi delivered another on "Modern Loud Speaking Telephones and Their Development"; S. Read, Jr., of RCA Manufacturing spoke on "A Neon Type Volume Indicator," and J. Frank, Jr., of the International Projector Corp., New York, described "The Schwarzkopf Method of Identifying Criminals," as devised by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, former head of the New Jersey state police.

Mees, who is vice-president and director of research of Eastman Kodak, delivered a special lecture demonstration on "Color Photography," this evening at the Eastman Theatre.

Tomorrow the delegates will be guests of the Kodak Research Laboratories at Kodak Park, at a general technical session.

about $63,000 with an anticipated $15,000 to $18,000 yesterday when, by 2 P. M., the gross had reached $5,475, or $1,000 ahead of the Saturday figure by the same hour.

Business along Broadway and byways assumed expected holiday proportions yesterday and last night.

Business at the Strand last week on the first seven days of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at popular prices ended with $26,000. Indications are that the second week will average around the same.

The Roxy is doing a terrific attendance business with "Dimples." Long lines continue to wait at all performances, the crowds mostly composed of children.

Gaumont British Deal Is Not Set; Maxwell Explains Stand

block of the British cinema and film industry.

"If that had happened other large American companies, to preserve their interests, would have endeavored to make similar arrangements. In fact, some already have tried to do so, with the result that in a short time, the bulk of the cinemas in this country, or certainly most of the best ones, would have passed to foreign control.

"Such a situation would have been intolerable in any country and in my view a humiliation a great nation such as ours would have been compelled to stop, if necessary by Governmental and legislative measures.

"No Fear of the Threats"

"I have no fear of the threats from America of our transaction being stopped by legal proceedings. I recollect two previous statements, first that a deal had been completed for the realignment of G.B. control, and second that such realignment did not mean foreign control. Both proved to be incorrect.

"In entering this agreement both parties have had the highest legal opinion in this country, but it does not in any way infringe the rights of Twentieth Century-Fox, who are the other partners with the Ostrers in Metropolis and Bradford Trust."

It was said that the Prime Minister and the Chancellor of the Exchequer are delighted with Maxwell's deal for G.B. control.

A.B.P. is believed planning to pay for the "B" shares of G.B. already purchased out of company reserves.

purchased 250,000 "B" shares of G.B. in Metropolis and Bradford, and holds an option on the Ostrers' 5,100 "A" shares.

Kent's statement, issued today following conferences with Maxwell over the weekend, and in Kent's capacity as the authoritative representative in the matter for Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of Twentieth Century-Fox, and presumably, of Nicholas M. Schenck, head of Loew's and M-G-M, said:

"I am aware that some agreement has been made between Maxwell and the Ostrers. A copy of this agreement has been asked for by us but has not yet been received. I am assured, however, that the sale of the Ostrer shares is dependent on the sale of not less than half of the voting shares held by Twentieth Century-Fox, and that the control so far has not passed.

Kent Awaits Fuller Information

"When I know more I shall be in a position to discuss more fully with my corporation and with counsel, and then decide whether our rights have been infringed and what our course will be for the future."

The G.B. official statement read:

"The agreement which has been signed between the Ostrers and A.B.P. (Maxwell) provides for the acquisition of the Ostrers' holdings in Metropolis and Bradford Trust, which holds the controlling shares of G.B.

"This agreement falls into two stages, the first of which is the acquisition of 250,000 'B' shares of Metropolis and Bradford Trust by A.B.P., which has been completed, the shares having been transferred and an appropriate part of the purchase cost paid over. The second stage, with regard to the 5,100 'A' shares of Metropolis and Bradford Trust, will be dealt with as soon as possible. Until the completion of the second stage of the agreement, the administration of G.B. remains exactly as at present."

Test Bank Night in Florida High Court

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 12.—The Florida Supreme Court will be asked to rule on the legality of Bank Night in theatres. Gulf Theatres, Inc., a subsidiary of the Sparks organization, to get the question quickly before the court, permitted a default judgment to be entered against it in a suit by W. A. Rice, soft drink salesman, who brought suit against the theatre in August for failure to pay him $1,550 which he said he won in a Bank Night drawing.

Rice was told by the management that he did not reach the stage in the prescribed two minutes after the announcement of his name. Rice said he did. The sole question before a Supreme Court, attorneys agreed, would be whether Bank Night contains the legal element of a contract.

The theatre contends that no one can have a legal complaint, as the award is a free offer and that no one but the theatre stands to lose anything. Rice's counsel maintains that the trouble to which a person puts himself in going to the theatre and awaiting the drawing constitutes consideration on his part and gives him the right to sue if the award is withheld.

results from the only instance in judicial history where the court denied itself the power to set aside a judgment procured by fraud.

The brief as filed today reiterates the acts of the bankrupt as brought out in the previous hearing before Judge Alger Fee and which it alleges to have been fraudulent. In demanding a new trial it cites cases and authorities.

Fox West Coast must file an answer within 30 days, after which Neblett will be given 10 days in which to reply.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.—"Dancing For Love," original by William Anthony McGuire, has been bought by Universal as a possible story for Doris Nolan and George Murphy. E. M. Asher will produce.

Coast Production Shows Slight Gain

on the stages. Fifty-seven pictures are being edited and 22 being prepared for production shortly.

New pictures at Columbia include "Interlude," which will star Grace Moore, and "Lady of New York." Matching the Columbia pace, Warners likewise started two, "San Quentin," and "Bad Man's Territory." For Paramount release Major Prod. started "Mind Your Own Business." Universal began work on "Murder in Mississippi." Radio started "Criminal Lawyer" and Chesterfield "Ellis Island."

A recapitulation shows Columbia had six features shooting, five preparing and seven editing. Goldwyn had one, zero and one; M-G-M three, one and 13; Paramount, six, two and seven; Republic, two, two and four; Radio, three, five and 10; Roach, two, zero and one; Selznick, zero, zero and one; Twentieth Century-Fox, eight, four and five; Universal, three, one and one, and Warners six, two and seven.

Columbia had one short subject working; two preparing and four editing; M-G-M, zero, two and 10; Radio, one, zero and one; Roach, zero, one and one; Warners, zero, zero and one.

and described them as the "finest in the world. England looks like Hollywood, there are so many Americans working there."

Only English producers will make Columbia's quota product, Cohn added. Several companies already have been signed to make the necessary output, he asserted, and those that are very successful in England will be distributed on an international scale by the company.

Joseph Seidelman, head of the foreign activities, will return on the Queen Mary, which is due next week.

Ever on the alert, Cohn produced a program of the films shown on the Normandie, "Stage Struck" and "Nine Days a Queen."

"See," Cohn said, "the pictures are so bad that even the boats have to dual feature them."

"Broadcast" Hits Record

"The Big Broadcast of 1937," starring Jack Benny, Gracie Allen and George Burns, set a new record at the Malco in Memphis, according to a wire sent by M. A. Lightman to Neil F. Agnew at the Paramount home office.

Lightman wired: "Broadcast broke all Sunday records at Malco despite being third day of picture grossing over $1,700. Give us more 'Broadcasts' and Paramount worries will be over. Am going to step on 'Valiant'."

Three Owners In G. B., But Ostrers Rule

20th-Fox Checked Until Voting Shares Sold

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The legal position resulting from John Maxwell's buy into Metropolis and Bradford Trust seems to be a three-way ownership of Gaumont British with control still resting with the Ostrer brothers.

If the Ostrers act as nominees of Maxwell, using their control under his instructions, Twentieth Century-Fox appears to have no court remedy in the absence of a formal sale of the "A," or voting shares.

The situation implies a threat to Twentieth Century-Fox, as it cannot challenge British control. The company may sell part, or all, of its shares to Maxwell on the best terms possible, with a guarantee of playdates for quota pictures from Maxwell and Gaumont British.

Twentieth Century-Fox may sue, alleging that control has passed by secret agreement, but is seen having little chance of getting the original

Report Chase Bank Ready to Talk Sale

LONDON, Oct. 13.—On good authority it has been learned that S. R. Kent, Twentieth Century-Fox president, has instructions from the Chase National Bank to deal with John Maxwell, Associated British Pictures head.

It is understood that if a good price can be obtained for Twentieth Century-Fox shares in Metropolis and Bradford Trust, Joseph M. Schenck will not be allowed to fight the transfer of G. B. control to Maxwell's company.

No comment was obtainable from Chase Bank officials in New York.

H. J. Ochs Is Named Assistant to Sears

Herbert J. Ochs, Warner branch manager at Atlanta, has been named as assistant to Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager. He will begin his new duties immediately.

Bob Mochrie is another assistant to Sears.

Ochs is now in Atlanta installing

Metro Units Will Dissolve To Cut Taxes; Brand Stays

Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corp., Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Dist. Corp., Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corp. and Culver Export, the latter handling the company's foreign sales, will be dissolved shortly to ease income tax payments and the entire business of these various wholly-owned Loew's, Inc., subsidiaries is to be cleared through the parent company.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer brand name with its highly valuable trademark value on which millions of dollars have been spent, obviously will be continued, but contracts for product, once the changeover is completed, will be made by exhibitors directly with Loew's Inc.

Attorneys for Loew's and M-G-M have been working nights and weekends in an effort to effect the change by Jan. 1. The policy is one which has been adopted by large companies in other fields and is very likely a future one for other companies in this field, including Radio where reports have been current for several days that the theatre end of that enterprise will be placed under the future

M-G-M Moves Shorts Activities to Coast

All M-G-M short subject activities, including sales, will be centralized at the studios in Culver City in the future. Fred C. Quimby, general manager of this department, tomorrow will leave for the coast with his family to make his permanent headquarters on the coast. He will, however, maintain an office in New York for periodic trips and conferences with eastern executives.

James A. FitzPatrick also will

Not to May 1

Hollywood, Oct. 13.—The M-G-M production schedule to May 1, 1937, includes no plans for future Norma Shearer vehicles. Insiders here, however, discredit reports that, when she resumes her professional career, she will confine her activities to production, as has been reported.

By the terms of Irving Thalberg's will, Miss Shearer is now a heavy holder of Loew's, Inc., stock.

Stereoscopic Screen Device Is Submitted

By W. A. WHITNEY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The long-dreamed-of stereoscopic projection of pictures is possible, says Peter Serge Litt, 28-year-old Washington inventor.

Litt, who was formerly with the experimental departments of RCA, now is with Sylvania-Hi Grade radio tube manufactory.

Without the use of spectacles or added projection equipment—and without special methods of camera manipulation or equipment, the Litt method achieves its end entirely

"Laughing Woman" Fails in Effort to Bestir Emotions

Good-looking and young genius, mowed down in the early days of the war. Left behind the woman, old enough to be his mother, who first had guided and then loved him, and a world made poorer with that genius gone.

In the rough outline, here would seem to be enough of the makings in drama and tragedy for evolvement into a play which might hammer touchingly and hard at the heartstrings. But "The Laughing Woman," latest hopeful adventurer to reach Broadway for a run and profits, it must be admitted, simply has not got it.

It may be the unchanged monotone of its tempo, punctuated occasionally by a burst of noisy fire and anger as Tonio Selwart, the young sculptor, clashes with his guiding force, Helen Menken. It may have been the fashioning of the play, its guarrulity which made it ramble. Loquacity has a habit of doing that. Perhaps it was these several damaging factors, in combination, but the inevitable reaction is clear, even if the causes leading to it may be mixed,

Independents, B. & K. Settle On Clearance

Duals Approved; Extra Clearance Dropped

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—The proposed suit which independents here had planned to file against Balaban & Katz and major distributors over clearance difficulties and double featuring will not materialize. The abandonment of the legal action results from a settlement reached here today between legal counsel representing B. & K. and independents involved in the dispute.

In accordance with the compromise reached, B. & K. will not take advantage of the extra clearance between C week and the first week of release which they had asked and were granted in the current season's contracts. In recognition of the circuit's concession, the independents have agreed to advance no objection to double featuring by B. & K., who plan to start dual programs in five outlying houses this week.

Each faction in the controversy considers itself to have won a victory, the independents for having eliminated the extra clearance and the circuit for having gained assent to its double featuring policy. The suit was to have been filed this week, probably

Grants Hilles Leave To Appeal Katz Case

The Paramount reorganization trustee, Charles D. Hilles, was granted leave yesterday by Federal Judge William Bondy to appeal to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals from a ruling by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe which allowed the claim of Sam Katz for $265,000 against Paramount. Katz's claim is based on an unexpired employment contract which was in existence at the time he left Paramount in 1932.

The Paramount trustee's appeal, it

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Joseph H. Seidelman, foreign manager for Columbia, who has been in Europe for some time, sailed on the Queen Mary. John Baxter and Frederic Lonsdale are also aboard.

Garbo Answers Suit

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—Greta Garbo, in an answer filed in court here today, contended that the statute of limitations applied in a suit brought against her for $10,500 allegedly lent her in Swedish kronen and German marks in 1924. H. Fitzpatrick, assignee for D. Schratter, a German producer, brought the action against the actress.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

REMAKES are not always the most comfortable pictures to make. Where the original emerged as a memorable effort, the latter day version provides itself with an additional obstacle. Yet, sometimes it works and, in the instance of the British-made version of "Broken Blossoms," quite definitely it has. The producer, Twickenham of London, graciously not only acknowledges the Thomas Burke vignette of Limehouse which supplied the story base, but also the 1919 effort of David Wark Griffith and that, we suggest, is in itself an uncommon circumstance in this business. . . .

Emlyn Williams, young English actor currently appearing on the New York stage, plays the idealistic Chinaman who, you may remember, was portrayed in the Griffith version by Richard Barthelmess; Arthur Margetson is the battler, the Donald Crisp role, and Dolly Haas, the frightened, half-starved and brutalized girl which was one of the best things Lillian Gish ever attempted. Hans Brahms is responsible for the direction and Imperial has acquired the rights for America. That clears away the facts in the case. . . .

As a dramatic effort, more can and will be said about "Broken Blossoms." Slightly rough technically, it may be. Margetson's callousness may be overplayed and Williams, it might be said, does not look startlingly like a Chinaman. But the heartbreak and the tragedy are there. The delicacy in the long scenes between the girl and "Chinkie" are there to raise havoc with the emotions. For much of the picture has a gossamer-like quality despite the sordidness and the squalor of its background and to say that about any film strikes us as venturing forth with a great deal. Miss Haas, far and away, is the standout in point of performances. Her interpretation of the frightened, sunshine-less girl of the slums is a completely touching one and stamps with certainty the day, probably not long off, when one of the major studios will hurry her across ocean and continent for future work of like calibre, may it be, in Hollywood. . . .

A timely illustration emphasizing the essence of the tax consolidation plan now being worked over at Loew's where the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer companies per se will be dissolved is the case of the Schrafft stores. In the public's eye, the trademark value rests in this name. Few know that the controlling and operating company is the Frank G. Shattuck Corp. So it will be at M-G-M. Obviously, the internationally known symbols will be maintained, but Loew's, Inc., will be the control and the administrator. That's all there is to it except, of course, the savings in income taxes for which the procedure has been devised. Which is Loew's and M-G-M's business. . . .

The fracas between Twentieth Century-Fox and the Music Hall goes into no abatement with the booking by W. G. Van Schmus of "As You Like It." It appears Van Schmus saw the Bergner film, another effort from Shakespeare and London, and liked it. Thus, he made his deal. In the meantime and not necessarily related unless you want to make the blood tie, "Dimples" is delivering an excellent account of itself, so excellent, in fact and in deed, that its week's gross at the nearby Roxy will enter the ledger at about $52,000. . . .

This is as good a time and spot as any to correct an impression. Recent typewriter poundings here expressed a lack of understanding as to why and how the Music Hall had passed up "Follow Your Heart," that very good musical made by Republic with Marion Talley. We have been told that Van Schmus did not, that his proffered date was in December and that Republic decided not to wait. Thereafter, followed the booking at the new Criterion. . . .

"As You Like It" and Shakespeare remind of comment passed by Kelcey Allen at one of the week's earlier stage debuts. "I've looked at the current plays and the conclusion is that the Bard still is the best writer of them all." Shakespeare's shade is being offered no compliment. Not only is the stage season late, it is also tardy on merit. Hollywood consistently is doing a far better job of it. . . .

"Well, it worked out alright for both boys. They're both general sales managers now," mused Sam Dembow yesterday.

Referring, of course, to the appointment of Smith at United Artists the other day and of Sears at Warners after Andy pulled up stakes there recently. . . .

For twenty-four unmolested hours, "Sailor, Beware" blazoned from the marquee of the Rialto. Then Paramount went into an injunctive mood and Arthur Mayer had to swing over to the release title, "Lady, Be Careful." Among his contemplations is still another change. This one he would call "Mayer, Be Careful." . . .

Jimmy Grainger hit town from the coast yesterday, reporting he felt well aside from neuritis in one shoulder.

"That's not neuritis, it's Bob McNeill," remarked Jimmy's brother, Edmund. . . .

Fox Lists $75,000 In Additional Gifts

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 13.—William Fox contributed about $75,000 in 1931 for the purpose of purchasing paintings for art galleries and for other gifts to the cause of art, according to testimony given here today in his bankruptcy hearing.

The day was given over to going slowly through old checkbooks, with Fox and Herbert Leitsteen, his family bookkeeper, collaborating at the witness table in trying to remember the history of each check throughout that year. This was a continuation by the creditors' counsel of the effort to compile a complete list of Fox gifts.

"You can well understand," Fox mildly protested at one point, "that I have no reason not to tell you of the gifts. I'm rather proud and happy that I made them." He reasoned patiently with Walter Hanstein, one of the lawyers, on methods of speeding up the search.

The resulting list, by the end of the day, included $44,075 to the American Art Ass'n and somewhat smaller amounts to various galleries, $25,000 to the Emergency Unemployment Commission, $9,375 to the Beth Israel Hospital of New York, $8,000 for a pearl necklace for Mrs. Fox and various amounts to other members of the family, relatives and employes.

Chas. Previn Heads Music Dept. at "U"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.—Charles Previn today was named musical director at Universal in a studio music department shakeup. Herman Heller has resigned as business manager and has been succeeded by Lou Forbes who will work under Previn's supervision.

Heretofore the question of authority in the department had not been very clearly defined.

Criterion-G. N. Deal Set

Carl Leserman, general sales manager of Grand National, yesterday closed with Harry Charnas for the showing of "In His Steps" at the Criterion, starting Oct. 30. Another deal is on tap for at least two more Grand National bookings.

G. N. Changes Plans

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.—The move to house all of Grand National's units in one studio plant has been temporarily abandoned.

HERE COMES CARTER!

With Another Big October Show from Warner Bros.

You never have to take a finesse when you play M-G-M. It's in the cards that this season tops M-G-M's greatest previous years! "Gorgeous Hussy" started the winning streak. "Great Ziegfeld" at Popular Prices is hot after "San Francisco" records. And the Aces continue with "Libeled Lady" sensational in all opening engagements. The trade papers were right! "Box-office riot" said Film Daily. "Knockout box-office picture said Daily Variety. "It makes selling a pleasure" says M. P. Daily. "Big grosses everywhere," says Showmen's Trade Review. "They just don't come any better," says Hollywood Reporter. And you'll say HOORAY!

ANOTHER M-G-M GRAND SLAM!

THEY'RE RASCALS! THEY'RE ROWDY! AND THEY'RE RARIN' FOR ROMANCE!

Isn't it wonderful? Four favorite film frolickers in the year's swellest entertainment!

deal into court against the attitude of the Government.

The Financial Times comments on the obscurity of the Gaumont British and Associated British Pictures' statements and, referring to the Twentieth Century-Fox interests, suggests the deal must be incomplete until S. R. Kent is satisfied. The paper further comments on the absence of any mention of an offer to "the large body of general investors owning 40 per cent of Gaumont British ordinaries." It also refers to the "noticeable and regrettable absence of intimation from Gaumont British board as to earnings and any dividend." It suggests the deferment of completion of the deal, leaving directors free to settle this matter, which should have been done a month ago, the paper states.

No statements were made today by any of those concerned.

It is understood to be Maxwell's view that the second part of the Ostrer agreement covering sale of the "A" shares cannot be completed for weeks, perhaps months.

transfer production activities on his Traveltalks to the M-G-M studios. The independent producer will keep his New York office, but work on his travel subjects at the studio.

Heretofore, Quimby has made several trips to the coast each year. The switching of his permanent headquarters will obviate a lot of traveling for him in the future. He originally came from the coast and says it's more practical to operate from there.

Circuit Deals Completed

With the closing of the McNeil & Naify circuit yesterday, M-G-M has virtually completed product deals with every important independent circuit in the country.

The latest pact embraces 60 theatres in nothern California and is for a two-year period. William F. Rodgers, general sales manager; E. M. Saunders, western division manager, and George Hickey, western district manager, represented the distributor, while Bob McNeil and Mike Naify acted for the circuit in the negotiations.

After finishing the deal yesterday, Hickey left for Salt Lake City. He was in town about a week. McNeil and Naify plan to leave for San Francisco tonight.

administration of the picture company when reorganization is completed.

In view of the new Federal income tax rates, the inclination appears to be to forego the procedure largely in effect until now, under which the liability of each major subsidiary was made a limited one in order to keep the parent company as free of legal obligation as possible.

In the case of Metro, for instance, Federal taxes pyramid several ways, earnings of the distributing company are payable in the form of dividends to the picture company which, in turn, is controlled by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corp. Profits of the latter reflect in dividends payable to Loew's, Inc., the parent company which owns it. All of these corporations, of course, must file returns under the law, but this duplication will be eliminated under the consolidation plan which was described yesterday as mere intra-corporate activity without bearing of any description on the operations of the Loew companies outside of their own offices.

The identical procedure is being followed in respect to subsidiary theatre companies throughout the United States.

Few Have Signed—Howard

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Arthur K. Howard, business manager of Allied, today stated that 90 per cent of exhibitors attending a meeting of their association today have not signed new deals with M-G-M.

The meeting revolved around the question, "Can M-G-M deliver 30 big pictures this year?" the unit drawing its own conclusion that the company cannot and offering as evidence what purports to be Metro's latest rider to its contracts. Allied asserts the rider asks exhibitors to give up nine big pictures bought on 1935-36 contracts and allow the distributor to sell them again at 1936-37 prices.

Goldwyn's Demurrer Is Taken by Court

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—Judge William P. James in U. S. District Court has taken under advisement Samuel Goldwyn's demurrer in the suit filed by Paramount against him for alleged tampering with Gary Cooper while still under contract to Paramount.

Goldwyn's attorney, Herman P. Servin, contended the complaint failed to set forth a valid cause of action and there existed too many contingencies to measure damages.

Von Tilzer Ends Suit

A stipulation was filed in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday in connection with an action brought by Harry Von Tilzer, song publisher, to discontinue his suit against M-G-M. No other papers were filed and the facts in the case were not revealed.

Warner Party Saturday

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 13.—The Warner Club's annual dinner-dance at the Seven Gables Inn will be held on Saturday, with an expected attendance of 400.

Third Dimension

Rochester, Oct. 13.—Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith yesterday predicted third dimensional pictures in natural color in which the voices of players would follow them about the screen, within 50 years, in a talk before the S.M.P.E., in convention at the Sagamore Hotel here.

Implied in Goldsmith's talk were advancements in sound and color on the screen which eventually may do away with the stage player. Science must feel its way slowly, he said.

through the use of a special screen, he asserts.

Whatever silver sheet a house may be using is coated with a special chemical. Then, superimposed upon the reflecting curtain is a 16, 18, or 20-mesh wire screening, equal in size to the "sheet."

By treating the screening with a chemical to compensate for inherent distortions, an experimentally perfect stereoscopic illusion is attained, he claims.

When the MOTION PICTURE DAILY reporter called upon Litt, projection equipment and the specially designed screen were en route to Rochester. However, observers who had seen the apparatus at work stated that the third dimension was actually achieved.

Litt emphasizes that his invention does not involve the use of red-and-green spectacles.

Cost Moderate

While Litt, who is from Tonawanda, N. Y., makes no claims to perfection for his invention, he says he believes he has found the first practical solution to the problem. He estimates that production of his screen would not cost much over $10 or $15 more than the present screen price.

Litt achieves his stereoscopic effects with any film, with color films seeming to give better results than black and white. In this regard, Litt points out that production cost on regular film is about 2.5 cents a linear foot, that, for example, on "Audioscopics" being around $1.20 a linear foot.

Litt also is working on apparatus to eliminate distortion from pictures when viewed from side seats.

Poe, Schlaifer Assistant

Seymour Poe, formerly head of United Artists sales promotion department, has been named as home office assistant to Jack Schlaifer, western division manager.

S. M. P. E. Fire Rules Urged At Convention

ROCHESTER, Oct. 13.—The necessity for the preparation by the S.M.P.E. of a standard set of instructions indicating to the theatre projectionist exactly how to proceed in the event of fire in the projection booth, was stressed in a paper on "Fire Prevention in the Film Industry," read by H. Anderson of Paramount at today's meeting of the annual fall convention of the society, which opened yesterday at the Sagamore Hotel here.

The Anderson paper was one of six which were delivered before approximately 200 delegates assembled here.

Anderson pointed out that the film exchanges have an excellent fire record, the lowest fire loss total of any industry in the United States. The adoption of active fire prevention measures by the exchanges was credited by Anderson for that record. He suggested that individual film engineers keep fire prevention in mind in connection with their work, whether it is operation or design.

Tour Kodak Park

Today's session was held at the Kodak Research Laboratories at Kodak Park, as the guests of Eastman Kodak. The general technical session was held in the auditorium of the laboratory. The reading of papers was confined to the morning, luncheon having been followed by an inspection tour of Kodak Park.

In two papers on "Stability of Films as Determined by Accelerated Age," and "Care of Slide-Films and Motion Picture Films in Libraries," J. R. Hill and C. G. Weber of the National Bureau of Standards at Washington declared that film of the safety type shows great promise as a material upon which to preserve records of permanent value. Its value has been indicated by tests made at the Standards Bureau, the paper pointed out.

In the second paper the two engineers declared the reference libraries of the future may contain files of photographic films in addition to shelves of conventional books.

H. B. Tuttle of Eastman Kodak read a paper on "Medical Motion Pictures in Color," in which he cited the improvements made in the past year in the methods, apparatus and materials employed in the production of medical films.

Film Manufacture Described

A detailed description of the manufacture of films was given by E. K. Carver of Eastman Kodak in his paper, "Manufacture of Motion Picture Film."

J. G. Capstaff, O. E. Miller and L. S. Wilder of Eastman prepared a paper on "The Projection of Lenticular Color Films," in which were pointed out the changes necessary in standard theatre projection equipment for the satisfactory use of lenticular films. Successful experiments have been carried out at Loew's Rochester and in New York, it was said.

Speakers generally today stressed the most important method yet devised for recording of surgical work, current events and criminal identification.

"Adverse" in 3d Big Week On the Loop

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—After two weeks at the Chicago "Anthony Adverse" moved over to the Apollo and had another smash week, grossing $10,500, which was more than 100 per cent over par.

"Sing, Baby, Sing" maintained its fast pace in a second week at the Garrack by garnering $8,000, over the line by $2,500, and "The Last of the Mohicans" turned in an excellent $14,000 in 10 days at the Roosevelt. This was $3,000 over a seven-day average.

"Piccadilly Jim," with Leo Carillo heading a stage show at the Chicago, ran up to a nice $34,500, up by $2,500.

Total first run business was $120,100. Average is $115,000.

Cine Roma Is Closed

The Cine Roma, Broadway house which has been showing Italian films exclusively since its opening several months ago, closed yesterday temporarily. Reports that the house was closed because of insufficient Italian product could not be verified at the theatre or at the offices of Nuovo Mondo, distributor of Italian films and the chief source of product for the Cine Roma.

"Broadcast" Does Well

"The Big Broadcast of 1937," in its first 16 key city engagements, is grossing above the average weekly take at the theatres where it is playing, according to Paramount. An opening day record was set at the Florida in Jacksonville, the home office reports.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Rose Bowl"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.—Collegiate comedy and romance are the entertainment essences of this picture. Not pretentious, the film is rather one that concentrates its bid for audience appreciation on the light, gay quality of the story content. Its chief appeal is to younger patrons. Well put together, the plot runs coherently and is played by a youthful cast with sparkle and zest.

In the story Tom Brown and Buster Crabbe, high school rivals for the affection of Eleanore Whitney, go to different colleges. Both become gridiron notables. In the senior year, the respective teams are in line for the Rose Bowl game. Brown's fresh water college is little known to the football fans but William Frawley, the coach, aided by newspaper men, seizes upon the romantic rivalry between Brown and Crabbe, plus the comedy contrast involving Brown's pal, Benny Baker, and Priscilla Lawson, a budding screen star, to kick up excitement. The finale is typical with a football game in which Brown's team wins over Crabbe's, and the hero-romance angle of the story winning over the football theatrics.

While there is exciting material in the film, main attention is focused on the campus comedy-romance. Brown, Crabbe, Baker, Miss Whitney and Miss Lawson turn in creditable performances, with Baker accounting for the most fun. In the football sequences Nick Lukats is good.

The story by Frances Wallace with the screenplay by Marguerite Roberts is just enough off the beaten path to permit exhibitors to exploit the film as novel and fresh.

and that reaction is that this play does not even touch the general area of the heart.

It seemed to develop an aloofness with its audience at the Golden last night. There was nothing to bestir the emotions, nothing to move the spectators onto the stage to suffer and enjoy the disappointments and the brief pleasures of the two leading characters.

The plot has the young artist meet Miss Menken. She represents his ideal woman and, together on a platonic basis purely, they leave Paris for London. When Lora Baxter, a pre-war feminine menace moving in literary and art circles, makes a play for Selwart, he very early falls, only to be pulled back to art and poverty by Miss Menken. Then comes the war and Selwart, looking towards the flies, decides he must volunteer. It seemed that here the plot fumbled pretty badly. The character of the artist, until this juncture, had placed him virtually apart from mundane matters, including newspaper headlines. He was totally unorthodox in his viewpoint on life and presumably unfamiliar with its commercial and, also, political whirligigs. Yet, one headline finds him abandoning a career in which he, at least, believed, to go to the front. Consistency went for a stroll in Scene 3, Act. 2. He is killed, of course, and thereafter his memory becomes stored in Miss Menken's treasure chest.

Selwart was all right without brilliance. Miss Menken continued her Menken-esque gestures and suffered nobly, but Miss Baxter's siren ought to induce someone connected with the James R. Ullman-Shubert producing auspices to ask her what the idea is anyway.

Hollywood? Well, "The Laughing Woman" possibly, perhaps and maybe will interest someone in those parts, but a faster-beating pulse would have more reason to increase its norm over something else.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 13.—Ben Steerman, chief auditor for Warners here, is passing around the cigars. It's a girl and his first child. Mrs. Steerman was formerly Miriam Wald, a stenographer in the Warner booking department.

Newspaper Men Will Fete Film Notables

The Ass'n of Foreign Press Correspondents will be host tomorrow afternoon at the Lombardy to a number of film executives, stars and directors including Dr. A. H. Giannini, president of United Artists; William Wyler, Rouben Mamoulian, Paulette Goddard, Fredric March, Nino Martini and, if possible, Miriam Hopkins, and Gertrude Lawrence.

A. Bernard Maloney, president of the association, will preside at the luncheon which will start at 1 P.M.

Mamoulian Hits Stars on Air

The participation of film stars in radio programs was scored as being bad for them and for theatres by Rouben Mamoulian in an interview at his hotel here yesterday.

"I do not think that more than one or two radio appearances a year are good for film people," Mamoulian said. "Any more frequent appearances than that are injurious. We all know that what is too easily available loses its value, and in the case of film stars the injury done is visited upon the theatres which sell their entertainment as well as upon the individuals themselves."

Mamoulian's condemnation of broadcasting by studio personalities is the first to be made here by a Hollywood figure. Mamoulian added that the vast amount of material consumed by radio programs makes an occasional poor program inescapable, and said it was his opinion that the injury to a star's standing, when identified with such a program, is vastly more serious than an appearance in an occasional poor picture.

Mamoulian came here for the opening of "The Gay Desperado," which he directed for United Artists. He leaves for the coast tomorrow to go over a script which he may direct for Paramount. He said that he intended to continue as a free lance.

Purely Personal

DICK POWELL and JOAN BLONDELL visited the Tavern yesterday for lunch and were the cynosure of many eyes. GRADWELL SEARS who sells their pictures, is accompanied by HARRY CHARNAS at a table in the opposite corner and took it all calmly, as did E. L. ALPERSON and CARL LESERMAN, who later joined SEARS and CHARNAS. JIM NORMALLY, CHARLES D. PAINE and GEORGE BATCHELLER were grouped together in deep conversation, while HARRY SHIFFMAN, CHARLES MOSES, EDWARD SCHNITZER and HENRY BROWN discussed the Monday Knighters' beefsteak dinner to MOE STREIMER at the Park Central on Oct. 20. BROWN advised no more reservations are being taken and just as he finishes in walks STREIMER, accompanied by EDDIE MULLEN of the U. A. exchange.

Declaring there's no significance to the gathering despite the impending deal between G.B. and A.B.P., BUDD ROGERS, JOHN MAXWELL's representative in America, informally chats with ARTHUR LEE and GEORGE W. WEEKS, who are in good spirits. At another table, JACK HOFFBERG, JULES CHAPMAN and JACK BARNSTYN revive their talks on the independent market and its outlook. JAMES A. FITZPATRICK has a group of friends with him. ED FAY and COLVIN BROWN are seated at one of the side tables, and MONROE GREENTHAL, GEORGE BROWN, TESS MICHAELS and SAMMY COHEN manage to get in a plug for U.A. during the meal. SAM RINZLER and HENRY RANDEL reminisce over the wedding of LOUIS FRISCH's son, EMANUEL, on Sunday night. Motion pictures were taken, it seems, but no one has seen them, as yet. A. P. WAXMAN and BILL SAAL chat for a few moments when the latter decides to make the rounds of the various tables for a friendly greeting. EMIL JENSEN and ARNOLD VAN LEER are in the far end of the place where "The Gay Desperado" is the topic of conversation.

HARRY C. ARTHUR will leave by car with his family today for St. Louis where he will make his permanent residence. WILLIAM SCHNEIDER will be in the party as well as Arthur's brother, EDWIN.

ANTON LITVAK brought his car over with him on the Normandie. There was a lot of excitement on the dock Monday when the director couldn't locate the machine for half an hour.

GEORGE HIRLIMAN is planning to bring GEORGE O'BRIEN in from the coast for personal appearances with "Daniel Boone." O'BRIEN may arrive next week.

WILLIAM F. RODGERS, general sales manager of M-G-M, will leave for a tour of exchanges next week.

JOHNNY WEISMULLER sailing on the Normandie.

J. J. MILSTEIN, general sales manager of Republic, is in Detroit.

A. H. SCHWARTZ will leave in the next day or two for Lake Placid.

ED FINNEY is due back from Hollywood in 10 days.

Admiral Kuykendall Still Tossing at Sea Yesterday

Ed Kuykendall, the prominent yachtsman from northeastern Mississippi; "Buddy" Harris, the Dallas, Tex., tar, and Hal Young, who left late last Friday night on a cruise to Philadelphia, were still somewhere at sea without having reached their destination at a late hour yesterday. The trio are aboard the La Vedatte, an 82-foot cruiser owned by J. Don Alexander, the Colorado Springs, Col., seaman.

From a few chips from the ship's log which were floated to shore near Gravesend Bay yesterday in a Haig & Haig pinch bottle it was learned that the cruiser had to run for harbor on the Jersey shore from heavy seas on Saturday. Venturing out again Sunday, the mariners were off Atlantic City when engine trouble developed and a forced landing was made for repairs. They took off again Monday and were last seen on their way up the Delaware River, but the welcoming committee at the Philadelphia dock, which included Jay Emanuel, Lewen Pizor, Dave Barrist and Ed Segal, after a full day of pinochle while they waited, gave up and returned to their offices yesterday.

Young transferred to a fishing schooner off Cape May and was landed here yesterday, but was unable to shed any light on the present whereabouts of his erstwhile cruise companions.

"Romeo" Sales Hold Up

Although the picture is now in its ninth week, "Romeo and Juliet" continues to maintain an advance sale of more than $5,000, it was stated yesterday at M-G-M. For the week just ended, the take tallied $12,500. Some weeks the advance has topped $6,000, and, according to company executives, there is no indication when the Shakespearean film will be withdrawn for "The Good Earth."

Bill Would Up Licenses

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 13.—A proposed new city license law, if enacted at the next session of the city council, would increase theatre licenses from $100 and $200 to $300 for all houses, and would raise circus licenses from $1,000 to $1,500.

The stork race between the Charlie Einfelds and the Buddy Morrises ended yesterday morning with the Morrises the winners. Their third daughter, weight 6¾ pounds, was born at the Doctor's Hospital.

Dudelson and Soskin Hurt in Auto Crash

DETROIT, Oct. 13.—Morris Dudelson, United Artists branch manager, and Leonard Soskin, state salesman, are in St. Mary's Hospital, Grand Rapids, suffering from injuries received when their car crashed into a sand truck on the road between Grand Rapids and Marshall.

Dudelson received wrist and leg fractures and was seriously cut and bruised. He will be in the hospital for 10 days after which he will be brought to Detroit in an ambulance. Soskin was badly shaken up and cut and bruised. He will be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

Witnesses said that the truck turned onto the highway from a side road in front of Soskin's car and stalled.

Wins "Ecstasy" Action

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 13.—Judge Thomas J. Seehorn of the Circuit Court has found Breckenridge Fagin and Robert F. Lakenan, Jr., of the Royal not guilty on a charge of showing "Ecstasy" without a city permit. Judge Sehorn based his decision on the fact that Fagin and Lakenan were showing the picture during the time a Circuit Court order was in effect restraining city officials and police from interfering with its exhibition.

Bandit Gets $6,000

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 13.—Police have been unsuccessful thus far in capturing the masked bandit who robbed Ted I. Nicholas, manager of the Lyric, of $6,000 last night. The money represented the receipts for Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Thursday afternoon, in order to get an injunction against dualling put into effect before the circuit could get a restraining order.

Today's settlement halts what might have developed into a serious and expensive battle for all concerned. Further, it permits the resumption of selling which had entirely ceased pending the outcome of the dispute.

Representatives of independents, at a meeting called late this afternoon by Aaron Saperstein, decided to postpone the inauguration of double featuring until they feel that their theatres are directly affected by the adoption of the policy by others.

November releases, which at the present time are set up in accordance with the disputed clearance plan, are to be changed to conform to the old clearance policy.

Tom Manning Dead

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.—Tom Manning, veteran stage and screen actor, died Saturday of a heart attack while on the set of "San Quentin." Manning had a featured role in "Councellor at Law." He was also a pioneer announcer in New York in the early days of radio broadcasting.

End of Waste Is Called For By Aylesworth

Studio Cooperation Need, S. M. P. E. Is Told

ROCHESTER, Oct. 14.—Real cooperation among the major producing companies in prohibiting waste of manpower and money is the only means of meeting the steadily increasing cost of production in Hollywood, declared Merlin H. Aylesworth, chairman of the board of RKO, in an address at the semi-annual banquet of the S.M.P.E. at the Oak Hill Country Club tonight.

The banquet was the feature of the third day of the society's four-day annual fall meeting at the Sagamore Hotel here. During the banquet the progress medal and the S.M.P.E. Journal award were presented.

Aylesworth declared that the necessary cooperation can be accomplished "even in a business as competetive as ours," by the heads of the companies "realizing and putting into practice a coordinated plan of real cooperation which is bound to lessen the cost of

RKOReorganization Plan In Preparation

Efforts to complete a plan of reorganization for RKO within the next week are to be made by influential factors, it was learned authoritatively yesterday.

While that objective is stated to be a definite possibility, numerous negotiations of importance in any plan which may be drawn remain to be completed. Concurrences of holders of large claims against RKO to a reorganization plan have not yet been obtained. Although the lack of these

British CEA Protests Spread Of Foreign Theatres Control

London, Oct. 14.—The Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n general council has passed a resolution opposing acquisition of control of any more British theatres by foreign interests.

The resolution reads: "All possible steps should be taken to prevent the acquisition of control of more British cinemas by foreign interests, now or in the future."

Copies were sent to the Prime Minister and leaders of all political parties.

Maxwell Made G.B. Director In New Moves

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Indications that the Ostrer brothers and John Maxwell have no fear of legal obstacles in the path of his entrance into Gaumont British are seen in the fact that he has been formally elected as a member of the board as a result of his acquisition of "B" stock in Metropolis and Bradford Trust, holding company.

A possible legal dispute over the deal with Twentieth Century-Fox turns on an interpretation of three articles of association in Metropolis and Bradford Trust.

No. 23A says the Ostrers cannot transfer any part of their "A" shares while Twentieth Century-Fox retains 2,431 shares. No. 30 gives the directors power to refuse registration of transfers. No. 89 says refusal of transfer must be agreed to by four directors, and if no such resolution is

KRS Stand on Dixey Scheme British Worry

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Fears that the Kinematograph Renters' Society, representative body of distributors, may take steps against the Independent Exhibitors' Distribution Co., cooperative scheme fathered by Capt. A. C. N. Dixey, are a leading factor in forming theatre owners' reactions to the scheme, and are now being openly expressed, after having been whispered ever since the scheme was propounded.

Securing more or less unanimous support for the principle of his scheme from exhibitor meetings in English provincial cities, Capt. Dixey found more scepticism from Scottish exhibitors gathered at Glasgow, where there was a request that he should retire from the meeting while exhibitors privately discussed the proposition.

On his return Capt. Dixey was specifically asked for his opinion as to

Patricide and Homicide Dot New Tragedy; Not for Films

"Daughters of Atreus," Robert Turney's melodrama, which opened last night at the 44th Street, seems to offer evidence that theatrical producers, at least, are convinced of a New Deal in the theatre. Otherwise, it seems doubtful to this observer that any producer would undertake the presentation of a full-fledged Greek tragedy, without the paternal aid and protection of the WPA, unless he were convinced the time was economically ripe to cater to what must be a limited group of theatregoers. However, in a season ranging from "Pre-Honeymoon" to two versions of "Hamlet," and a study of Napoleon, among other things, even Greek tragedy in the grand manner ought to have the opportunity of stating its case to those who care for it. Certainly, they are not legion.

In spite of what struck this reviewer as a competent and often beautifully written play, there seems little reason for Turney's restatement of Aeschylus's majestic epic of Agamemnon and Orestes, unless it, and it very likely, is his intention to elucidate and humanize this heroic drama of vengeance, for the many, instead of the

General Shift For Corporate Setups Coming

All Industry's Branches Seek Cuts in Taxes

Wholesale revamping of the corporate structures of all large and medium-sized companies in all branches of the industry for the purposes of eliminating pyramided Federal income and profits taxes is either under way or contemplated. The plan, outlining in detail the method to be applied to Loew theatre subsidiaries and to major M-G-M companies yesterday, is merely a case in point.

Meetings were conducted at Paramount in the last few days to figure out a practicable procedure of applying the consolidation scheme to important theatre subsidiaries as another concrete case in point. R. J. O'Donnell of the Interstate Circuit, who is one of those attending these sessions, sounded the keynote when he informed MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday that all of the properties owned or operated by his company under their individual setups will be fused into the major holding corporation when the detail is cleared away.

The expectancy is that various subsidiaries now operating studios in

Rogers Plans Trip Here

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—Charles R. Rogers will leave next Tuesday for New York on a 10-day story and talent hunt. He will make a stopover at Dallas.

Kuykendall Sights Camden and Lands

Ed Kuykendall, the seafaring exhibitor leader from Columbus, Miss., came ashore at Camden, N. J., yesterday, four and a half days out from the port of New York on the La Vedatte, the seagoing cruiser owned by the Colorado Springs yachtsman, J. Don Alexander. Buddy Harris, the deep-water navigator from Dallas, was in charge of the cruise, which started last Friday night from the New York Yacht Club anchorage at 26th St. and the East River, and was interrupted in the interim by such incidentals as heavy seas, wind storms and engine trouble.

"Columbus was a piker," Kuykendall wired friends here yesterday. "He should have tried to discover Philadelphia."

The M.P.T.O.A. president left immediately for his Mississippi home, but by rail. Reports that he would begin work at once on a sequel to "Two Years Before the Mast" for production by Alexander Film Co. could not be verified yesterday. Friends said that Kuykendall planned to be in Memphis Sunday for an exhibitor convention, but probably would not make the trip by water.

Court Approves RKO Canada Theatre Deal

An order approving the dissolution of RKO Canada, a theatre operating subsidiary of RKO, and a related agreement with Famous Players Canadian, was signed yesterday by Federal Judge William Bondy.

The agreement provides for the surrender by RKO Canada of three theatre leaseholds in the Dominion to Famous Players Canadian and the release of the latter from a $220,000 obligation to RKO Canada in return for the assumption of the leases, and other considerations. Promissory notes amounting to $160,000, payable 15 years from last June 1, will be issued by RKO Canada to Maritime Corp., a realty company, and on the conclusion of the payments the RKO Canadian subsidiary will be dissolved. The RKO petition, which was presented by Irving Trust Co., trustee in reorganization, set forth that the Canadian theatre operations involved had been unprofitable over a long period of years.

Fox Court Fight Begins

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 14.—The legal fight to take away the All-Continent Corp. from the wife and daughters of William Fox and to turn over its assets to the trustee in his $9,500,000 bankruptcy, began here today in New Jersey Chancery Court.

Vice-Chancellor Frank W. Sooy ordered the All-Continent officers (Mrs. Eva Fox and the Misses Mona and Belle Fox) to show cause on Nov. 10 why the All-Continent assets should not be turned over to Hiram Steelman, trustee in bankruptcy. Meanwhile, he granted to Steelman an ad interim injunction restraining them from disposing of the assets before that date. Papers setting forth these orders were served tonight on the family.

The petition by Steelman makes the request on the theory that the All-Continent assets, estimated between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000, belong to William Fox despite his story of turning them over to the members of his family through a trust agreement. Steelman also asks the return of various other gifts which Fox made to his wife and daughters, including the estate at Woodmere, L. I., which he gave to his wife.

Fox Again on Stand

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 14.—William Fox and his bookeeper, Herbert Leitsteen, continued today their searching through check stub books for the purpose of sorting gifts for listing by creditors' lawyers at the bankruptcy hearing today.

Referee Robert E. Steedle adjourned the hearing at noon on Fox's plea of illness. It will be resumed at 10 A.M. tomorrow.

Jersey Exhibitors Refuse to Pay Tax

After many months of paying under protest, most of the northern New Jersey theatres being served from local exchanges are now refusing to swell New York's emergency relief coffers.

While most of the distributors continue to send out bills with the sales tax added, exhibitors in general are ignoring this item in film rental payments. Branch managers and cashiers at the local exchanges are not pressing the demand for the tax, since the N. Y. Supreme Court recently ruled that it was unnecessary to pay the tax. The City of New York has appealed the decision in the Court of Appeals at Albany.

Distributors also are appealing a decision handed down recently that theatres in the five boroughs are subject to the tax, their contention being that the contracts are for the rental of film and not for a sale.

Paine Amends His Suit Against Erpi

An amended complaint asking for $211,743 was filed in Federal Court yesterday in behalf of John G. Paine, as agent and trustee for a group of music publishers and other owners of musical compositions, against Erpi. The amount asked for represents royalties allegedly due since 1929 when E. C. Mills resigned from the trusteeship now held by Paine.

In September, 1927, according to the amended complaint, Mills and Paine, on behalf of the owners of thousands of songs, entered into a royalty agreement with Erpi granting licenses to record and sub-record all the compositions over which they had control.

No answer to the complaint has been filed yet.

Warner-Bette Davis British Action Opens

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Sir Patrick Hastings opened the Warner case against Bette Davis in King's Bench Court by saying that the company's contract with her called for $1,350 per week, rising to $3,000 in six years. She had been bribed to break the contract, he said, and this was "not a thing respectable people in this business do."

Jack Warner gave evidence. The case was adjourned.

FitzPatrick to Sail Soon

James A. FitzPatrick will sail on the Queen Mary next week for England where he will begin work on "Auld Lang Syne," the life story of Bobby Burns, at the Cinesound studios. The producer plans to return to New York around Christmas and then go to the coast to cut and edit the remaining Traveltalk for M-G-M release this season. All the subjects have been photographed.

After completing his short subject lineup for 1936-37, FitzPatrick will take a Technicolor unit to Peru, Chile and Patagonia, South America; Robinson Crusoe Islands, and Buenos Aires. He will also make a subject on the China Clipper route, picturing the Midway Island, Wake Island, Guam and Manila.

Greece and Africa Back Studio Plans

Greece and Africa are entering the international film market with ambitious studio plans, and representatives of the backers of the new production enterprises in both countries are in New York now to attempt to interest American production talent in utilizing the facilities which will soon be available, it was learned yesterday.

The Greek studios will be located in Athens and several others are planned for locales on the north coast of Africa. The envoys are emphasizing the scenic and historic advantages of their respective studio locations in their conversations with American production talent, it was said. Their visits here follow closely that of Carlo Roncoroni, Italy's film envoy, who endeavored to interest American producers in utilizing the new $10,000,000 Italian studio project near Rome, which is scheduled to be opened next spring.

Rouben Mamoulian, who leaves for the coast today after a 10-day visit here, and who was one of those contacted by the representatives of both the Greek and African studio enterprises, cited the developments as a significant example of the increasing world interest in film production.

"Valiant" $38,000 Draw at Paramount

"Valiant Is the Word for Carrie" garnered approximately $38,000 at the Paramount for the first week ending Tuesday night. The picture will be supplanted by "The Big Broadcast of 1937" next Wednesday and this will be followed by Mae West in "Go West Young Man."

The new Criterion grossed about $21,000 on the first seven days of "Ramona." At the Music Hall "The Gay Desperado" in six days tallied $90,000. It's being held for another week.

Executives Quitting Old Studios of Fox

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—By next Monday, all equipment and executive personnel will have been moved to the Westwood studio from the Twentieth Century-Fox Western Ave. lot.

"Career Woman" and "Crackup" are still shooting, and will be completed on the old lot. In the future it is planned to keep a number of pictures going on the six stages on Western Ave., but all executive activities will be concentrated at Fox Hills.

Steiner Gets Tobis Post

Joseph Steiner has been named sales manager of American Tobis Corp. by W. E. Van Beveren, managing director. Steiner will start immediately on a sales campaign for "Carnival in Flanders," the French film which opened here as "Kermesse Heroique."

Sells Three Serials

Stage & Screen Prod. have sold three Weiss-Mintz serials to Samuel J. Davidson of Cameo Screen Attractions, for distribution in the New England territory. The three are "Custer's Last Stand," "The Clutching Hand" and "The Black Coin."

few who might prefer Aeschylus's own version. Otherwise, Turney might have followed the example of Eugene O'Neill in transplanting his tragic theme to modern times, as O'Neill did in "Mourning Becomes Electra."

Last night's gory proceedings, interspersed with eye-compelling tableaux, ran the gamut of patricide, regicide and plain homicide, offering the impatient and irreverant a sort of lyric vendetta, in togas and tunics, in the hills of Greece. Even "Macbeth" seems an evening of light entertainment in the theatre compared to the relentless march of murder committed by the House of Atreus. Klytaimnestra, who is, in her way, the Lady Macbeth of antiquity, is ably played by Eleanora Mendelssohn, in her first American appearance, and she presents a truly regal appearance as the brooding murderess of Agamemnon. A capable supporting cast features Maria Ouspenskaya who gives a touching performance as Polymnia, the aged nurse, despite a Russian accent; Joanna Roos, truly her mother's daughter, makes a properly implacable Electra, while the rest of the players lend more or less competent support to the drama which unfolds against splendidly effective settings by Jo Mielziner, distinguished for their simplicity. Beautiful lighting effects and unusually handsome costuming by James Reynolds add up to make "Daughters of Atreus" a commendable dramatic venture in itself—to a necessarily limited audience.

As Hollywood material it offers nothing in the way of salable merchandise to movie fans. It will be remembered that not even the robust humor of "Lysistrata" or "The Warrior's Husband" served to overcome lack of interest in Greek costume plays, not even with the Skourases.

Councilmen at Odds On Jacksonville Tax

JACKSONVILLE, Oct. 14.—A split on the proposed new theatre license ordinance developed in the City Council's Laws and Rules Committee following a hearing at which business men protested. Among the objectors was Guy Kenimer, representing the Sparks interests.

The measure proposed a flat fee of $200, instead of the present rate running from $100 to $200.

Bombs Mystifying K. C.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 14.—Early Monday morning a bomb exploded on the roof of Louis Sutter's Hollywood. The result was a two-foot hole in the roof, and damage to the screen.

The previous Monday employes of the theatre discovered a bomb on the roof which had failed to explode. Neither George Ellis, manager, nor Sutter, could assign a reason for the bombs.

Recently a bomb was found on the roof of the Castle.

Manager Conn. Candidate

BALTIC, Conn., Oct. 14.—Henry Phaneuf, manager of the Jodoin, is the candidate for state representative on the Democratic ticket.

No Touchdown

Pullman, Wash., Oct. 14.—It took a screening of the closing moments of the Washington State College-Stanford game to convince the coaching staff of Washington State that their backfield ace had not gone over the line in the fourth quarter. The referee said no, a storm of protest arose, and the film settled the matter. No touchdown.

General Gets Space In RKO Pathe Plant

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—The newly formed General Pictures has leased space at the RKO Pathe Studios and intends to start three features in six weeks. The titles are: "Trouble on Wheels," "Old Curiosity Shop" and "Let's All Sing."

F. Fenn Kimball is head of the new company with Mack Weinberger as sales manager and Robert Welsh, former Monogram executive, as production chief.

The company plans 26 features annually, eight to be musical westerns using the Dunning two-color process. San Francisco capital is understood to be behind the company, with plans set for an exchange system and offices in Rockefeller Center.

Seven of Equity's Members Join SAG

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—Seven of the 25 players who were warned three weeks ago to join the Screen Actors' Guild or lose their membership in Equity have joined S. A. G. prior to the expiration of the time limit set. The new members are John Barrymore, Barbara Stanwyck, De Witt Jennings, J. Farrell MacDonald, Lionel Atwill, Erik Rhodes and Arthur Hoyt.

Reports are current here that new moves are planned by the I.A.T.S.E. Union executives have refused to comment pending the arrival of George Browne who is due this week for executive conferences. One of the reports is that a new flareup will result in closed shop demands being made involving all employes from studio players to theatre ushers.

Write Five for Shirley

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—Gordon and Revel have completed five new songs for Shirley Temple's next film at Twentieth Century-Fox. They are "Good Night, My Love," "One Never Knows, Does One?" "S-M-I-L-E," "I Want to Go to the Zoo" and "A Choo-Choo to Lullaby Town."

Mooney Sells a Story

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14. — Martin Mooney has sold an original children's story called "There Is a Santa Claus" to Invincible. Mooney recently sold five scripts to Chesterfield.

Mickey Mouse Is Big Business in Europe

Mickey Mouse has entered the ranks of Big Business in Europe, where merchandise employing his name or likeness now has an annual gross sale of $20,000,000, George Kamen, who handles the commercial activities and publicity abroad for Walt Disney-Mickey Mouse, Ltd., reported yesterday.

Kamen is here on an annual visit and leaves for the coast tomorrow, where he hopes to obtain definite information concerning the release of Disney's Mickey Mouse feature-length picture. More questions are asked concerning this release, which has been widely publicized throughout Europe, than about any Disney creation which has preceded it, Kamen said.

Far-Flung Branches

The Disney representative has headquarters in London and a branch office in Paris. The Mickey Mouse foreign merchandise business now has 285 licensees operating in 14 European countries, all supervised by either the London or Paris offices. Merchandise using the Mickey Mouse brand varies from breakfast foods and hot water bottles to soap and tooth brushes. In addition, the London office publishes 2,000,000 copies of Mickey Mouse books and publishes Mickey Mouse magazines in England, France and Italy, with circulations of 500,000 weekly in each country."

"Business is fine," Kamen reported, "and if we could get our money out of central Europe it would be unsurpassed."

Baseball Awards Made

The Motion Picture Athletic Ass'n met last night at the Valhalla Restaurant for the formal bestowal of the baseball league prizes for the current season. The awards were as follows:

Quigley Cup, won by RKO, captained by Jack White; Variety Cup, for the most number of runs, won by Consolidated Film; Billboard Cup, for the most number of victories, won by the Music Hall, and the President's Cup, for the second highest number of victories, also won by RKO.

About 60 enthusiasts attended the affair.

Mrs. Youngclaus Buried

OMAHA, Oct. 14.—D. V. McLucas, local head of United Artists, one of his salesmen, Edward Rostermund, and R. S. Ballantyne of Scott-Ballantyne, represented Film Row as pallbearers at funeral services held at Shelby, Nev., for Mrs. W. N. Youngclaus, 36, wife of the operator of the Empress at Grand Island. Mrs. Youngclaus died in an Omaha hospital following an operation.

End of Waste Is Called For By Aylesworth

production by the coordinated use of specialized man-power in every department among the various studios."

He pointed out that he is not referring to reductions in salaries, and that such coordination as he suggests has already been proved feasible. "It can and must be done," he said.

Noting that attendance is closely approaching the peak of 1929, the RKO chairman declared that admissions are lower than they were eight years ago.

"We have now returned to prosperity and there is no reason why the public should not voluntarily pay an admission price commensurate with the service offered," he said.

Condemns Duals

Aylesworth scored double featuring, declaring it a child of the depression. "The practice of giving one grade A picture with a grade B picture is like eating too much ice cream at one time, and when the public is fully informed, the theatre industry will have no trouble in doing away with what I consider a wasteful, injurious practice," he said.

The speaker said there is real consideration being given by individual companies and theatre groups to more satisfactory film contract arrangements, and he expressed the belief that the next year would see proper treatment accorded the problem.

He stressed his opinion that the radio helps the films and the theatres, and that the two media should work together, but that only players with radio personalities should broadcast, and that the interference of broadcasting with production should be avoided.

Dr. Mees Honored

Aylesworth declared his belief that the industry should cooperate with those who are developing television, which "will be with us in a short time." Radio broadcasters, he said, should develop the slogan, "Take your family to a theatre twice a week.

He paid tribute to the work of the members of the S.M.P.E. in furthering the development of the screen.

Dr. C. E. Kenneth Mees, vice-president of Eastman Kodak, in charge of research and development, was awarded the annual progress medal, in recognition of work resulting "in a significant advance in the development of film technology."

Edward W. Kellogg, of RCA Mfg. Co., received the Journal award for the best technical paper published in the S.M.P.E. Journal during 1935. The paper was on "A Comparison of Variable Density and Variable Width Systems."

It was noted that the award to Dr. Mees was a token of recognition of his contribution to film technology over a period of 35 years, rather than for any single development.

The morning meeting was devoted to the reading of papers in the optics and lighting session, and included the report of the Studio Lighting Committee by R. E. Farnham, committee chairman.

The papers read at the session included: "Effect of Lens Aberrations Upon Image Quality," by W. B. Rayton, Bausch & Lomb; "Mercury Arcs of Increased Brightness and Efficiency," by L. J. Buttolph, of the General Electric Vapor Lamp Co., Hoboken; "Recent Developments of High-Intensity Arc Spotlamps for Film Production," by E. C. Richardson, of Mole-Richardson, Hollywood, and "Trick and Process Cinematography," by J. A. Norling, Loucks & Norling Studios, New York.

The delegates were the guests of Bausch & Lomb at luncheon, and the afternoon was spent in an inspection tour of the Bausch & Lomb plant.

Tomorrow will be the closing day of the four-day meeting, with numerous papers scheduled for an apparatus and equipment symposium during the morning, and a laboratory session in the afternoon.

It was decided today to hold the next spring meeting in Hollywood and the fall meeting next year in New York.

Under 1723 Law

Ellicott City, Md., Oct. 14.—Jackson D. Wheat has been convicted by a jury of operating on Sunday in violation of a law passed in 1723. He was fined $60 plus $30 costs by Judge William H. Forsythe, Jr., in Circuit Court.

concurrences would not bar the completion of a plan and its presentation to the Federal court, they would have to be resolved at some time before approval of a plan could be had.

The capitalization of the new RKO company has been formulated by the proponents of the plan and the treatment of various classes of creditors has been tentatively designated. No agreement has been reached yet on the treatment of the $9,100,000 Rockefeller Center claim but there is a possibility that this largest of the unsecured claims against RKO will be treated separately for the purposes of the plan.

Rob Brooklyn Theatre

Two men held up the manager of the Hollywood, Brooklyn, Tuesday night and took $356 from the safe. The manager and two porters were tied for half an hour before they were released.

A robber who took $211 from the cashier of the Renaissance in Harlem couldn't hold on to the money, apparently, when a by-stander stepped in front of the man fleeing with the receipts and upset the cash box. All but $90 was scattered in the melee. Onlookers made a grab for the loose change and scampered off with it.

Holds Party for Press

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 14.—The opening of the stage show season at the Majestic was marked by Morris Rosenthal, manager, with a party to the press at the Stratfield Hotel. Guests included Hamilton Fisher, James Montgomery Flagg, Russell Patterson, Harry Shaw, Earl Wright and Matt Saunders.

the danger of a "boycott" by the K. R. S.

Describing the danger as a "bogey," Capt. Dixey declared that the K. R. S. could not boycott a circuit and that the I. E. D. C. would be the most powerful circuit in the country. He also stated that the I. E. D. C. would apply for membership in the K. R. S. If there was any suggestion of a boycott, the matter would be raised in the House of Commons.

The meeting ultimately expressed general approval of the scheme.

Comment in London trade circles is generally to the effect that, the I. E. D. C., being in no sense a booking circuit but a distributing company in which exhibitors are shareholders, the K. R. S. is not in a position to operate against it the existing ban on booking circuits. What exhibitors really fear, according to this view, is unofficial discrimination by distributors against exhibitors known to be I. E. D. C. members and the success or failure of the Dixey scheme may well be determined by the extent and depth of this fear.

Said one London trader: "The K. R. S. has no legal right to interfere with an exhibitor investment in distributions, but if exhibitors believe they can do so, then the scheme may well be defeated, not by the K. R. S., but by exhibitors' fears of the K. R. S."

As two directors of the four are Ostrers refusal to register the transfer to Maxwell cannot be obtained by form, and the transfer will go through in two months unless Twentieth Century-Fox establishes Article 23A as having legal priority and overriding Article No. 89.

Move F. W. C. Managers

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14.—F. W. C. has switched managers of several houses in the Cullen Espy and Earl Rice districts. Those affected are John Klee, who goes from the Lyric, Huntington Park, to the Stadium, Los Angeles, replacing W. C. Ricord, Jr., who goes to the Belmont. Louis Vega, assistant manager of the Dome, Ocean Park, will take the spot vacated by Klee. A. L. Haynie, whom Ricord replaces, has not yet been assigned.

Renominate Brylawski

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The M.P. T.O. of the District of Columbia has again nominated A. Julian Brylawski as president for the ensuing year. Elections will be held at the November meeting.

Other officers nominated—all of whom stand for re-election—are: Sidney B. Lust, vice-president; Dr. William P. Herbst, treasurer, and Nat B. Browne, secretary.

Hollywood will be submitted to the same move. Companies like RKO Radio Studios, Inc., and others which manage and administer studios will not be exempted.

The realization is present, especially among major circuit operators, that this will wipe out the limited liability aspects of their present corporate structures and open the way to a wholesale liability stemming to the parent companies, but their attitude definitely is that the savings in taxes through dissolution of subsidiaries will more than offset litigation which may be piled up against the parent enterprise. For years, it has been the practice in exhibition to organize a separate company for each theatre with a view to centralizing litigation locally and to keep the controlling corporation as free of legal entanglements as possible.

The decision of B. & K. was unexpected and came after a conference with New York when some of the details regarding charges independents intended bringing into court reached B. & K. executives.

It was feared, it is said, that the filing of the suit might start a Federal investigation of monopoly charges.

Aaron Saperstein is the recipient of many congratulations from Allied members.

Duals will be started tomorrow at B. & K. houses, but other exhibitors say they will not follow suit at the present time.

Calls Minneapolis House Ban Illegal city had reached a population of 550,000 and that thereafter only one new license be allowed for each additional 10,000 persons; that houses should not be located within 1,200 feet of any church or school; and that no license be issued unless provisions had been made for parking sufficient automobiles at the rate of approximately one machine for every two seats in the theatre.

It was his belief, Bonner said, the ordinance was invalid because it applied only to new licenses and because parking and increased population clauses did not take into account various traffic and fire conditions in different sections of the city. The committee will meet tomorrow afternoon to act on the ruling of Bonner.

Discuss Democratic Plans

Members of the Democratic Committee of the local film industry met yesterday at campaign headquarters in the Mayfair Bldg. to discuss plans for the next few weeks.

DETROIT, Oct. 14.—Having recently raised their Saturday, Sunday and holiday prices five cents, Michigan avenue theatres here now are making the price hike effective week days also. This is in keeping with the general drive to increase admissions.

On the East side, the Lakewood, Harmony, Plaza, Maxine, East End and Aloma, now 20-cent houses, shortly will go to a quarter top.

Baltimore Scales Cut

BALTIMORE, Oct. 14.—Moe Kohn, proprietor of the Europa, has reduced admissions to 25 cents to 6 P. M., then 35 cents to closing and children 15 cents always. George Browning has become publicity man.

"Broadcast" Los Angeles' $25,000 Hit

Los Angeles, Oct. 14.—"The Big Broadcast of 1937," with a stage show headed by an F. & M. Revue, piled up the big money of the week at the Paramount, $25,000. This was $7,000 over normal.

"Libeled Lady" and "Back to Nature" went $5,000 over par at Loew's State on a take of $19,000 and $2,000 over at the Chinese on a gross of $14,500.

"Dodsworth," with "The Case of the Velvet Claws," beat par by $500 at both Warners' Hollywood and Downtown in the second week. The take at the former was $14,500 and at the latter $12,500.

"Swing Time" and "Second Wife" beat normal by $500 on a take of $8,500 at the Hillstreet, but dipped under par with $7,400 at the Pantages.

The weather was normal for the season, with important football games Saturday and Sunday.

Total first run business was $117,550. Average is $107,950.

"Adverse" $10,000 Indianapolis Draw

Indianapolis, Oct. 14.—"Anthony Adverse," at increased prices, took a smash $10,000 at the Circle, $6,000 over normal, in a week that saw excellent first run business, so-so weather and zero in competing attractions.

"Dodsworth" went $3,000 over the line to bring Loew's $9,000. "Give Me Your Heart," plus a vaudeville bill, sweetened the Lyric box-office for $9,850, $2,850 upstairs. Despite this heavy artillery, "Ramona" in its second and final week at the Apollo, touched normal with $4,000.

Total first run business was $32,850. Average is $21,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 9:

Charges Radio Slander

A suit for $100,000 damages was filed in N. Y. Supreme Court here yesterday against the March of Time, Remington-Rand and the Columbia Broadcasting System by Donald F. Jackson, a student at the University of North Carolina, who alleges that he was slandered in material presented in a March of Time broadcast which he charges depicted him as the culprit in an examination cheating episode at the university.

Jackson is represented by George E. Quigley, former vice-president of Vitaphone, now engaged in private law practice here, and Raymond S. Norris, former assistant to the U. S. Attorney General.

"Godfrey" $4,400 Knockout, Lincoln

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 14.—Laughs and lucre gathered round for "My Man Godfrey" on its seven-day run at the Stuart, topping the town by a considerable margin. The take on the week was $4,400, bettering average by $1,300.

The Varsity took the lead in the Ballyhoo parade on a world premiere of "In His Steps," the first Grand National picture. It was tied up with the Nebraska origination of Ed Alperson, president of the company, and rated a newspaper spread. The take was moderate, however, and $1,200 was the till finish, $100 over par.

Helped by a football weekend, the Orpheum, vaudeville house, scamped away with $2,700, $950 up. This was with the help of three pictures, "Girl on the Front Page," "Pepper" and "Sittin' on the Moon." Jay Clarke in his second week at the Lincoln with his mental act justified the holdover and "Girls' Dormitory" took $2,700.

Total first run business was $11,950. Average is $9,000.

Estimated takings:

Week Ending Oct. 7:
"THREE MESQUITEERS" (Republic)

"Craig" Leader as Milwaukee Slumps

Milwaukee, Oct. 14. — "Craig's Wife," on a dual with "They Met in a Taxi," turned in the best showing of a dull week by getting $6,000, over par by $1,000, at the Palace.

The only other house to get over normal was the Strand with "The Gorgeous Hussy," which reached, $1,700, up by $200. "Ramona" and "Star" for a Night" at the Wisconsin took a par $8,000.

Total first run business was $25,200. Average is $24,500.

Estimated takings:

Week Ending Oct. 8:
"CRAIG'S WIFE" (Col.)
"THEY MET IN A TAXI" (Col.)

"Glory" Hits $15,000 High In Cleveland

Cleveland, Oct. 14.—"The Road to Glory" was the outstanding box-office draw of a poor week, due to rainy weather and extra pressure to boost attendance during the closing weeks at the Great Lakes Exposition. "Glory" had a take of $15,000 at Warners' Hippodrome, $5,000 over the average take.

"The Great Ziegfeld," at Loew's Stillman, grossed almost as much as it did the previous week with a take of $7,300. Average for the advanced scale is $6,000. The picture was held a fourth week.

"Ramona" on the RKO Palace screen with Noble Sissle on the stage made good with $17,000, or $2,000 above par. "The Texas Ranger" at Loew's State and "East Meets West" at the Allen held to average.

Ben Bernie and his show offered only mild competition. He is playing a two-week engagement at the Mayfair Casino.

Total first run business was $44,500. Average is $47,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 9:

"EAST MEETS WEST" (G.B.)

"U" to Revamp Setup of Its Subsidiaries

Action Similar to Moves Of Other Companies

Universal has begun work on a simplification of its corporate structure with the general objective of eliminating non-essential subsidiaries in order to effect important tax economies, it was learned yesterday. The move is in line with similar corporate revamping under way in Paramount, Loew's, Warners and RKO, and which, it is believed, will ultimately embrace all major organizations in the industry.

No definite line of procedure has been decided upon by Universal as yet, and company officials are of the opinion that another 60 to 90 days may be required to develop an acceptable plan. Indications are, however, that either Universal Corp., the present holding company controlling the Universal organization, or a new company which may be organized

Discuss Moves For Getting Sales Tax

Local exchange managers may take action next week to enforce payment of the two per cent sales tax by New Jersey exhibitors.

A meeting of the branch heads was held early this week to discuss the question, but action was deferred until another session next week.

Northern New Jersey theatre owners have refused to pay the tax in the last few months as a result of a decision handed down excluding them from payment of emergency relief levies in New York. The city has taken an appeal.

Meanwhile, distributors are anxious

Chicago Operators To Run Long Reels

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—The local operators' union today was notified to accept and run 2,000-foot reels. Authorization came from the international headquarters in Washington. It ended six weeks of opposition to use of the reels in local theatres.

A city ordinance barring the long reels is to be changed, according to officials, so that the new reels can be used. This will eliminate considerable trouble that has followed the introduction of the new reels.

G. B.'s American Selling Organization to Continue

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Gaumont British's selling organization in America will be maintained without alteration under John Maxwell, Jeffrey Bernerd informed MOTION PICTURE DAILY today.

Bernerd has resumed his duties as general manager of G. B. Distributors, the company which handles selling of G.B. product throughout the world, and David Ostrer, who was officially referred to as the possessor of this title quietly and without undue attention some months ago while Bernerd was in New York, has been returned to his old post in charge of foreign sales. Bernerd has constantly maintained that his contract had designated him as general manager of distribution.

Any deals which may have been pending for the sale of British International product in the United States have been held up pending completion of the Maxwell negotiations for G. B. On Oct. 5 MOTION PICTURE DAILY reported that the Maxwell interests were seriously considering

Lasky to Radio as Associate Producer

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15.—Jesse L. Lasky joins RKO as an associate producer and will undertake as his first effort a picture co-starring Lily Pons and Nino Martini. The deal takes Martini, who is under personal contract to Lasky, to Radio, where he will do one a year, and perhaps two. The producer is now in the east, but not in New York.

DeMille May Stay

Cecil B. DeMille would continue as a producer at Paramount for the next two years under terms of a preliminary contract drawn, it is understood. The arrangement, as it now stands, provides for two pictures a year.

Majors Working on Concession Detail

Major distributors are at work on sales policy and exhibition contract revisions which will embrace the concessions which each is willing to make in accordance with the M. P. T. O. A. trade practice program. Although the work has been in progress within each company since Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, concluded his conferences here last Friday, and original expectations were that the first announcement of definite concessions from at least one of the major companies could be had this week, indications yesterday were that the first

"Tovarich" 1st Real Hit Of Year and All Filmable

The excitement, the handclapping and the clarion calls which rent the West 45th Street atmosphere last night was "Tovarich." It can be said quickly and with no need for fancy phrase-making that this is the first definite and clear cut hit of the new season.

The word was around anyway. Those who had seen the Jacques Deval play in London came back to sing its praises. There with Leontivich as the imperial grand duchess and Sir Cedric Hardwicke as her prince consort, here with Marta Abba, a charming and intelligent Italian actress whose first appearance here this is, and John Halliday, known to Hollywood, as the prince.

Paris, several years after the Russian revolution, is the place. With 4,000,000,000 francs deposited in his name at the Bank of France, Halliday and his wife are living a hand-to-mouth existence, facing penury together but strong in their mutual love and in their unflinching fidelity to the

Kent Dropping British Deal; Future Hazy

Will Return to America Shortly, He Says

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 15.—S. R. Kent stated today that negotiations for the sale of the Twentieth Century-Fox interest in Metropolis and Bradford, Gaumont British holding company, to John Maxwell would not be conducted at this time and that he would return to New York in a few days.

The outlook for the future was not clear, he said, and he could not predict what would happen in the course of time.

Kent's statement follows:

"After lengthy telephone conversations with our board of directors in New York and with Joseph M. Schenck, my associate, in Hollywood, I have been advised to terminate all negotiations for the sale of our interests in Metropolis and Bradford Trust to John Maxwell or Associated British Pictures Corp.

"Upon finishing my work here I shall return to New York in a few days time. We do not consider the present atmosphere conducive or proper to well-thought-out negotiations, while the outlook for the future is not clear enough to indicate what our attitude during a period of time will be.

"We intend to make use of every resource at our command to protect

Bette Davis-Warner Case in Second Day

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The Bette Davis-Warner contract case started its second day in King's Bench Court today with Sir William Jowitt, K.C., Miss Davis' attorney, stating that the contract under question was a life sentence for Miss Davis if Warners won the case. Sir Patrick Hastings, Warner attorney, said that his client was asking only for an injunction in this country. He agreed to produce the form of injunction tomorrow.

Alexander Korda appeared in court today and gave evidence of similar contracts, which, he said were common. Counsel for Ludovico Toeplitz was also on hand and protested the accusation made yesterday that his client was guilty of bribery, a criminal offense, in signing Miss Davis.

"Desperado" at $98,500

"The Gay Desperado" chalked up a $98,500 gross for its first week at the Music Hall. The Palace, which finished a week's run of "Anthony Adverse" without a second feature, tallied around $9,000.

Ziegfeld's Friends To Attend Showing

More than 100 friends and associates of the late Florenz Ziegfeld this morning will pay tribute to the memory of the deceased showman at the first performance of "The Great Ziegfeld" at the Ziegfeld Theatre. A special program has been prepared by Louis K. Sidney, who will broadcast it over WHN.

Among those scheduled to attend are Bernard Sobel, Fannie Brice, Vincent Lopez, Peggy Fears, Harry Richman, Ned Wayburn, Vivienne Segal, Claire Montgomery, Norma Terris, Katherine Dix, the Fairbanks Twins, Dr. Jerome Wagner, Gypsie Lee, Dorothy Mackaill, Annie Hart, Ada May, Albert Cheney Johnson, Lorenz Hart, Cobina Wright, Mrs. Dan Curry and Dorothy Brown Fox.

Report a U. S. Firm After London House

LONDON, Oct. 15.—An unnamed American company is reported dickering to purchase the Palace as a key house. Stockholders, including Charles B. Cochran and A. E. Bundy, are understood to be asking $1,750,000. Rumor has it that Columbia, or possibly Warners, are after the theatre. Efforts to confirm the reports here were unavailing.

Jack Cohn, vice-president of Columbia, yesterday dismissed the report tersely with the comment: "We are not in the theatre business." Sam E. Morris, head of Warners foreign activities, said he knew nothing whatever about the story.

Comerford to Build 3 in Wilkes-Barre

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 15.—Plans of the Comerford Amusement Co. call for the construction next year in Wilkes-Barre of three theatres.

A house with a seating capacity of 2,400, the largest on the Comerford circuit, will be built on Public Square, work to start in February.

Later, a theatre will be built on Hazle St. and the third building will be constructed in Forty Fort. No figures on the costs of the three have been revealed.

W. E. Schmidt, assistant general manager, has moved his office staff here from Scranton so that he can handle details connected with the construction.

Union Cinemas Plans Big Stock Flotation

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Union Cinemas, which recently effected a management deal with Paramount's theatre holdings in Great Britain, plans to merge various of its own subsidiaries in a £6,000,000 company, to float a public issue of £3,000,000 and to develop its circuit to 300 theatres. Immediate plans provide for 12 new theatres, each to seat 3,000.

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 15.—Governor Merriam said today that he has launched an investigation into the manner in which Warners obtained permission to take shots of San Quentin prison. The Governor expressed his disapproval of exploitation of the state's unfortunates.

Grasshopper Stars

Des Moines, Oct. 15.—The private life of a grasshopper, with some scenes showing the damage he does and how he can be controlled, is an educational film just completed at Iowa State College, to be used next year to aid farmers in combatting the grasshopper invasions.

Ned Clarke Shifts To RKO Foreign Job

Ned Clarke, formerly west coast representative for RKO's home office booking department, will join the foreign department next Monday when he arrives from California. Phil Reisman has delegated Clarke to a foreign assignment. The latter will sail for Europe shortly.

Succeeding Clarke on the coast is Elmer Sedin, who formerly handled St. Louis, Kansas City and Memphis exchanges. M. A. Downing who has been in Boston, is now in St. Louis covering branches in the division. A. A. Schubart, head of RKO exchange maintenance and operation, now is in the Mound City instructing Downing on teh new setup.

Grand National Sets Deal with Criterion

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 15.—Grand National has set a first run deal with the Criterion of New York for the B. F. Zeidman production, "In His Steps," the first release of which will open Oct. 30. An advertising budget of $10,000 has been appropriated to supplement the theatre campaign.

G. N. Closes Midwest Deals

Settle Hutchinson Suit

A stipulation declaring that the $1,000,000 suit brought by Edward Hutchinson, night club owner and designer, against Warners, has been settled out of court was filed in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday.

Hutchinson sued Warners and Vitagraph for $500,000, each charging that the picture, "Go Into Your Dance" contained defamatory matter concerning him.

Hutchinson said that he converted a theatre into the Casino de Paree, which was used as a setting for "Go Into Your Dance."

Orders Katz to Appear

Federal Judge William Bondy yesterday signed an order directing Sam Katz to appear in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Nov. 9 in connection with Paramount's appeal from an award to him of $265,000 for alleged breach of contract.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—Arthur B. Waters, former drama critic on the defunct Public Ledger, has taken over the drama and film critic's post on the Philadelphia Gazette-Democrat, one of the outstanding German dailies in the country.

Equity Awaits Move By Those Suspended

Most or all of the 24 Hollywood actors who were indefinitely suspended from Actors' Equity Ass'n on Tuesday for failure to join the Screen Actors' Guild after having been given 30 days' notice are expected to apply for reinstatement in the near future, a spokesman for Equity said yesterday. Reinstatement could be obtained, it was said, by applying to Equity's council after becoming a member of the Guild.

No comment could be obtained from officials of Equity on the report that the suspension marked the opening of a new Equity drive for a "closed shop" in Hollywood. Frank Gillmore, Equity president, was "not available," according to his secretary, and Paul Dullzell, executive secretary of Equity said he "knew nothing about the reports" and could add nothing to what was contained in the press release given out by the organization, which listed those suspended.

One Equity representative pointed out that under the organization's agreement with Screen Actors' Guild no alternative was possible in the present situation, and insisted that the suspensions were less significant insofar as a "closed shop" move was concerned than the making of the agreement between Equity and the Guild a year ago.

Six Joined

Of thirty Hollywood actors who were given notice by Equity a month ago only six complied with the notices by joining the Guild. They are John Barrymore, Lionel Atwill, Arthur Hoyt, J. Farrell McDonald, Walter C. Kelly and Lloyd Nolan. Those on the suspension list are Lionel Barrymore, Alice Brady, James Burtis, Harvey Clarke, Cecil Cunningham, Roy D'Arcy, Al Hill, De Witt Jennings, Dorothy Lee, Eric Linden, Lucien Littlefield, James McDonald, William Mong, Jack Oakie, Nat Pendleton, Marion Schilling, Frank Sully, Robert Warwick, Harry Worth, Elizabeth Allen, Rosalind Russell, Ian Keith, Arthur Aylesworth and Edwin Maxwell.

In local film quarters the Equity move is regarded as having practically no significance insofar as studio employment for those on the suspended list is concerned. It was admitted, however, that there was just as little chance of any of those suspended being able to appear on the Broadway legitimate stage until they were reinstated by Equity.

Symon Joins 20th-Fox

Burk Symon has been named dramatic coach and test director at the home office for Twentieth Century-Fox. Symon was associated with David Belasco as general stage director.

S.M.P.E. Ends Fall Meeting At Rochester

ROCHESTER, Oct. 15.—The reading of 10 technical papers in an apparatus and equipment symposium, and a laboratory session at the Sagamore Hotel here today brought to an end the four-day annual fall convention of the S.M.P.E., said to have been the most heavily attended meeting in the history of the society.

The delegates, who numbered almost 200, began leaving for their homes at the conclusion of the afternoon session.

The papers read at the apparatus equipment symposium which occupied the morning included the following: "Film-Editing Machine Embodying Optical Intermittent Projector," by J. L. Spence, Akeley Camera, Inc., New York; "New Recording Equipment," by D. Canady and V. A. Wellman, Canady Sound Appliance Co., Cleveland; "An Improved Reel-End Alarm," also by Canady & Wellman; "Three-Wire D-C Supply for Projection Arcs," by C. C. Dash of the Hertner Electric Co., Cleveland, and "A Demonstration Triode for Visualizing Electric Phenomena," by F. E. Eldredge and H. F. Dart, Westinghouse Lamp Co., Bloomfield, N. J. The morning session was concluded with a report of the Standards Committee, by E. K. Carver, committee chairman.

Final Papers Read

The laboratory session was featured by the reading of the following papers: "The Performance Record of an Automatic Recording Densitometer," by C. M. Tuttle and M. E. Russell of Eastman Kodak; "A Developing Machine for Sensitometric Work," by L. A. Jones, M. E. Russell and H. R. Beacham of Eastman Kodak; "Some Aspects of Reduction Printing," by G. Friedl, Jr., of Erpi, and "The Influence of Sprocket-Hole Perforations Upon the Development of the Adjacent Sound-Track Areas," by J. G. Frayne and V. Pagliarulo, Erpi.

Duals Up to Theatres

"Recent developments in Chicago's double feature situation confirm a belief I have always held—that the theatre operator alone should be permitted to determine whether his house is to play one or more pictures," said W. Ray Johnston, head of Monogram, yesterday.

Johnston said no attempt should be made to foist a policy on an exhibitor contrary to his own interests or personal desires.

Biltmore Theatre Sold

Arthur A. Hershkowitz, an attorney, representing unnamed interests, yesterday purchased the Biltmore for $150,000, the upset price fixed by the court, at an auction sale.

luncheon of the Ass'n of Foreign Press Correspondents.

"I hear everywhere today of foreign entanglements," he said. "I advocate friendly and sympathetic cooperation with foreign nations and I do not believe in narrow nationalism. The recent tercentenary of Harvard University where scholars and savants from all over the world met to discuss progress in the sciences and in the humanities and the conference of the British scientists at Blackpool illustrate what I mean.

"Just as these two meetings contributed much, so does the tripartite agreement between England, France and the United States on the gold standard. An established currency cements commercial relations and sound commercial relations make for universal peace.

Credits Films

"Motion pictures are playing their part in this movement. When I was in London last I heard much about domination by the American film and a great deal about the kind of American films being sent to all parts of the world. It was also said in London that the nation reaching dominance in film production also would dominate the world.

"However, I know that today producers in this country are much more careful than in years past, that they are actually endeavoring to deliver a finished and a wholesome product."

Giannini was introduced by A. Bernard Maloney, president of the association and general manager in America of Reuters News Agency. Maloney also introduced other guests, who took bows but did not talk. They included Paulette Goddard, Walter Huston, Rouben Mamoulian, William Wyler and Nino Martini. Guests included trade paper reporters and, among others, these:

Harold Burcher, London Daily Herald; K. Iwamoto, Associated Press of Japan; C. Kuriyama, Nichi Nichi, Tokyo; Raymond Lange, Pour Vous, Paris; G. J. Simons, Der Telegraaf, Amsterdam, Holland; Dixie Tighe, London Daily Express; R. Socas, La Nacion, Buenos Aires; Robert Gueydan, *T. S. F. Washingtonians Pay Tribute to Wilcox

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Exhibitors and distributors gathered here earlier in the week at a dinner in honor of William Eustace Stowe Wilcox, operator of the Seco, Silver Spring, Md. The function had no reason other than a desire on the part of the local trade to honor a theatre operator held in high standing.

Nearly 200 guests gathered at the Variety Club, later adjourning to the main ballroom of the Willard Hotel where a surprise party was sprung.

In charge of the proceedings were Harry S. Brown, branch manager for Grand National, and Sara Young, booker at Twentieth Century-Fox.

Tangible tribute to Wilcox took the form of a pocket watch, presented by Brown. A scroll, signed by all present was subsequently presented.

WRC's Gordon Hittenmark was master of ceremonies, presenting Singers Helen Elly and Nell Kelly and Danders Pritchard and Lord. The Howard Theatre pit orchestra furnished music for dancing.

Among those present were George Crouch, Harry E. Lohmeyer, Guy Wonders, Nat Glasser, Carter T. Barron, F. Eugene Ford, Harry Hunter, Rudolph Berger, Samuel N. Wheeler, Joseph Kaliski, Sam A. Galanty, Charles Kranz, Edward Heiber, Robert J. Folliard, Harry S. Brown, George J. Gill, John Golder, Robert Smeltzer, J. Henry Hiser, J. William Cleveland, Charles H. Olive, J. Louise Rome, Hunter Perry, C. W. Henderson, A. Julian Brylawski, Samuel M. Boyd, Kenneth B. Haynes, Roger N. Christopher, J. A. Burns, Joseph Fields, James B. Fitzgerald, Lauritz C. HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—Samuel Goldwyn has signed Tess Schlessinger to a term contract. As her first assignment, she will write the screenplay of "Dead End," which William Wyler will direct. Miss Schlessinger was on Irving Thalberg's staff for some time.

See Need for Early Censoring in Japan

By TETSUYA MORI

TOKYO, Sept. 26.—The necessity of arranging for examination of product some time before release dates at theatres on the part of American companies here was brought home when "Sons o' Guns" and "The King Steps Out" were banned by the Home Office censor after theatre bookings had been set.

Two other films, "The Princes Comes Across" and "Responsibility of a Kiss," were held up by the censor board, making it impossible for the companies to meet the theatre dates which had been set on them. They were passed later, following revisions, but too late for the scheduled showings.

Foreign distributors are disturbed by the censor action, fearing drastic restrictions on future importations.

Ohbei Eiga-sha, which recently contracted for the distribution of Republic product in Japan, also has closed for the distribution of G. B. product in Japan and Manchukuo. It is planned to import 15 G. B. pictures during the 1936-37 season.

Metropolitan Films, with headquarters in Shanghai, has concluded a deal for the importation of 20 pictures from Grand National and Imperial.

Circuit Asks Warner Repeat Product Sale

PASADENA, Cal., Oct. 15.—The California Amusement Co., which operates a group of subsequent runs here, has served notice on Warners that it will expect the same run of product it received last year. The notice, without threat, advised that the situation would be taken to court for clarification if the request were not granted. Ray Miller and George Haines operate the circuit, which is asking fifth and sixth runs from Warners.

The notice was sent to Warners following the sale of subsequent run product to the Lamanda Park Theatre Co.'s Uptown here.

New Buying Combine Begun in Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 15.—Approximately 15 theatres, all members of the I.T.P.A., have organized a buying combine.

Current product will be bought through a committee of three consisting of E. F. Maertz, Ross Baldwin and R. A. Tesch, all of Milwaukee. It is expected that other houses who have not as yet bought their product for this season will join.

Sparks Takes RKO List

The E. J. Sparks circuit in Florida has signed with Jules Levy for the full product of RKO Radio and associated studios.

Saenger and Kincey Take G. B.

Bill Minder, New Orleans branch manager for G. B., has closed with the Saenger circuit for his company's 1936-37 program.

The Wilby and Kincey circuit in the Carolinas has also signed for G. B. product. Scott Chesnutt, district manager, and F. E. Dyer, Charlotte branch manager, acted for the distributor.

old Russia, its blood-stained royal family and its traditions. Efforts are made to persuade Halliday to part with his trust; a counter-royalist revolution is the favorite proposal. Steadfastly spurning all advances, he persists in holding out for the day when the rightful successor to the throne will claim the funds. A splendid gallantry and a slavish devotion to honor, but also a futile one as the audience, of course, knows.

Pressed by the one demand and facing harrassment by the revolutionaries, the royal couple go into domestic service as butler and maid for the Duponts. There, their charm and their manner quickly work their way into the collective bosom of the family. The father begins to fall for Miss Abba, the son, likewise; the daughter for Halliday and only the mother appears to be immune. On a note of graceful and polite comedy and portrayed always with charm and verve, the first act thus ends and with it one of the two moods of the play.

In the second, forthright drama takes hold. Tracing it quickly, the play's thread weaves around the conflict enforced upon the high born couple. The commissar from Soviet Russia tells them the peasants need tractors; that the Government needs money and the only way out apparently is to dismember Russia by the enfranchising of important oil concessions to an international syndicate. Here Halliday and Miss Abba see the way to their duty. Rather than permit their Holy Russia to be concessioned, they agree to turn over to their enemy, but a Russian withal, the fortune in francs and off they go to the emigres' party with the children of their master and mistress.

The two principals are excellent. They thoroughly grasp the essentials of their parts—the moody tragedy and the alternative gaiety of Russia and the Russians; the graceful acceptance of their gentle, but proud, humility. They make a gallant pair and they induce not only respect, but admiration for their inherent stalwartness and the tensile strength of their backbone. The remainder of the cast lends admirable support and evidences appreciation for the English text by Robert E. Sherwood.

"Tovarich," which means comrade in Russian, lends itself completely and naturally to a motion picture for the sophisticated. For a director like Ernst Lubitsch, for instance, who was in the audience at the Plymouth last evening. Yet, the plum will probably go to someone else, for the understanding, merely that, mind you, is that the Warners already have purchased the rights or are well on the inside track to that end.

The hammer presumably landed for the third and last time at a reported $150,000. Which proves Gilbert Miller, the producer, knows he controls a property of genuine Hollywood value.

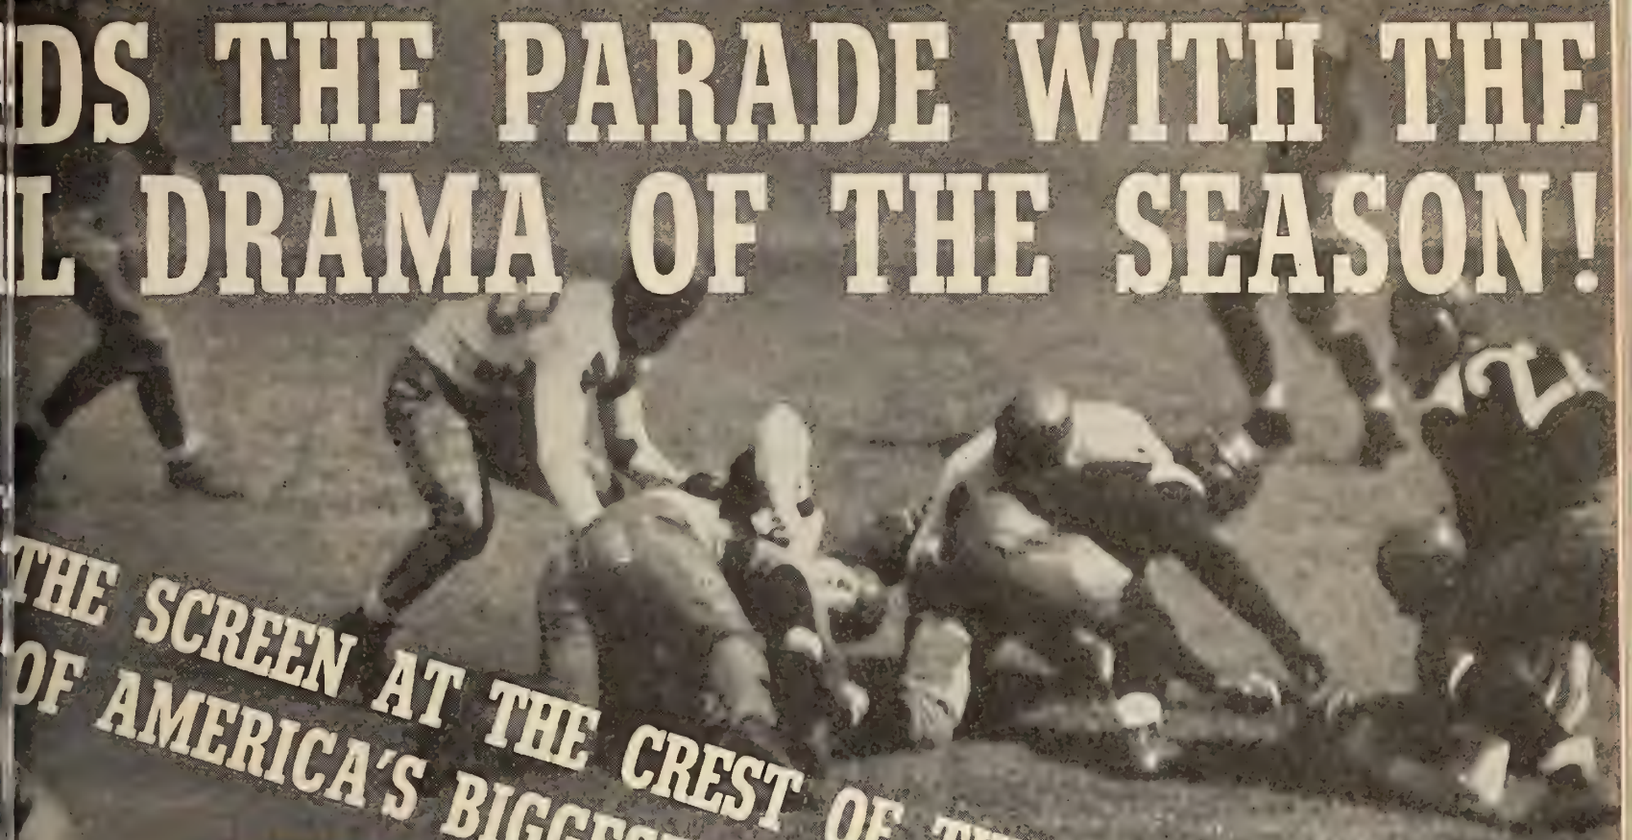
Picketing in Phila. By Musicians Starts

Local 77 of the American Federation of Musicians in Philadelphia has begun picketing theatres there in an extension of the union drive for the reemployment of musicians in film houses which was originated several weeks ago by Local 802 in New York. The Earle, Fox and Stanton are being picketed in Philadelphia, with six men assigned to each house by the local. The public mass meeting scheduled for that city has been postponed until the picketing is actively under way. Houses are being covered from 12 noon to 10 P. M.

In San Francisco, it was learned here, Local 6 has begun a similar drive with the use of floats and like demonstrations urging public support for the reinstatement of musicians in film theatres. Actual picketing of houses has not yet begun there, it is understood. A petition is being prepared by the local in Kingston, N. Y., which will be followed by picketing if the petition demands are not met by theatre owners. It is reported that picketing is being considered by the musicians' locals in Albany and Syracuse also.

Ampa Directors Ask Vote for New Setup

Ampa directors have adopted a new plan revivifying the organization and have submitted it to members. The general idea is to confine the association's activities to problems connected with members' work, only one "entertainment" luncheon a month, and loans to end the deficit.



The board's proposal also calls for limiting the voting membership to persons engaged in advertising, publicity or exploitation for producers, distributors or exhibitors, with a non-voting membership for trade paper and newspaper writers on film subjects and also radio commentators who talk about films.

Meetings would be held on the first and third Thursdays of each month under the proposed plan and, when finances permit an office would be opened with dining facilities attached.

The proposal has been mailed to members with a voting blank attached.

legally the position we occupy. We have no intention of doing anything just for the sake of causing trouble, and we make this statement with a feeling of friendliness towards all concerned.

"Our determination to terminate negotiations is a result of strict business considerations."

Maxwell also issued a statement in which he said:

"We have been negotiating for some days for the acquisition of the Twentieth Century-Fox holdings in Metropolis and Bradford Trust. This was not a necessary part of our arrangement, but we regarded it as desirable if it could be achieved for a reasonable price.

Calls Price Too High

"We came to the conclusion that the price and other conditions were more than we could reasonably agree to and discussions for the acquisition of the Twentieth Century-Fox interests have been terminated for the time being. The agreement with the Ostrers for acquisition of the controlling interest in Metropolis and Bradford remains in full force in accordance with the previous announcement, and we are advised that it can be carried through completely without the acquisition of any other interests.

"Our discussions with Mr. Kent were carried out in a most friendly reciprocal atmosphere and terminated with mutual assurances of good will."

Maxwell's statement followed a conference of Isidore and Mark Ostrer with Maxwell. Maxwell's stand appears to support yesterday's MOTION PICTURE DAILY dispatch on the legal position taken by the British parties to the deal.

Kent's sailing date is uncertain at the present time.

formation of a new exchange system here on a scale more extensive than G. B.'s current setup for the purpose of handling B. I. P. as well as G. B.

Currently G. B. maintains its own sales force, housed in the Twentieth Century-Fox exchanges and utilizing the physical facilities of the latter organization.

Under the originally proposed Twentieth Century-Fox-Loew deal, the G. B. sales force was to be maintained intact probably until the completion of sales effort for the 1936-37 season some time next spring. The ultimate plan called for elimination of the crew and the addition to schedules of both the American majors of a minimum of five G. B. attractions a year.

Kuykendall was given definite assurances prior to his departure from the city last week that distributors were ready to make commitments in line with the exhibitor program, but that both legal and routine considerations would delay a defining of the concessions to be made for three to 10 days. Indications in distribution quarters are that the four principal concessions sought by the M. P. T. O. A. will be forthcoming ultimately from at least a majority of major distributors. These are an unrestricted cancellation privilege, elimination of the score charge, adoption of the short form of exhibition contract and the establishment of local conciliation boards.

to protect themselves in case of a reversal of the lower court. Exchange managers find that several corporations with which they have been doing business have disbanded, and the possibility looms that if the Court of Appeals rules theatres across the Hudson must pay the tax, the exchanges will have to make good sums which should have been contributed by the defunct companies.

To Publish Song Book

Random House in December will publish the Ruby-Kalmar Song Book with 11 numbers and contributions by an assortment of well known film names including Irving Berlin, Groucho Marx, Bob Benchley, Nunnally Johnson, Ben Hecht, Moss Hart, James K. The same publisher plans a limited edition of the complete score of "Red, Hot and Blue," impending Vinton Freedley musical, which will be autographed by Cole Porter. The work will include songs not to be published in any other form, including "I'm About to Become a Mother," by Jimmy Durante.

Steelman, trustee in the Fox bankruptcy action. The full text of the petition was made public here for the first time today.

It was on this petition that Vice-Chancellor W. Frank Sooy yesterday restrained Fox, his wife Eva and their daughters, Mona and Belle, from disposing of any assets of All-Continent Corp. pending a hearing on Nov. 10 for a permanent injunction.

"Complainant avers," the bill of complaint reads, "that All-Continent Corp. [the nearly $7,000,000 collection of Fox assets which Fox claims he set aside as an irrevocable family trust] was formed and organized by William Fox for the express purpose of defrauding his creditors then existing as well as those to whom he might in the future become indebted.

"Complainant further avers that Fox and All-Continent are one and the same, that the real object sought in forming All-Continent was to thwart creditors and to retain for himself and his family the full and unmolested enjoyment of his assets."

Collusion Charged

The petition goes on to allege that all of the things done "by and between" Fox and All-Continent from 1930 onward "were part of a general scheme and plan" devised by Fox and that his wife and daughters knew this all the time "and either permitted or assisted." The petition asks:

"That All-Continent Corp., William Fox, Eva Fox, Belle Fox, Mona Fox and William Fox Tauszig and William Fox Schwartz [minor sons respectively of Mona and Belle] answer this complaint and make discovery of what All-Continent assets they possess; that All-Continent be decreed to be the alter ego of Fox and that All-Continent and Fox are one and the same; that all its assets be decreed to be the assets and property of Fox and that the transfer of these assets in December, 1930 [when All-Continent was created], the trust agreement [whereby Fox assertedly turned it over to his wife and daughters], and the foreclosure of collateral last December all be held to be null and void and that a receiver be appointed." The petition asks these things also for the gifts which Fox made outright at various times to his wife and daughters.

Show Cause Order Issued

The order signed by Vice-Chancellor Sooy calls upon All-Continent and the Fox family to show cause Nov. 10 "why they should not be enjoined from selling, assigning, transferring, mortgaging or otherwise disposing of or encumbering said assets and property until the further order of this court or until the matters in issue be finally determined." It also orders them to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed.

Meanwhile the routine questioning of Fox and Herbert Leitsteen, his bookkeeper, named in the Steelman petion as having been an All-Continent officer, continued today before Federal Referee Robert F. Steedle.

"U" to Revamp Setup of Its Subsidiaries

later in its place, will emerge as the new parent company as a result of the inevitable consolidations and dissolutions of subsidiaries. Subsidiaries most likely to be dispensed with are believed to be Universal Pictures, Big "U" Film Exchanges and various studio and domestic and foreign subsidiaries stemming from them.

Paramount is well along in its work of corporate simplification, already having dissolved or consolidated its former top holding companies for both foreign and domestic distribution, production and theatre interests. Currently, the company is engaged in the work of further breaking down the intricate structure of its theatre owning and operating interests. This work is expected to consume at least another 60 days and may affect all of the company's important theatre interests with the exception of Famous Players Canadian, which, of course, is not subject to the Federal income and profits taxes here.

Current Changes Numerous

Loew's has made considerable progress toward the elimination of dispensable subsidiaries under the M-G-M banner and Warners recently dissolved First National Pictures and is now studying a possible simplification of its theatre structure. RKO plans to eliminate various studio and distributing companies in the near future but probably will not disturb its present theatre corporation setup. Its most profitable theatre subsidiary is Keith-Albee-Orpheum, which is not a wholly owned company and, therefore, cannot be dissolved.

London Speculates On Deutsch Product

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Plans of Oscar Deutsch to build a 2,000-seat Odeon in Leicester Square in place of the Alhambra has stirred speculation as to his product tieups. Contracts for the building have already been let to Sir Robert McAlpine & Sons.

An unofficial estimate of the price paid for the freehold site, which extends between Charing Cross Road and Leicester Square, is £600,000. Sir Oswald Stoll was the vendor.

Inevitably, the Alhambra is seen developing into one of the most important preview houses in London and there is already speculation about the product ties which Deutsch may have in mind. The United Artists investment in Odeon makes it likely that some at least of the features of that concern will go to the Alhambra. United's own theatre is the London Pavilion and on many occasions it has found it necessary to use the Leicester Square in addition.

The most spectacular deal so far announced by Deutsch, the acquirement of a West End key house by Odeon, emphasizes the rapidity with which this organization has developed into a major circuit.

Concurrently announced is the addition to the Odeon circuit of the Singleton circuit in Scotland. The less than 20 houses of this combination are to be rapidly expanded until there is an Odeon in every important town in Scotland, according to George Singleton.

So rapidly is the Odeon circuit growing, with openings averaging two or three a week, that its ultimate size is difficult to state exactly, but a conservative estimate is that during 1937 it will number between 250 and 300 theatres.

Assign Francis Farmer

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15.—Paramount has assigned Francis Farmer to the top romantic lead in "Waikiki Wedding," next Bing Crosby picture. Martha Raye and George Barbier have also been added to the cast. Edward Sutherland will direct.

Selznick Signs Menjou

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15. — David O. Selznick has signed Adolphe Menjou for "A Star Is Born," his next Technicolor picture. Fredric March and Janet Gaynor had previously been announced for the top roles. William Wellman will direct.

Knowles Is Assigned

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15. — Patric Knowles, who has just returned from a vacation in Europe, has been cast by Warners for a prominent role in "Call It a Day." Ian Hunter also will be in the picture.

Ratoff in "U" Film

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15. — Returning from a quick trip to New York where he received his naturalization papers, Gregory Ratoff on his arrival was immediately cast for Universal's "Top of the Town."

Add to "Man" Cast

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15.—M-G-M has added three to the cast of "After the Thin Man." They are Ted Hart, Zeffie Tillbury and Jessie Ralph.

Looking 'Em Over

"Mr. Cinderella"

(Roach-M-G-M)

The adventurous misadventures of that redoubtable comedian, Jack Haley, go on apace, in this, his latest series of escapades, under the auspices of comedy producer Hal Roach, and the guiding hand of Edward Sedgwick, as producer and director. It is for the most part amusing fare, conducive to laughs, and should be found especially entertaining by those who have a fondness for the particular brand of comedy purveyed by Haley in his brow-beaten sucker type of role.

In this instance Haley, a hotel barber, spends most of his waking hours becoming virtually a guide book of the names, personalities and doings of the members of the city's high society. Princess of his dreams is Betty Furness, daughter of an automobile magnate. Trying to bring a young millionaire out of the depths of inebriation to keep a date, Haley suddenly finds himself compelled to impersonate the millionaire at a dinner invitation from none other than Miss Furness, who has never seen the scion, but is under orders from her father to get him and hold him at all costs, since daddy needs the money he hopes to get from the ne'er-do-well. Raymond Walburn is good as the father, but the screen's latest and greatest Jeeves, Arthur Treacher, should be a standout feature of the film as far as the audience is concerned, as he portrays the imperious, forbidding butler.

It must be understood, of course, that everything comes out right in the end, but en route the comedy bounces along, now descending to slapstick, again on a higher plane, but always entertaining.

Production Code Seal No. 2,261. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"Legion of Terror"

(Columbia)

Reminiscent of the G-Man cycle of recent memory, but striking a timely note drawn from the headline, this film revolves about the activities of the Hooded Legion, counterpart of the vicious Black Legion which for a time held a part of Michigan in its grip. This time two postal inspectors tear the insides out of the racket, and the result is a suspense-laden action film, wide open for fast exhibitor exploitation.

Adding much to the film is the photography of George Mehan, in the night meetings at the forest headquarters of the hooded group, shrouded in black, the scene lit by flares, as they hold kangaroo court on unfortunates, initiate new members with guns at their heads.

The direction of C. C. Coleman and the original screen play by Bert Granet have maintained the film's swift initial pace throughout. Romance is interwoven and the film concludes on a laudatory note for the postal inspection service.

When Bruce Cabot and Crawford Weaver, newly appointed postal inspectors, go to the industrial town of Stanfield to trace a bomb addressed to a senator, they meet Marguerite Churchill en route, become acquainted with her brother, Ward Bond, and learn of the town's domination by the Hooded Legion. Early it is apparent that Charles Wilson, newspaper editor, is its leader, and when Bond is kidnapped and killed after seeking to expose the Legion, Cabot and Weaver, members, trap the group, and Cabot arrives with the state militia in time to clean out the Legion and save Miss Churchill and Weaver in a smash action sequence.

Production Code Seal No. 2,538. Running time, 61 minutes. "G."

"The Devil Is a Sissy," this morning's opener at the Capitol, was previewed by wire from Hollywood on Sept. 8.

"Cain and Mabel," previewed from Hollywood by wire on Aug. 17, opens tomorrow morning at the Strand.

"Dimples" at the Roxy, "Gay Desperado" at the Music Hall and "Valiant is the Word for Carrie" at the Paramount are holdovers.

Asks New St. Louis Tax

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—Alderman Charles Routledge has presented a bill to the Board of Aldermen to impose a city tax on theatre admissions on a sliding scale basis.

The proposed rates would be: one cent on admissions from 25 cents to 49 cents; two cents, from 50 to 99 cents; five cents from $1 to $1.99, and ten cents above $1.99.

Similar bills have been defeated at previous sessions of the board.

Pick Next for Dietrich

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15.—Paramount has decided on "Angel," the novel by Melchoir Lengyel, as the next picture for Marlene Dietrich. The studio has held an option on the story for some time. Ernst Lubitsch, who will produce and direct, is now in New York working on the screenplay with Samson Raphaelson. Miss Dietrich is expected back in Hollywood in December, with production on the picture scheduled for early January.

Short Subjects

"Quaint Quebec"

(FitzPatrick-M-G-M)

An interesting subject of its kind with James A. FitzPatrick furnishing the narration. Hotel Frontenac, the Plains of Abraham, St. Louis Bridge, St. Lawrence River, the historic market place at the lower end of the town, the House of Parliament and intimate views of the natives make this item an engrossing and educational topic on any program. The color in three-tone process grasps the various shadings, particularly the hazy blue skyline shot and its pastel effect, add to the beauty of the French town. Production Code Seal, No. 01,072. Running time, 10 minutes. "G."

"Puppet Show"

(Universal)

Expert manipulating of puppets in the first few minutes of this number of the Oswald Rabbit series strikes a good, different note. The cartoon action is superimposed. Later the scenario goes into straight cartoon. The action takes place when Oswald is knocked unconscious and has a bad dream about the difficulties one of his puppets gets into when he wanders. Oswald wakes and everything is set right again. It is clever and should delight. Production Code Seal, No. 2,442. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

Urges Rogers Statue In Nation's Capitol

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 15.—Gov. Marland of Oklahoma has proposed that a statue of Will Rogers be placed in Statuary Hall in the Capitol at Washington, as one of the two representative figures from Oklahoma. He also indicated he would ask the state legislature to appropriate money for the erection of a statue of the late humorist on the grounds in front of the state capitol.

The governor expressed the hope that Rogers' body will be returned from California for burial at Claremore, Okla. Morton Harrison, chairman of the state memorial committee, declared at Claremore that he had a report of $258,000 raised nationally in the Rogers fund drive.

Son to Run Rogers Ranch

Write-Off of Weak Assets In "U" Plan

Part of Reorganization Of Company Finances

Universal will write off more than $500,000 of questionable assets in a thorough revamping of its financial and operating methods, J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, said yesterday following a meeting of the board of directors.

The write-offs are expected to result in a loss being shown for the fiscal year ending Nov. 1, but will place the company in a more favorable earnings position for the new fiscal year. The write-offs follow a survey of Universal's domestic and foreign units made by the new management during the six months which it has been in control. In addition to involving questionable assets, the write-offs specifically will include a number of employment contracts which were considered unwise by the new management and are being bought up, it was said.

"These sweeping changes will place the company in a perfectly healthy condition to start its new fiscal year

National Theatres Studies New Setup

Attorneys for National Theatres, holding company for more than 400 Fox theatres throughout the country, are studying means of consolidating corporate structures in line with plans by other companies in the industry to effect tax economies.

Fox Wisconsin, Fox Midwest, Evergreen States, Fox Rocky Mountain and Fox West Coast are among the important subsidiary operating units of National Theatres. Each of the theatres in the five groups are operated by individual corporations. Whether attorneys will merge the individual units with regional companies or consolidate all in the realignment are among the factors now being weighed by circuit executives.

Establish New French Trade Organization

Embraces All Branches Of the Industry

By PIERRE AUTRE

PARIS, Oct. 8.—The Confederation Generale de la Cinematographie, an organization representative of virtually all branches of the French industry, at last has been officially established.

Internally conceived, and in the process of formation for a long period, the Confederation was nonethe-less strongly urged by the French Government in unofficial fashion. It amounts, in effect, to a reorganization of the industry in this country.

The most important aspect of the establishment of the organization is that it will serve to scotch definitely the threats of the present Government to nationalize the industry, which in effect, had declared, "If you don't organize your industry, we will do it for you."

The four chief branches of the industry, technical, producing, distributing and exhibiting, are represented in the Confederation, which is headed by Jules Demaria, owner of a large

Film Stocks, Bonds Spurt; Sales Heavy

Paramount Preferred at 110½ for New High

All film issues on the stock and bond market spurted yesterday on active trading with the Paramount common, first and second preferred, Twentieth Century-Fox preferred and Paramount 6's '55 bonds chalking up new highs for the year.

Leading the list of gains for the day was Paramount first preferred with 8½ points on the day for a new high of 110½ on a turnover of 11,500 shares. The common, with 58,500 shares changing hands, gained 1¼, for a new high of 15¼, where it closed. The second preferred ended the day with a plus 1¾ when 28,500 shares were traded. This issue also closed at the top.

While ⅜ of a point from the high, Warners common was another active stock with 44,800 shares being sold. The issue registered a point profit and closed at 14¼. Twentieth Century-Fox preferred gained a half point on a trading of 800 shares, while the common moved up its former position by ⅝ on a turnover of 5,400.

All issues opened with substantial increases over previous closings, tapering off slightly around the noon hour and winding up strong. Paramount 6's '55 bonds closed at the high of 99½, a gain of 1¼ on the sale of 44.

Security Gains Due To Outlook—Griffis

General improvement in Paramount's financial position, reduced operating costs and sharp increases in income were cited yesterday by Stanton Griffis, chairman of the finance committee, as factors influencing the continued market strength of the company's securities, which reached new highs yesterday on the N. Dramatist Nominees For Council Accept Acceptances of nominations for membership in the council of the Dramatists' Guild were received yesterday from the 10 nominees designated by the Guild's membership committee. Nomination by the committee is tantamount to election, although "write-ins" are permitted at the annual election, which will be held Nov. 10.

The nominees are George Abbott, Maxwell Anderson, Gene Buck, Russel Crouse, Owen Davis, Jules Eckert Goodman, Lillian Hellman, George Middleton, Bertrand Robinson and Samuel Spewack. The new members of the council replace 10 whose terms are expiring and will serve to 1939. Every year the terms of 10 of the 30 council members expire.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Charge of the Light Brigade"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 16.—Sensational and spectacular, this will take high rank in the list of the season's big pictures. It is a tribute to the courage of commercial enterprise and faith in artistic vision. Produced on an epic scale, the film provides emotion-stirring impact certain to thrill all who see it. In every phase, big is the only term adequately descriptive. At any time and in any place the picture, which is inspired by Lord Tennyson's saga of heroism and sacrifice, is 100 per cent box-office. The action-crowded and suspense-packed motivation blends thrilling historical fact with heart-touching romantic and dramatic fiction. The acting is of high calibre, always plausible and believable. The direction is something of which Michael Curtiz may well be proud. The photography and musical score are as thoroughly a dramatic part of the picture as is the excellent work of all the players. The story value is impressive and is fully worthy of the substantiating production effects. The reenactment of the famous charge of the immortal light brigade is one of the most vivid examples of heroic thrill action ever to reach the screen.

The emotion-arousing story is a simple and powerful tale of courage and sacrifice in love and war. In India, brothers vie for the love of a girl. Her heart knowing not which way to turn, she fears to make a choice. Fraternal and romantic conflict ensues. Martial military combat in which treason and treachery have places is a vibrant counterpart. In authentic and imagination-gripping realism the sequences depicting a Persian expedition siege of Chukoti and the bloody cassacre that follows as well as murderous treachery on the river are reproduced. Out of the horror of this warfare comes the soldiers' realization of where the woman's love lies.

England and Russia are at war. The traitorous Surat Khan allies himself with Britain's enemy. Errol Flynn, for his own honor as well as that of his brother, his girl and his country, knows that there is but one thing to do. Removing Patric Knowles from danger because Olivia De Havilland has begged him to protect the man she loves, Flynn disobeys instructions and forges the order that sends the light brigade charging "into the jaws of death; into the mouth of hell." He and his comrades die but not before revenge is complete as Surat Khan (C. Henry Gordon) perishes on Flynn's lance.

Showmen and patrons will tender plaudits to Flynn, Knowles, Miss De Havilland, Gordon, Henry Stephenson, Nigel Bruce, Donald Crisp, Robert Barrat and Spring Byington for polished performances. High credit must also be given to Michael Jacoby for conceiving the story and to Rowland Leigh for his assistance in its transition to the screen. The excellent photographic work of Sol Polito and Fred Jackman in capturing the full sweep of the production places them also in line for honors. The moods inspired by the music provided by Max Steiner and supervised by Leo Forbstein endows the film with a stirring and moving atmosphere.

In this picture the producers have given exhibitors valuable merchandise which calls for adequate labors in the direction of showmanship to justify the production efforts. There should be exploitation sufficient to bring the attraction to the widest public attention.

Injunction Against Harriscolor Issued

WILMINGTON, Oct. 16.—Alleging the transfer of assets from Harriscolor Films, Inc., to Newdeal Syndicate, Inc., on Mar. 25, 1933, to have been fraudulent, H. Albert Young, Wilmington attorney and receiver for the former company, caused to be issued by Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott in Chancery court today an order restraining Newdeal Syndicate from disposing or disturbing assets until the settlement of the injunction action.

Wolcott's order directs Newdeal, its officers and directors, to appear in court Nov. 13 and show cause why a permanent injunction should not be issued restraining them from disposing of the assets, and why the assets should not be declared a part of the Harriscolor receivership estate. A preliminary injunction was issued securing the assets until the settlement of this action.

Harriscolor was organized by Joseph B. Harris, Jr., and members of his family on Aug. 19, 1930 with Harris as president. On April 1, 1933, the company became inoperative for failure to pay franchise taxes. Harris organized Newdeal Syndicate on March 24, 1933, and the following day his brother, Charles B. Harris, secretary of Harriscolor, executed an instrument of assignment transferring the assets to Newdeal.

Young was appointed receiver for Harriscolor on Sept. 17 last. He maintains that the assets are a part of the receivership estate in that the transfer to Newdeal was accomplished without the sanction of the board of directors of Harriscolor. Young asks for an accounting of the royalties paid Newdeal on the patents.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Under Your Spell"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 16.—Standing head and shoulders above the story they have given him in this comedy-romance, is the voice of Lawrence Tibbett, recording as one of the finest on the screen. But in giving him a light theme, the type of story built to the popular taste and considerable emphasis on comedy, the producers have in all probability succeeded in taking Tibbett out of the class group and set him in the mass appeal category.

Tibbett's film value would appear to be a demonstration of the use of the radio in building to popularity generally a name and voice which then becomes more salable as screen merchandise.

For the lovers of real music, splendidly rendered, there is Tibbett's brilliant rendition of a scene from Gounod's "Faust," wherein he plays Mephistopholes. For others there is stressed the popular in the tunes devised by Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz, notable songsmiths. Particularly there is the title song, which has the ingredients of best-seller stature.

Devised from stories by Bernice Mason and Cy Bartlett, the screen play by Frances Hyland and Saul Elkins tells of the browbeaten tenor, bedeviled by testimonials, contests, concerts and the like, who walks out to a distant ranch, there to be alone. But Wendy Barrie, society and spoiled, comes after him to win a bet that he will sing at her party. They fight and storm and battle each other from the ranch to New York, through a contract-breach suit in court to a happy, romantic and laughable conclusion.

Dr. Otto Preminger maintained the tempo of the opening sequences throughout. Comedy is the note, and contributing heavily to its development are the incomparable valet of Arthur Treacher and the unquenchable manager of Gregory Ratoff.

Thirty Get Hearing On Children's Law

As the result of an inspection tour conducted by Mayor La Guardia, Commissioner Paul Moss and deputy inspectors in the five boroughs, 30 theatre owners and managers appeared yesterday before License Commissioner Moss for violations of the new children's theatre law. The violations consisted mostly of bad and misplaced signs—matrons being incompetent—overcrowding—not enough exits—adults sitting in section and smoking.

With the warning that future violations would mean revoking of licenses or the placing of policemen in front of the theatres to prevent children from entering the commissioner dismissed all violators with the exception of Murray Scholn, owner of the Community, 215-32 Jamaica Ave., Queens Village, Long Island. Scholn's violations consisted of bad signs, adults smoking in section and incompetent matron. His license was revoked for one day.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Oct. 16. — George Dellis, city manager in charge of Constant's American and State, is in the Eye and Ear Hospital, Pittsburgh, recovering from a mastoid operation.

Flash Previews

"The Longest Night"—M-G-M has combined a murder mystery with some good comedy in this story of a young department store owner who falls in love with one of his salesgirls.

"The White Legion"—Set in the days of Panama Canal construction, this tells the story of four volunteer doctors and their struggles against yellow fever.

"Empty Saddles"—Another of the Buck Jones series—novel, exciting, satisfactory. Louise Brooks has the feminine lead.

These films will be reviewed in a coming issue of MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

"Godfrey" Sets New Pittsburgh Run Mark

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 16.—Mort Shea's Fulton holds "My Man Godfrey" a seventh week, breaking all picture run records here. The previous mark was six weeks, made by the first "Broadway Melody" at the old Aldine.

In six weeks, "My Man Godfrey" played to more than 163,000 paid admissions in the 1,700-seat house and will gross more than $55,000 during its phenomenal engagement. The house has definitely announced that the seventh will be the last week, inasmuch as both Republic and Twentieth Century-Fox are insisting upon getting "Follow Your Heart" and "The Road to Glory" in.

At the same time, neighborhood exhibitors are yelling that the Fulton is squeezing the picture dry. That's why it will stay only seven weeks, despite the fact that it's still making money.

close at 110½; the second preferred gained 1¾, closing at 14¾, and the common was up 1¼, closing at 15¼. Trading in all three issues was heavy.

The expectancy of an exceptionally favorable earnings statement for the quarter ended Sept. 30, with prospects of dividend action, is also viewed as a factor in the present strength of the issues, together with indications of an even more favorable report for the final 1936 quarter. The third quarter report, which is expected to show a net of more than $1,000,000, may not be ready until well into November, although the monthly meeting of the company's board is scheduled for Oct. 29 and a preliminary statement could be authorized at that time.

Television of Coronation Is British Plan

pleted, is being built at the Hayes, Middlesex, factory of Electrical Musical Industries. In operation, on the Marconi-E. M. I. system, the van will use Emitrone cameras both from the roof and from the ground. It is at present planned that a cable link will be used between the van and Broadcasting House, but experiments are being made with micro-wave transmission.

The B. B. C. has transmitted successfully by direct (E.M.I.) methods, scenes at a Home Life exhibition in North London.

Exhibitors are studying the possibility of showing the televised pictures of the Coronation in their theatres.

Harry Pearl of Essandee Cinemas has schemed a full size television screen and made provisional arrangements for receiving apparatus in the plans of his new 2,500-seater, the Rex, Edgware Road, London, in the belief that the Scophony system will permit a film size picture at that time.

Range Limitation a Problem

Seen as an interesting possibility is the use of television by exhibitors unable to obtain the Technicolor film of the Coronation procession, supervised by Alexander Korda and released by United Artists. The drawback, effective picture size assumed, is that the effective range of television transmission is at present 25 miles and that the B. B. C. has only the single London station, at Alexander Palace. Provincial stations, with a similar range, are scheduled for key cities, but no opening dates have been fixed.

The British Broadcasting Corp. began "trial transmissions" of television Oct. 1 with two daily sessions of one hour each, from 11 A. M. to 12 M. and 3 P. M. to 4 P. M. The Baird system operated until Oct 3, Marconi-E.M.I. replacing it the following week, with alternations of the systems weekly throughout the trial period, which is expected to continue until November. Regular daily program transmissions are then schemed on a three one-hour session plan.

next month," Cowdin said. "They will put Universal in a position to capitalize fully on the striking general gains throughout the industry. Current operations are on a very satisfactory basis.

New budgets for the 1937-38 production season, which provide for an increase in the company's schedule to 46 features and six westerns, were approved by the board.

The improvement in studio operations under the Charles R. Rogers and William Koenig regime will be evidenced in the release of 36 features during the current season, an increase of nearly a picture a month over the preceding year when only 25 features were completed, it was stated. Of the current season's schedule, 17 pictures have been completed, two are in work and four are set to start next week, as compared with 14 pictures completed during the same period of 1935.

In addition, it was stated, a saving of more than $150,000 has been effected in the allowance for the unused time of players through the building up of the company's stock talent to 72 players from a former 15. The saving, it was said, represents an appreciable improvement in what has been a large item of studio expense in recent years.

Suit Filed to Get William Fox Assets

Steelman, trustee in bankruptcy for Fox, and was not disclosed until Fox, his wife and daughters could be served with a temporary injunction restraining them from disposing of any assets.

"The real object sought to be attained by William Fox," the petition says, "was to thwart his creditors and retain for himself and his family, in fraud of his creditors, the full and unmolested enjoyment of all his assets. William Fox's wife and daughters were in full knowledge at all times of the things being done."

File Orpheum Schedule

Schedules in bankruptcy were filed in Federal Court by the Orpheum Theatre Co. of Madison, Wis. The liabilities were listed as $439,902 and assets at $23,853. The liabilities consisted mostly of unsecured claims amounting to $353,452, the biggest one of which was the Stadium Theatre Corp., of 1,270 6th Ave., which amounted to $292,873.

Affirm "Zombie" Award

equipment company and a veteran of the French industry.

Under the executive scheme devised, a managing committee has been named, including four representatives of each of the associations which have joined the major organization. The board of the Confederation includes the following members: Demaria, president and chairman; M. Chollat, technical; Felix Gandera, production; George Lourau, distribution; Raymond Lussiez, exhibition, vice-presidents; Leopold Maurice, technician, treasurer. Each of the vice-presidents is the president of the association representative of his branch.

Not included in the Confederation is the Chambre Syndicale, headed by Charles Delac, which was formed about a year ago. The majority of its members have gone over to the new organization. The basic principle of Delac's group is the "defence of the French film against foreign pictures."

Now, however, with official recognition of the new organization as the only trade group of the industry, it is expected that the influence formerly exercised by the Delac organization will be at an end, and that the unit eventually will be dissolved.

are so unsettled and the industry is so heavily taxed in those countries, that there is small likelihood of any need for a checking service, Ross said. In England, however, he found the industry definitely prospering. He expressed surprise at the size and number of theatres in England. American pictures are still by far the most popular there, he declared. Industrial conditions are booming in England, he said, and people are searching for investment opportunities.

Grosses Down From Peak Set In September

$1,625,287 Total Is Good Despite Decrease

New season releases have failed to maintain the terrific box-office pace set during the first two weeks of September when new four-year highs were set. The total take for 175 theatres in 29 key cities for the week ending October 9-10 was $1,625,287. This was $80,021 below the previous week and $119,035 below the week ending Oct. 2-3.

The decline has been gradual since Labor Day week, but last week's total was still above the level that has prevailed since last April when the Easter Week business was strong.

There were only five weeks during last winter and spring which showed better totals than last week.

Pittsburgh Resumes "Early Bird" Scale

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 18.—After six weeks at a straight 35 and 50-cent scale, the Penn has returned to its early bird price of 25 cents. Both the Penn and Stanley dropped the morning price at the same time, Sept. 1, with the Stanley the first to go back a fortnight ago.

The Penn would have done the same thing at that time had it not been for the fact that "The Great Ziegfeld" was booked for two weeks. So the management held up the switch until after the run of the Metro musical.

Both houses are now charging 25 cents from opening until 1 o'clock, 35 cents from 1 o'clock until 6 o'clock, and 50 cents after that.

Production Climbs With 47 on Stages

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—Gaining substantially after a slump of several weeks, production moved to a high peak of 47 features and four short subjects last week. There were 43 features in work the preceding week. Studio cutting rooms had 56 features and 24 shorts. Twenty-two features are scheduled to go before cameras within a two-week period.

Activity was highlighted by the start of 11 new pictures while seven finished production.

The new features to go into work were: "Interlude," "Lady of New York" and "Rio Grande Ranger" at Columbia; "One Man's Bonus" at Paramount; "Criminal Lawyer," Radio; "Happy Go Lucky," Republic;

Quota Modification Predicted in London

LONDON, Oct. 9.—"Onlooker," gossip writer in Today's Cinema, a well-informed commentator on trade affairs, foreshadows as the result of the Moyne Committee's deliberations on the Films Act a modification of the measure.

He suggests the possibility of "a quota lower in foot-percentage, but riding over a course of years to perhaps 25 per cent; a minimum price provision and a plan under which pictures of double expense should count double for quota; the appointment of a committee of control, and the possible acceptance of Simon Rowson's reciprocity suggestion."

Carriers Will Talk Distributing Units

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—The establishment of new agencies for the handling of physical distribution for producers or their selling representatives is scheduled to be discussed at the annual meeting of the National Film Carriers Ass'n., which opens here tomorrow at the Palmer House.

The centralized handling of physical distribution is under way already in Philadelphia, where it was launched by Horlacher's Delivery Service, and may be extended by the same company to Washington and other eastern cities. The discussion of the subject here will center on the advisability of other film carrier organizations making the same facilities available to sales organizations in their respective territories. Ending of Subsidiaries Basis of Belief

With most of the major companies dissolving practically all of their subsidiaries and their operations scheduled to be turned over to parent corporations, substantial increases in profits are expected as a result.

Under the present Federal laws, each subsidiary declaring a dividend must pay a dividend tax of 15 per cent to the Government. With the elimination of the individual operating units, the parent companies will automatically benefit by an additional 15 per cent, it was stated over the weekend by an attorney of one of the major corporations.

The fact that virtually all companies are now working on revisions of corporate structures is understood to be one explanation of the sudden spurt in film issues on the stock and bond markets in the last week.

It is also said that with the anticipated increases in profits, film companies will be in a better financial position to pay dividends. Twentieth Century-Fox on Sept. 29 declared a $1 dividend to common stockholders as of record last Saturday, payable Oct. 23. Paramount and Warners have not distributed dividends to the common shareholders for several years.

Loews and Columbia have consistently paid regular dividends with extras for some time.

The effect of the corporate revamping on the market behavior of amusement securities is indicated in several ways. The elimination of the subsidiaries to avoid taxation of dividends paid by them to the parent company results in bringing operating earnings directly to the parent. The corporate surplus

Will Remodel Roxy After Reorganizing

Upon completion of reorganization plans by the bondholders' protective committee, the Roxy will undergo extensive renovations. The theatre may be closed temporarily for the remodeling.

With Twentieth Century-Fox and Si Fabian, among others, having filed plans with the committee, the former for a 15-year lease and a product franchise and the latter for a long term lease or the alternative proposal of purchase, both interests are said to be contemplating sprucing up the

The National Legion of Decency, in its list of new pictures reviewed and classified for the current week, has approved six of seven new films. Five were classified as unobjectionable for general patronage, one as unobjectionable for adults, and one as objectionable in part. The new films, and their classification, follow:

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage—"California Mail," "Code of the Range," "15 Maiden Lane," "Polo Joe," "Tundra." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults—"The Man I Marry." Class B, Objectionable in Part—"The Man Who Lived Again."

Republic Starting Three

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—Republic will start production of three pictures this week. They are: "The Chinese Orange Mystery," which Ralph Staub will direct; "Roaring Lead," Sam Newfeld directing, and "Old Corral," which James Kane will direct. The last named is the next Gene Autry picture on the schedule.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Longest Night"

(M-G-M)

Starting as a gang film, slipping into what begins to give promise of a lively murder mystery yarn, and then abruptly degenerating into virtually slapstick comedy, this emerges as screen fare for those whose desire is the mere idle employment of something less than an hour.

The leaders in the cast, Robert Young, Florence Rice and Julie Haydon, deserve better material than that given to them by the story of Cortland Fitzimmons and the screen play of Robert Andrews. Ted Healy, as the studio policeman, is occasionally amusing in his role, and Leslie Fenton is good in his few screen minutes as a thief. The others appear to be beating their heads against the stone wall of an entirely inconsequential plot.

Young is the absent young department store owner who arrives in time to fall in love with Miss Rice, salesgirl, and become considerably involved in two murders and several close calls immediately after the store has closed. Fenton, in love with Miss Rice's sister, is killed, after his mother, important employe, is found dead. Then it slips, and from then on is a series of supposedly amusing pursuits, frights and general hokum, until the murder gang is brought to book, and Miss Rice says yes to Young. Errol Taggart directed.

Production Code Seal No. 2,557. Running time, 51 minutes. "G."

"The White Legion"

(Zeidman-Grand National)

There is a fairly good underlying theme in the plot of "White Legion," but the situations and dialogue lack the spark which might have injected stirring and compelling drama. It is an ample item for the dual bill houses.

Set in the days when the Panama Canal was being put through, the story takes up the work of four volunteer doctors who came to help stamp out the yellow fever epidemic. With the arrival of the quartet there follows a struggle with the natives, the beginning of preventive technique and then personal affairs which revolve around the quarantining of a senator and his attractive daughter. The romance angle is worked in by Ian Keith, one of the medicos, and Susanne Kaaren, the daughter of the senatorial investigator. However, true love later reveals itself when Keith infects himself with the disease, cures Miss Kaaren, who is unaware she is a carrier of the germ. He recovers and completes a romance with Tala Birell, another doctor. Shortly afterward they depart for new germs to conquer.

There are dramatic sequences in which Ferdinand Gottschalk, Teru Shimada, Ferdinand Munier, Lionel Pope, Rollo Lloyd and Robert Warwick give adequate performances. A comic element of sorts is worked in by Warner Richmond, Harry Allen, Don Barclay and Snub Pollard as the quarantine guard.

Production Code Seal No. 1,997. Running time, 81 minutes. "G."

It's You I Want

(British Lion-London)

LONDON, Oct. 9.—From a Daly's Theatre farce which was a box-office hit, this film is still stage material, of a very amusing type, somewhat risque in situation and dialogue, and possibly too British to get its full flavor over in the States, even though the American, Ralph Ince, directed it. Where they have an understanding of Sir Seymour Hicks and a liking for innuendo it will be a useful light booking, but it is essentially for sophisticated big city audiences.

Hicks is excellent as the philanderer type presented in "It's You I Want," a gay bachelor of 50 who has given the key of his flat to so many women that, when he tries to assist the intrigue of a friend with similar habits, it becomes a case of two sets of married couples having to be hidden in various rooms, escorted down the fire escape and what not. It is spicy, amusing if you understand the talk, and unmoral or immoral according to the sense of propriety—or of humor. The women in the cast are not too capable, but Hugh Wakefield is a good comedy second to Hicks.

Running time, 70 minutes. "A." ALLAN.

Former Para. Head In Tokyo Is Signed

By TETSUYA MORI

TOKYO, Sept. 26.—In an effort to strengthen the distribution arm of their newly merged units, Toho and Nikkatsu have signed several leading figures in the field. Most important acquisition in manpower is S. Sasho, former Paramount manager here, who had worked for Paramount for 18 years, and is generally recognized as one of the most able distribution executives here, who has been signed as general manager of distribution.

Empire Trading Co. here has acquired the Japanese distribution rights to the Celebrity cartoons. Eight color cartoons will be included in the first group to be handled by Empire.

The contract for distribution in Japan and Manchukuo of Republic product, the subject of considerable interest here, has been obtained by Ohbei Eiga-sha, following negotiations carried on in New York between Republic officials and K. Ono, nephew of the president of Ohbei.

It is reported that the company will release 25 Republic films here annually, of which 10 will be brought here between now and next May.

The decision to hold the next Olympic Games here in 1940 has led to increased activity in the television field, looking to a practical application of the device generally during the games. A public demonstration of the Hamamatsu System, developed at Waseda University and the Hamamatsu Technical school, and held at the Uyeno Scientific Museum here, was pronounced an outstanding success by the capacity audience.

Danish Production Quiet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The Danish film industry will be relatively quiet during the winter, reports Assistant Trade Commissioner Paul H. Pearson, at Copenhagen, to the U. S. Dept. of Commerce.

Two of the three domestic companies probably will release one film each. The third company's studio is in the process of construction and will hardly be completed in time to turn out films for the coming winter season.

Palladium is reported to have several films under contemplation but it is doubtful if they will be ready for the market before spring.

Nordisk Film is said to be handicapped by the lack of suitable manuscripts.

Gibson Planning Eight

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—Hoot Gibson is planning eight films with headquarters at Talisman Studios, though most of the shooting will be done near San Diego. The new company is Occidental Pictures, Inc. Dave Thomas is business manager. The first will be "Dude Ranchers," written by Gibson and Art Rosson, who will direct. No release arrangement has been made.

Fights "Ecstacy" Cuts

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 18.—An effort to prevent the cutting of three scenes from "Ecstacy" is being made here by Charles Holtz, manager of the Sierra. The deletions were ordered by the authorities who viewed the picture after the City Better Films Board complained of nudity in the film.

Bay State Long Reel Situation Unsolved

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—No mention of the local 2,000-foot reel situation was made at the last meeting of the Operators' Local 182. Thad Barrows, for years president of the union, was in Europe.

Members are still splitting 2,000-foot reels. Meanwhile, the fight against the adoption of the longer reels continues. The Massachusetts outcome hinges on the change of Bay State film regulations which have been in effect for about 15 years. Paul G. Kirk has not made a decision yet.

Exchanges are already considering the problem that will arise if Kirk rules against the longer reel. Massachusetts, in that event, will have to be serviced with special 1,000-foot reels, while the rest of New England will be shipped the regulation size.

No "Zombie" Affirmation

The appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court has not affirmed a judgment for $10,000 obtained in the lower court by the Amusement Securities Corp. against Academy Pictures Dist. Corp., as reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Saturday. The hearing will not take place until November at the earliest.

Hecht, MacArthur, Brandt Sued

Siegbert Cohn, German playwright, has filed suit in N. Y. Supreme Court against Ben Hecht, Charles MacArthur, Paramount and Brandt & Brandt, literary agents, for an accounting of profits on the film, "The Scoundrel." He sought a temporary injunction to halt the showing of the film, alleging essential parts of his play, "Wer Weint Un Juckenack," had been used in the picture.

"Land Without Music"

(Capitol-General Film)

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Richard Tauber scores a real success in this far-fetched but believeable, story. In excellent voice, he puts over the lilting Oscar Strauss music in splendid fashion and altogether gives a convincing performance. Schnozzle Durante as an American journalist travelling Europe in a donkey cart (early nineteenth century) makes the most of an excellent comedy part. The picture has been smoothly directed, well produced and exceptionally well photographed.

It is an entertaining fairy story of 100 years ago, when music was banned from the little Italian Duchy of Lucco by the Princess Regent, so that the people, who lived for music only, could go to work and repay the Austrian debt. Carlini, the opera singer and Lucco's favorite son, returning from abroad for his annual concert, rescues the American journalist and his lovely daughter from the hands of bandits and is smuggled by them into his own country. The concert is staged in secret in the bandits' underground cave and as a result the Princess has singer, journalist and the girl thrown into jail. In consequence the people of Lucco revolt, the hero-singer organizes a state opera, the national debt is paid and all ends happily with the Princess in love with the singer and the journalist's daughter in love with the son of the chief of police. Walter Forde directed.

Running time, 80 minues. "G." HOPE WILLIAMS.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Empty Saddles"

(Buck Jones-Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—With a little novelty rung in for good measure, the standard ingredients of outdoor thrill action pictures have been nicely incorporated in this picture. Against attractive natural backgrounds an acceptable story, leavened with considerable comedy, is told. Although the motivation is sometimes complicated, consistently high caliber acting on the part of the principals and support, together with understanding direction, make up for apparent shortcomings.

Buck Jones comes into a territory that for years has been a battleground for rival cattle and sheep owners. Through association with her eccentric father, Harvey Clarke, Jones becomes romantically interested in Louise Brooks. Taking up an abandoned ranch, Jones transforms it into a dude ranch, Although the action is something the natives fear, Jones plans a sham battle between cattle and sheep men as the big feature for his guests. Meanwhile with eastern girl visitors making up to Jones, Miss Brooks becomes jealous. The sham battle turns out to be the real thing to the tune of much hectic riding and shooting. But before the melee gets out of hand, Jones, realizing how much danger the girl is in, foils a plot on her life to bring the film to a romantic conclusion.

Production quality is above average and this, plus the fact that the film is ample in the elements that please the thrill action enthusiasts, gives it a character pointing to satisfactory reception by audiences who like to see their pictures move.

"Pigskin Parade"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—Comedy, amusement and excitement are served in large quantities and in pleasing fashion here. A ludicrous farce story is used as the peg on which to hang a long chain of entertaining and amusing specialty performances.

The motivating idea concerns the gleeful experiences of a little Texas cow-town college that gets an invitation to play football in the Yale Bowl. What happens there during a raging blizzard is bizarre, comic football as the little team wins. Yet it is an anti-climax to the frolicsome foolishness of all that precedes.

Essentially the production is a tuneful, rhythmic musical comedy that satirizes the football hysteria. It gives the big collection of fun providers ample opportunity to present riotous amusement. The Yacht Club Boys with four specialty numbers cavort all the way through the

U. A. to Show Films In Odeon in London

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Murray Silverstone has officially confirmed the general expectation that the Odeon super theatre to be built in place of the Alhambra in Leicester Square, will be a pre-run house for United Artists.

London Films' "I, Claudius," with Charles Laughton, now in production at Denham, is expected to be the first attraction. Thereafter, United Artists will use the Odeon concurrently with its own theatre, the London Pavilion. U. A.'s contract with the Leicester Square has expired, but it will be used for a 12-week season for "The Garden of Allah," and probably for other pictures. U. A. has 35 pictures calling for West End presentation, says Silverstone. It is hoped to complete the Odeon and the picture in time for the coronation.

Hartford State to Try Out Basketball

HARTFORD, Oct. 18.—Basketball may be one of the features on the stage of the State which was reopened today by the Harris Brothers, owners. The house will feature double bills, with vaudeville Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Sunday afternoon concerts will be given by the 80-piece WPA Civic Symphony, followed by a community sing late in the afternoon, which will be broadcast.

Julian B. Tuthill, critic of the Hartford Times, will broadcast movie gossip from the lobby each week. Several local championship teams have been lined up for the basketball, which can be played with regulation rules.

Open Hollywood Office

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—Goldstein, Goetz and Blumenthal is the latest agency to launch operations here. The associated three are Bob Goldstein of New York, where he now maintains his own office and is the radio talent clearing bureau for Blackett, Sample and Hummert, Inc.; Charles Goetz, formerly with Consolidated and Brunswick, and Ray Blumenthal.

Dealers Meet Opened

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Equipment dealers started a three-day meeting at the Congress Hotel here yesterday with about 45 delegates in attendance. Discussion of the Patman Bill will occupy most of the business sessions, and constitutes the primary reason for the calling of the meeting.

Mae West for Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Mae West has been signed for personal appearances at the B. & K. Chicago, concurrently with the run of her picture, "Go West, Young Man," at that house next month. B. & K. officials are predicting a run of three or four weeks.

Income Gain Is Seen From Reorganizing

tax then operates to discourage applying the direct flow of income to surplus, with the result that dividend action becomes advisable.

The improved earnings of film companies and the increasingly brighter prospects for the future are, in themselves, sufficient to strengthen the market value of amusement securities, but the greater likelihood of dividend action as a result of the new corporate taxes increases the public's interest in the issues correspondingly. An additional factor in the present market action is the fact that numerous investors acquired large holdings at bargain prices some time ago and, having huge profits now which would be subject to the income tax if their holdings were realized upon by selling, the tendency is not to sell. This, of course, creates a scarcity in certain issues, further boosting their market quotations.

Centralization Complete

In the amalgamation of the many units, the major companies also will be able to consolidate losses with the profitable operations. The new tax law does not allow the net losses of one company to be marked off against a profitable company, but with the welding of the various entities operations as a whole only will be shown.

Shortly after the formation of Grand National Distributing Corp. and Grand National Films, the former unit was dissolved. All contracts are made and performed by the latter company. No subsidiaries have been set up for the purpose of doing business in each of the key centers, but a state tax nevertheless is required.

During the past few months, Sumner Gamby, Chase National representative and vice-president of National Theatres, has been studying the Federal tax laws. There is little doubt that he will eliminate most of the small theatre corporations. What action will be taken on partnership corporations hasn't been determined.

Country-wide Changes Due

West Coast Corp. is the holding company for about 80 subsidiaries in and around California. Charles Skouras is the head of this group. Associated Theatres, with Rick Ricketson at the helm, has about eight minor associated units; Elmer C. Rhoden of Fox Midwest, about 15; Frank Newman, Sr., of Evergreen States, six; and Fox Wisconsin of which Harold J. Fitzgerald is head approximately 20.

How many of the figures will be lopped off and what disposition will be made of the regional companies named is to be determined within the next few weeks.

On Saturday, Paramount, Warners, RKO and Loew's were the most active film issues. Warners common closed with a gain of ¼ point, Paramount common ½, Paramount first preferred reached 112⅜, a new high, and Paramount second preferred closed at 14¾.

RKO jumped ⅜ of a point on heavy trading. Sales in thousand lots were not uncommon. Loew's advanced 1⅛ on the day.

"Top of the Town," Universal; "San Quentin" and "Justice After Dark," Warners. "Lawless Land," a Supreme picture, represented the independents.

Twentieth Century-Fox and Warners led the list, each with eight pictures in work. Columbia was next with seven.

Columbia had seven features shooting, four preparing and six in the cutting rooms. Samuel Goldwyn had one, zero and one; M-G-M four, one and 12; Paramount six, three and five; Republic one, three and three; Radio three, two and 10; Roach two, zero and one; Selznick International zero, zero and one; Twentieth Century-Fox eight, three and five; Universal three, one and one; Walter Wanger one, one and zero; Warners eight, one and nine, and the independents three, three and two.

In the short subjects division Columbia had none shooting, two preparing and three editing. M-G-M had one, zero and six; Radio two, one and two; Roach one, zero and one; independents zero, one and zero.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—Hal Roach has signed Laura Treadwell, Don Clement and Wilson Cox for "Nobody's Baby."

Gratitude!

Des Moines, Oct. 18.—Joe Gerbrach, manager of the Ames, has decided there will be no more free shows for the Iowa State College students, no matter how many football games they win. About 500 students stormed the house demanding entrance after a football victory over Kansas U. The collegians bombarded the theatre with bad eggs and apples, breaking two expensive neon signs and spattering carpets and the sides of the building. The police used tear gas bombs to disperse the crowd.

Gerbrach has been giving free shows to the students after the most important football games of the season.

Pittsburgh House Broadcasting

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 18.—Two regular radio programs are now originating from the stage of the Enright, Warner house in East Liberty. One, called "Footlights and Stardust," is sponsored directly by the circuit over WWSW and consists of 30 minutes of film chatter and gossip, together with organ music and plugs for all the current Warner attractions in the neighborhood houses. It goes on five mornings a week at 11:30 o'clock.

The other program is sponsored by a jewelry firm and hits the WWSW air waves once a week. It is in the form of a Community Sing, in which the audience every Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock is asked to participate. There are prizes from the sponsors for those attending and Warners figure it's a good build-up for the Friday night business.

CBS Ready in Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Starting Tuesday, CBS's local outlet, WJSV, will inaugurate its first commercial program for a basic network from Washington.

Mabelle Jennings, one-time dramatic editor of the Washington Daily News and the Washington Herald, under the sponsorship of Laco Products Corp., twice a week will take a portable microphone to some local vantage point and ask of women, "What's on your mind?"

Miss Jennings, newest of WJSV's ether commentators, will broadcast on this program on Tuesday and Thursday at 1 o'clock.

film. Dixie Dunbar and Judy Garland sing and dance to half a dozen numbers prepared by Lew Pollack and Sidney D. Mitchell. Jack Haley as the coach, pestered and henpecked by Patsy Kelly, his wife, accounts for any number of laughs. Johnny Downs and Betty Grable supply comedy-tinged, romantic love interest. Elisha Cook comes through with a bit as an anti-capitalist student that is a howl. Arline Judge is the campus vamp. Stuart Erwin, the hero, a barefoot boy from the melon patch, does tricks with a football that astounds the sons of Eli.

As a load of nonsense in which there are but few moments resembling anything looking like sanity, the film has novel and unique amusement. Yet in departing widely from any previous football story, the formula is intelligently produced and is directed by David Butler so that a maximum of pleasing amusement is derived. In compounding the story, Arthur Sheekman, Nat Parin and Mark Kelly included every funny gag they could think of concerning football and campus antics. The screenplay is by Harry Tugend, Jack Yellen and William Counselman.

"Wild Brian Kent"

(Principal-Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—A villain who thinks up more than the usual amount of dirty dodges to get a ranch away from a widow is the chief claim to interest in this Harold Bell Wright western which follows the average formula with average appeal.

Ralph Bellamy, a playboy-wastrel, is abandoned in the cattle belt by a polo team that is disgusted and tired of taking his IOU's for gambling debts. His willingness to take chances lands him with a broken head at a ranch which two lone women are trying to keep from the grasp of Stanley Andrews, the villain. Before Andrews is marched off to his well-deserved incarceration, he gets the mortgage by trickery, gives the cattle the deadly anthrax and sets fire to a wheat field. Bellamy is so busy using his promotor's charm trying to save the ranch that he forgets about being a playboy and is the hero complete by the time Mae Clarke, the heroine, decides she has been misjudging him all along.

Helen Lowell, Jack Duffy, Eddie Chandler and Howard Hickman have important supporting roles under the direction of Howard Bretherton.

A cross-country race with cow country thugs after Miss Clarke provides some excitement and the fire in the field is different, at least.

Production Code Seal No. 2,663. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Easy to Take"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—Based on one slim story idea that is stretched to the limit, this picture misses the comedy response intended.

The premise is this: An eccentric, wealthy spinster provides in her will that John Howard, the conductor of a children's radio hour, shall be appointed guardian and administer the estate left to Douglas Scott, her young nephew. Howard later finds the estate bankrupt and supports young Scott and his sister, Marsha Hunt, from his radio earnings. Eugene Pallette as Howard's manager complicates things by using the situation for publicity purposes which splits the developing romance between Howard and Miss Hunt until the finish.

The production tries to cover the story weakness by devoting considerable time to the children's hour radio sequence, but the performances by the child players are not particularly interesting.

Virginia Van Upp is credited with the screenplay from the story by Wayne Kilbourne. Glenn Tryon directed. In the supporting cast Richard Carle stands out among the adults and Carl Switzer's solo in the radio sequence is by far the most amusing.

Production Code Seal No. 2,594. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Carleton Young Cast

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18. — Carleton Young, pulled from the stage production of "The Drunkard," which has held the Hollywood boards for the last three years, and signed to the Republic talent school, has been given his first screen assignment. The studio, figuring he has had enough rehearsal, has cast him as a drunkard in "The Chinese Orange Mystery."

Buy "Woman Interne"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—Paramount has purchased "Woman Interne," magazine story by Faith Baldwin, as a probable picture to star Claudette Colbert. As Miss Colbert will make "I Met Him in Paris" when she finishes her current assignment, "Maid of Salem," production will not start for some time.

"Dodsworth" Gets $15,000 in Cincy

CINCINNATI, Oct. 18.—Backed by a smash exploitation campaign and local tieups, "Dodsworth" was in the top money at the RKO Albee, pulling $15,000, average is $12,000. It continues at the RKO Capitol.

"The Devil is a Sissy" went over the RKO Palace figure by $2,000 on a $12,000 take. "Swing Time" did $3,300 on its fourth week downtown at the RKO Grand, where average is $2,750. The RKO Family broke even with "Meet Nero Wolfe" and "I'd Give My Life" on a split bill, grossing $1,250 and $1,200, respectively, on the two features.

"Old Hutch" skyrocketed to $7,300 at Keith's plussing average by $800.

The weather alternated between pleasant and rainy days. College football and racing at nearby River Downs provided the bulk of the competition.

Total first run business was $53,900. Average is $58,700.

Concessions Impend, Says Ed Kuykendall

Announcement in a Week, Tri-States Men Told

MEMPHIS, Oct. 19.—The M.P.T.O.A. within a week will have a definite announcement on certain concessions from distributors, Ed Kuykendall, president, stated today in an address befor the Tri-States M.P.T.O. at its semi-annual session held at the Chisca Hotel here.

"I cannot reveal the nature of the announcement," said Kuykendall, "but I feel sure that it will make you happy because it is along the lines toward which we have been negotiating."

Kuykendall predicted that the coming national convention will have the largest attendance in the history of the organization. He added that it will be held probably at Miami.

Kuykendall stated that the industry must gird itself for another hard fight in Washington at the next Congressional session. The industry as a whole, he said, is better able today to demand and get what it wants.

M. A. Lightman, president of Tri-States, presided at today's session. The Kuykendall address occupied the morning session. The Memphis exchanges gave a luncheon for the visiting exhibitors at noon.

Kuykendall addressed the delegates

Court May Get Plan for RKO In a Few Days

Pressure Is Brought for Reorganization Action

A plan of reorganization for RKO stands a "good chance" of being presented to the Federal court here this week for hearings, a reorganization factor stated yesterday.

Despite the fact that many considerations essential to obtaining approval of the plan have not been worked out yet, considerable pressure is being brought to bear on the reorganization managers to file a plan with the Federal court at the earliest possible moment. Efforts to do so, which may result in the plan being brought out this week, are continuing. Under this procedure the plan may not take final shape in several important particulars until creditors of RKO have been heard in open court.

Indications are that while provisions will be made for secured creditors, the final treatment of unsecured claims may be resolved later. It was stated on good authority that no final provision has been made yet for the $9,100,000 Rockefeller Center claim, the largest of the unsecured classification. This claim, however, because of its individual aspects, may be treated separately, apart from the other unsecured claims against RKO.

See Precedent In Injunction On Miss Davis

English Court Upholds Warner Contract

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 19.—A decision of far-reaching importance, in that it appears to establish a precedent for the disposition of future cases of similar nature, was handed down in King's Bench Court here today when Justice Sir George Branson granted Warners injunction against Bette Davis, under contract to the company.

The order restrains Miss Davis from working for any other film company or in any stage production in Great Britain during the duration of her contract or for three years, whichever period is the shorter.

The court declared there was no evidence that the Warner contract with Miss Davis was in restraint of trade. He said the actress, who had walked out of the studio in Hollywood, could not be driven to performance of the contract by the injunction but that she might be tempted to perform it.

Justice Branson said Miss Davis had broken her contract "for no discoverable reason but that she wanted more money.

"I can see no reason for holding the contract unlawful," the court said. The costs of the hearing were assessed against the actress.

Miss Davis had gone to London and

S. E. C. Sets Hearing For Hollywood Firm

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The Securities and Exchange Commission has set Oct. 29 as the date for a hearing in connection with the registration statement filed Sept. 8 by Hollywood Famous Pictures, Inc., of Los Angeles, declaring it has found "the appearance of untrue statements of material facts and omissions of material facts in the facing sheet, 11 items, the prospectus, one exhibit and a consent."

The company had said it planned film production at a cost of $8,000 to $10,000 per film, and sought to issue 50,000 shares of $1 par seven per cent participating preferred stock and 50,000 shares of $1 par common.

U.S. Protests Italian Move To Hold Funds

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The State Dep't acting on the protest of major film companies, has instructed Ambassador Phillips at Rome to act on behalf of the American industry in opposing the Italian Government's proposed legislation which would restrict the amount of money which American companies could withdraw from Italy, and direct the application of the balance to film production in Italy.

Call Proposals "Unthinkable"

The Italian Government has been shaping plans for regulations of this nature since last August with the object of insuring support of the new $10,000,000 studio project near Rome which will be opened next June. While American film companies have been aware of the trend of proposed regulations in Italy, only recently have these taken definite enough shape to warrant a formal protest. It is understood that Italian authorities now favor a proposal limiting to 8,000,000 lire annually the amount of film revenue which could be taken out of the country by American distributors. This is only about 25 per cent of the revenue derived from Italy by the American companies. The remaining 75 per cent would be impounded in Italy with restrictions on its use which would make it nearly obligatory to apply the funds to film production at the new Italian studio. American companies, in their protest to the State Dep't, described the effect of the proposed regulations as "unthinkable."

Roncoroni Dropped Hint

Carlo Roncoroni, head of the Italian Government's film bureau, visited New York and Hollywood last summer in an effort to obtain voluntary agreements from American producers to use the new studio near Rome on its completion. So far as was learned following his visit, no definite commitments were obtained by the Italian film envoy during his stay here. Walter Wanger, during an earlier visit to Italy, was reported as having agreed to make at least one picture in Italy next year. Roncoroni intimated on several occasions during his visit here that if American producer cooperation for the new studio venture was not forthcoming, changes in Italy's financial regulations governing the withdrawal of revenue from the country might be expected.

Assistant Secretary James Dunn has been representing the American film companies in the progress of the proposed Italian regulations at Rome, but the most recent instructions transmitted by Secretary of State Cordell Hull were directed to Ambassador Phillips. The communication asserted that the United States views the proposed regulations apprehensively.

Boosey for Retaining Canada Rights Group

Continuation of the Canadian Performing Rights Society is favored by Leslie Boosey, chairman of the Performing Rights Society of London, which, with Ascap, owns the Canadian music licensing organization, Boosey stated here yesterday on his arrival from England aboard the Queen Mary.

He will be in America for the next two weeks, during which time he will confer with E. C. Mills, general manager of Ascap, on the future policy of the Canadian Performing Rights Society as a result of recent legislation which limits the music tax which may be charged by the society in Canada for the public performance of copyrighted music for profit. From here, Boosey will go to Canada to confer with Dominion officials on some form of acceptable modification of the present restrictions.

Scale Increase Request Expected

Indications are that the Canadian Government will be asked to increase the scale of authorized music fees in order to avoid dissolution of the Canadian licensing organization and the confusion and litigation which, it is believed, would result.

"The discussions will be quite friendly," Boosey said. "It will be a matter of give and take. We may have to make some concessions, and the Canadians, likewise, before it's over."

On the inauguration of the new Canadian legislation last summer, Mills stated that Ascap would withdraw from licensing activities there because the new scale of fees no longer made it financially worthwhile to operate in the Dominion. If any satisfactory rate compromise can be worked out with the Canadian government, however, it is understood that Ascap will continue its phase of Canadian operations with the Performing Rights Society represented by Boosey.

FitzPatrick to Drop Shorts for Features

After completing this and next year's lineup of shorts for M-G-M, James A. FitzPatrick will cease producing Travel Talks and devote his future plans to features.

In the interim, FitzPatrick is experimenting with a series of features in England. He recently completed two, "David Livingstone" and another, and will sail tomorrow on the Queen Mary for London to start the third, "Auld Lang Syne."

FitzPatrick may join M-G-M at the coast studios on a basis similar to Hal Roach. The British-made pictures will be distributed in this country by Harry Thomas.

Want British Songs

LONDON, Oct. 19.—British songwriters have formed an organization to work for a quota of at least 40 per cent of songs broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corp. American works make up most of the other 60 per cent.

Mary Garden to Films

PARIS, Oct. 19.—Mary Garden says she is quitting opera because it is a dying art form and will leave soon for Hollywood to go into pictures. She is understood to have signed a contract with M-G-M last December.

Set Committees on Richardson Dinner

Committees have been appointed for the testimonial banquet to be tendered to F. H. Richardson, who conducts the Technological Dep't of Motion Picture Herald, by the American Projection Society at the Pennsylvania Hotel on Saturday. Lester B. Isaac will be toastmaster and Jay C. Flippen will be master of ceremonies. Entertainment and dancing will feature the evening.

The committees and their chairmen are: Arrangements, Alfred R. T. Bishop; past presidents, Joseph D. Basson; S.M.P.E., Dr. A. N. Goldsmith; exhibitors, George Skouras; theatre equipment executives, Will C. Smith; entertainment, M. D. O'Brien; honorary members, George C. Edwards; I.A.T.S.E., George S. Browne; publicity, P. A. Equipment Men Hear Congressman Patman

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Equipment dealers and manufacturers differed in their acceptance of the provisions of the Patman Bill as outlined by Congressman Patman who addressed the delegates at the Congress Hotel here today. While the dealers were pleased with the bill as described, the manufacturers advanced many objections in a series of questions which the speaker invited and answered.

Patman claimed that the bill would give independent dealers equality with the larger houses, would break up monopolies and enable the small exhibitor to purchase equipment as cheaply as the circuits. He said that prices would be standardized by dealers and that no deviation would be permitted. Patman is here on a tour of the country.

The meeting, which started at noon today, dealt with a situation regarding the possible formation of another group similar to National Theatre Supply. Details of the plan could not be divulged by President Robin of the equipment organization who said that the new group suggested was for selling purposes and in no respect opposed to the present organization. He added that members generally were pleased with the Patman talk.

Film Carriers Start Today

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Forty members of the National Film Carriers' Ass'n are at the Palmer House here for the regular sessions of their annual convention which opens tomorrow. They were guests today at a meeting of the American Trucking Ass'n which is in session here.

Sherriff Arrives to Work on "U" Script

R. C. Sherriff, British playwright and author, will leave for the Universal studios today, via train, to work on some changes in his previous adaptation of "The Road Back."

Arriving on the Queen Mary yesterday, Sherriff brought with him the completed screen script of "Good Bye, Mr. Chips," which he will deliver to M-G-M. After a brief stay at Universal, the playwright-author will begin a six-week contract at M-G-M. He said yesterday he had no idea what his next assignment would be.

Sherriff, although under contract to several film companies, does most of his work in England and once a year makes a trip to Hollywood.

John Baxter of Baxter & Baxter Prod. and U. K. Films arrived on the same boat for a two-week vacation, having completed "Men of Yesterday." Tomorrow, he will head for Boston where he will spend a few days with friends and then return. He will sail on the Queen Mary on Nov. 4.

Frederic Lonsdale, English novelist, said he might go to the coast for one of the companies, but uppermost in his mind was his health.

Having recently completed a role in a Charles B. Cochran play, Claire Luce is here for a 10-day vacation after which she will return to London for another stage assignment.

Union Pickets Seek Window Cards Work

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—Members of the Billposters' Union have started picketing independent film houses in an effort to get window card distribution rights. They ask a minimum of $10 per day regardless of the number of cards distributed.

Theatres have been doing their own distribution. The U.M.P.T.O. will meet Thursday to consider the situation. It is believed that the outcome will be abandonment of window card advertising. Warners have discontinued it.

Jerseymen at Trenton

A statewide meeting of New Jersey exhibitors will be held today at the Stacey-Trent, Trenton with Lee Newbury, president of Allied of New Jersey, presiding.

Legislation, product and sales policies of distributors will be among the topics on the program. About 50 are expected.

The I.T.O.A. tomorrow will hold its regular meeting at the Astor.

Delay "Salem" Opening

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—Plans for the premiere of "Maid of Salem" on Thanksgiving day have been abandoned by Paramount due to the continued illness of Claudette Colbert. Only 10 days of shooting remain, but Miss Colbert still is confined to her home.

Antarctic Story for G. B.

The G. B. subsidiary, Instructional Films, is producing "The Voyage of the Discovery," based on the famous research trip of the ship of that name. Unusual shots of whales and many species of Antarctic wild life will be made. The expedition will remain in South Polar waters until 1938.

Purely Personal

K. C. Union Resumes Control of Affairs

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19.—Robert Dillon, former business agent for Local 170, has been elected to that position again by the I.A.T.S.E. unit, which this week resumed local autonomy. Dillon's position's position as business agent was expanded to include that of secretary.

John Morgan, at one time president of the local, was elected president; D. L. McCullough, vice-president, and I. H. Burkert, treasurer. Burkert was secretary for 25 years before the I. A. last year assumed control of the local's affairs.

The local now will make its own deals with exhibitors. First runs are working on the basis of the contract which ended Aug. 31, 1935, but which was not renewed because of a disagreement between the union and the theatres over the union demand for a substantial increase. For several years the local has not had a contract with subsequent runs, but most of these use union labor on an individual exhibitor, oral agreement basis.

Bankruptcy Report Expected This Week

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19.—The final report of the trustee, Herbert V. Jones, for the Fox Midland and Fox Rocky Mountain bankrupticies, is expected to be filed this week, according to Elliot Jones, attorney for the trustee.

The reports will be on file at the bankruptcy referee's office for 20 days in order to permit examination by creditors. If no objections are filed, Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves will issue a formal order discharging the trustee, ending the bankruptcy of the two circuits which began with a voluntary petition filed March 8, 1933.

E. M. Hartley on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—E. M. Hartley, manager of the Photophone sales division of RCA, is here from Camden for conferences with J. E. Francis, M. F. Burns, and other western executives on new RCA High Fidelity installations. Paul G. McCollum, comptroller of RCA Mfg. Co., arrived earlier in the week, and will remain for several weeks. Frederick Leuschner, coast resident attorney of the company, is in the east for a month of conferences with legal heads of RCA.

Takes N. E. Distribution

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—Wholesome Films have taken over the New England distribution of Century Pictures, formerly handled by Cameo, which is leaving its Melrose St. offices to take over a building on Piedmont St. Lila Izen, veteran film executive here, is booking Century now, succeeding Walter Gillis, who has the job under the Cameo setup.

Drive-in at Providence

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 19.—Work has commenced on a new Drive-In Theatre, similar to that in Weymouth, Mass. The Weymouth venture, the first of its sort in New England, is rounding out its first year and expects to keep open well into November. The backers are the same for both enterprises. The bicycle track in Pawtucket has been selected as the site.

the past three and a half months is substantial and most encouraging. Our company has definitely emerged from the conditions which so long clouded its horizon.

"I am confident that we are well on our way toward the complete realization of our hope and aspiration—the re-establishment of our unquestioned leadership and the self-confidence which goes with it.

"Nothing has contributed so much to our progress as the quality of product which our studio is turning out under the able direction of Adolph Zukor. To his experience and judgment, coupled with the reassurance which his leadership has inspired throughout the Paramount lot, can be attributed the success of such pictures as 'The General Died at Dawn,' 'The Texas Rangers,' 'Valiant Is the Word for Carrie' and the currently sensational 'Big Broadcast of 1937.'

"With such productions as 'Champagne Waltz,' 'The Plainsman,' 'Maid of Salem' and 'Go West, Young Man,' I am confident we will still further strengthen our position.

"To the distribution department I extend my greetings. We in the home office know that you will continue your good work, to the end that the record of achievement of our entire organization may be complete."

Columbia Will Have 10-12 English-Made

Amalgamated Studios and the latter at the Joe Rock studios. No other contracts have been signed since the Soskin agreement, Seidelman asserted.

Discussing his trip, the Columbia foreign executive declared that "outside of England things are difficult due to money regulations. A new change is expected in Italy on the export of currency," he said, "which would ease restrictions a bit. At the present moment, things there are at a standstill."

Seidelman said Charles C. Pettijohn of the Hays office visited Italy recently on the money restriction angle. He is due back soon.

Business in Spain is going on as usual in the company's offices not under Government control. There is no free circulation of funds, all money coming in being under Federal control. The Government is anxious to see that employes are paid and after this has been done, the balance is impounded in banks.

Seidelman would not discuss reports Columbia had purchased an interest in Schlesingers' Daly in London. He referred inquiries on the subject to Jack Cohn, who recently denied the story.

Raises Lincoln Prices

LINCOLN, NEB., Oct. 19.—The Varsity here of the L. L. Dent circuit, has increased prices to 20 cents to 2 P.M., 25 cents to 6 P.M. and 35 cents for evenings, from 10 cents, 20 cents and 25 cents.

It May Be It

again during the afternoon's proceedings. In a political vein, he recommended the re-election of President Roosevelt, declaring that the President has done more for the show business than any of our former chief executives.

Other speakers included Fred Wehrenberg of St. Louis, L. C. Griffith of Oklahoma and Fred M. Jack, southern sales manager for Warners.

At the election of officers, Robert X. Williams, exhibitor and mayor of Oxford, Miss., was elected president to succeed Lightman who, in turn, replaces Emma Cox, of Osceola, Ark., as chairman of the board. Other officers are: H. W. Evans, Marks, Miss., successor to Williams as secretary and treasurer; J. A. West of Louisville, vice-president for Mississippi; L. F. Havens of Blytheville, vice-president for Arkansas and W. F. Ruffin of Covington, vice-president for Tennessee.

Banquet Closes Meet

Directors are: Arkansas—Henry Sanders of Little Rock, Cecil Cupp of Arkadelphia, J. F. Norman of England, M. S. McCord of Little Rock, H. D. Wharton of Warren, O. W. McCutchen of Blytheville and Emma Cox of Osceola. Mississippi—W. S. Tyson of Water Valley, W. H. Baker of Macon and W. A. Rush of Houston. Tennessee—Y. D. Moore of Memphis, Tom Ballas of Columbia and Cecil Vogel and Lightman of Memphis.

The convention closed with a banquet and dance in the evening at the Chisca Hotel.

Working Out Details

Distributors reported yesterday that definite progress was being made on sales policy revisions within individual companies to embrace concessions in line with the trade practice reforms which are sought by the M.P.T.O.A. Indications are that the first list of concessions will be made known by one of the major distributors within a day or two and the decisions of other distribution companies shortly thereafter.

In general, a majority of companies are expected to make concessions which will include unrestricted cancellation, elimination of the score charge, adoption of the short form of exhibition contract and the establishment of local conciliation boards in exchange centers to handle local trade practice complaints. The concessions probably will vary in detail and some companies may not agree to all of these four major points of the exhibitor program, but basically the concessions to be made will represent significant gains for exhibitors, it was indicated. Cancellation may be offered only to exhibitors who buy a company's total output and, it is expected, the score charge may be dropped only in connection with individual deals made on the basis of that charge being eliminated.

MPTO of Western Pa. Opens Two-Day Meet

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 19.—The M. P. T. O. of Western Pennsylvania began a two-day convention at the Hotel Schenley here today, with about 100 in attendance. The first day was devoted to routine business, with P. S. Harrison, publisher of Harrison's Reports, as the chief speaker. He told of his recent coast experiences and told the exhibitors what they might expect in the way of product during the year.

Tomorrow Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied States, is scheduled to deliver the major address, and Eddie Golden, general sales manager of Chesterfield and Invincible, will outline the company's plan for Allied members. A banquet tomorrow evening will conclude the meeting.

Supreme Court to Hear Fox's Appeal

contempt of $235,082, representing the unpaid balance of a judgment for $297,412, and $10,000, representing the fees and disbursements of attorneys for the Capital Co.

The court consented to review the case last May, but was unable to hear it before adjournment of the term and it was placed on the calendar for argument this fall.

The judgment was entered by confession in the District Court in July, 1935, and a subpoena in supplementary proceedings was issued Sept. 28, which was served on Fox on a railroad train in Pennsylvania. Fox failed to appear in court and was charged with contempt, later making the defense that the court had no jurisdiction because the subpoena was served on him outside the district. The court refused to entertain the defense, and Fox appealed to the circuit court, which held that no final order had been entered and the appeal was premature.

Arrest Ordered

Holding that the subpoena had been properly served and that Fox was in contempt, the court thereupon imposed a fine in the amount of the unpaid balance of the judgment and also assessed the $10,000 for costs and ordered Fox's arrest and imprisonment until the fine and fees had been paid or until he submitted to examination.

Fox again appealed and the case was again dismissed by the Circuit Court, whereupon he sought relief from the Supreme Court, which consented to review the question of jurisdiction but refused to consider the case itself, in the absence of a final order.

Sunday Films Voted

ANSON, TEX., Oct. 19.—At a special city election, Sunday films were legalized here by a vote of 183 to 52.

announced her intention of appearing in a production for Toeplitz Prod., Ltd. Warners applied for the injunction last summer, and the hearing began last week, with Sir Patrick Hastings, Warner attorney here, pointing out that the contract called for $1,350 per week, rising to $3,000 weekly in six years. It is understood the contract has three years to run at this time.

Hastings declared at the hearing, in which Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of Warner production, testified, that Miss Davis had been bribed to break her contract.

The execution of the restraint order was stayed by the court for 14 days to give the defendant opportunity to appeal, which is expected.

Although the decision here today applies only to Miss Davis working in Great Britain, it naturally would be cited as a precedent in a similar case brought anywhere else.

Warner will sail for New York on the Ile de France on Wednesday, arriving in the United States Oct. 27.

the carrying forward of £147,021 as against £150,265 last year-end.

These details were made known in the late afternoon without official comment. There was no dividend recommendation. Last year seven per cent was paid.

It is probable that public holders of the ordinary shares will protest the big allotment to reserve in place of a dividend. Comment probably will also be forthcoming because this proposal was not announced until after the deal with John B. Maxwell and Associated British Pictures.

No indication was given as to when the full report will be ready or the date of the annual meeting.

Producers to Hear Copyright Reports

Four major changes in the Berne convention's present regulations are desired by the industry, Kilroe set forth in an oral report to the committee several weeks ago. He expressed the opinion then that the changes to be recommended probably would be accepted by the Berne convention.

Four Theatres Closed

Four theatres were closed yesterday by License Commissioner Paul Moss as a penalty for infractions of the Joseph Law, which requires the setting aside of special sections and matrons where children are admitted unaccompanied until 6 P.M. Among the houses darkened for the day were the Community, Queens Village, and the Lido, Bronx.

'LUCKIEST GIRL IN WORLD' SPARKLING HUMAN COMEDY

Jane Wyatt, Dir'n, Script Stand Out

"LUCKIEST GIRL IN THE WORLD"
(Universal)

Executive Producer.....Charles R. Rogers
Associate Producer.....Morrie Ryskind
Direction ..... Edward Buzzell
Story ..... Ann Jordan
Screenplay: Herbert Fields, Henry Myers.
Photography ..... Merritt Gerstad
Special Effects.....John P. Fulton
Film Editor.....Dorothy Spencer
Cast: Jane Wyatt, Louis Hayward, Eugene Pallette, Catharine Doucet, Nat Pendleton, Phillip Reed, Viola Callahan.

An engagingly human little romantic comedy that clings steadfastly to real life and lightens it gayly with a twinkle of whimsy. The story is a mere trifle but its telling is so delightfully unstrained and bubbling with good humor that it makes capital entertainment.

A daughter of wealth wants to marry a chap who dances divinely; is an amateur tennis champion, and makes $150 a month. Dad objects but makes a bargain. If she will go to New York for a month and prove that she can live on $150 by doing it, he will give in.

She does. After a first fling of extravagance she settles down in a rooming house where she shares a floor, its kitchen and bathroom, with a young man of infinite humor. She learns a lot about spending and when the young man proposes on the basis of his $200 a month it seems a fortune. The situations are enriched by the dogged presence of a roughneck watchdog hired by Dad and the interplay of incident and natural comedy is good for wholesome laughter.

The story is by Dorothy Jordan and it has been built into a gem of a script by Herbert Fields and Henry Myers. The chain of comedy incident is supported by fresh and unforced dialogue, and the whole has been taken gayly to town by Eddie Buzzell's direction. Merrit Gerstad photographed it well, with John P. Fulton furnishing some tricky night effects.

Jane Wyatt as the girl in the case is delightfully equal to both the comedy and romantic demands. She has looks and personality and will prove an increasing asset. Louis Hayward as the New York neighbor is a personable young Englishman who perfectly carried the gently whimsical spirit of the attractive part. Nat Pendleton scored a comedy hit without effort as the genial watchdog. Eugene Pallette as the moneyed father and Catharine Doucet as the society wife are, of course, sure-fire dependables. Phillip Reed and Viola Callahan round out the cast to good purpose.

The fine Italian hand of Morrie Ryskind, producer in charge, is discernible throughout the offering.

Miss. Radio Paper Is Notable Success

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 19. — When WJDX, Jackson, Miss., and local newspapers quarrelled in 1930, the station started its own radio paper to get its schedule before the public. Two years later the paper, which was circulated free, was found too expensive, and was turned over to William Harold Davis, then chief operator at the station, and a former radio editor, who began publication of the Air Journal, $1 a year, carrying only the local station's programs. It was finally discontinued.

A few months ago Davis resumed publication of the Air Journal. This time there was no subscription price, but the paper was delivered in bulk to the laundry in the state and the largest milk dealer, who in turn distributed the paper to their customers with laundry and milk. The paper, which carries a cross-section of all the best programs on the air, both local and national, was an immediate success. A national refining company, a large hotel, a radio tube distributor, a baker, a circuit of theatres and numerous small merchants have been added to the list of sponsors. The paper is circulated in 35 towns outside of Jackson, and has twice had to seek additional printing facilities to take care of the increase in circulation. Sponsors say it has not only increased sales, but collections as well.

Tampa Ties Up with WDAE

TAMPA, Oct. 19.—A radio tieup with WDAE, was staged as one of the features of the 10th anniversary week celebration of the Tampa. The stunt was a community sing. A singer, who pulled all the usual stuff used in such radio sings, kidded the audience along and kept it singing. The "down in the audience" stuff was also used, with one of the station's announcers and another stunt man doing the interviewing.

The stunt, running from 8:30 to 9 P.M., seemed to go over so well that it was decided to continue the tieup the same night each week as long as it goes over.

Theatre in Radio Tieup

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 19.—The Mary Anderson has a tieup with WAVE, local NBC outlet, whereby free tickets are given to every person who participates on the air, during the "Man on the Street" broadcast, sponsored by Minute Rub. The interviews are held in the theatre lobby on alternate days, and at various points in the program the current picture is plugged, as well as the following week's attraction.

N. H. Houses Use Air

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 19.—Regular users of radio announcements here now include the Poli Saturday morning Kiddie Show, the College Thursday Noon Movie Club of the Air, twice-weekly 100-word announcements by the Howard, and daily announcements and special features by the Whalley.

Broadcast from Theatre

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 19.—Weekly Amateur Night contestants at the Majestic will be heard over station WICC, direct from the theatre stage. The series will continue for 26 weeks.

Take Theatre for Program

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 19.—WHAS, the Courier-Journal and Times station, has leased the 2,400-seat National from Abe Bass, for the 30-minute broadcast of the Oertel Brewing Co. each Thursday night at 10 o'clock. The audience is entertained after the broadcast, making a session of slightly over an hour. Free tickets are mailed to anyone writing or telephoning to the brewery.

His Own Censor

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 19.— When Einar Larson brought "Walpurgis Night," a Swedish film, here for showing, the censor board heard it referred to birth control and wanted to pass on it. But nobody could speak or understand Swedish. Larson persuaded them to let him censor his own film.

He passed it.

House Sets Air Tieup

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 19.—A local community sing program will be broadcast from the Orpheum here one night a week. NBC Station KHO is dickering for the tieup with Evergreen, but wants a sponsor. KFPY, local CBS outlet, which started the Spokane Sings program last week, may take its program to the theatre without a sponsor if attendance gets too large for the studio auditorium. It is the first local community sing program in the country.

To Announce Vote Results

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 19.—Competing with the hug-the-radio tendency on Election Day, all Loew-Poli "A" houses will put on a last complete show from 11:30 P. M. to 3:30 A. M. All national and local election returns will be received over the teletype installed for the occasion.

Radio Unit at Theatre

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 19.—The WLS Barn Dance troupe will play at the Memorial Auditorium Sunday, Oct. 25, under the auspices of the Oddfellows. The house seats 2,400. Four performances will be given.

Feist Takes G. B. Songs

Jimmy Campbell, in charge of music for G. B., has closed a deal with Leo Feist, Inc., for publishing of the Gordon and Revel songs written for the Jessie Matthews film "Head Over Heels in Love." The tunes are: "Head Over Heels," "May I Have the Next Romance With You?" "Looking Around Corners," "Through the Courtesy of Love" and "There's That Look in Your Eyes Again."

Re-Title Matthews Film

"Head Over Heels in Love" has been chosen by G. B. as the final title for the Jessie Matthews film formerly called simply "Head Over Heels."

Republic Changes Title

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—Republic has changed the title of the Gerald Beaumont magazine story, which will go into work this week, from "Between Two Loves" to "Beware of Ladies."

Dissolve Eastman Firm

ALBANY, Oct. 19.—A certificate has been filed here dissolving the corporate existence of Verichrome Film, Inc., Rochester, Eastman Kodak subsidiary.

Rodgers, Dietz Off To See Theatre Men

William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of M-G-M, accompanied by Howard Dietz and William R. Ferguson, will leave today for Washington, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Chicago for conferences with Warner and B. & K. theatre heads on forthcoming releases.

In Washington, the M-G-Mites will go into session with John J. Payette; in Philadelphia, Ted Schlanger; Pittsburgh, Harry Kalmine; Cleveland, Nat Wolf; Chicago, John Balaban, Jules Rubens and associates.

Rodgers may extend the trip beyond the Windy City. It was not known yesterday whether Dietz and Ferguson would accompany him to other key centers.

Ministers Protest Show

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 19.—Publication of an advertisement in local newspapers that the Junior Chamber of Commerce would sponsor three showings at the Carolina Sunday, Oct. 18, of "The Big Broadcast of 1937" brought forth immediate protests from three Columbia ministers who secured from Attorney General J. M. Daniel a ruling that such performances would be against the state law, although part of the proceeds were to be used for charity. No show was held.

Form Producing Company

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 19. — Edward Nichols, Marion Redle and Anne Light of Los Angeles, have incorporated Treasures Picture Co. to produce.

Joseph Blumenfield, president, and D. J. McNerny, secretary, have filed notice here of a change in the capitalization of Galbro Theatres Co. to 2,000 shares.

Heads Academy Group

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—William Randolph, head of the precision camera department at Paramount, has been named chairman of the Technicians' Branch papers and programs committee for the coming year.

Burruss Is Promoted

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19.—Nelson Burruss, former sales clerk at the Paramount exchange, has been promoted to ad sales manager. He succeeds Harry Wheeler who has been advanced to the booking department.

Close "Carnival" Deals

Joseph Steiner, sales manager for American Tobis Corp., has closed a deal for showings of "Carnival in Flanders" in Washington and Boston. The picture is in its fifth week here.

Finney to Fly East

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—Edward Finney, director of Grand National advertising, will leave tomorrow on an overnight plane for New York where he will prepare the campaign for "In His Steps."

Dunphy Back to Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—Christopher Dunphy returned today from the Paramount meeting in St. Louis. He was accompanied by Lew Smith and will start at once on preparations for Adolph Zukor's silver jubilee.

Paid Space Protests Republican Film Ban

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—The Crusaders, young Republican and anti-New Deal organization, took full page advertisements in Philadelphia dailies today protesting the action of the Pennsylvania censor board's refusal to pass "Don't Blame the Butcher," a short, sponsored by the Crusaders, which places responsibility for the higher meat prices upon the present Washington Administration. Fred G. Clark, national commander of the group, stated today that free speech had been endangered by the action.

Under the distribution of the Alexander Film Co., the picture was the second in a series of seven submitted by the Crusaders. The first, "Dogs, Monkeys and Men," was passed, but the Alexander Co., according to the advertisement, sent word that it would have to discontinue distribution in the state because of political pressure.

Today's advertisements reproduce a telegram from an executive of the film company stating, "Alexander pleads that you call off the pressure of the Pennsylvania censor board due to Democratic membership." Reproduced also is a facsimile of the board's official rejection. The report characterizes the film as "advertising."

No reasons for the rejection are given by the board on its official sheet.

Steiner on Warner Film

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—Max Steiner, on loan from Selznick-International, will direct the musical score of Warners' "The Green Light." During the last few months Steiner has been assigned to direct music for "The Garden of Allah," "The Charge of the Light Brigade" and "Lost Horizon."

Taylor Honored in K. C.

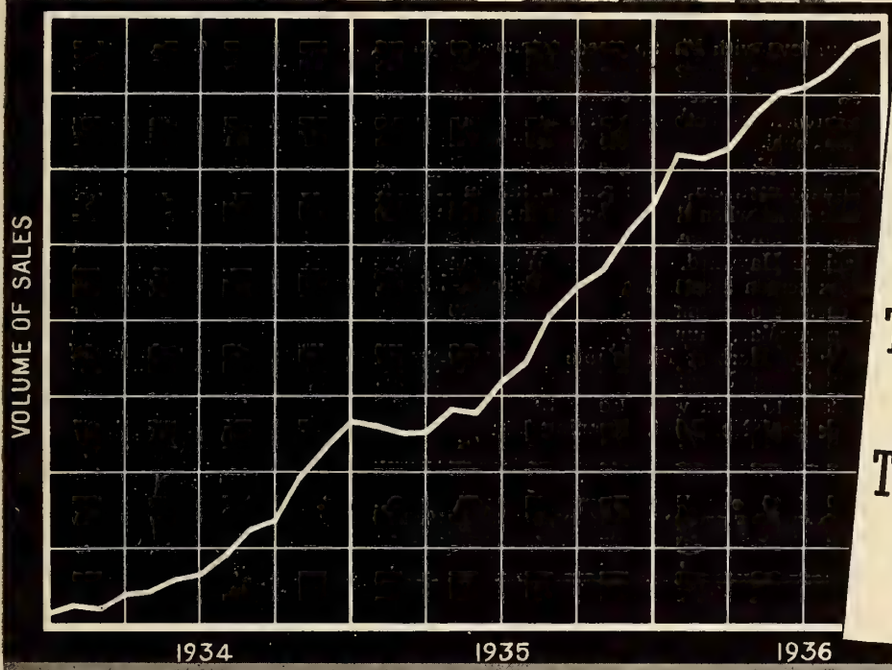
KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19.—The local Variety Club held a farewell dinner tonight for Harry Taylor, former Columbia district manager, who leaves next week to manage the western area for National Screen Service. Ben Marcus, Omaha manager, succeeds Taylor here for Columbia.

Marysville Houses Close

MARYSVILLE, O., Oct. 19.—Theatres have been ordered closed by the Board of Health following discovery of several cases of infantile paralysis here. Church services also have been suspended. Schools were closed several days prior to the theatre edict.

Paul Langheinrich Dies

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 19.—Paul Langheinrich, Sr., 74, operator of the Burleigh here for many years, died today. He is survived by two sons, Paul, Jr., and George C. Langheinrich, both associated with him in the operation of the theatre.



Norma Shearer Gaining

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 19.—Norma Shearer is reported to be recovering from bronchial pneumonia at her home here.

Stage Tricks Clutter Plot Of 'Iron Men'

got in the way of the plot of "Iron Men" at the Longacre last night with results about what you might conclude from a barroom cluttered with an assortment of whisky bottles and another setting full of cranes and girders.

It must have been that Norman Bel Geddes, flushed with the success of "Dead End" determined to give 'em another gasp-inducer in stage investiture at any rate. Well, he did. The barroom was rich with fidelity and atmosphere, including pretzels. The construction scene, 63 stories off comforting Mother Earth, was one of the most unique in recent New York stage history and, no doubt, much time, energy and blueprinting were combined to make the realistic steel fit into place. But the architecture obviously not only got the producer, but Francis Gallagher who wrote the play. Like the steel with which it dealt, the play was wordy and static.

There were interesting points about it, of course. But too much was conversation in the "dese, dose and dem" manner and that would have been all right on its own if the pack of roughnecks who played it out were given something meaty and meaningful to say. They were not.

Stage Setting Remarkable

"Iron Men" is a sort of structural cross-section in the lives of steelworkers, what they think, the women they sleep with and the bad whisky they guzzle. They spout bad language, Police Gazette jokes, poke fun at religion and, finally, one of them, William Haade, to keep his "gang" together, sends a plumber passion flower to the wife of Harold Moffet, his sidekick, to teach her not to interfere by putting her in her place. But Moffett discovers the interloper, beats his wife and shoots himself to death. Thereafter, his hands unsullied in the eyes of the law, Haade loses his job and faces his conscience, his mind cracking.

The construction scene, three times shown, is a magnificent piece of stagecraft and for it the producer rates nothing but praise. But for permitting its technical tricks to so seriously block the march of the drama, the praise ought to be taken away.

Incidentally, the town's best chiropractors probably will be busy this morning. The first six rows last night left the theatre with muscles strained from staring high toward the theatre's heaven during most of the evening. For this is one show where the downfront seats are not the choice ones. It is also one that Hollywood might find useful after it is cleaned up and rewoven into stronger, more coherent and better knit yarn.

"Swing Your Lady"

Those bad boys of the typewriter, Kenyon Nicholson and Charles Robinson, who concocted the boisterous and bawdy "Sailor Beware" of recent memory, have come back to town with "Swing Your Lady," presented at the Booth by Milton Shubert on Sunday.

Equally boisterous, equally bawdy, "Swing Your Lady" probably will please the across-the-tracks trade, since it is crammed with reeking innuendo and rowdy comedy situations which are often quite amusing.

It will make a considerably unimportant screen comedy, if anyone takes the trouble to produce it. But if that is done the thing will have to be sent to the laundry first, for a thorough cleansing of most of the dialogue and several situations.

When diminutive Joe Laurie, Jr., satisfactorily razor-tongued wrestling manager, finds himself stranded in the Missouri Ozarks with his helpers and his grappler, a Greek only about one-half removed from his ancestral ape, he arranges a bout. A word here for John Alexander's portrait of the human anthropoid from Passaic.

Enter, a Female Wrestler

The bout is with a blacksmith, under the auspices of the American Legion post, but the catch is that the smithy is feminine—in a manner of speaking. She is a gargantuan Amazon, played by Hope Emerson, with not too much skill but a world of bulk. Bad matters become worse when the Greek comes to an amazing realization that there are women in the world.

Through two acts and seven scenes his handlers try to hold him down; he refuses to fight when love for the smithy dawns, and the day is saved when one of her children's father (of whom there are several), bearded with moss, seeks to defend his little love.

Wrestling, our playwrights insist, just isn't straight. The bout is fixed, but the Greek pulls a double-cross when the smithy thrusts her ample head through the ropes and looks at him. It's real love and that's that.

"White Man"

Untouchable for motion pictures, "White Man," as it was offered at the National Saturday night, should have been untouchable for the stage as well. This is the first play in which Sam Byrd, who did everything but kick his stage grandmother in the stomach in "Tobacco Road" for æons—perhaps he did that as well—emerges as actor-manager. It is correct, albeit unfortunate, to report that his debut in the dual role is not a happy one.

The play, lumbering along under a struggling payload of theatrical dialogue from the brain and typewriter of Samuel Raphaelson, deals with the theme of a one-eighth Negro attempting to pass himself off as a white man and the dire consequences of his enterprise. For instance, he marries a white girl on the pre-marital understanding she wants no children. Love finds a way, however, and she changes her mind. As dastardly and as unfair the original deception was, the central character, at least, displays enough of the manly traits to tell his white wife she must not go through with her plan.

Octoroon Situation Again

Moreover, he tells her why, but so madly in love with her mixed-blood husband is she that she decides to, anyway. Eventually comes the split, at the behest of the irate father-in-law who takes his daughter back as, of course, he should have. Off into the night goes the hybrid, no place for him with the whites because he is colored and no haven for him with the blacks. It's all a matter of pigmentation and something beyond.

In his basic idea, Playwright Samuelson had an idea buried deep in tragedy and something touching and emotionally sympathetic might have been done in its development; the minorities and the thwarted have a habit of making such things possible. One difficulty here is in the writing which embraces bathos in doses too large and

"The Luckiest Girl in the World"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—New twists are given the rich girl and poor boy love theme here. Although the yarn is old and the lead players new, the good acting, combined with clever writing and smart direction, give the film an acceptable average entertainment quality.

Jane Wyatt is in love with Phillip Reed, a tennis playing tramp, and is persuaded by her father, Eugene Pallette, and mother, Catherine Doucet, to go to New York and see if she can live on $150 a month. Compelled to share a kitchen and bathroom with Louis Hayward, the smartly contrived situations make for laughable comedy which is enhanced by the amusing antics of Nat Pendleton, a detective. The experiences of Miss Wyatt and Hayward cause the pair to fall in love, which takes on a semi-dramatic twist when the boy learns the girl is an heiress. But Reed, by making an advantageous marriage, permits Miss Wyatt to come dashing back to Hayward. Both Miss Wyatt and Hayward show definite promise as screen assets. As usual, Pallette, Miss Doucet and Pendleton give capable performances. Viola Callahan as the boarding house keeper, is particularly amusing.

The screen play by Herbert Fields and Henry Meyers from Anne Jordan's story, "Kitchen Privileges," is bright and frothy. Given a story not too difficult to work with, Eddie Buzzell directed nicely.

Production Code Seal No. 2,671. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Alibi for Murder"

(Columbia)

Well paced and with a competently executed mystery yarn, this should prove entirely satisfastory on a dual bill, especially where there has been previously indicated a taste for murder mysteries.

The story details the manner in which a radio commentator stumbles upon, then becomes involved in a murder which is made to look like a suicide, and succeeds, with a romantic interlude or two, in solving it through his own ingenuity. The romance is not permitted in any way to impede the swift movement of the lively yarn, and with an internationally famous chemist as the victim, revolves about the attempts of rival interests to obtain a valuable munitions formula.

William Gargan is the commentator, Marguerite Churchill the secretary of the victim and the object of Gargan's extra-curricular activities. Gene Morgan and Wade Boteler are featured in the support.

The film was directed with his usual eye to an occasional touch of real action, taken in its literal sense, by D. Ross Lederman, from an original screen play by Tom Van Dycke.

Production Code Seal No. 2,533. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Fugitive Sheriff"

(Columbia)

The vital elements of westerns, plus a few musical interludes which blend well with the narrative, are to be found in this Ken Maynard film. It should give satisfaction to the theatre cowboys.

Maynard, following his election to the post of sheriff of Rawhide, is framed by an outlaw clique headed by Walter Miller when the latter holds up a train and leaves incriminating evidence in the form of part of the hero's lost spur on the scene. This, of course, is not quite the thing for the new sheriff to be up to. Following a trial where he cannot prove his innocence, Maynard makes a spectacular getaway from the courtroom. Later, still pursued, but accompanied by Beth Marion, he meets up with a prospector who has a debt to settle with Miller. They arrange a counter-frameup. The climax comes when the outlaws ride into the trap and Maynard settles his score with Miller.

Spencer Gordon Bennet directed.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 61 minutes. "G."

"White Man" Has Nothing For Filming

too frequent for the play's good. "White Man" also labors under the handicap of cast delinquencies. This reviewer was not impressed with Byrd. He thought Patsy Ruth Miller trying to be a dramatic actress something more kindly to be dismissed by simply forgetting about it. Louise Campbell, as the white wife, delivers a creditable performance and that goes for Sylvia Field as the one-time octoroon sweetheart. But what is put in their mouths to say presents a hurdle too difficult to surmount.

The text, at one point, has Byrd vehemently expressing a desire to kill someone. That immediately opens a variety of suggestions, all of them too tinged with the possibilities of mayhem to go into here and now.

Nat Karson's settings, however, are splendid.

calendar year. This represents an extension of the award idea of last year when the awards embraced English-speaking pictures only.

The awards of 1936, again to be in the form of medallions, will go once more to the best male and female performances of the year, to the best director and to the best film seen in New York City during the 12 months to Dec. 31.

Second-string critics of the metropolitan dailies were also voted in, this group including John G. McManus of the Times, Marguerite Tazelaar of the Herald-Tribune, Irene Thirer of the Post and Wanda Hale of the Daily News.

Form of Name Changed

In the main line division these additional memberships were granted with full accolades: Robert Garland, which gives the American two, Regina Crewe, of course being the other; Archer Winston of the Post, in succession to Thornton Delehanty, who resigned recently, and Howard Barnes, who filled in on the Herald-Tribune when Richard Watts, Jr., assumed the late Percy Hammond's mantle as dramatic critic. William Boehnel of the World-Telegram was named chairman succeeding Delehanty and Leo Mishkin of the Morning Telegraph was returned to the one-man secretariat.

Incidentally and whereas the new york film critics launched themselves as a lower case organization, it has now taken on full dignity and caps. Like this: The New York Film Critics.

Overseas Previews

"La Belle Equipe"
"The Fine Team"

(Ciné Arys Prod.)

PARIS, Oct. 9.—This new film reflects the definite improvement in the French production. From an original story by Charles Spaak and Julien Duvivier, and directed by Julien Duvivier, "La Belle Equipe" offers a powerful attraction with a deep human interest.

Duvivier, who is responsible for several excellent French pictures, including "Poil de Carotte" and "La Bondera," here again shows that he understands how to reflect life and artistry on the screen. "La Belle Equipe," perhaps, lacks essentials in its story and it ends on a note which may be regarded as too depressing, but the direction and the work of the cast are so good that one is inclined to overlook deficiencies in the story and the lethargy prevailing along about the middle of the film.

The story tells of five workers in Paris, all unemployed. They have the luck to win $5,000 in the French lotteries. Instead of sharing the money, however, they decide to buy an old house along a river near Paris and to open a restaurant where young people may come to dance and eat. They start on the project, but, one by one, the union of the quintet disintegrates. On opening day only two remain and both are in love with the same girl, who is not worthy of their attention. She precipitates arguments between them and, as a result, induces a fight which ends in the death of one of the pair of lovers. The other, of course, faces the law. The depressing note, however, may be changed to a happier ending.

The actors who play the five men are very good: Jean Gabin, Charles Vanel, Raymond Aymos and two new players, Charles Dorat and Raphael Medina. The "vamp" is played by Vivianne Romande, who is pretty and seemingly equipped for a film career. The attraction depends more on visual appeal than on its dialogue, which, in parts, is rather rough.

Running time, 100 minutes. "A."

"Sept Hommes—Une Femme"
"Seven Men—One Woman"

(Paris Ciné Films)

PARIS, Oct. 9.—A brilliant comedy, written and directed by the French author, Yves Mirande. Although it may seem to foreign patrons to have too much dialogue and rather theatrical, it has entertainment value in its original plot, its good direction and also in the cast headed by Farnand Gravey and Vera Korene, well-known French star who give good performances.

Vera Korene, a member of the official Comédie Française, plays the part of a young widow who decides to be married again when she hears that her lamented husband had been unfaithful to her. She asks a good friend of her husband, finely portrayed by Fernand Gravey, to select and to invite seven men to her provincial castle for a fortnight so that she can chose one. The test fails for the seven, but she realizes that the good one is the eighth man, Fernand Gravey, who always had been in love with her, but who had not dared to tell because he was poor. One by one the seven men are rejected. Characterizations are excellent and prove a real novelty.

The dialogue is clever in typically French spirit. One who can understand the language will enjoy it, remembering it is Gallic. For others, it is doubtful whether English titles will be sufficient to convey the wit and finer shadings. There are some good laugh scenes, including a game party and the arrival of the guests at the castle.

This is of the so-called Parisian comedy type and conceivably could be used in foreign-language theatres in America.

Running time, 100 minutes. "A." AUTRE

Short Subject

"Whose Baby Are You?"

(Educational)

Bert Lahr gets himself into difficulties when he attempts to aid a friend whose wife is expecting a baby, or babies as the case is revealed. Promising to inform his pal when the news arrives, Lahr proceeds to get into awkward entanglements when his girl and her family arrive to take him to his engagement party. With an assortment of embarassing situations arising Lahr goes through his repertoire of responses in fine comic manner, eventually settles his troubled romance and is on hand to congratulate the father of triplets. Plenty of laughs and guffaws. Production Code Seal No. 01,213. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

Equity Constitution Change Is Affirmed

Frank Gillmore , Equity president, said yesterday.

The amendment failed of a two-thirds vote at the quarterly meeting of Equity last May. Ballots were sent to the entire membership by mail subsequently, with the voting period closing on Oct. 16. Gillmore said that 956 votes were cast, more than 78 per cent of which favored the amendment.

"Godfrey" Is Washington's Best Grosser

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—"My Man Godfrey" at RKO-Keith's skyrocketed to $19,200 to top the weekly average by $8,600.

While it dropped $900 under par "Old Hutch" at Loew's Capitol, proved a big money-getter, with $20,000.

"Seven Sinners" at the Metropolitan Theatre took $4,500, exceeding the average by $200. At the Earle, "Give Me Your Heart" grossed $18,300, to slip $100 under par.

A revival of "Magnificent Obsession" dropped $300 from a $3,000 par. A return engagement of "The Road to Glory" at Loew's Columbia was good for $3,300, under average by $300. And the second week of "The Great Ziegfeld," at increased prices at Loew's Palace, took $8,800, or $7,100 under the usual 55-cent-top average.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 19.—The RKO Albee here is previewing its new week's feature following the last showing of the previous picture on Thursday nights.

Mr. Deeds, in Portland 24 Weeks, Likes It and Stays

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 19.—Some six months ago, one "Mr. Deeds" came to this town for what was presumed to be a visit of reasonable duration. By now that same "Mr. Deeds" bids fair to become at least a semi-permanent resident of the community.

He arrived on May 8, taking up his residence at the Paramount of the Hamrick-Evergreen development. The original intention was that the gentleman was to stay a week. The neighbors welcomed him, seemed to like his personality, and he stretched his stay into a second week.

At the conclusion of that fortnight, he sent out to have his laundry done, and simultaneously came the announcement in the theatrical society columns that "Mr. Deeds" would be around for a while. He moved from the Paramount to the Blue Mouse, another of the Hamrick-Evergreen experiments in better housing, and the neighbors cheered at the news.

Still in Town

It was 24 weeks ago that he arrived in town, and 22 since he moved over to the Blue Mouse. He is still there and by all accounts it will be several weeks more before he wears out his welcome from the home town folks and packs his bags for a final exit.

It was toward the end of the second week of "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" at the Paramount that the newspaper ads on the film impeached the house reputation for veracity by declaring flatly: "Positively Ends Wed. Night." It did—at the Paramount, but then came the tenure of office at the Blue Mouse, and that is already Portland show history.

As far as the picturegoing public of Portland is concerned, the picture has that "certain something," which makes the dopesters wrong so many times and made Anne Nichols a millionairess via "Abie's Irish Rose."

Nor was the work of the Blue Mouse promoters of entertainment lacking in the ingredients for keeping the fires going under the boilers. Stunts by the dozen: tuba playing contests, verses and jingles, comments from audiences and reams and reams of "pixilations," of course, added fuel to the fire—and the film continued to build.

Officialdom Represented

Manager Herbert B. Sabottka started to put the pressure on during the Blue Mouse run before the film had a chance to slip—if there was any danger of that happening. Along about the 10th week the mayor of Portland and the governor of Oregon came to see the picture, which appearances were heralded with a proper lack of silence on the management's part.

Sabottka, M. M. Mesher, Hamrick-Evergreen advertising and publicity director, and Earl Hunt, Mesher's assistant, contrived to make the town virtually "pixilated-minded," to coin a phrase, and lurking in the back of their minds are plans for asking ushers, barbers, conductors, policemen and others similarly engaged to report their experiences with the "pixilations" of divers members of the community with whom they come into contact.

The advertising throughout the engagement of the film has been maintained at a lively tempo, which has been at the same time attention-attracting and apparently productive of box-office results, as indicated by an estimated gross at the Blue Mouse of $2,000 for the 23rd week, against a house average of $1,700. That same approximate gross was maintained for several previous weeks.

The advertising on the eighth and 12th weeks noted a final week which was far from final. During the 15th the ads said: "Hurry, Hurry, It Can't Last Much Longer," which idea was repeated during the following three weeks.

Still more insistent was the tone of the ads for the 21st week: "Hurry, Hurry, Mr. Deeds Is Leaving Town."

Mr. Deeds, however, has not yet even thought of packing his bags or even asked for a timetable. In fact, he may be in town for five or six more weeks. Betting on the probable date of his departure has ceased to be a sporting proposition, it's an outright gamble.

They Wished, Too

Omaha, Oct. 19.—William Miskell, Orpheum manager, put a wishing well in the lobby to advertise "Ramona." One woman asked him if it would be all right for her to drink from the well. Later ushers caught a young man taking 12 pennies which had been tossed into the well.

"Taxi" and a Show $6,250, Portland

PORTLAND, Oct. 19.—"They Met in a Taxi," helped by a stage show called "Hollywood Follies," stirred up some downtown excitement by going more than 100 per cent over normal for a gross of $6,250 at the Mayfair.

"Ramona," on a duel with "Back to Nature," also was in the money with $8,700 at the Orpheum. This was $3,700 to the good.

The perennial "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" held up to $2,000 in its 23rd week at the Blue Mouse.

Total first run business was $38,200. Average is $24,700.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 10:

"Ziegfeld" Up In Pittsburgh With $19,500

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 19.—The World Series broadcasts and some extremely bad weather kept grosses down. These factors, however, could not stop "The Great Ziegfeld" from rolling up an excellent $19,500 at the Penn, enough to keep it there for a second week, nor could it interrupt the mad gallop of "My Man Godfrey" at the Fulton. In its fifth week there, the Universal comedy hit rolled up a sensational $7,150 and is now in its sixth week, with the end not yet in sight.

Elsewhere, however, rain and baseball took their toll. At the Stanley, "Stage Struck" was held up only by the presence in the cast of Dick Powell, a local favorite, and even so couldn't better $9,000, while "Seven Sinners" and "The Man Who Lived Twice" couldn't last beyond six days at the Alvin, where it finished weakly to $4,200. The Warner likewise took it on the chin, getting only about $3,800 with "Grand Jury" and "Walking on Air."

Total first run grosses were $43,650. Average is $37,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 8:

"MAN WHO LIVED TWICE" (Col.)
"SEVEN SINNERS" (G-B)
ALVIN—(2,000), 25c-40c, 6 days. Gross: $4,200. (Average, for 7 days, $5,500)

"MY MAN GODFREY" (Univ.)
FULTON—(1,750), 25c-40c, 7 days, 5th week. Gross: $7,150. (Average, $4,300)

"THE GREAT ZIEGFELD" (M-G-M)
PENN—(3,300), 35c-50c, 7 days. Gross: $19,500. (Average, $11,000)

"STAGE STRUCK" (W. B.)
STANLEY—(3,600), 25c-50c, 7 days. Gross: $9,000. (Average, $11,500)

"GRAND JURY" (Radio)
"WALKING ON AIR" (Radio)
WARNER—(2,000), 25c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $3,800. (Average, $5,000)

Starts Stage Policy

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Oct. 19.—The Union here, after many years of straight films, has inaugurated a policy of stage units every Friday and Saturday, supplied by Gus Sun out of Springfield. The units have their own bands and no house orchestra is necessary. The admission is raised slightly for the weekend combination.

Shift Kansas Managers

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19.—Clarence Williford, son of the Mayor and Mrs. Williford of Ellsworth, Kan., has been named manager of the Dickinson, Glen W. Dickinson unit there. Charles Roland, formerly at the Dickinson in Osawatomie, Kan., has been transferred to manage the Dickinson at Herrington, Kan.

May Close Maine Plant

BIDDEFORD, Me., Oct. 19.—Unless the city does something about the local tax situation several thousand employes will be affected and the local theatres, the City and Central, will be seriously affected. Russell H. Leonard, treasurer of the Peperell Manufacturing Co., has declared the firm may seek a new location for their plant due to excessive city taxes.

Sale Tax Case Appeal Is Off To Next Month

Calendar Is Crowded and Other Delays Occur

A hearing on the appeal which major distributors are taking from the decision that film rentals are subject to the city sales tax cannot be heard by the Court of Appeals at Albany for another month, it was indicated yesterday. The condition of the court's calendar and other unexpected delays in preparing final briefs have made it impossible to have the appeal noticed for argument during October, as was expected earlier.

The city itself is appealing from that part of the Appellate Court decision which exempted film rentals paid to New York exchanges by theatres located outside the city limits from the sales tax. The corporation counsel's office recently advised New Jersey exhibitors who are served by local exchanges that, under the lower court's ruling, they need not pay the tax, but neglected to add that the city was appealing from that part of the decision and, if it was successful in this move, all exhibitors served by exchanges here would have to pay the tax. As a result of the corporation

Quick Action on RKO Hits Setback

Prospects of shaping an RKO reorganization plan for filing with the U. S. District Court here this week faded yesterday despite sustained efforts by reorganization managers to make the step possible, it was learned from a reliable authority.

The development, which was left unexplained, made factors in the reorganization reluctant to prophesy when the plan now could be made ready for court consideration. A few hold to the belief that the new delay will be brief and may permit filing of the plan

CEA May Seek Crown Aid In Overbuilding Situation

LONDON, Oct. 13.—With no official statement from the Kinematograph Renters' Society on its attitude towards the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n request for a conference on overbuilding, exhibitors are again showing signs of an intention to make the matter the subject of an appeal for Government help.

It is unofficially understood that the Council of the K.R.S. is willing to meet the C.E.A. but only on condition that the conference is of an exploratory character and that distributors are not to be understood to have finally associated themselves with an attempt to find a trade solution to the overbuilding problem. A good deal will depend, it is said, on the extent to which exhibitors are able to prove that agreement has been reached with the circuits. There are grave doubts whether the latter are in agreement with the C.E.A. except on the broad principle of the necessity for some action being instituted to relieve the present situation.

At a meeting of the Sussex branch of the C.E.A., Ken Nyman, leading spirit in the C.E.A. campaign on overbuilding, said, referring to the talks with the K.R.S. "If these efforts fail, the only real hope of a solution will lie in an approach for Government intervention."

Canada's New Radio Setup Is Completed

OTTAWA, Oct. 20.—The organization of the new Canadian Broadcasting Corp., the Federal Government enterprise for the control of all broadcasting and licensing of studios and owners of receiving sets, has been completed by the arrival in Ottawa from England of Major W. Mexico Names New National Censor Board

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 20.—The appointment of a national censorship board of three members by the Ministry of the Interior is generally expected to be of real benefit, since it promises a unified and centralized viewing of all films for the first time.

The national board will supplant the local board here and the censoring groups in a few other states and municipalities. For the most part reviewing has been done on a piecemeal basis, and although generally the judgment of the local board has been accepted throughout the country, there have been occasional conflicts which have resulted in good pictures being barred from profitable territories.

El Universal, local newspaper, has urged the establishment of a code of censorship to guide the board to "prevent the reviewing of films becoming a mere bureaucratic habit of the rubber stamp nature, or leaving it to the judgment of persons without culture or talent."

Maxwell Paid £625,000 in Cash, Stock

Details of Gaumont Buy Are Made Public

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 20.—John Maxwell, as head of Associated British Pictures, paid £325,000 cash and £300,000 in A. B. P. five-shilling ordinary shares for the Ostrers' "B" shares in Metropolis and Bradford Trust, holding company for Gaumont British, it was made known today by the secretary of A. B. P.

As a result of the transaction A. B. P. is now unable to carry out its promise to shareholders to allow them to subscribe for 1,800,000 ordinary shares at bonus rates, as these unissued shares are now earmarked for the purposes of the deal.

The statement also indicated that the A. B. P. profit for the half year would be £150,000 more than last year.

This confirms that the first half of the Ostrer deal has been completed, but a Gaunt-Gaumont statement tonight refers to reports that control had passed and said that the companies wished to make it clear that "all such statements were incorrect, as no such change had taken place in the voting position of Metropolis, and control remains as heretofore."

The second part of the deal has not gone through, it was stated, and the Ostrers still hold their 5,100 "A"

Taylor's Wife Dies

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Harry Taylor, wife of the former Columbia exchange and district manager here, died unexpectedly today. Taylor resigned from Columbia last week to move to the coast for his wife's health. He was to become National Screen Service district manager there. He was tendered a farewell dinner last night at the Variety Club which 100 film people attended.

FitzPatrick in Denial

James A. FitzPatrick, producer of the TravelTalk series for M-G-M, yesterday emphatically denied he would discontinue producing shorts in two years. He said that as long as travel subjects are made, he will produce them. FitzPatrick plans to make 12 shorts next year in addition to a group of features. He will sail today on the Queen Mary for England.

Warner Board Meets

Warner's board of directors yesterday held a monthly meeting which was described as routine by Samuel Carlisle, comptroller and assistant treasurer.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

MORE respect for law and order and further obeisance before the mandates which should be in contracts may come to Hollywood via the British injunction restraining harassed and overworked, underpaid and misunderstood Bette Davis from appearing in films or on stage in England during the life of her contract, or for three years, whichever is shorter. That is, except for her employers, the Warners. There is the matter of an appeal, up in fourteen days, and the decision of the lower court which could and may be reversed, of course. But, as it now stands, Miss Davis' stampede has been brought to an abrupt halt. A halt, we might add, fitting and proper and long overdue. . . .

Usually bending one knee before their starry-eyed employes, it has been our conviction, and nothing will uproot it, that the employers have been taking too much guff for too long from many of the men and women they pay princely salaries. This is not to imply that the producers' slate is spotlessly clean because there have been instances. Actors have histrionics and histrionics are next door neighbors to temperament. Delusions of grandeur are apt not to be far behind and then again there is always the agent steaming up matters. Mix them altogether with London, on the hunt for talent, waving a tempting hand and a contract and the neat total is confusion in Hollywood. . . .

The tally of the bad boys and girls who have won by way of the strike-and-no-work technique is preponderantly in their favor so far, and the susceptibility of the producer in the future no doubt will continue largely to succumb, but the Davis case, with its precedental implications, should do the cause of contracts as they are written considerable good. We should be more gallant, you might say. The gentleman, if any, in us should rise to the occasion and wilt under the undulating Davis eyelashes. It's no use, however. We simply cannot go soft enough to feel sorry for this young actress whose acting capabilities run far ahead of her business acumen. She will have to suffer along at about $3,000 a week for the next thirty-six months and under the peonage which William Randolph Hearst insists the producers lash down on their players. . . .

For the story they tell and the light, not exactly startling, which they throw on the Hollywood player mentality, we give you excerpts of remarks made by Miss Davis in a letter addressed to Jack Warner and in interviews after the decision was handed down against her. You may be impressed. Even more, you may be moved:

"As a happy person, I can work like hell.

"As an unhappy one, I make myself and everyone around me unhappy.

"Money should be made when you mean something. Not when the public has had time to tell you to go to hell.

"You have no idea how these contracts bind you helplessly. I signed mine when I was 23 after being a stage star at 19. It was a long time before I realized how completely I felt I had sold myself."

The vibrations rending the atmosphere these days localize around West 44th St., which is to say the Warner headquarters, and the reason, on display yesterday for a limited few, "The Charge of the Light Brigade," suggested by Lord Tennyson's classic poem of British bravery in the Crimea eighty-two years ago. Only twenty-five minutes out of one hundred and ten turn to Russia, but they are exciting and thrilling moments concentrating on the famous advance of the six hundred into the valley of death. Earlier, the attraction is pure fiction and India, again most of it on the northwestern frontier where troublesome native tribes keep the English military on their horses and busy. . . .

The highlight, far and away, is a terrifying and wildly exciting enactment of the onslaught into the belching mouths of Russian cannon on the heights above Balaklava. Done on a magnificent scale with charging horses, flashing lances and roaring guns, there has been little, if anything, in recent Hollywood effort to match this superb carnage of man and beast. It comes as a final and gripping climax to what will be one of the big pictures of the new season. The Warner excitement is a justifiable excitement as subsequent events are destined to prove. . . .

It occurs by way of reflection that pictures based on and woven around famous poems or plays or men and incidents in history, if they click, open a brand new and completely broad vista for the future. The wealth of such material so far has been untouched and is available in an abundancy that will not dissipate itself for years. There is a story in Julius Caesar and one in Tamerlane, Alexander the Great and the other great figures of the wars, the sciences and the arts. The sources run on in inexhaustible supply and producers will tap them if the public will subscribe. There is Frank Capra who next will do a picture based on the life of Chopin—and why not? It need not be stodgy and it need not be too thoroughly soaked in music. These were men who did things and that, we subscribe, is a function of the screen to recognize. . . .

Fox Hearing Again Delayed at Mineola

MINEOLA, Oct. 20.—Further hearing in the examination before trial of William Fox was set over until Nov. 3 by mutual agreement of the attorneys for Fox and attorneys for Twentieth Century-Fox before Referee Elvin N. Edwards today.

The postponement was the third since Supreme Court Justice Mitchell May heard a motion for stay of proceedings last month. His decision on the contested motion has not been handed down, and until it is, Edwards said, no further examinations will be conducted.

Production Company Organized in Italy

By VITTORIO MALPASUTTI

ROME, Oct. 20.—Imperial Film Co., organized here for the production of English films in Rome, has been formed by Toeplitz and the Italian Society, Inc.

The first film to be made by the new company will star Leslie Howard and Madeleine Carroll. Production will start in the spring.

May, Richardson Speaker

John A. May, controller of the Schine circuit, with headquarters at Gloversville, N. Y., and Republican candidate for state comptroller, will be among the guest speakers at the testimonial dinner to F. H. Richardson at the Hotel Pennsylvania Saturday night. The demand for tickets is so great that the sale will be stopped at 6 P.M. Friday, according to A. R. T. Bishop, chairman of the arrangements committee. No tickets will be sold at the door.

Warner Club to Dance

The second annual ball of the Warner Club, Inc. (Brooklyn Unit) will be held at the St. George Hotel, Brooklyn, Saturday, Nov. 28. Stars of stage and screen have promised to appear for the special entertainment now being arranged. Dance music will be furnished by Eli Dantzig.

here will be increased to 66 this fall with the opening of the Encanto, a new 2,500-seat theatre which will be modernly equipped. A second run house, it will be operated by Jose Echeverria & Co., which owns a circuit of seven local theatres. Other new houses are planned here.

Local exhibitors are receiving visits from inspectors of the Ministry of Finance who are seeking to establish the daily average patronage total, as a basis for fixing tax rates for next year. These inspectors are in addition to the regular ministry inspectors who are on hand daily to check on box-office returns. Exhibitors are required to pay the wages of these permanent inspectors, ranging from $1.75 to $2.50 a day, depending on the size of the house.

The announced policy of Major Murray was that the Canadian corporation would provide the best available programs from all sources, including the United States and England, that were in a form acceptable to the Canadian people. Murray, who will have his offices in Ottawa, will proceed shortly to Winnipeg to confer with W. L. Brockington, chairman of the new board of governors.

New Theatre Coupon Company Is Formed

Max G. Felder, former exhibitor, has organized Theatre United Profit Sharing Corp., which will distribute coupons to theatres on the same plan used by United and Schulte stores.

Approximately 20 theatres have been lined up for the plan, which provides for the distribution of coupons to patrons redeemable at any of the United Profit Sharing offices. The coupons will be the same size and colors as those given out at the cigar stores and other corporations, such as General Foods, Acker, Merrall & Condit, Wrigley's, National Grocers, Baker's Chocolate and Peter Pan Dry Cleaning stores.

Felder is president of the company, which has temporary offices in the Paramount Bldg.

Rugoff & Becker in Deal

Rugoff & Becker yesterday were reported dickering to take over the Mermaid in Brooklyn. The Rose on W. 102nd St. will be demolished and an apartment will replace the theatre. Formerly known as the Edison, the Windsor at W. Orange, N. J., will be reopened Oct. 23.

counsel's declaration theatres located outside the city ceased remitting the tax a month ago. Distributors had been collecting the tax pending the outcome of their appeal, and the funds were being set aside to be repaid to exhibitors in the event the courts ultimately hold that the city cannot tax film rentals.

More than $3,000,000 is estimated to be involved in the attempt to apply the tax to film rentals up to this time.

RKO Joins Tax Appeal

ALBANY, Oct. 20.—The N. Y. The preferred playing time bill was passed by the Legislature, March 20, 1935, and automatically became a law 90 days thereafter without Governor Davey's signature, the Attorney General having meanwhile declared the act unconstitutional. It has not been enforced to date.

The law provides a penalty of not less than $25 nor more than $300 for the first violation, and not less than $300 nor more than $500 for each subsequent violation, with an additional penalty of revocation of license.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.—Columbia has changed the title of "Lady of New York" to "Counterfeit Lady."

"Naughty" Bette

London, Oct. 20.—Informed at a seashore resort near Brighton that Warners had obtained an injunction restraining her from appearing in England, Bette Davis described her defeat in court as a "real sock in the teeth," and said:

"It seems that I, at my own expense, have provided an object lesson for other 'naughty young ladies.' I suppose I have been made an example." The adjective was used to describe her during the hearing of the contract case.

"I've got to think things over a bit now," she said.

some time next week. Others, however, indicated less optimism and declined to hazard a guess of any kind.

With reliable information lacking which would explain the newly encountered delay in presenting the plan several unofficial explanations were advanced. One was that factors in the reorganization who have consistently opposed presenting the plan while it is still incomplete in several important phases succeeded in prevailing over those who have been urging that a plan be brought out immediately and its final provisions left to be resolved by the court, as would be done ultimately in any event. This procedure apparently would leave the treatment of the Rockefeller Center claim of $9,100,000 against RKO to future negotiation outside the plan.

Effect of Stock Gains Seen

The rapidly increasing earnings of RKO which are being reflected in the market value of its stock are said to be a factor in the current demand for an immediate presentation of a plan. A sharp rise in the market value of the stock could complicate the plan's provisions for treatment of stockholders which were shaped some time ago when the company's earnings were less favorable, it was said. The same consideration applies in lesser degree to any creditors who are designated to receive common stock of the new RKO company in settlement of their claims.

Tillton Buys Share In Republic Midwest

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 20.—Elmer Tillton, branch manager for Warners at Des Moines, has resigned, to take over the Omaha and Des Moines Republic-Midwest exchanges.

Tillton has purchased the interest of Clarence A. Schultz, executive head of Commonwealth Theatres, Inc., Kansas City; of Robert F. Withers, manager of the Republic-Midwest exchange in Kansas City, and of other Schultz associates.

The change in ownership transfers the executive powers of Schultz and Withers to Tillton, but the entire organization at Des Moines and Omaha will remain intact. Forrest Judd will continue as manager at Des Moines, and L. O. Ringler as manager at Omaha.

shares of Metropolis and Bradford Trust.

This statement is taken in informed quarters to indicate that the principals to the deal want to maintain the correct legal fiction while S. R. Kent, Twentieth Century-Fox head, is still unsatisfied. Kent has left for the Continent and his New York sailing date is uncertain.

Opinions Divided On G.B. Finances

Maxwell influence is at work. The Telegraph said: "The mystery of the recent negotiations for the purchase of the Ostrer holdings (in G. B.) thickens. It appears arrangements have been made for the sale at 16 shillings of the 10-shilling shares, which receive no distribution. A clear explanation of the whole position is obviously desirable."

The Morning Post declared, "The full report will be awaited for an explanation of the necessity of so large a special transfer to reserve." The directors had recommended placing £200,000 of a net profit of £347,021 after all charges, in a special reserve. No dividend was recommended, while seven per cent was paid during the previous year.

Detailed Statement Asked

The Financial Times in a leading article again calls for a full report in view of "the urgency of the position which preliminary figures suggest. Something more explicit than the reports and accounts issued in previous years is called for if the shareholders are to appreciate the true state of the company's affairs." The paper also declared that the adjustment of asset values is overdue and hinted that the £200,000 special reserve is for this purpose. It concludes with the insistance that the directors should carry out "a thorough purge of the accounts forthwith."

Ticket Taxes Show Gain in September

1936 high of $1,568,487, recorded in July, it was stated.

For the first nine months of the current year, admission tax receipts of the Treasury totaled $12,859,943, about $1,564,000 over the $11,295,124 reported for the corresponding period in 1935. For the third quarter, ended with September, collections were $4,622,639 against $4,117,380 in the preceding quarter and $3,764,073 in the corresponding quarter last year.

Entertainment Tax Dropped in Japan

By TETSUYA MORI

TOKYO, Oct. 2.—Theatre operators are looking forward to the abolition of the present entertainment tax, for which will be substituted a business profit tax, effective next April, following the approval by the cabinet of the tax reform plan developed by the Ministry of Finance.

Under the revised scheme a tax of 34 yen annually will be levied on corporations per 1,000 yen of net profit, and a tax will be set on individuals of 22 yen annually for any profit up to 1,000 yen and 26 yen per 1,000 yen for profits above that figure.

Japanese cameramen have started a movement for an association, following the successful formation of the Japan Film Directors' Ass'n. A general meeting of cameramen will be held shortly to establish the Nippon Society of Cameramen.

Warners' Japanese office showed an increase of more than 200,000 yen in the fiscal year 1935-36 as compared with the previous year. Twentieth Century-Fox also showed substantial gains, chiefly because of the business done by "Cat's Paw" and "Curly Top." The employes drew bonuses, as did the Paramount force for placing second in an international company sales contest. In general the American companies here are showing excellent results.

Metro Single Bill Uruguay Innovation

By PAUL BODO

MONTEVIDEO, URUGUAY, Oct. 7.—M-G-M has introduced a new exhibition and distribution policy in Uruguay in the operation of the new Cine Metro, largest and most luxurious house in the country. The theatre has introduced the single feature policy, allowing three performances daily instead of the usual two, and in distribution has set a clearance of 90 days on films playing the house. Heretofore all first run films reached the subsequents one week later.

The house also will remain open during the summer.

One of the leading local circuits is understood to be interested in a plan for the showing of special matinee programs for children on specified days, as a result of the intensive campaign for such a development being carried on by El Dia, leading local newspaper.

The movement is seen as opening the field for a number of American films which otherwise have no market here.

Pearson Heads Sales For Dominion Sound

MONTREAL, Oct. 20.—Dominion Sound Equipments, Ltd., comprising a comparatively recent amalgamation of sound projection product interests in Canada, has a new general sales manager in Lloyd C. Pearson. He succeeds B. C. Lewis, who was killed in an automobile accident a few weeks ago.

Prior to the amalgamation, Pearson was with the research and sales departments of Northern Electric.

Looking 'Em Over

"Alla en el Rancho Grande" ("There on the Big Ranch")

(Bustamante y de Fuentes)

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 20.—This film, by far the best picture Mexicans have produced, looks like sure-fire for American exhibitors who like a glamorous foreign film.

It is perhaps the most authentic Mexican picture ever made; it presents a true portrait of ranch life in this country, the characterizations are honest, costuming, atmosphere and side lights are the real thing. The simple, though engaging story, has much of pathos, but with clever comedy relief. It concerns a new treatment of the Cinderella attaining happiness and what a man can do for his best friend. Fernando de Fuentes directed well. Photography and sound are far above the average.

An indication of the picture's American values was its popularity with resident and visiting Americans at its exhibition in the Cine-Teatro Alameda here. Furthermore, it features Tito Guizar, ace Mexican tenor, and Lorenzo Barcelata, celebrated composer-musician. They have abundant opportunity for adding to the entertainment by displaying their wares, including a "song-guitar duel," a Spanish-Mexican rural custom of two gallants warbling each other's defects to guitar music. There are also fine displays of horsemanship and a splendid rendition of "El Jarabe Tapatio," spirited Mexican national dance. In addition there are two first class guitar-song trios.

Running time, 105 minutes. "G." LOCKHART

"David Livingstone"

(FitzPatrick-Thomas)

Transcribing the life and exploits of David Livingstone in Africa to the screen has been an arduous and difficult task, particularly for the efforts achieved. Those who are interested in the work accomplished by the English adventurer will find this immensely gripping. To James A. FitzPatrick goes the credit for attempting so hazardous a film—his years of producing TravelTalks having prompted the decision to make it—and certainly he has come through with a thoroughly convincing product.

Percy Marmont in the character of Livingstone, gives a sincere and touching performance. The story begins in 1841, when Livingstone at a sermon decides to visit the dark continent to civilize the natives. He meets with setbacks, returns to England, marries and after two children are born brings his wife to the veldt, where she dies of fever. Later, Livingstone meets a similar fate.

All of the African scenes have been taken in actual locales, adding a note of authenticity to the picturized work of the explorer. As Livingstone, Marmont is a matured actor under the direction of Fitz-Patrick. The picture may have a limited appeal, which will not be surprising, as it does not stress romance but adventure, which is the other way round in the bulk of the films made today. Art theatres will go for this one in a big way.

With the exception of Marmont, none of the British cast is known to American audiences.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"The Human Adventure"

(Wendell G. Shields-New York)

Not entertainment in the general meaning of the word, yet it possesses those elements. This is a compelling educational film of high merit. The vital story of the rise of civilization, as unearthed by the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago, in archeological researches in Egypt, Palestine and Persia, is told with a dramatic effect.

The readers of the stories which appear in newspapers from time to time reporting newly uncovered finds in the countries aforementioned should be found a receptive audience to the picture. Distribution will be governed by local cultural worth and presentation.

The narrative starts with an academic lecture by Dr. James H. Breasted, who explains beforehand, in a manner, the basic idea of the picture. The intriguing work of bringing to light the story of the past from the diggings of archeologists follows, and while another person delivers the narrative, there are revealed the ancient glories of Egypt, Palestine, Babylonia, Anatolia and Persia, tracing the rise of civilization from its pinnacle in Persepolis to early stone-age shelters. The photography is splendid.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Minimum Price Set For Paris Theatres

By PIERRE AUTRE

PARIS, Oct. 12.—A special committee of the Exhibitors' Ass'n has set specific minimum prices below which exhibitor members in the Paris area will not be permitted to sell admissions. Distributors and certain exhibitors had been complaining over a long period that prices in some instances were so low as to offer unfair competition. Houses were charging as low as two francs (about eight cents) for double bill shows.

The following prices have been set as minimum in the area: first run, no seats under six, eight or 10 francs; for midnight, afternoon or evening, respectively; second run, five, six or eight francs; third run, five and six francs. These prices apply to exclusive runs.

For general release, the first run minimum is three and four francs, and subsequents 2.50 and three francs. The seats priced at the minimum cannot exceed 30 per cent of the total capacity of the house.

Canadian Managers Are Shifted Again

TORONTO, Oct. 20.—Another important shakeup of managers has been put through by Famous Players Canadian Corp., cities from Winnipeg in the west to Halifax on the Atlantic coast being involved. Ray Tubman, district manager at Winnipeg, has returned to Ottawa where he will have charge of the Capitol and will preside over the five circuit houses in Ottawa and Hull.

Howard Knevels, manager of the Ottawa Capitol, has been transferred to the Capitol at Halifax, N. S., in succession to Leonard Bishop who, after four years, has gone to the Capitol in London, Ont. Harold Bishop, formerly of Calgary, has been transferred from the London house to Winnipeg.

Ferdinand Simon Dies

Ferdinand Simon, veteran booking agent, died in his sleep early yesterday at his home in Forest Hills, L. I.

Simon was 41 years old and had been connected with the theatrical business for over 25 years. He is survived by Mrs. Simon and two children. Funeral services have not yet been arranged.

Lillian Franklin Weds

ST. JOHN, N. B., Oct. 20.—Lillian Franklin, daughter of J. M. Franklin and Mrs. Franklin of this place, was married recently in New York to Michael Foster, newspaperman. They are honeymooning in Bermuda. The father is head of a circuit of theatres in the Maritime Provinces and was formerly Canadian representative of RKO theatre interests in Toronto.

"Le Grand Refrain"

(The Great Song)

(Metropa Film)

PARIS, Oct. 9.—This is one of the best musical films ever produced in a French studio. The well-known French author Yves Mirande, who has been in Hollywood for some time, has written the story and directed the film, which was supervised by the German director, Robert Siodmak, working now in Paris. There are excellent music and songs written by the German composer, Werner-Richard Heymann, composer of the music for "Three at A Patrol Station" and "The Congress Dances."

There is plenty of romance, comedy and fun in "Le Grand Refrain." It deals with a young, talented, but unknown composer, played by Fernand Gravet, who despairs of finding a publisher to buy his music. He meets a young girl, a singer, who recognizes his talent. Gravet writes a musical comedy and, when finished and minus money and a job, disappears. The girl, by this time, is deeply in love with the composer, but is unsuccessful in locating him. Eventually, she persuades a wealthy man to produce the show.

It is a success, as might be imagined. The singer, who plays the lead, encounters the composer as she leaves the theatre. It appears he had been living on the bounty of the Salvation Army and discovered his play was being produced on the day of its debut.

Chief interest for America is the appearance of Gravet, who speaks English and has been signed for Hollywood by Warners. He does an excellent job here and gets ample opportunity to display his genuine talent as a singer and a comedian. Other parts are played by Jacqueline Francell, Jane Aubert, Signoret and Alerme. Direction and technical work are good. There are a number of amusing scenes and incidents have good gag value. The Comedian Harmonists, German singers, are also featured and sing the theme song.

"Le Grand Refrain" may be the sort of French picture to interest America. In this instance, properly handled English titles would prove sufficient to convey the story development. Interesting, are the scenes on and back stage of a French musical comedy theatre with real Parisian backgrounds, of course.

Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

"Jenny"

(G.F.F.A.-French)

PARIS, Oct. 6.—This picture produced in Paris by the Company Réalisations d'Art Cinématographique is the first for a young French director, Marcel Carné, who had been for several years assistant to Jacques Feyder.

It is obvious that "Jenny" is, on the cinema point of view, a very good film, well produced and directed, with clever dialogue written by Jacques Prévert and Jacques Contant, and including an excellent cast. The tempo is fast, the atmosphere very well built up, and the technical work really good. For his first picture Carné has done an outstanding piece of work.

Unfortunately there are plenty of objections to the story which may not agree with the rules of the Legion of Decency. It is about a woman, Jenny, finely portrayed by Françoise Rosay, who manages one of these secret night clubs where rich men are received to make fun. Jenny is deeply in love with a man, much younger than herself, Albert Préjean. Jenny has a daughter, Lisette Lanvin, a young girl, well educated, who does not know what kind of business her mother conducts. She discovers her mother's real business and meets her mother's lover. The two young people fall in love and decide to go away to be married. The mother sacrifices her love for her daughter's happiness.

Although this melodramatic story drives to a moral end, and the picture is made with tact and does not include a vulgar scene, the vicious background may be objected to by some patrons.

With this reserve regarding the story, it may be a very good attraction.

Running time, 100 minutes. "A."

AUTRE

Short Subject

"The Chemist"

(Educational)

Buster Keaton applies his straight-faced antics to a story set in the laboratory of a college and the result is an offering that should please audiences who might have pondered the star's absence. The possibilities of the story, such as Keaton's chemical concoctions in the form of an enlarging powder, love potions and a noiseless explosive are drained for their utmost in comic worth. The film is well produced. It has a clever finish and a full content of excitement and laughs. David Freedman wrote the story. Production Code Seal No. 01,227. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Philippine Fantasy"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

With the usual brand of fine photography, this number of the Magic Carpet series takes in the American possession recently given independence. The camera tour takes in the city of Manila, cigar and rope manufacture scenes, views of old Fort Santiago and an ancient and remarkably engineered system of irrigated rice terraces, centuries old. Interesting and informative material. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Kiko Foils the Fox"

(Terry-Toons-Educ'l)

That frolicing kangaroo plays his flute to the amusement of many birds in this cartoon. And, as usual, menace in the form of a ragged fox comes on the scene and is the target of the bird's defensive tactics when he tries to make a meal of three youngsters. Kiko disposes of the enemy and a swarm of hornets finish the job. Average stuff. Production Code Seal No. 01,216. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

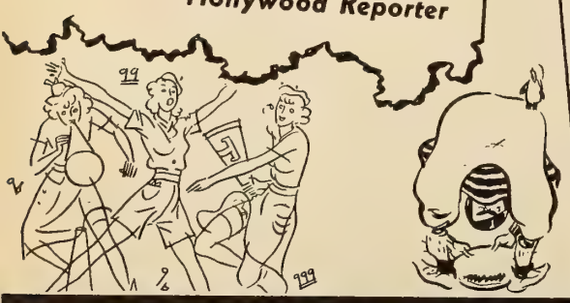
THEY'RE ALL CALLING IT THE LAUGH-AND-SONG HIT OF THE YEAR!



TOUCHDOWN FOR CENTURY WITH 'PIGSKIN PARADE'

Football Musical Top Entertainment

Here's a pip football musical that entertains every foot of the way and that will continue on its rollicking course long after the football season is buried under the snows of winter. It has a laugh-providing comedy story punctuated by a dozen lively songs and it is presented with brisk and youthful spirit by a brilliant cast of young players that chalks up one hit after another. Mark it down for a boxoffice Lady Bountiful wherever it shows.

Hollywood Reporter

"Pigskin Parade" Excellent Football Film

The best football picture yet! So may "Pigskin Parade," previewed last night at Grauman's Chinese Theater, be classified. It is a rich entertainment festival, and does not take the sports doings too seriously. The very novelty of the creation is, therefore, what appeals, and the film evinces the smartest showmanship. The film looks like a certain hit.

Los Angeles Times

Here is one of the entertainment touchdowns of the season which should chalk up heavy b.o. score for Darryl Zanuck and his 20th-Fox aggregation of production aides. They have put about everything in the bag into this hilarious, tuneful revue, set to football tempo for seasonal relish and exploitation. And how the boys and girls in the collection of names go to town with their rollicking and musicking and collation of antic nonsense!

"Heart" with Paul Ash Big In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 20.—"Give Me Your Heart" on the screen and Paul Ash in the orchestra pit directing several specialty acts pulled $16,800 into the Ambassador. This beat the house average by $7,800 and proved the most profitable attraction of the week.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," at the Missouri after having had its premiere here some months ago, made the second best comparative showing with a gross of $12,500, or $3,500 above average. The supporting picture on the program was "Back to Nature." The business at the Missouri was aided by the co-operation of high schools, both public and parochial. Tickets were distributed among pupils, permitting them to see the picture for 25 cents. Their teachers urged attendance.

"The Magnificent Brute" and "Girl on the Front Page" at the Fox had a very satisfactory week with a take of $14,100.

At the St. Louis "Sing, Baby, Sing" and several acts of vaudeville did $7,200, or $1,200 above what this establishment should accomplish on a second run picture basis.

The weather was favorable and there was no serious competition.

Total first run business was $65,700. Average is $55,000.

"Brute" Smash In Cleveland With $8,350

CLEVELAND, Oct. 20.—"The Magnificent Brute" was the biggest box-office draw of the week. It polled $8,350 at the Allen, which was better than double the average business.

"The Big Broadcast of 1937" went $8,000 over par at Loew's State with a total of $20,000 for the week.

"Give Me Your Heart," at the RKO Palace with vaudeville on the stage, went to $17,500. This was $2,500 up.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," sponsored by the leading women's clubs, made a good showing during its first popular priced run at Warners' Hippodrome. It went over the $10,000 average by more than $200.

"The Great Ziegfeld," playing its fourth consecutive week downtown at advanced admission prices, had a $5,500 take. This was only $100 under the average gross at the Stillman for a first week.

Total first run business was $61,600. Average is $47,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 16:

"Libeled" Is Chicago Top; Gets $28,500

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—"Libeled Lady" was the outstanding attraction in the Loop last week, with a take of $28,500, over par by $13,500. The United Artists played with film with a comedy and newsreel. The program was so short that the turnover was speeded up.

At the Chicago "Give Me Your Heart," with Eddie Peabody and a revue on the stage, pulled $37,500, up by $5,500. Good reviews on "Ramona" and a strong campaign on Don Ameche, former local radio favorite, pulled the Roosevelt gross up to $16,800, over normal by $5,800.

"Gorgeous Hussy" took $7,400 at the Garrick after three weeks at the United Artists, and "Anthony Adverse" grossed $6,800 in its second week at the Apollo.

Total first run business was $144,100. Average is $115,000.

"Your Heart" Gets $17,000 In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 20.—With two holdovers both doing excellent business, business in the downtown sector took a general spurt.

"Give Me Your Heart" pulled up the Stanley to an excellent $17,000.

"Mummy's Boys" and "I'd Give My Life" at the Warner jumped to $4,725. Although "Ladies in Love" started off with a rush at the Alvin, it fell way off at the half-way mark and the management at the last minute yanked it after eight days in favor of "The Magnificent Brute." In that period, the picture got around $8,750.

The pair of holdovers both fared exceptionally well. In its sixth week, "My Man Godfrey" did around $5,870 at the Fulton and stayed for a seventh week, breaking all run records here, while in its second and last week at the Penn, "The Great Ziegfeld" was good for $12,000.

Total first run grosses were $48,345. Average is $37,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 15:

"LADIES IN LOVE" (20th-Fox)

Harttmann Party Fishes

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 20.—George Harttmann, operator of the Armour in North Kansas City; Frank Cassil, St. Joseph, Mo., exhibitor, and Mrs. Cassil, spent several days last week at Arrowhead Beach, Lake of the Ozarks, fishing. Cassil's hands still are raw from pulling in fish.

Barron Joins U. A.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 20.—William Barron, manager of Warners' Kenyon, has resigned to join the United Artists sales force in Cleveland. He has been succeeded here by William J. Mahoney, formerly of Warners' Highpoint in St. Louis.

Reopen Canton House

CANTON, O., Oct. 20.—Bob Burch has reopened the old Grand Opera House with a burlesque policy, but plans to add pictures later. A stock company of 32 is on the payroll with shows being changed weekly.

Para. News Re-Equips

Paramount News is re-equipping its newsreel channels with new Western Electric amplifiers. Erpi reported yesterday that delivery of the new equipment had just been made.

Manages 2 Danz Houses

SEATTLE, Oct. 20.—Ross Youthers has been appointed manager of John Danz's Florence and Star here, third-run houses.

Try the Local

Skeleton skyscrapers, structural steel and rivets play such an integral part in "Iron Men," stage play which opened at the Longacre Monday evening, Bob Goldstein remarked to a talent scout: "You like that actor? Better talk to Local 40 about signing him."

No Ruling Made Yet On Bay State Reels

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Four weeks have elapsed since the private hearing on the use of the 2,000-foot reel held before Commissioner of Public Safety Paul Kirk, but no statement has been issued approving or disapproving the new equipment. Kirk has been away from his desk on other matters, but according to Joseph Brennan, secretary to Allied Theatres, Kirk will probably take some stand within a week or two.

Films are being shipped into the local exchanges on the 2,000-foot reels, but when used in the booths they are mounted on the smaller reels to comply with union requirements which impose a fine upon projectionits who fail to make the change. Union operators have stated that they will abide by any decision that Commissioner Kirk may make.

Canada Using Long Reels

TORONTO, Oct. 20.—Distributors in Canada are following the move in the United States for the standardization of 2,000-foot reels. Several exchanges have been using the 2,000-foot reels during the past year, but the remainder are now falling into line to facilitate projection and to protect prints from repeated splicing.

Chicago to License Projection Devices permits have been issued thus far nor have any been applied for. In some instances the law is being violated.

The Film Board of Trade will submit a resolution to the City Council next week asking that the ordinance be changed to allow three-fourths of an inch clearance instead of one inch. This would make unnecessary the buying of much new equipment or the rewinding on to smaller reels. Unless the council grants this change much trouble will probably result, as the distributors are against any other system and are planning a fight to the finish.

Start "Pup's Christmas"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.—Harmon-Ising have started "The Pup's Christmas," color cartoon subject intended for release in December. The studio is also preparing "To Spring," a color cartoon short which will be released in the late winter.

Tevlin at Twickenham

LONDON, Oct. 12.—C. J. Tevlin, who recently placed "Broken Blossoms" and "She Shall Have Music" in the American market, has been appointed American representative of Twickenham Film Distributors. He will return to New York at end of October.

"Cain," Dual Frisco Lead With $17,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20.—The combination of "Cain and Mabel" and "Sworn Enemy" at the Fox, took top honors here with $17,000 against a $15,000 average, in a week which showed nothing spectacular in box-office results.

"Dodsworth" at the United Artists and the dual of "Ladies in Love" and "Murder with Pictures" at the Warfield, each went $1,000 over par, the former grossing $10,000, and the latter taking $14,000.

"Dimples" and "The Case of the Velvet Claws," dualled at the St. Francis, went $800 over a $6,000 average in the second week. The only other house to better par was the Clay, where the French film, "Lac Aux Dames," did $1,100 against an average of $1,000.

"George White's Scandals," with known New York names in the cast, pulled strongly at the Curran, while the WPA production of "The Fool" was weak at the Columbia. The weather was warm.

Total first run business was $85,100. Average is $94,500.

Estimated takings:

Week Ending Oct. 13:

"SWING TIME" (Radio)

Ascap Asking Canada Music Payments Here

Distributors Oppose, But MPPDA to Get Proposal

Indications are that Ascap, at a meeting with the M.P.P.D.A. law committee next Monday, will petition distributors again to pay the Canadian theatres music tax directly to it in order to avoid complications which may result for both the music licensing society and the distributors from the new Canadian regulations which restrict the schedule of music fees which may be charged in the Dominion.

The proposal was first advanced by Ascap last summer as a condition on which it would continue its Canadian operations but was rejected by the distributors. The proposal involved the continuation of the music tax rates which have applied in Canada heretofore with the payment being made directly to Ascap by American distributors on behalf of their Canadian accounts. The implication was left

Films Not Hit By Ban on Publicity

Motion picture news, reviews and similar material are not affected by a current campaign, directed by the American Newspaper Publishers' Ass'n, to eliminate free publicity from the news columns of American newspapers, according to Motion Picture Herald.

Already publishers in eight cities have subscribed to the ban, and the movement is taking hold elsewhere. Assurances have been given in most cases that there will be no reduction in drama and film editorial staffs, or in amusement page space.

The news coming out of Hollywood was cited by the A.N.P.A. as typical

ITOA Starts New Protest On Exclusives

Sets Meeting of Theatre Unit Representatives

Exclusive runs, which were dropped several years ago after an experiment, have cropped up again and yesterday nettled members of the I. T. O. A. to the point where telegrams were ordered sent out to every independent theatre organization east of Chicago, asking each to send a representative to a committee meeting next Wednesday at the Astor.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the advisability of calling a mass meetirg of theatre owners as far as the Windy City on the following Wednesday in New York to protest.

David Weinstock, a member of the local organization's buying committee, during the last week was visited by a representative of New England exhibitors who made the complaint. Weinstock took up the matter with I. T. O. A. members yesterday and it was decided to contact all unaffiliated units within 1,000 miles for opinions.

No individual company was singled out at the Astor session yesterday, the complaint being of a general nature, it was stated by John Manheimer, secretary of the organization. No information could be given as to where the practice is current.

Last night, telegrams were sent out

Germans Are Disturbed by Cost of Films

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Costs of German films are causing great anxiety, according to a report to the U. S. Dept. of Commerce from Trade Commissioner R. M. Stephenson in Berlin.

Although some films have been produced for 180,000 marks the average cost is between 250,000 and 300,000 marks; big features have cost around 600,000 marks, and super films, synchronized in several languages, 800,000 marks and more. Various attempts have been made to reduce costs.

The Filmkredit Bank G. m. b. H., in conformity with the Reichsfilm Chamber, has reversed its policy and is now granting credits on the average of only about 50 per cent of production cost instead of 75 per cent, as formerly. This change in policy has embarrassed producers as it involves an overhauling of their plans. One result

Debentures of RKO Are Tied In with Notes

Holders Concerned Over Payment on Latter

Considerable concern is being evidenced among RKO debenture holders over the petition of the Irving Trust Co., as trustee of RKO, to retire the outstanding $750,000 of RKO gold notes which are now held by the Bank of America National Ass'n, Los Angeles. The petition is scheduled for hearing before Federal Judge William Bondy in U. S. District Court here today, but will probably be postponed at the request of Atlas Corp.—Lehman Bros.—RCA interests, which are the principal holders of the RKO debentures.

The RKO gold notes are secured by all of the working assets of the company, including the studio. The RKO trustee asks that these assets be turned over to it in the event the court authorizes the retirement of the gold notes as petitioned. Debenture holders have a second lien on the assets while the gold notes are unpaid and outstanding, thus giving the debentures a secured position until the notes are paid off.

The original agreement stipulated that the RKO assets securing the notes would revert to the company after they had been paid off. The indenture covering the RKO debentures then provides that the company cannot make a new loan without equally securing the debentures. In the current move to retire the last of the gold

G. B. Annual Session Will Be Held Nov. 2

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Next developments in the Gaumont British situation are expected at the annual meeting which is to be held Nov. 2.

In the meantime S. R. Kent has gone to France. He is not expected to sail on the Ile de France and the date of his departure is uncertain.

Due to an error, it was stated that the sale price of the Ostrers' "B" shares in Metropolis and Bradford Trust to John Maxwell and Associated British Pictures was £325,000 cash and £300,000 in A.B.P. shares. The latter should have read 300,000 shares, the market value of which is now about £268,125 at 17/10½.

Rogers Leaving Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—Charles R. Rogers will leave tomorrow by train for New York, where he will meet for conferences on new international production plans with Herbert Wilcox of the Universal board of directors. Wilcox will arrive in New York from London Nov. 2.

"Punches and Judy" Clean, Light Play, O.K. for Films

Pointing no moral, carrying no message, but just aiming to please—and succeeding in a fair measure—"Punches and Judy" showed itself a lightly diverting comedy, in its pre-Broadway week at the Boulevard of the subway circuit in Jackson Heights.

To John Golden, who produced the C. G. Blythe play, must go a unique distinction. He has, if you please, informed the playgoer in specific fashion on the program that Golden presents "A Clean American Comedy." And clean it is, clean and swift and entertaining.

There is a picture in it, much the same type of light, fast picture that it is a play, but with the added popular-taste literal action which the screen technically is able to apply. It tells a yarn of the prize fight game, and a world of squared circle action is awaiting the cameras.

There is a touch of drama, but it is not to be taken too seriously at any time. A bouquet goes to an eminently satisfactory cast, headed by Florence Reed, the Irish-brogued mother; Lawrence O'Brien as the helpful priest; Phyllis Welch as the pretty daughter; Eric Dressler as the young fight manager, and Broderick Crawford as the amorous, slow-witted and bulky pugilist.

Pug Steals Manager's Girl

Dressler, ex-fighter, decides to turn manager, finds himself Crawford, and aims for the better things in life—with Miss Welch. His one trouble is that he likes to take it slowly, caution being his mainstay in life. Miss Welch waits and hopes, then waits some more. But Crawford doesn't wait, and Dressler can't know that her leanings toward the pug-ugly are for his own eventual good.

In the second act of three comes fame and a shot at the champion, and Dressler is through with Miss Welch, and hates his fighter. He tries to get him beaten, but the boxer goes up. Through it all runs the objections, the battling for her "lost" child, of Miss Reed, lovable, cantankerous and delightfully human. Eventually Dressler sees the light, and Crawford is glad to relinquish Miss Welch, his one good eye (Miss Reed blacked the other) only on the championship.

Republic Talks Finished

Conferences on production costs for Republic Pictures were completed yesterday by home office, studio and sales executives. Grover Parsons, coast district manager, left last night by plane for Los Angeles, while Max Roth, midwest district sales head, departed by train for Kansas City. Nat Levine, production head, plans to leave in a few days.

M. P. Academy to Elect

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—The Academy will hold a joint meeting of the board of governors and combined executive boards tomorrow night to select new officers for the year.

It is understood the reelection of Frank Capra and several of the other officers is assured.

Matters of policy will also be discussed.

Poor Bette!

Rottingdean, England, Oct. 21.—Bette Davis, waiting for action on her appeal from the injunction obtained by Warners, went for a bicycle ride, forgot to turn a corner and skinned her knee. Then she caught a cold. Then, "I am a sick little girl," she told a caller.

She declared her mother is coming over, they will tour Europe, "Then I'll go back to Hollywood if I lose the appeal, or stay in England and work if I win. I'll probably lose and have to go back to Hollywood and the Warner Brothers' jail."

Her salary is $3,000 a week.

Ticket Taxes Up; $489,456 in Month

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—A sharp upturn in Broadway grosses is disclosed by figures made available today by the Internal Revenue Bureau, showing that taxes collected on box-office admissions during September in the third New York district totaled $489,456 against $314,708 in August.

Collections of all theatre taxes in the district last month reached $517,180 against $363,362 in August, but were $5,000 under the July figure of $522,536 in that month. Box-office collections were $471,748.

Taxes collected on free or reduced rate admissions, the bureau reported, were $1,714 last month against $4,056 in August, while $1,699 was collected on tickets sold by brokers, against $2,330; and $24,311 from admissions to roof gardens and cabarets against $41,173. There were no taxes collected during the month on tickets sold by proprietors in excess of the established price or on permanent use or lease of boxes and seats.

Dismiss Music Pickets

Charges of disorderly conduct were withdrawn by representatives of the Globe on Broadway against Ralph Whitehead, executive secretary of the A. F. A., and Abraham Lubert, member of Local 802, in connection with the picketing of the house as part of the union's drive for the reemployment of musicians in film theatres.

Tom Pettey Back on Job

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—Tom Pettey has returned from a vacation and resumed duties as press relations head of the Producers' Assn.

Kenneth Clark, who has been pinch hitting for Pettey, will return to New York tomorrow.

RKO Team to Dance

The RKO baseball team, winners of the M. P. League championship, will celebrate with a victory dance to be held Friday evening in the Casino of the Air of the Montclair Hotel.

FCC Chairman Also Had Record Barred

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—"The Columbia Broadcasting System's rule prohibiting the broadcasting of phonograph records or electrical transcriptions on its network, which received publicity in connection with the Senator Vandenberg broadcast from Chicago Saturday night, also was invoked against the Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, Anning S. Prall, within the past two weeks," declares Harry C. Butcher, in charge of the CBS Washington office.

Continuing, Manager Butcher stated: "The chairman had been invited by the owners of Station KTSA, at San Antonio, Tex., to speak in a program over the Columbia network on Sunday evening, Oct. 4. The chairman accepted the invitation to speak for five minutes, prepared his speech, and then discovered that it would not be convenient to go to the broadcasting studio that evening. Someone suggested to him the possibility of recording his voice so that it could be put on the air without his presence. Without thinking to check as to the network rule prohibiting use of records or transcriptions, the chairman had a recording made and sent the recording to Columbia's Washington office for use on the network.

Claims Fairness to All

"The chairman was informed of the rule. Neither the transcription nor the chairman himself appeared on the network program. The chairman made no complaint.

"The fact that Columbia barred a recording by the Democratic chairman of the Federal Communications Commission would hardly seem to support published inferences that our action in the case of Senator Vandenberg was dictated by fear of either the Democratic Administration or the Federal Communications Commission."

Broadcast Theatre Singing

HAMILTON, O., Oct. 21.—The Westdale here has inaugurated group singing in the theatre which is broadcast over Station CHML.

Para. Sales Forces Discuss Zukor Drive

Following the St. Louis conclave of all division and district managers, studio executives and home office personnel, 11 Paramount district managers are holding individual meetings with local sales forces on the four-month Adolph Zukor Jubilee which will get under way Jan. 7.

Milt Kusell will conduct a meeting of the Albany and Buffalo forces in the latter city tomorrow and on Monday with the local men at the New York exchange.

A. H. Blank Back Home

DES MOINES, Oct. 21.—A. H. Blank, Mrs. Blank and their son, Raymond, have returned from Atlantic City, where they have been for several weeks while Raymond was convalescing from an operation. He has now completely recovered and will leave shortly for an extended stay at a ranch in Arizona.

HAL ROACH is due Monday from the coast.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Country Gentlemen"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson return to the screen in a rollicking comedy. As presented here the veteran entertainers give promise of becoming an important addition to comedy teams. The fast-moving film unreels to the tune of amusing fun in situation, action and dialogue, the latter of a quality sparkling with typical John P. Medbury gag-chatter. All this is under the competent direction of Ralph Staub. Capable action by the leads and the support results in laughable entertainment.

Peddling worthless goldmine stock gets Olsen and Johnson in a jam, the comic situation of which is complicated when a kidnapping charge is also tacked on. The matter adjusted, the pair, teamed with Lila Lee, envision riches in playing bonus-rich war veterans for suckers in oil well promotion. When they are ready to make their coup the trio are exposed as a gang of sharpers. The irate veterans, while riding Olsen and Johnson out of town on a rail, toss a dynamite bomb into an oil well project which unleashes a gusher. The villains become greater heroes when the gold mine also turns out to be a bonanza.

The straight theme is interluded by tricks and gags that keep the laughs coming fast and enthusiastically, and give Joyce Compton, Pierre Watkin, Donald Kirke, Ray Corrigan, Wade Boteler, Frank Sheridan and Joe Cunningham effective, fun-provoking surpporting parts. The freshly contrived original is credited to Milton Raison, Jack Harvey and Jo Graham with the screen play by Joseph Hoffman and Gertrude Orr. The direction, concentrating on the comedy, succeeds in giving Olsen and Johnson opportunities which should popularize them with theatregoers.

Production Code Seal No. 2,738. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

"Love Letters of a Star"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—A confused and unexciting murder mystery leaves the audience rather baffled and in a tangle of unexplained clues.

The daughter of a wealthy family commits suicide after being blackmailed with her letters to a matinee idol. The blackmailer is killed during an interview with her grief-stricken family. They attempt to hide the body rather than explain it all to the police. There follow a lot of questions by one of those know-it-all detectives, another murder, and the solution is hung rapidly and unconvincingly on a previously unsuspected character.

The good players are helpless to liven up the material. They include Henry Hunter, Polly Rowles, C. Henry Gordon, Walter Coy, Hobart Cavanaugh, Ralph Forbes, Alma Kruger, Samuel Hinds, Mary Alice Rice, Halliwell Hobbes, Rollo Lloyd, Olin Howland, Warren Hymer and Virginia Brissac. Lewis R. Foster directed.

The title tends to capitalize on recent love letter news stories that have no connection with the plot.

Production Code Seal No. 2,731. Running time, 55 minutes. "G."

Old Foreign Films In Museum's Series

The third series of programs gathered by the Museum of Modern Art Film Library for distribution to museums, colleges and film study groups throughout the country will consist of the new acquisitions obtained by John E. Abbott and Miss Iris Barry on their recent trip abroad. The programs will illustrate the development of films in France and Germany.

The films in the list cover the German industry from the early offerings of the pioneer Skladanowsky in 1896, to the successful "Emil and the Detectives," from the UFA studios, in 1932.

The French programs will embrace the progress from early Lumiere days to the modern Rene Clair.

Regan Day Transfers International Stock

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Transfer to International Cinema on July 27 of 40,000 shares of its common stock by Regan Day, Inc., Los Angeles, was disclosed today in the semi-monthly report of the Securities and Exchange Commission on the stock transactions of officers and directors of listed corporations.

At the close of the month, Regan Day still held 200,000 shares of the stock, it was shown.

The report also disclosed that in July, Robert W. Atkins, New York, director in Grand National Films, bought and sold during the last two days of the month 2,000 shares of $1 par common stock of the company.

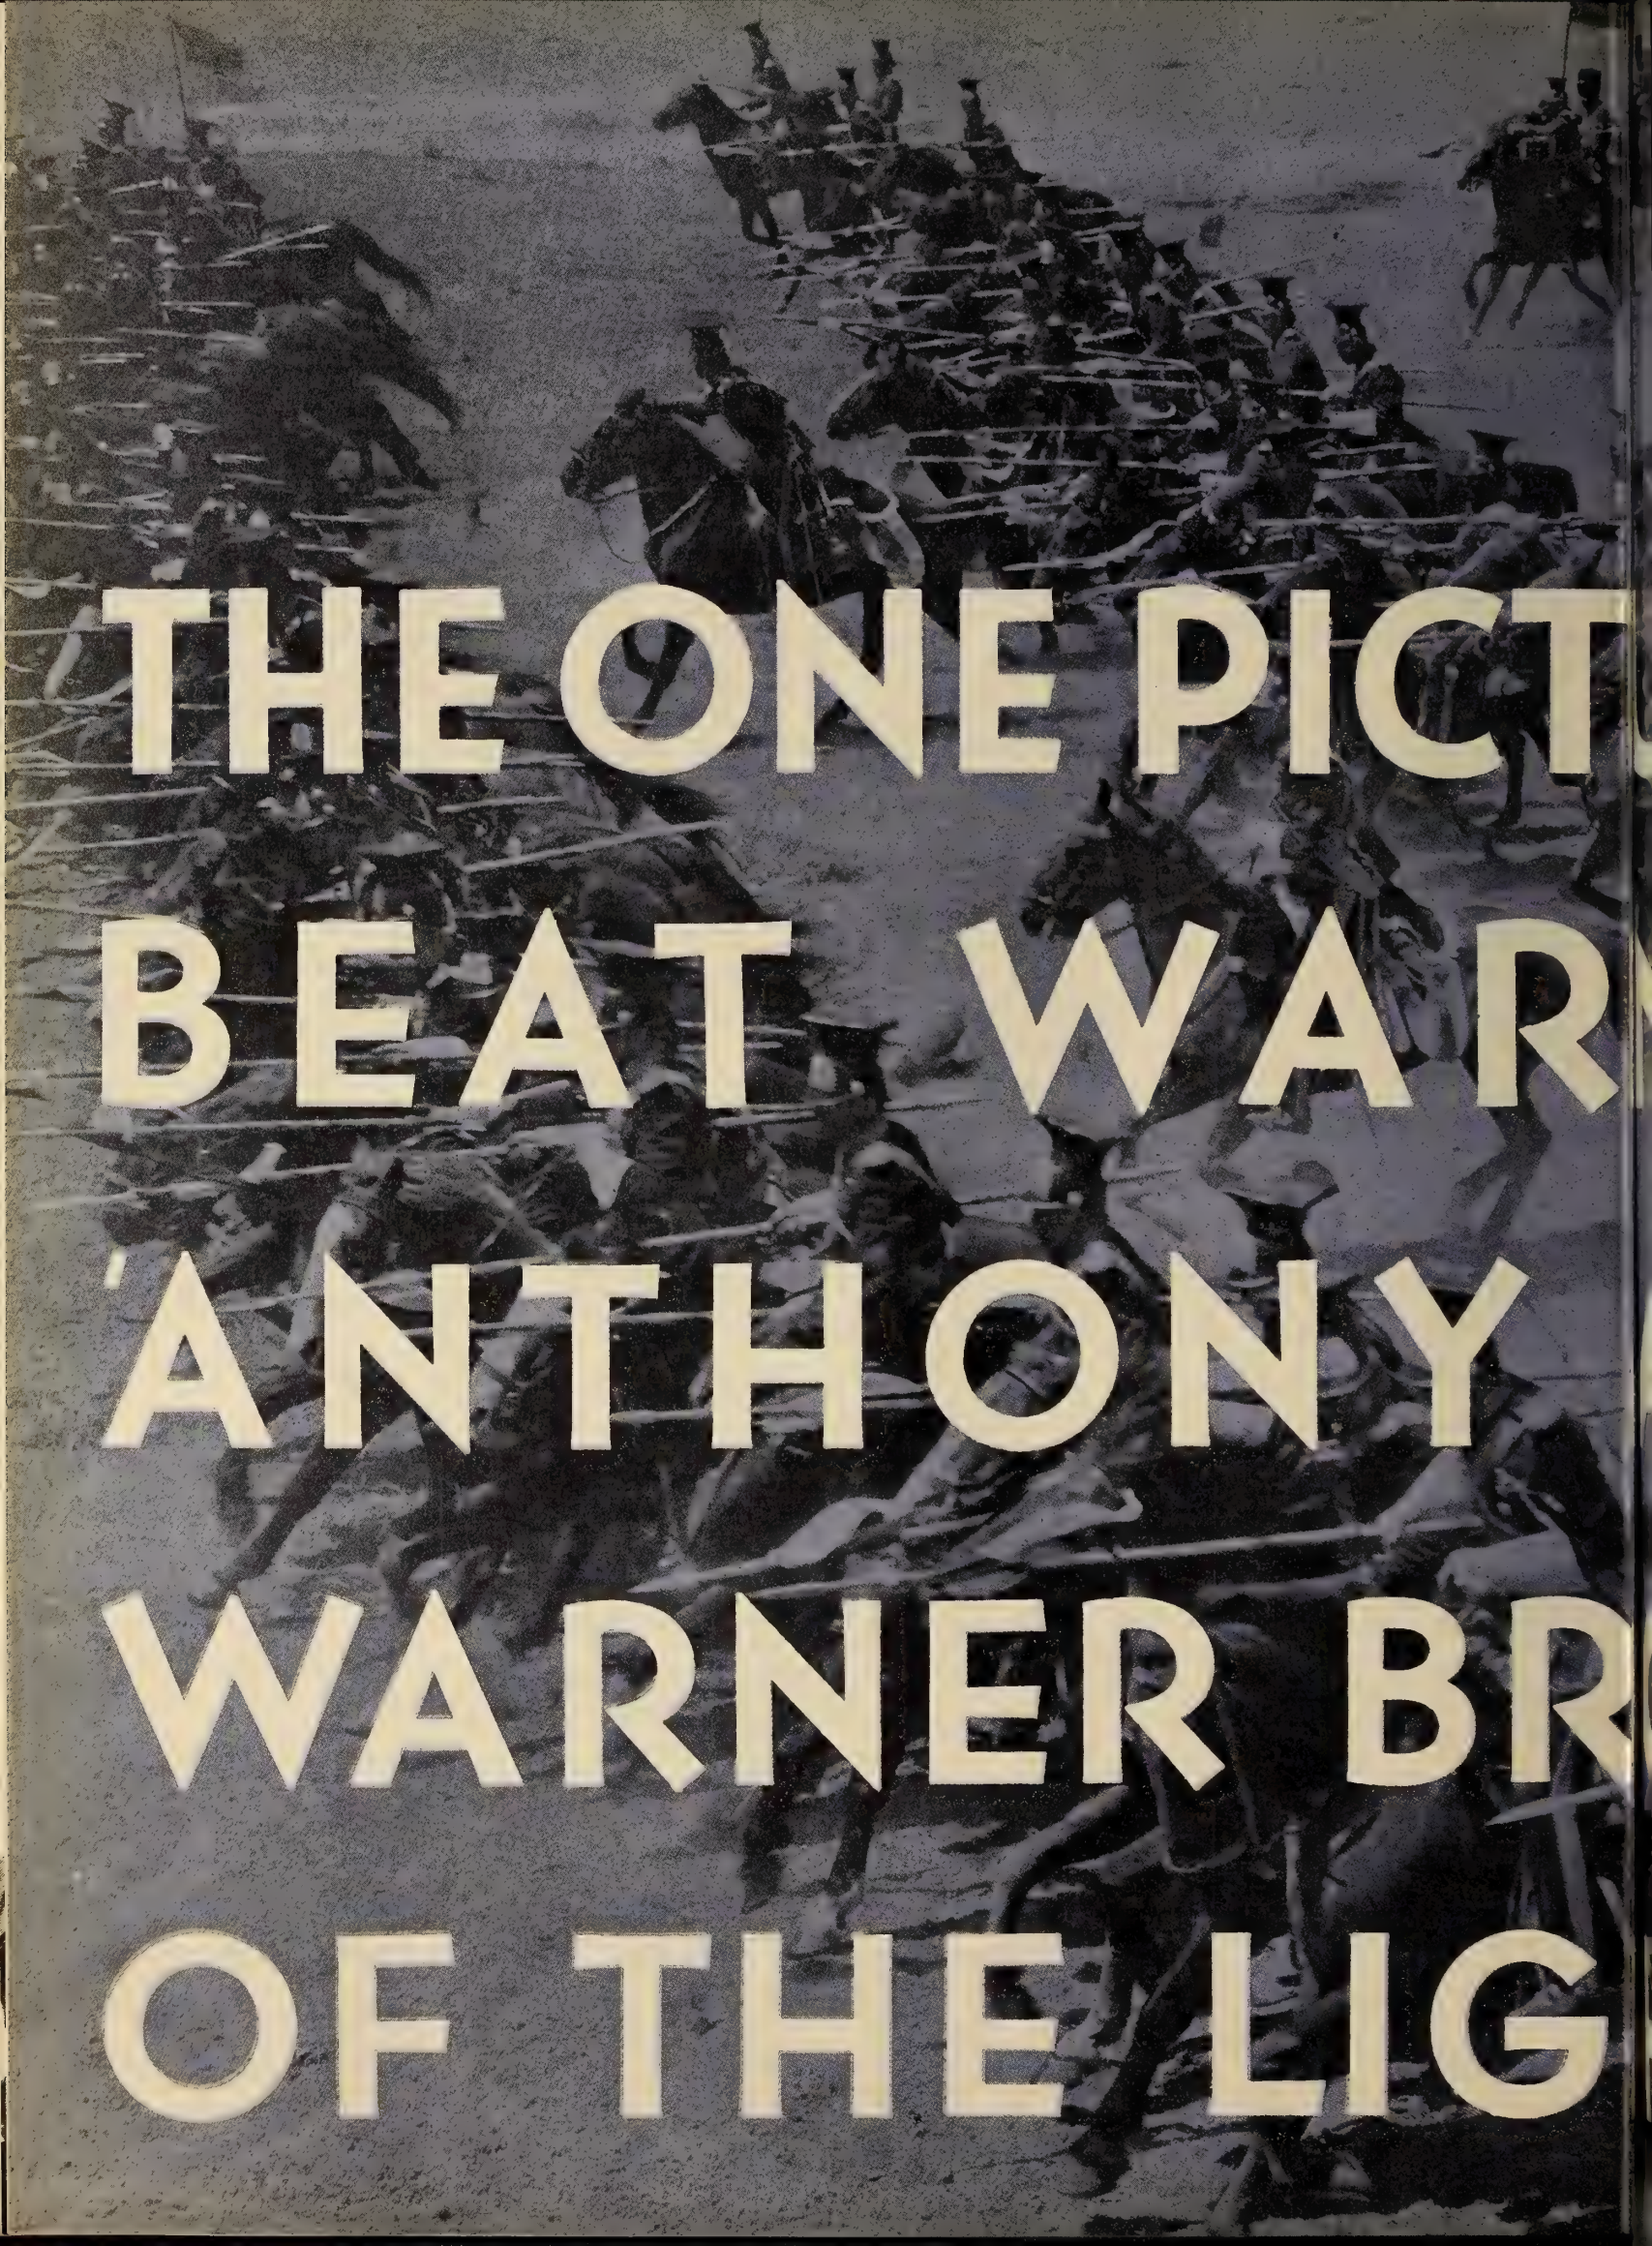
Officers Reelected By Film Carriers

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—The National Film Carriers' Ass'n completed its sessions here today with an election and discussion of Interstate Commerce Commission regulations.

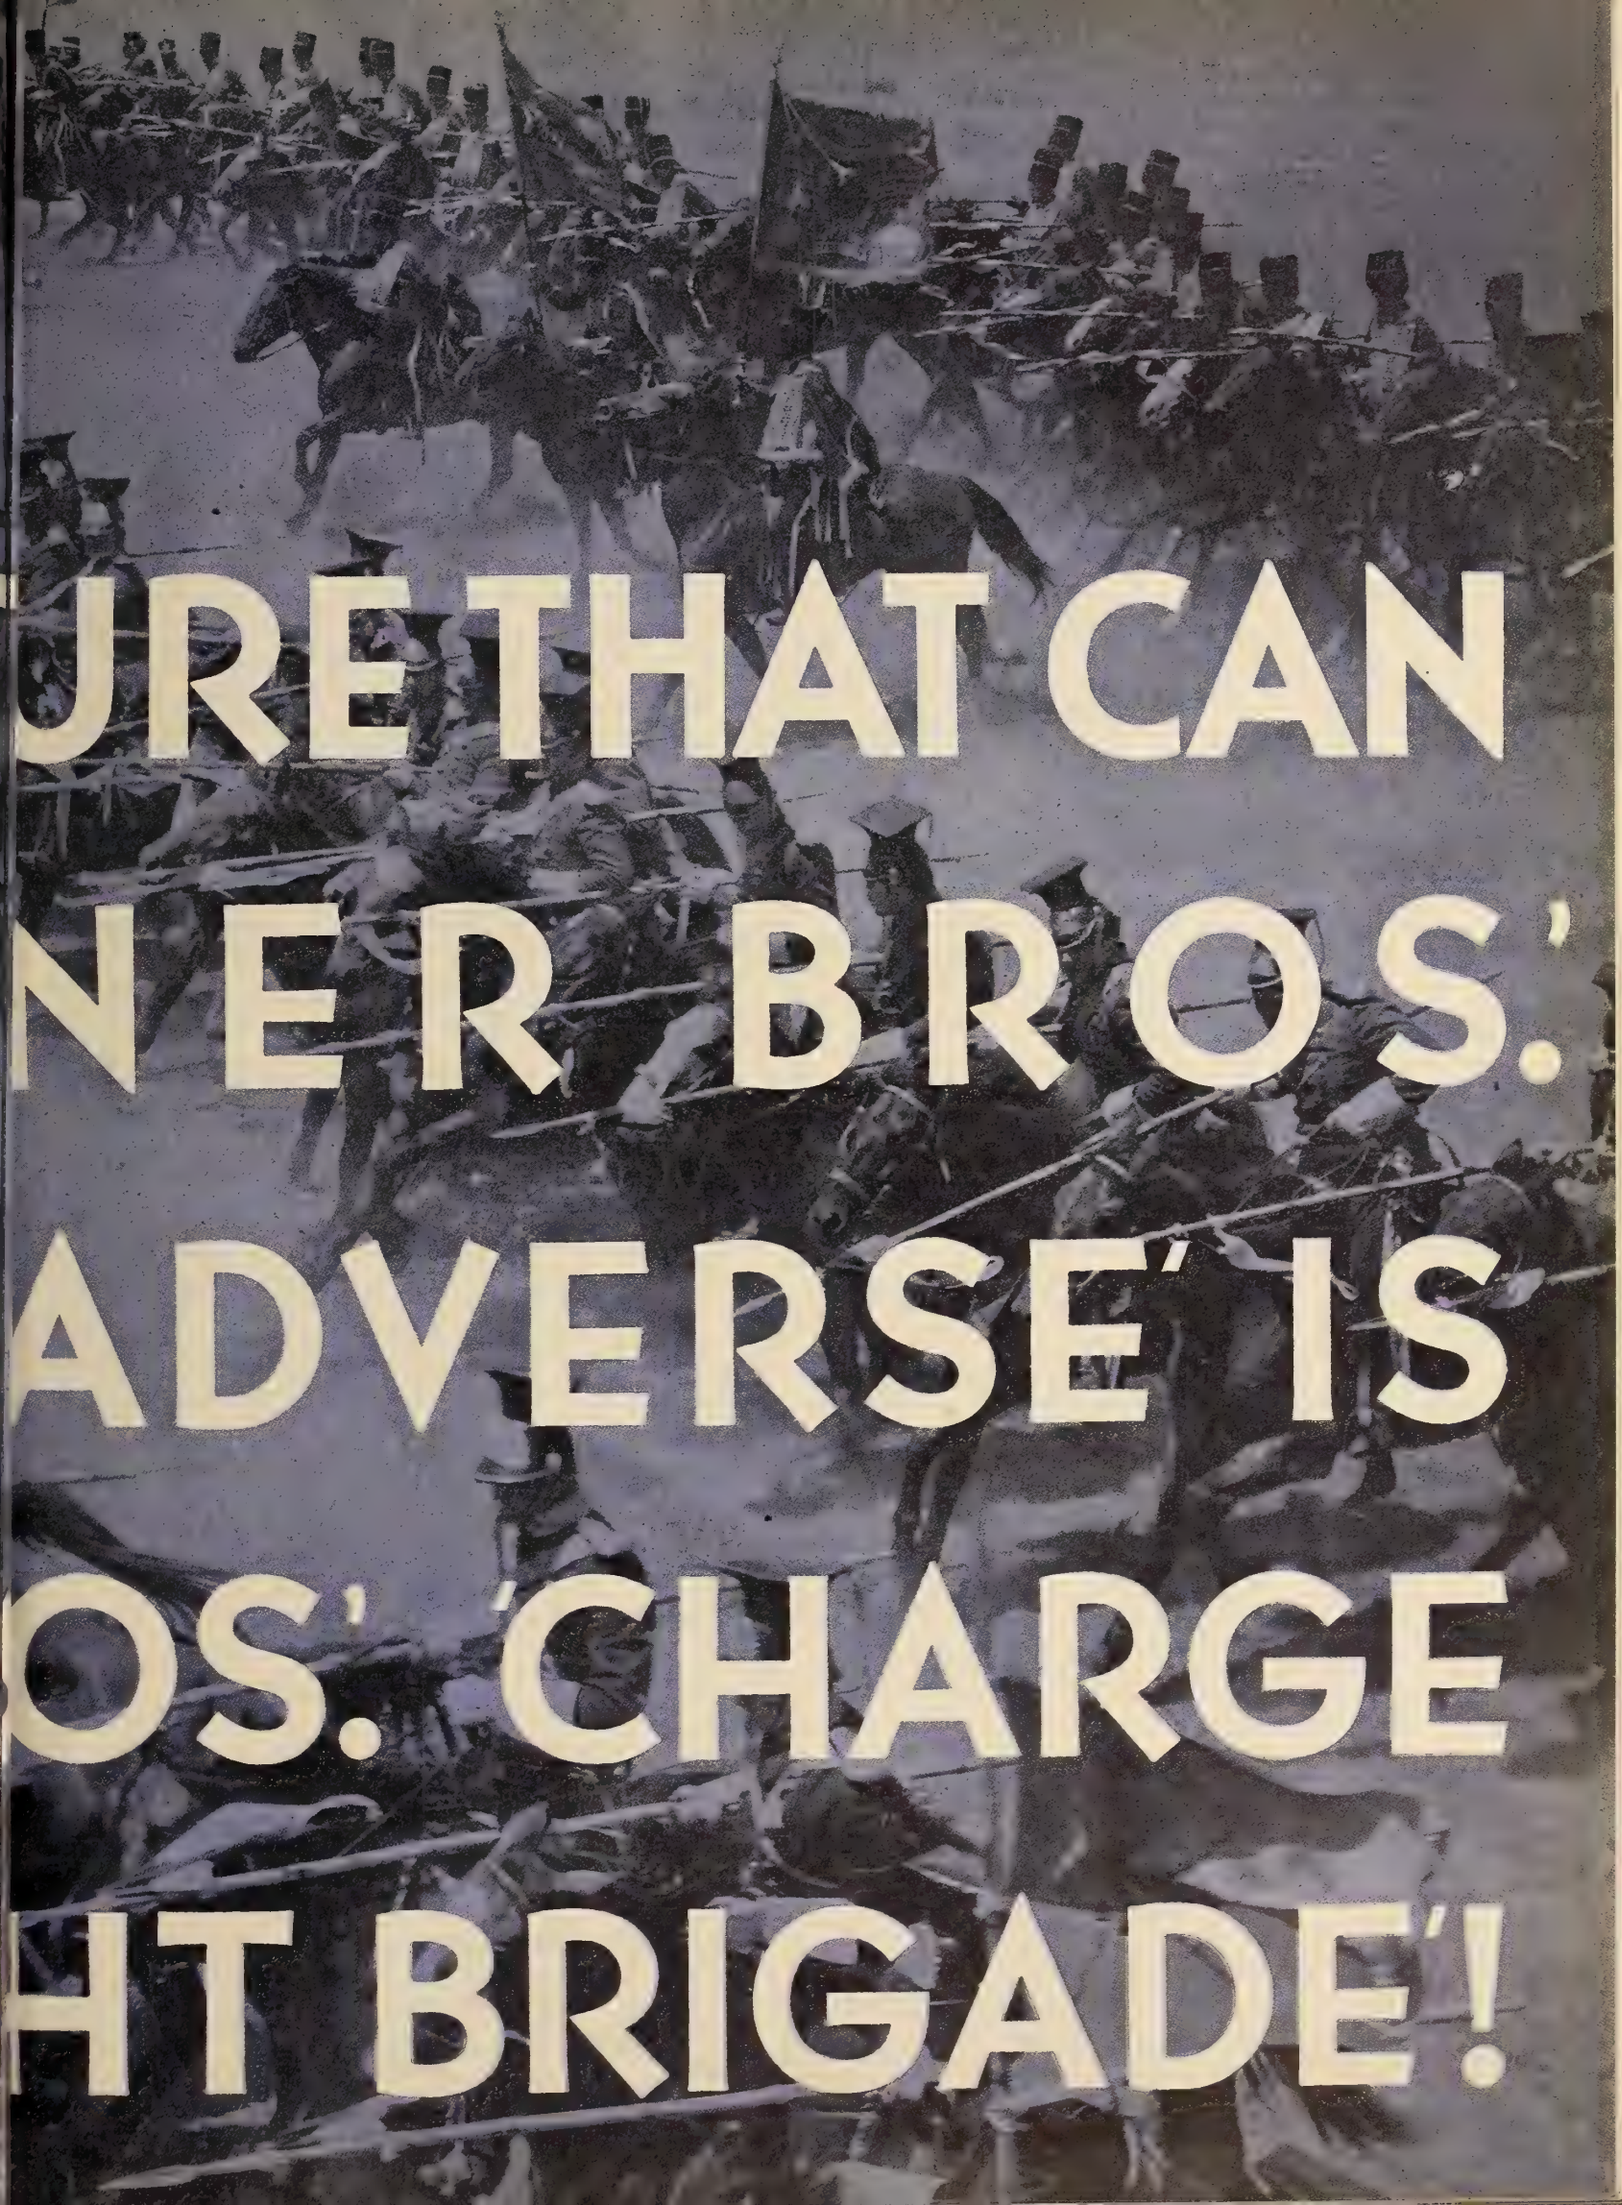
All officers were reelected except two. E. E. Jameson of Kansas City was named vice-president and M. G. Rogers of Omaha replaced him on the board of directors.

All who attended seemed pleased over the prospects for the new physical distribution plan, as considerable business is expected from independents. The men started leaving tonight for their homes.

Halt Two at 20th-Fox



HOLLYWOOD,, Oct. 21.—Two pictures at Twentieth Century-Fox have been forced into suspension by illness of important players. Warner Baxter's broken foot will delay "The White Hunter" about five weeks. On Monday Alice Faye was rushed to the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital with a severe attack of influenza which will suspend "Stowaway" for at least 10 days.



Set Next for Filmarte

"Janosik," French film, will follow "Carnival in Flanders" at the Filmarte, according to John S. Tapernoux, head of the French M. P. Corp., which is distributing the film here.

Robbins to Coast

Herman Robbins, president of National Screen Service and associated companies, flies to Hollywood tomorrow on his annual trip. He will be away several weeks.

Ascap Asking Canada Music Payments Here

that the tax could be recouped by a boost in film rentals.

Distributors opposed the suggestion at that time and, to all appearances, have not changed their views since. The greatest opposition to the proposal stems from the belief that if such a course were to be adopted for Canada, the precedent would be seized upon by exhibitors in the United States as a basis for demands that the music tax be absorbed by distributors in this country and that any attempt to recoup the tax through higher film charges would be met with insurmountable sales resistance.

Leslie Boosey, head of the British Performing Rights Society, which, with Ascap, controls the Canadian Performing Rights Society, is now in Ottawa conferring with Dominion officials on the new Canadian regulations. On his arrival here from London last Monday, Boosey said that he favored an attempt to negotiate a compromise with the Dominion government on the rate restrictions and would attempt to work out an agreement which would permit the Canadian Performing Rights Society to continue its operations.

Boosey to Meet with MPPDA

E. C. Mills, general manager of Ascap, stated at the inauguration of the new Dominion restrictions, that the Canadian music licensing organization would be suspended except as a policing agency for copyright owners. Since that time the Canadian organization has been issuing licenses to music users on a month to month basis only. Boosey is expected back here this week end and will attend the meeting with the Hays organization law committee on Monday.

Bondholders to Ask More Time on Roxy terms for leasing the theatre to Twentieth Century-Fox for 15 years. With all details virtually set, the lobby lease talks are said to be holding up the final plan. It is expected to take two weeks, or three, to complete negotiations on the rental for that part of the lobby which belongs to the Taft Hotel. In the event the talks are extended to the third week another postponement on the court hearing will be asked.

Israels is expected to confer today with Judge Caffey on the extension to Nov. 6.

Harry C. Arthur, who, through Artco, has a management contract for the Roxy with Howard S. Cullman, trustee, is understood to have entered a similar arrangement with Twentieth Century-Fox, if and when, the company, through a subsidiary, acquires the operation. Arthur is in St. Louis and could not be reached for a statement at his local office in the RCA Bldg.

Fox Is On Stand Again

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 21.—Questioning of William Fox and his bookkeeper, Herbert Leitsteen, continued today in the Fox bankruptcy hearing before Federal Referee Robert E. Steedle. Attorneys for the creditors continued their effort to trace various gifts made by Fox. The hearing will resume tomorrow.

208 Installations

Erpi has installed the new Western Electric Mirrophonic sound equipment in a total of 208 theatres in various parts of the country since the introduction of the new type, the company reports.

Eureka Seeks Censor Test

A suit to test the New York censor law was filed in Federal Court yesterday by Eureka Prod., Inc., against Governor Lehman, Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., and others.

Eureka asks that the statute insofar as it tends to or actually interferes with the exhibition of films in New York State which have been imported, inspected by the Treasury Dept. and approved by the Government be declared null and void. The complaint states that the section of the state law as far as it concerns imported pictures is against Article 1, Section 8, of the Constitution.

The complaint also asks that the defendants be restrained from interfering with the showing of "Ecstacy" during trial of the action and permanently thereafter.

Patent Ruling Awaited

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—A decision of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals is being awaited in an infringement suit brought by Bank Night against Parlay Cash Night. The latter admitted using a plan similar to that employed by Bank Night, basing its arguments on the allegation that Bank Night was not patentable.

The case was brought several months ago by George S. Ryan, representing Roy Heffener of Affiliated Enterprises, and was thrown out of court previously on the grounds that both schemes were lottery violations. Bank Night has since been adjudged legal by the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court.

Rule Screeno Illegal

DES MOINES, Oct. 21.—Screeno has been ruled an illegal lottery under Iowa law by the attorney general's office. The opinion by Walter Maley, first assistant attorney general, said the plan contained the three elements of chance, consideration and prize which constitutes a lottery under Iowa law.

Fuller Bond Not Filed

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 21.—To date George Fuller of Florida, who brought suit in U. S. District Court here, alleging discrimination on the part of seven major companies, has not yet filed a bond for costs with the clerk of the court. It is expected that the case will be heard some time in November.

Para. Re-Signs Reed

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—J. Theodore Reed has been given a new directorial contract by Paramount. His next will be "Betting Fever."

ITOA Starts New Protest On Exclusives

to Allied of the District of Columbia, Allied of Illinois, Independent Exhibitors of New England, Allied of Michigan, Allied of New Jersey, United M. P. T. O. of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern N. J. and Delaware, Allied of New York, Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors' Ass'n, and one or two others.

As general sales manager for United Artists several years ago, Al Lichtman inaugurated exclusive runs with several spots in the midwest playing U. A. pictures on that basis. Harry C. Arthur, who operated four theatres in New England, extended the policy to that area and in addition to U. A. had M-G-M shorts as well as features bought on that basis. Numerous protests were launched against the plan and within a short time it was discontinued.

The plan, at that time, was to show a given picture at only one theatre in a zone at a 40-cent minimum admission. Second and subsequent runs were not to get the pictures. Complaints followed that theatres would be forced to close due to a dearth of available product.

Whether the latest complaints are against this policy or a modified version could not be learned.

Nov. 4 for Michigan Allied

DETROIT, Oct. 21.—Nathan Yamins, president; Abram F. Myers, general counsel, and W. A. Steffes of National Allied will be the leading speakers at the state convention of Allied of Michigan, to be held at the Hotel Statler here Nov. 4 and 5.

Mayor Frank Couzens of Detroit will welcome the delegates, as will Louis J. Flint for a citizens' committee. Fred Delodder, Michigan Allied president, will respond for the organization. Yamins will speak on the opening day, while Myers and Steffes will talk on Nov. 5. Officers will be elected on that day and the annual banquet will conclude the meeting in the evening. The board of directors will hold their annual meeting on Nov. 3, to be followed by an "election party" at the local Variety Club.

Chappell, Warners Drop Deal on Harms

Harms matter regarded as incidental. He will remain in New York for another month before returning to the other side. Jerome Kern, vice-president of Harms, arrived from Hollywood about two weeks ago to look in on the deal and complete arrangements for moving his home west. He will be in town for another two weeks.

Abe Frankle Married

DES MOINES, Oct. 21.—Abe Frankle, president and manager of Riverview Park Amusement Co., and owner of the Casino, was married to Mrs. Esther Smith of Des Moines in St. Joseph, Mo., on Oct. 9. They will be at home after Nov. 1.

Debentures of RKO Are Tied In with Notes

notes, therefore, the legal question is raised as to whether or not the debentures will have any secured position at all in the event the notes are paid off and no lew loan is made.

The RKO trustee does not contend that such would be the case and the petition before the court sets forth the view that the question need not even be decided at this time. Retirement of the notes is viewed as advisable, the petition states, because of the current favorable position of RKO with more than $6,000,000 of cash on hand, prospects of continued improved earnings and the appreciable savings on interest charges on the notes. If the notes are not retired as petitioned, they are subject to an agreement providing for payments of $25,000 monthly, plus interest, over a period of years until paid off.

Foreclosure a Possibility

A factor in favor of the debenture holders' position as secured creditors, even though the gold notes are paid off at this time, is the fact that RKO defaulted in its interest payments on the debentures in 1932 and that a foreclosure proceeding was brought by the debenture holders at that time, but was not pressed after RKO went into receivership early in 1933. The foreclosure action is still extant and probably could be invoked by debenture holders to preserve their secured position even after the gold notes were retired.

In spite of this, however, large RKO debenture holders view the trustee's move with forebodings and undoubtedly will either oppose the petition or ask that the asests securing the notes be turned over to a debenture holders' trustee, instead of to Irving Trust Co., if the notes are paid off. If the move did leave the debenture holders in an unsecured position, it would enable RKO to reorganize without having to provide for any secured creditor class. In this eventuality there would be no necessity for reorganized RKO to issue any interest bearing security or any stock issue which would be on a dividend basis. The new company would be relieved of meeting all fixed financial obligations of this nature for the immediate future, as all of its creditors would be of the unsecured class and their claims, whether debentures or otherwise, could be paid off with common stock.

Lasky to RKO Monday

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—Jesse L. Lasky will occupy his new quarters at RKO on Monday although his new contract is not actually signed as yet. He has been in daily conference with Sam Briskin in an effort to work out final details.

Gershwin-Astaire on Air

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21. — George Gershwin, who is working with Fred Astaire on a new picture at the Radio studio, will coach the U. C. L. A. glee club for an appearance on Astaire's next broadcast, Oct. 27.

Germans Are Disturbed by Cost of Films

has been the reduction in salaries of actors, reported in some cases to amount to more than 50 per cent. An agreement has been entered into between UFA and Tobis as to maximum salaries.

A plan is under consideration according to which principal actors, directors, supervisors, authors and others would receive salaries only at the level usually paid in theatres plus a percentage of the net profits.

According to the preliminary program, 220 features will be shown in Germany during the 1936-37 season.

It is by no means certain that this tentative schedule can be adhered to, particularly as regards the share given American films, as the censors in this respect have for months been postponing a definite decision.

Six large German companies, UFA, NDLS, Europa, Rota, Bavaria and Terra, are down for 133; other German companies, 55 and American companies, 32.

Stereoscopic films were shown recently for the first time at a meeting of theatre owners in Dresden.

In place of the red-green glasses formerly used for stereoscopic effects, colorless "Herotar" filter glasses developed by Zeiss-Ikon were used.

The process uses the principle of light polarization, two shots being made with light polarized in different planes. Each lens of the filter glasses supplied to the spectator admits the light of only a single plane.

Disadvantage of the system is the eyestrain resulting from long continued use of the filter glasses.

Expect First Trade Concessions Today

sive of Warners all report that their efforts to revise their policies are progressing satisfactorily and three of these are near enough to completion to warrant their being made public from day to day. It was learned that attorneys for several of the major companies opposed the forthcoming concessions vigorously on both legal and business grounds, and that delays in several of the announcements will result from this opposition. That they will be overcome ultimately, however, appears certain from the apparent determination of sales heads to make whatever concessions are possible in line with the trade practice program.

Rome Is Robbed of $50

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21.—J. Louis Rome, president of Associated Theatres here, was robbed of $50 last night by a negro who jumped on his car and forced him to drive to Druid Hill Park.

Musical Pacts Signed

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—M-G-M has signed to new extended term contracts Paul Lannin, musical director, and Val Burton and Will Jason, composers.

Looking 'Em Over

"Tugboat Princess"

(Columbia)

Strongly reminiscent of Marie Dressler's popular picture of some years ago, this is unpretentious, simple fare of the kind that the family, youngsters included, should enjoy. The old man, the little girl, the ancient and honorable tugboat, and the tough old skinflint rival of the captain, whose heart eventually melts to make the sun shine for all concerned, are the ingredients of which this film has been concocted. In a minor fashion they have proved their worth many times before.

Walter C. Kelly is excellent as the captain, and the child, Edith Fellows, is equally good as his unofficial ward. Valerie Hobson is adequate in a comparatively minor role, taking care of the incidental romance.

Kelly's business is almost non-existant, his former rival has grown wealthy, and when the child is hurt and hospitalization is required, Kelly is forced to go to him for money. His security is the tug, and he faces the loss of his boat, his only means of livelihood. The child is taken from him and placed in an institution; escapes only to find the tug gone. The job, in a heavy fog, results in the captain risking his life and boat to save a liner of his rival. Then the latter relents.

David Selman directed from a screenplay by Robert Watson.

the State Dep't at Washington or to the member nations of the Berne convention.

The four principal changes in the rules of the International Copyright Union, on which the industry's recommendation is conditioned, involve the right to change an author's work after it has been acquired; the elimination of copyrights on styles of acting; the elimination of copyrights on ideas, unless written records of them are in existence, and designation of the person or organization which has the legal right to bring suit for infringement as the author of the copyright.

Kilroe is chairman of the industry copyright committee and visited Europe last summer to study the advisability of the U. S. becoming a member of the Berne convention, in the light of the effect of such action upon the industry, which is the largest user of copyright material.

of the kind of material which is considered of genuine interest to readers. In a similar category is placed information from exhibitors relative to future and current attractions at the theatres.

Reports that Syracuse theatre managers were contemplating the withdrawal of all amusement advertising from newspapers there, which have instituted the ban, as a retaliatory measure, have proved unfounded. There is no intention on the part of executives of either Loew's or the Schine circuit in Syracuse to cut theatre advertising in local papers. Under the plan there all outside cooperative advertising must be paid for at the amusement rate, which virtually means the abandonment of the former practice of using full page cooperative ads.

Court Grants Delay on RKO Notes Payment

If "Ulterior Motive" Is Shown Will Act

The payment of $750,000 of RKO secured gold notes outstanding will be ordered forthwith at the time RKO's plan of reorganization is submitted to the Federal court here in the event the plan shows that any "ulterior motive" influenced the request which was granted yesterday for a postponement to Nov. 23 of the hearing on a petition to retire the gold notes, Federal Judge William Bondy stated.

The request for the postponement of the hearing was made by Hamilton C. Rickaby of Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, attorneys for Atlas Corp., which is directing the RKO reorganization. The delay was not opposed by Irving Trust Co., trustee of RKO, which presented the petition to pay off the RKO gold notes last August. The only opposition to the postponement was voiced by Joseph M. Cohen, attorney for an independent RKO stockholders' committee, who argued that the retirement of the notes would improve RKO's financial position and thereby benefit stockholders of the company.

Cohen raised the delicate point of whether payment of the outstanding

Kilroe's Copyright Report Wins Approval of MPPDA

The copyright committee of the M.P.P.D.A. at a meeting yesterday approved the formal report of its chairman, E. P. Kilroe of Twentieth Century-Fox, which recommends that the United States become a member of the Berne International Copyright Convention if four major changes in the convention's rules are made.

Copies of the report are to be filed with the State Dep't at Washington and sent to all nations that are members of the convention. The Berne Convention is now inactive but can be revived on six months' notice. A meeting of representatives of the signatory nations is to be held in Brussels at a future date for this purpose and, it is assumed, action on the recommended changes in the rules will be taken at that time.

Kilroe is preparing a definite report for the M.P.P.D.A. which will present more fully the industry's position on the United States becoming a member of the Berne Convention. The four major changes in the convention's rules desired by the industry are the right to change an author's work after it has been acquired, elimination of copyrights on styles of acting, elimination of copyrights on ideas unless written records of them are in existence, and designation of the person or organization which has the legal right to bring suit for infringement as the author of the copyright.

WPA and NBC Stage Units Are Planned

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Plans to put out "amateur hour" roadshows similar to those operated by Major Bowes are being worked out between the National Broadcasting Co. and WPA theatre project officials, it was learned here today. Hallie Flanagan is head of the theatre project.

WPA officials explain that the plan was broached by the NBC Artists' Bureau, with the suggestion that among the unemployed actors taken under the wing of the theatre project there should be considerable talent of the type required.

NBC, it was said, will bear all the expense of putting on the show, but it was not indicated whether the actors would be paid by the WPA or out of the money obtained from the theatres for the act.

All actors and actresses on WPA rolls will be eligible for auditions, amateurs as well as professionals.

At the present time, it was said,

"Stage Door" Only Routine; Has Some Laughs, Tiny Plot

The news is this morning that George S. Kaufman, that old sophisticate, still believes in fairy tales. It is far more important news than "Stage Door," his latest collaboration with Edna Ferber, which last night sent a slightly hysterical audience at the Music Box into real or imaginary snorts of delight and more handshaking than this reviewer, even at his magnanimous most, can account for.

It was not good Kaufman. Neither was it good Ferber. It was, however, the old Cinderella theme, cooked over the same fire, garnished with the usual truffles and served up with the same, old sauce. A very familiar dish and on scraping acquaintance, at least, with everyone's palate.

The scene of this unimportant foray into the theatre is the Foot-Lights Club where young hopefuls, on the search for histrionics and contracts,

SEC Charges Made Against Consolidated

Letter to Stockholders Called Misleading

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Charges that a letter sent out to stockholders by Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., announcing a special meeting of stockholders Oct. 9 to consider a proposed plan of recapitalization, was misleading in several respects were made public today by the Securities and Exchange Commission following refusal of officers of the company to meet with commission officials this week to discuss the situation.

The question whether certain statements in the letter might be misleading was raised following a preliminary study by the commission of a complaint by a stockholder.

A conference was held with company officials Oct. 8, as a result of which the stockholders' meeting was deferred until Oct. 23.

Further investigation confirmed the commission's original opinion that misleading statements had appeared in the letter, and it was suggested that the company recircularize its stockholders with supplemental information which would correct any wrong impression

Thalberg Option on 27,000 Loew Shares

The estate of the late Irving Thalberg has the privilege of exercising an option on approximately 27,000 shares of stock in Loew's, Inc., at $35 a share, according to a statement issued to the New York Post yesterday by J. Robert Rubin, Loew vice-president. The purchase of the stock, which is quoted on the current market at about $56 a share, would result in a profit of approximately $567,000 to the Thalberg estate.

The statement further points out that the Thalberg personal service contract under which he held another option to buy a second portion of 100,000 shares of the common at varying prices terminated with the death of the producer.

Drop Mansfield Shows

MANSFIELD, O., Oct. 22.—Warner's Madison has returned to straight films and has dropped a combination policy of pictures and occasional dates of legitimate stage attractions. Patronage at the initial stage show was such as to cause cancellation of the remaining attractions booked for the season.

Academy Credits on 109 Features Listed

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22.—The sixth quarterly issue of the Academy Technical Credits Bulletin has been distributed to all studio executives, technical department heads and members of the Academy Technicians' Branch.

The bulletin contains credits for 109 productions completed between July 1 and Sept. 30, 1936. It also contains individual credits for 427 technicians receiving credit for art direction, photography, film editing, special photographic effects and sound recording.

The breakdown on the 109 productions completed during the last quarter are: Columbia, 15; Cosmopolitan, two; First National, seven; Hal Roach, four; Hirliman, three; Major, one; M-G-M, 11; Paramount, 16; Pickford-Lasky, one; Reliance, one; Republic, eight; Radio, nine; Samuel Goldwyn, one; B. P. Schulberg, one; Twentieth Century-Fox, 13; Universal, 11; Warners, five.

This represents an increase of 28 features over the number produced during the second quarter and 17 over the number produced during the first quarter of the year.

A COSMOPOLITAN PRODUCTION FOR Warner Bros. THE 'ANTHONY ADVERSE' COMPANY

Short Subjects

"Ace Drummond"
(Universal)

From the newspaper cartoon syndicate feature of the same name comes this serial. And, following the regular treatment of this type of entertainment, the film has its full quota of tense situations, romance, juvenile interest, spectacular photography, thrills and the general sort of story which demands an outstanding character to come through heroically in many escapes and situations.

The plot centers around the difficulties experienced when a world-girdling airline is about ready to complete its last link across Mongolia. A certain unscrupulous character calling himself "The Dragon" has other ideas, however, and therein lies the story.

The characters all fit their parts. Playing the title role, John King is fittingly handsome, with that dramatic flare and courage. Jean Rogers is adequate as the female romantic interest. Noah Beery, Jr., has a good serio-comic role in which he gives a fine performance. Others in the cast include Guy Bates Post, Arthur Loft, Chester Gan, Jackie Morrow, Lon Chaney, Jr., and Robert Warwick. A theme song, "Give Me a Ship and a Song," is sung intermittently by King.

The screen play was developed from the newspaper feature by Wyndham Gittens, Norman S. Hall and Ray Trampe.

It is good entertainment for the younger element.

Production Code Seal No. 2,362. Running time, each chapter, 20 mins. "G."

"Whoops, I'm An Indian"
(Columbia)

The Three Stooges apply their antics against the background of a trading post saloon where they are discovered to be cheating the populace in a bunco game. Their trickery discovered, they flee, with the sheriff in pursuit. Out in the open spaces they indulge in horseplay while fishing and come upon a trapper's cabin. Disguising themselves with costumes they find in the dwelling, they venture back to town and meet the cabin's owner, a Frenchman, who gets a crush on Curly, disguised as a squaw. They marry and the chase commences and so winds up the film. The usual comedy of the trio is present. Entertaining, with plenty of laughs. Production Code Seal No. 2,297. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Symphony in Snow"
(Treasure Chest-Educational)

Well put together shots of the beauties of snow forms in Switzerland and some finely filmed scenes of mountain climbing. An informative spoken accompaniment is delivered by A. L. Alexander. Should fill out a program nicely. Production Code Seal No. 01,220. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Pink Lemonade"
(Educational)

That old standby which has children trying to get in to see a circus although they have no money is here again enacted. This variation features the Cabin Kids. When they are caught under canvas, Toto, the Clown, intervenes and following a reciprocal exchange of entertainment by the two, the children are allowed admission. It should please child audiences. Production Code Seal No. 01,202. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Krazi-Inventions"
(Treasure Chest-Educ'l)

Juliet Lowell, of Dumb-Bell Letters fame, delved into archives at the U. S. Patent office and uncovered a number of cerebral upheavals in the form of bizarre inventions for which patents were issued. Many of the details and operating models of the items are disclosed. The bits are done against a farce background where characters act out the business in pantomime. Such things as automatic hat tippers and a hair planter should arouse favorable reaction from audiences. Production Code Seal No. 01,247. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Amphitryon"
"The Gods at Play" (Globe Films)

From France has come another delightful comedy, with an unusual and amusing theme and done with a fine touch of subtle good humor which should make the picture hugely enjoyable to the discriminating type of intelligent audiences.

As the great god Jupiter comes down from the heights of mighty Olympus to taste of mortal pleasures in the ancient Grecian city of Thebes, the fun is smart and keen-edged. The story might well have been taken from something that the late Thorne Smith would have done, but with something less than Smith's Rabelaisian touch.

The settings have been done with an elaborate simplicity, in keeping with what the world knows of the forms of ancient Greece. The story is told in song and dialogue, the latter, as translated, studded with clever lines, the former tuneful, wholly appropriate to the theme and its execution.

Virtually perfect are the performances of Henri Garat as Amphitryon, the Theban general, and Jupiter; Armand Bernard, as a comic Mercury and an equally comic servant to the general; Jeanne Boitel as Amphitryon's wife; Odette Florelle as the servant's wife, and Marguerite Moreno, as Juno, Jupiter's statuesque better half.

Against Mercury's better judgment Jupiter decides to visit Thebes, there to court the fair wife of the general. He tells Juno he must seek a cure for his rheumatism in Sparta, transforms himself into Amphitryon, and Mercury into the servant, and before the real general can return from the war, makes his bid for mortal fun. Mistaken identity, the arrival of the real husbands, the effort to escape and the sudden coming of Juno to find her erring spouse merely add to the delight. It is cleared in the end, but it is a chastened Jupiter who ascends to his godly throne on Olympus.

Reinhold Schunzel and Albert Valentin directed and wrote the screenplay, Serge Veber the dialogue and songs, and Francois Doelle the music. L'Alliance Cinematographique Europeenne of Paris produced.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 102 minutes. "A."

Indian Educational Film Gets Showing

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 22.—Record business was clocked at the Tosa in Wauwatosa, Milwaukee suburb, for the premiere of "Mishawkwut," educational film sponsored by the Wauwatosa Board of Education and produced entirely as a WPA project.

Admission to a student premiere at 6:30 P.M. was 25 cents, while the admission to the later opening at 8:30 P.M. was 50 cents. A public address system in front of the Tosa broadcast interviews with noted educators and personages including Mrs. Philip F. LaFollette.

Depicting the ceremonies, feasts and burial rites of Wisconsin's Menominee tribes, the picture was filmed against the scenic background of the Wisconsin Dells. Elliot Cooley and Norman Franz, WPA artists who have four other successful educational films to their credit, wrote, directed, produced and filmed the picture, while costumes were designed by Alberta Johnson, instructor in stage craft at the Wauwatosa High School.

Court Grants Delay on RKO Notes Payment

notes would not leave RKO debenture holders in the position of unsecured creditors in the reorganization, and intimated that the adjournment of the hearing was desired by the large debenture holders in order to present the plan of reorganization before the question of the security behind the debentures was determined.

It was at this point that Judge Bondy declared that if any "ulterior motive" for the delay appears in the reorganization plan he would order the notes paid immediately, and added by way of reassurance that "then we will be where we would if the payment was ordered now."

Rickaby said that the desire to complete and present an RKO reorganization plan within the next two weeks was the reason for the request that yesterday's hearing be delayed.

"The cake is about 90 per cent baked," he said, referring to the present status of the reorganization plan. "I hope it will be appetizing even to those who would oppose the postponement of this hearing."

Rockefeller Center Claim Vital

Indications are that completion of the plan hinges primarily upon the length of time required to reach an agreement with Rockefeller Center on the treatment which its $9,100,000 claim will receive under the plan when the amount in which the claim will be allowed has been determined. Federal Judge William Bondy's decision on the allowance of the claim is expected in the near future, but is certain to be appealed by one side or the other.

Answering Cohen's statement that retirement of the notes would leave debenture holders in an unsecured position, Rickaby said that "if the question is raised it must be met. We would contend that paying the notes does not release the security and would carry that theory on appeal as far as we could."

In reply to a direct question by Judge Bondy, Rickaby said that the reorganization plan does not attempt to capitalize on the questioned security behind the debentures in the event of retirement of the gold notes.

Permission to Examine Refused

"If the plan attempts to give any class of creditors an unfair advantage, the court will not stand for it," Judge Bondy remarked.

Rickaby refused Cohen permission to examine the reorganization plan in its present form.

The retirement of the RKO gold notes, the last $750,000 of which are held by the Bank of America National Ass'n, is sought by the RKO trustee as an interest saving measure, and believed advisable at the present time because of RKO's improved financial position as evidenced by cash on hand of more than $6,000,000. However, RKO debentures have a second lien on the company's assets securing the notes and, if the notes are retired, the assets may revert to the trustee. In this way the question of whether the debentures would be secured in this eventuality is raised.

"Stage Door" Only Routine; Has Some Laughs, Tiny Plot

fritter their lives away as they seek out the breaks. If there is any moral in it, that moral might be for young women to stay clear of the Roaring Forties and their theatrical lure.

However, there is little reason to believe Kaufman and Miss Ferber wrote this for the moral tale it might convey. They poke at Hollywood with lusty digs, yet they have written a routine potboiler no doubt looking toward its purchase by that very Hollywood they take for a ride. It seems fitting to point out here and now that the picture colony can and does do much better.

At any rate, this all has to do with Margaret Sullavan, young stalwart who passes up a coast offer and eventually is reduced to the blouse department at Macy's rather than abandon her ambition for stage acclaim. Eventually and in the approved fashion she gets it. That's where Cinderella and the fairy tales merge.

Onslow Stevens Featured

In between, her boy friend, who starts out as a left winger and who has a play on which she aided accepted, walks out when success comes his way. He is the instance of the playwright going Hollywood and liking it. Onslow Stevens is the instance of the playwright, now in pictures, who goes out to Hollywood and likes that. The affinity in interest with Miss Sullavan leads finally to love and, presumably, marriage.

The play is interlarded occasionally with lines of the bright and witty school of which Kaufman is a member and some amusing pieces of business. But the story it has to tell is stretched out painfully and thin with large patches of daylight shining through.

"Stage Door" would make a motion picture. Nothing exciting, mind you, but a motion picture. The boys in Hollywood, however, can do as well. For the big money which will be sought for the rights there is too little to buy.

Loew's recently inaugurated the idea with Loew's Moviegoer. The new magazine will have advertising, the same as the Loew publication.

SEC Charges Made Against Consolidated

that might have been formed by the original material.

"The company manifested considerable reluctance to do this," it was explained, "and the commission thereupon advised the company that an opportunity would be afforded to the company's representatives to appear before the commission on Oct. 20 or 21, at the company's convenience.

"On Oct. 21 the commission was advised by the company that the latter did not desire to appear before the commission and was unwilling to send any additional communication to stockholders of the company prior to the meeting on Oct. 23, the company taking the position that the president's letter contained a full, frank and detailed explanation of what it proposed and why and precisely how it was to be accomplished and the result of it to each holder of preferred or common shares. Under these circumstances, it has appeared to the commission that, pursuant to Section 21A of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934, it is appropriate for the commission, in the public interest and in the interest of all stockholders of the company, to publish information which is available to the commission bearing upon the adequacy of certain statements contained in the president's letter of Sept. 4, 1936."

Share Value Comparisons Made

The commission charges that the letter does not explain that although the redemption price and liquidating value of the new preference stock to be issued is $25 per share, plus accrued dividends, the corresponding redemption price and liquidating value of the old preferred stock was $35 per share, plus accrued dividends, so that the stockholders will not get stock to a greater value, even without taking into account the amount of accumulated dividends on the old preferred.

It also charges that while the letter stated the company has not been able to pay the full quarterly dividend on outstanding preferred since April 1, 1932, its net earnings in each year from the beginning of 1932 to the end of 1935 have been in excess of such dividend requirements and that at the close of last year the company had an earned surplus of nearly $3,000,000.

The commission alleged that in other respects, also, the company's letter was misleading to stockholders.

Seeks To Halt Meeting

A motion will be heard in N. Y. Supreme Court this morning on an application for an injunction to restrain the officers and directors of Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., from holding a special meeting this afternoon, when a vote is scheduled to be taken on Consolidated's plan of recapitalization.

The plan includes the reclassification of preferred stock amounting to $2,000,000. The motion was filed by Norman Johnson, a stockholder, as part of his action to prevent the carrying through of the recapitalization plan. Johnson claims the holders of preferred stock will be deprived of their voting rights and that the value of the preferred stock will be reduced from $2 to $1.25 per share if the plan is approved.

H. J. Yates, Sr., and other officials of Consolidated could not be reached last night for comment on the Washington and local court developments. However, a spokesman for Yates said that there had been no postponement of the adjourned meeting of stockholders which is scheduled to vote on the recapitalization plan today.

WPA and NBC Stage Units Are Planned

plans are being formulated for the development of one unit. If that is successful, additional units may be formed and sent out. So far as could be learned, the whole scheme will be confined to stage shows and no radio broadcasting "hour" is planned.

Deafness Subject of Broadcast

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22.—Weekly Tuesday afternoon broadcasts on deafness are being sent out over WSMB and an NBC hookup by Sonotone Corp. The programs feature the radio personality "Cheerio," have music and talks warning that reliable doctors should be consulted for the ears.

Buhler Discusses Songs

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22.—Louis E. Buhler has made some interesting observations since March 25, 1936, on the song hits of the week. He has deduced some informative data for song hit fans which discloses that "Would You" was played for 16 consecutive weeks and shares the top honors with "In a Little Gypsy Tea Room," "Red Sails in the Sunset" and "Alone." "It's a Sin to Tell a Lie" was on the program for 15 consecutive weeks.

Fourteen-week hits were: "Lost," "Is It True What They Say About Dixie?", "The Glory of Love" and "Melody from the Sky."

"Did I Remember?" remained in first place for six consecutive weeks and is still going strong. "Is It True What They Say About Dixie?" took top honors for four consecutive weeks. "Goody Goody," entered on March 4, was in first place for five consecutive weeks. In one week it sold 100,000 copies of sheet music and was played 51 times on New York radio stations alone in the same week.

"Broadcast" $14,800 Top, Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 22.—"The Big Broadcast of 1937" made the big noise among first runs in a fair week, taking $14,800 at the Mainstreet in eight days, $5,800 over average. It was moved to the Newman for a second week.

Rain hurt Thursday and Friday openings, but President Roosevelt's appearance downtown for about an hour Tuesday brought tremendous crowds into the area, a part of which theatres got for the night show.

"Wives Never Know" and "Two Against the World" lasted only six days at the Fox Uptown, where the pair grossed $3,000, off by $500. The other first run double, "Craig's Wife" and "Adventure in Manhattan," also made a poor showing, going $3,500 under the Midland's $11,500 line.

Total first run business was $41,700. Average is $37,500.

Estimated takings:

Week Ending Oct. 13:

"WIVES NEVER KNOW" (Para.)
"TWO AGAINST THE WORLD" (W. B.)
UPTOWN—(2,000), 25c-40c, 6 days. Gross: $3,000. (Average, 6 days, $3,500)

"Scotland" $3,000 Leader at Lincoln

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 22.—"Mary of Scotland" got away in the clear to a $3,000 take, the best; it was $800 above average. This was helped by a heavy ad campaign.

"Give Me Your Heart" went sour from the start at the Stuart getting less than average with a $3,000. The Orpheum with a dual, "Women are Trouble" and "Ambassador Bill" and a girl show barely nosed over the line to $2,200, which was $450 up.

Total first run business was $10,450. Average is $9,000.

Estimated takings:

Week Ending Oct. 14:

"ACES AND EIGHTS" (Puritan)
"HI, NELLIE" (W. B.)

"Broadcast," "Dodsworth" Boston Hits

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—Two hits struck town simultaneously — "The Big Broadcast of 1937" and "Dodsworth." Business on each was sensational.

"Broadcast" went $17,000 over normal for a total of $39,000 at the Metropolitan, helped by Dave Apollon on the stage. "Dodsworth," playing day and date on a dual with "Sworn Enemy," at Loew's Orpheum and Loew's State, took $16,500, up by $4,500, at the former, and $15,500, up by $4,500, at the latter.

"My Man Godfrey" ended its second week at the Memorial with $12,000, par for the house.

The other Keith house, the RKO Boston, playing "36 Hours to Kill" and the stage show "Cuban Follies," grossed $18,000 on the week.

Total first run business was $120,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 15:

"Broadcast" Takes Lead in New Haven

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 22.—Musicals were out front last week. "The Big Broadcast of 1937" led at $8,600 in the Paramount. This was $3,800 over par.

"Sing, Baby Sing" ran second at $5,000 in the College, over average by $2,200. Both were held over.

The Poli, with "Ramona" and "Star for a Night" just made the $7,000 par, while "Cain and Mabel" and Bengal Tiger" at the Roger Sherman missed the $4,700 mark by $300.

Total first run business was $25,000. Average is 19,300

Take Appeal on Tax Increase in Holland

By PHILIP DE SCHAAP

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 14.—The proposal to increase admission taxes in Haarlem under local ordinance to 25 per cent has been held in abeyance pending an appeal directed by the theatre owners and employes to the Government. The Dutch M. P. Federation had advised the owners to close their theatres in protest if the tax increase is enacted.

It lies within the power of the Government, however, to invalidate, or prevent the enactment of such a law. Meanwhile, and until a reply is received from the Government, the Federation has ordered that the houses remain open.

The situation in Haarlem is being watched with interest by the entire industry in Holland, since an important precedent will be set, no matter what the outcome may be.

The devaluation of the Dutch guilder has placed American offices here in a position similar to that obtaining when the American dollar was devaluated three years ago. Before Dutch devaluation, the dollar was quoted at 1.50 florins, while now it is set at 1.80 florins, reducing dollar profits by about 20 per cent.

The move is expected eventually to result in an increase in admission prices, based on an expected rise in film rentals, general exploitation costs and like factors.

Briskin Has Seven Ready

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22.—S. J. Briskin will have seven negatives ready to ship east during the early part of November. This will be a new record for Radio. The pictures are "Make Way for a Lady," "The Smartest Girl in Town," "Wanted: Jane Tuner," "The Riddle of the Dangling Pearl," "Night Waitress," "All Scarlet," and "The Plough and the Stars."

Re-Sign Burns and Allen

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22.—Paramount has signed George Burns and Gracie Allen to a new two-year contract to become effective in December when their present agreement expires. They are now working in "College Holiday." Their next assignment is not set.

M-G-M Picks New Title

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22.—"Sinner Take All" has been chosen by M-G-M as the final title for the film formerly called "Murder for a Wanton."

Trade Board In Australia Sets New Era

By CLIFF HOLT

SYDNEY, Sept. 22 (Via Air Mail). —The ratification of the newly formed Film Board of Trade by both exhibitors and distributors is seen as opening a new era in the industry in Australia. Authorized by law, the board will act as mediator in attempting to settle all exhibitor-distributor problems, and is expected to eliminate the repeated instances of Governmental—and political—intervention in the affairs of the industry.

The only disturbing element which has developed is the belated applications of certain British interests and allied trades to gain representation. Although no real objection exists to granting the applications, the impression is that any additional members will make the board unwieldy and hamper its activities.

At present there are nine members, one independent chairman, four representatives of the exhibitors and four of the distributors. Developed for the purpose of handling distributor-exhibitor problems, the board will consider matters relative only to theatre license control, standard film contract, rejection, free gifts, minimum admissions, program footage and censorship.

Those not now represented are chiefly disturbed over the "drag-net" clause, which empowers the board, additionally, to define the exhibitor and distributor attitude on any matter of policy, provided it has the sanction of the two assocations, as well as Hoyts and Greater Union Theatres.

Walter J. Hutchinson, head of Twentieth Century-Fox foreign activities, opened the Twentieth Century-Fox and Gaumont-British Dominions sales convention. He will be here for a short time before continuing his world trip.

"Uncivilized," produced by Expeditionary Films, leading domestic producer, has been banned in its present form from export, although exhibition in Australia has been approved. Two scenes are apparently the basis of the ruling. An appeal is to be taken.

Attendance Increase Predicted for Cuba

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Attendance at theatres in Havana during 1936 is expected to show an increase over last year, according to a report from Assistant Commercial Attache C. H. Ducote to the U. S. Dept. of Commerce.

The same increase is expected also to obtain in the interior centers.

Theatre receipts had declined considerably during the warm months, as is usual during that period of the year, but September set an upward trend which is expected to continue for the rest of the year.

Distributors on American films base their expectations of a better total attendance this year on bookings and the comments of exhibitors.

The American Projection Society marks another milestone in its path of glorious achievements by honoring its foremost member

F. H. RICHARDSON

(Technical Editor of Motion Picture Herald) with a

Testimonial Banquet

to be held at the

PENNSYLVANIA HOTEL

At 12 Midnight

Saturday, October 24th, 1936

F. H. RICHARDSON is to Projection what Thomas A. Edison was to Science; C. Francis Jenkins to Television, and S. L. Rothafel to Theatrical Genius, and is, as were these distinguished gentlemen, an Honorary Member of our Society.

He, through his indomitable will and his everlasting quest for "Perfection in Projection," is responsible, more than than any other single factor, for the vast improvement in projection today over what it was when he entered the field, more than three decades ago.

To most of us, the name "Richardson" is identified with our earliest memories of the technical aspects of projection. What can be more fitting and proper than a show of some degree of the esteem in which he is held, by, not only us of the projection fraternity, but by the entire industry, of which he is so important a part.

This, then, will be truly an occasion, so often commented upon, and so seldom brought to realization, when we shall be presenting the bouquets while the recipient is still capable of enjoying the fragrance.

That you will be assured of an utterly enjoyable evening can be attested by the spontaneous cooperation extended by personages from every walk of life in the Motion Picture Industry. . . . W. W. Byrne, President, American Projection Society

"Libeled" Is Philadelphia Wow, $21,000

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—"Libeled Lady" and "Big Broadcast of 1937" kept the movie ledger out of the red last week, the former with a magnificent $21,000 at the Fox and the latter with a strong $17,000 at the Stanley. Both were held a second week.

"Dodsworth" ended strongly at the Aldine with $12,000 for its last nine days. It was yanked while still playing to good business and it looks like a cleanup in the second runs.

The rest of the town was below average. Unseasonably warm weather slowed up trade, while political and football interests took their slice of business.

Total first run business was $88,800. Average is $84,110.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 15:

"DODSWORTH" (U.A.)
ALDINE—(1,300), 40c-55c-65c, 9 days, 3rd week. Gross: $12,000. (Average, 7 days, $8,160)

"Wives" and Show $22,003, Buffalo

BUFFALO, Oct. 22.—"Wives Never Know" topped the list last week. Showing at the Buffalo with a Major Bowes' amateur unit, it drew $22,003, breaking average by $10,003.

"Swing Time" at the Great Lakes for its second week continued to draw heavily with a total of $9,800, or $2,500 above par.

"Romeo and Juliet," at the Erlanger at roadshow prices, had a top notch second week. It drew $10,800 in an $8,000 house.

Total first run business was $48,403. Average is $38,400.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 17:

"WIVES NEVER KNOW" (Para.)
BUFFALO—(3,000), 30c-50c, 7 days. Stage: Major Bowes Amateurs. Gross: $22,003. (Average, $12,000)

It's Genius

Manchester, England, Oct. 22—A little girl, aged 12, had a hankering to go to the films, but no money. It was a simple problem, easily solved.

She found a five-year-old in the park, undressed her, pawned the clothes for 18 cents, and the film industry gained by that much.

The youngster was placed on probation in Juvenile Court.

Letters Urge Passes For Blind Children

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Oct. 22.—Letters are being sent to the managers of 169 theatres located near all the schools for the blind in the United States suggesting that they do as Wesley and R. R. Booth, who own the Paramount and Booth here, have done in allowing pupils at the Nebraska School for the Blind to attend at least one show a week free.

Co-operating with the Booths in seeking extension of their plan is Regina Molseed, secretary of the Omaha Film Board of Trade.

The Booths have found that both the near-blind and totally blind pupils at the school enjoy films. Some are able to distinguish the action by sitting in close, but others have to follow it by the dialogue.

One child, both blind and deaf, "sees" and "hears" the pictures with the help of two instructors. One instructor sits on each side holding the child's wrists. Through a code of finger pressure one instructor describes the action; on the other wrist the second instructor transmits the dialogue.

Orchestra Leaders Ruled Contractors

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Exhibitors contracting with individuals to furnish music, paying a weekly check in a lump sum to the orchestra leader for the services rendered by him and his orchestra, are not employers of either the orchestra leader or his musicians under a ruling with respect to hotels made public today by the Internal Revenue Bureau under the Social Security Act.

In the case before the bureau, the hotel company contracted for the services of a 10-man orchestra which received its pay from the leader, who had the right to hire, control and discharge the players, and he received from the hotel a weekly check in a lump sum.

Under the circumstances, stated the bureau, the leader is an independent contractor. The orchestra leader may be held as an employer if he hires more than eight men.

Urge New Film Grouping

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The film committee of the Public Morality Council plans to send a deputation to the Home Office urging the adoption of a new method of censoring films in "categories." Instead of the present "A" (adults only) class, to which children are admitted if accompanied by adults, it is suggested there should be a category of films from which children would be absolutely excluded.

Metropolis Club. The quota must be filled by Dec. 1, it was said. The screen, the legitimate theatre and music publishers are included in the division. Another meeting will be held Nov. 10.

David Bernstein of Loew's and Major Albert Warner were named co-chairmen of the division. The various sections of the division will be represented as follows: Loew's, Al Lichtman, Leopold Friedman; Warners, Sam E. Morris; Columbia, Jack Cohn, Abe Schneider; RKO, Jules Levy, Phil Reisman; Twentieth Century-Fox, Joseph Moskowitz; Grand National, Edward L. Alperson; Universal, Nate Manheim; Paramount, Barney Balaban; United Artists, Paul Lazarus; B. I. P. , Budd Rogers; G. B., A. P. Waxman; Republic, Jack Milstein, Herman Glucksman; independent exhibitors, Harry Brandt, Leo Brecher; theatres, Alex Yokel; trailers, Herman Robbins; burlesque, Max Rudnick; laboratories, Jack Goetz, Allan Friedman; artists, Louis K. Sidney, Ben Bernie, Phil Baker; music publishers, Louis Bernstein, Jack Bregman, Edwin H. Morris; exhibitors, Louis Frisch, Sam Rinsler; trade papers, Jack Alicoate, Red Kann.

"Sissy" at $35,000 First Capitol Week

"The Devil Is a Sissy" wound up its first week at the Capitol last night with a nice $35,000. The picture will be replaced Friday by "Libeled Lady," which, according to advance indications, may possibly run three to four weeks.

The Music Hall ended a second week of "Gay Desperado" at $68,000, slightly under expectations. "My Man Godfrey" and "15 Maiden Lane" at the Palace took in around $8,000, while the Rialto garnered approximately $7,000 on "The Longest Night."

our people to attend only wholesome, decent and worthy pictures."

Parents are urged not to permit children to attend theatres until they have satisfied themselves regarding the types of pictures, and editors of the church publications are asked to form a film estimating agency for the publication of classifications.

"Community selection of pictures" also is asked. This is aimed at block booking.

Fox Quiz Is Pressed

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 22.—The questioning of William Fox and his bookkeeper, Herbert Leitsteen, continued here today before Federal Referee Robert E. Steedle, in the Fox bankruptcy hearing, with creditors' lawyers taking pages from All-Continent records and questioning Fox concerning them. Several pages were placed in evidence over the strenuous objections of Murry C. Becker, Fox attorney, who was overruled. The hearing is scheduled to be resumed next Tuesday.

Bidding Is Extended In Skouras Action

court will hear the trustee's report of today's sale.

Apparently the sale resulted in the buying in of the property by Thomas N. Dysart, acting for the bondholders' protective committee of Central Properties Corp., with a bid of six per cent on the general claims of $4,637,317, plus $12,762.90 for preferred claims and the balance needed to pay the administration expenses of the bankruptcy, estimated at $35,000. The trustee has $9,605 on hand.

Dysart's bid was equivalent to $317,995 in cash. Harry Koplar, exhibitor, was the only other bidder at the sale. The principal assets of the Skouras company are 52 per cent of the St. Louis Amusement Co. stock and the West End Lyric Theatre property. Greene's attorney said his bid would be at least equal to, and probably higher than that submitted by Dysart today. The latter will have another opportunity to bid on Monday. Greene said he wanted time to examine the assets and financial statements to guide his bid.

Exhibitors Oppose Phila. Billposters

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—Members of the United M.P.T.O. today refused to accede to demands of the Billposters' Union on distribution of window cards. Action was taken at a special meeting.

Lewen Pizor and George P. Aarons were named as a committee to go into the legal aspects of the case.

Exhibitors protested that not in 20 years have they been approached by union labor on window card distribution and they fear that surrender might now lead to further demands covering distribution of programs and other services. The billposters want $10 per day for the work.

Court Overrules Attempt To Prevent Meeting

Consolidated Film Industries' plan of recapitalization was approved at an adjourned special meeting of stockholders yesterday, after the N. Y. Supreme Court refused an application for an injunction to prevent the holding of the meeting.

Voted in favor of the plan were 238,639 shares of preferred stock and 331,475 shares of common. Opposing the plan were 5,615 shares of preferred and 1,491 shares of common. There are 400,000 shares of preferred and 524,973 shares of common outstanding. Represented by proxy at the meeting were 240,443 shares of preferred and 330,295 shares of common, and, in person, 8,073 shares of preferred and 3,164 shares of common.

The legal attempt to prevent the holding of the meeting through a temporary injunction was brought by

Academy's Officers Are All Reelected

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 23.—All the present officers of the Academy were reelected by acclamation here last night at a joint meeting of the board of governors and the executive committee, acting as an electoral body. The officers are: Frank Capra, president; Howard Estabrook, first vice-president; Nathan Levinson, second vice-president; Jane Murfin, secretary; Fred Leahy, treasurer; Donald Gledhill, executive secretary.

A committee of five was appointed to investigate all phases of the Academy awards policy and report its findings back to the board of governors. No specific instructions were given to the committee, which includes Waldemar Young, David O. Selznick, DeWitt Jennings, Frank Lloyd and Van Nest Polglase, and represents all branches of the Academy.

Sales Policy Revisions of Two Majors Ready Early Next Week

Sales policy revisions embracing trade practices sought by the M.P.T.O.A. were reported to have been completed by two major distributors yesterday and definitive announcements are being drawn for release on Monday or Tuesday. Indications are that similar announcements from five of the six remaining major distributors will be made prior to Nov. 1.

The concessions being made will be applicable to all contracts not yet closed, according to report.

Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, is expected here on Tuesday. The concessions of the various companies will be detailed and analyzed in a bulletin to be issued to M.P.T.O.A. members.

Dividend Not Wise, G. B. Report States

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 23.—No dividend decision at present is prudent, states the latest Gaumont British report, until "after a careful survey of the production activities of the corporation, and pending recovery from America of a proportion of the higher cost of films produced for that market."

Regarding G. B. distribution, the report states that a substantial fall in profits is due to this higher cost.

Drama of Theme Overrides Drama in Kingsley's Play

Nobody conscious of the difficulties of this belabored world will argue with the anti-war, down-with-the-munitions-makers subject matter of Sidney Kingsley's latest play, "Ten Million Ghosts." Some, and perhaps many, however, might disagree with that playsmith, how he approached his powerful theme and the disposition he made of it. This first-nighter is one.

For the show which went on display at the St. James Theatre last night before a large and, no doubt, expectant audience full of high hats and furs, is a disappointment. Laudable, certainly, in its purpose; serious in its treatment and effective in its physical reproduction, somehow or other it never quite comes off.

Kingsley, in last night's event, was more than the author. He was also the producer. He went on a spree in his vital opening set, full of gun lathes, whirring machinery, deafening

More Delays On Roxy Plan Are Indicated

Seligson Protests Move To Get RFC Funds

Indicating a new series of delays before a plan of reorganization is unanimously agreed upon by bondholders for presentation to the court, Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey yesterday granted the Roxy Theatre Protective Committee the right to intervene in negotiations under way by the Roxy Theatre bondholders' committee. At the same time, the court continued the date for hearing until Nov. 13.

Claiming to represent $352,000 in first mortgage bonds, Harold P. Seligson, attorney for the protective group, told the court he had been working with the bondholders' committee for some time and that his "committee is not in favor of the proposals made."

"The proposals have very radical faults," he said, "and the protective committee hopes to find someone who will come along with a better plan.

"The difference is a fundamental one," he added, "and we believe no reorganization plan should go through unless the need to replace the first mortgage bonds by new bonds can be obviated."

Seligson referred to the bondholders'

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Here Comes Carter"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 23.—Ross Alexander as the racy, fast-talking Hollywood press agent, turned radio commentator specializing in production scandal-mongering, imparts to this otherwise ordinary yarn its active character.

Despite the fact that in the conclusion Alexander is at great pains to tell his radio audience that Hollywood is for the most part an upright, straightforward community, with only a few upstarts and fakirs, the impression apt to be created in the minds of the audience concerning underlying incidents of double-dealing is anything but a happy one for the business of the screen.

Alexander, fired for his revelation of the truth about an actor's marital affairs, takes over a radio commentator's program and begins to broadcast "inside stuff" to the distress of his sweetheart, Anne Nagel, and the delight of his new secretary, Glenda Farrell. Particular object of his biting is the actor who caused him to be fired.

He is warned by gangsters, slugged by them, and by playing on the stupidity of one of them, learns enough to reveal the actor as in league with the gangsters and uncover the leader as the killer in a bank robbery. All's well that ends well, apparently, as he promises his radio audience to reform and launches into a closing eulogy of Hollywood and its inhabitants.

William Clemens directed from a story by M. Jacoby.

Production Code Seal No. 2,358. Running time, 58 minutes. "G."

"General Spanky"

(Roach-M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 23.—With the kids of Our Gang featured, this is juvenile entertainment of the whoop-and-holler variety. The show is a burlesqued Civil War comedy melodrama with an appealing vein of human interest that makes heroes of the youngsters in all but the romantic angle, meanwhile ribbing the grownups.

The gist of the plot has Spanky and Billie Thomas, the little negro, getting in the hair of Irving Pichel, the villain and a river boat card sharp. When war breaks out the pair really go to work. They sympathize with the South because of their friendship with Phillips Holmes. Spanky's bobtail army makes hash of Captain Pichel's dream of appearing as a great military strategist of the North.

In the course of events Pichel captures Holmes, who is taking an oath in Spanky's army. Accused as a spy, he is saved from death when the youngsters appeal to Ralph Morgan, the Northern general. Pichel is stripped of his command and disgraced when Morgan paroles Holmes to Rosina Lawrence. Holmes then joins the little general's army.

Spanky, Carl Switzer and Billie Thomas account for most of the fun. Pichel does a smart job of acting, making himself an effective foil for the youngsters. The show, however, should not be mistaken for anything other than a juvenile attraction containing all the elements that induce kid laughter. That's the sole purpose of the story by Richard Flourney, Hal Yates and John Guedel. Fred Newmeyer and Gordon Douglas directed cooperatively and handled the antics of the kids in a manner that will enthuse child audiences. Production details have been utilized to accentuate and emphasize the hokum idea.

Production Code Seal No. 2,480. Running time, 73 minutes. "G."

"Smartest Girl in Town"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 23.—This is a flip, fast comedy that scores in the rapid pace and smart production that Radio has set for light comedies and should prove extremely useful on a double bill program.

Ann Sothern plays a commercial model struggling to be hard-boiled and snag wealthy Erik Rhodes into marriage. She mistakes Gene Raymond, a millionaire, for a male model and he, having been taken for plenty of payoffs by practical dames in the past, allows the misunderstanding to continue to test her love.

It is not new, but it is funny in the development of the bright dialogue by Viola Brothers Shore, especially when Eric Blore, a valet, masquerades as president of an advertising company. Helen Broderick, as Miss Sothern's suspicious sister, draws a full share of laughs as usual and the whole show moves with firecracker speed under the direction of Joseph Santley and the production by Edward Kaufman. Plug the favorite cast and the comedy.

committee plan to obtain RFC funds which would be given preference over the first mortgage bonds. He said the theatre is earning on an average of $10,000 a week and that his group was in favor of getting new money which would not come ahead of the outstanding bonds. He asserted the men on his committee are trying to get someone to underwrite a plan along these lines.

"The members of our committee are not stuffed shirts or figureheads," he advised the court. "They represent bonds which they own. Most of the bonds had been deposited with the original S. W. Strauss committee, while "the Pounds committee does not have the real bread and butter interest in working out a plan. They do not represent real bondholders.

Israels Supports Plan

Judge Caffey intervened at this point and said "most of the committees mean nothing. It is the lawyers who really do the work. It is all up to them."

Carlos Israels of White & Case, representing Roxy Theatre bondholders' committee, welcomed any effort to have the reorganization plan underwritten. He said he would be the first to go for it.

Before the motion to intervene came up, Israels asked for a three-week extension on the ground that negotiations for a lobby lease for 10 and a half years after 1937 were underway and that the rental will have an important bearing on any analysis of a plan his committee would present. This indicates that the Twentieth Century-Fox proposal is not for 15 years, but for three and a half years less.

Seligson, Israels Differ

After the session, Seligson told MOTION PICTURE DAILY he believed a reorganization plan can be underwritten as suggested to the court, while Israels differed on that point. Seligson would not comment when asked if a deal was being negotiated.

At the hearing were Irving Cohen of the Paramount legal staff and a representative for Fox Theatres, which owns the common stock. Both Cohen and Israels denied Paramount had any proposal of reorganization. The Fox Theatres' attorney was refused a draft of the tentative plan by Israels, who said he hoped to have one ready for distribution in three weeks.

Following the meeting, Israels and Seligson conferred privately at the latter's office. On the Roxy Theatre Protective Committee are: Chester H. Tipton, president of C. H. Tipton Securities Corp., chairman; George A. Rogers of George A. Rogers & Co., Inc., and Carol O. Johnson, secretary.

Consolidated's Recapitalizing Plan Approved

Norman Johnson, a stockholder, and denied by Justice Bernard L. Shientag, whose ruling also applies to any possible future request for a restrainer against another meeting of the shareholders in connection with the recapitalization plan. Efforts were also made at the meeting itself by stockholders to keep the plan from a vote by motions made to adjourn the meeting shortly after it had been opened by H. J. Yates, Sr., Consolidated president, but which failed to carry.

The possibility of further legal action against the plan was voiced after the meeting by Ivan R. Lashins, a stockholder.

The letter of the Securities and Exchange Commission made public Thursday in Washington, which held that information concerning the recapitalization plan which had been given to the company's stockholders might be construed as misleading, created but little comment within the meeting. It was referred to by Yates in a statement to the stockholders in which he stated that the company believed it was acting in the best interests of the shareholders and in an entirely legal manner and would not substitute its judgment for that of an outside agency in the absence of legal advice to do so. In reply to a stockholder's question, Yates said that he was advised that the S. E. C.'s attitude would not jeopardize the registration of the new stock issues called for under the plan.

Proceedings Tranquil

Discussion of the plan preceding the vote was lengthy but completely devoid of pyrotechnics.

The plan provides for the issuance to preferred stockholders of one and one-quarter shares of new preferred and one-quarter share of new common and a $1 cash dividend in exchange for each share of old preferred together with accumulated dividends in excess of the $1, amounting at this time to $4 per share. Common stockholders receive two-thirds of a share of new common for the old. The new preferred carries a fixed cumulative dividend of $1, instead of the former $2, and takes one-half of all dividends declared in addition to the $1. The common takes the other half. Directors are to meet at once to authorize the initial $1 dividend.

Drama of Theme Overrides Drama in Kingsley's Play

noises and little drama. To bridge the time necessary for prop shifting—three times in the first, three times in the second and four in the last—he filled the entire stage opening with slides of newspaper headlines, charts and graphs illustrating the war dead, the profits from ammunition, anti-aircraft guns and, in the second act, he further merged film and stage technique by running off a battlefield film on the stage.

Deliberately, it is the assumption, he sublimated characters to theme. With a subject so powerful and so closely interlocked with this daily existence, probably this was the correct course to follow. However, the lack of essentially personalized drama made itself woefully apparent and, by its failure to appear, further emphasized the lecture-like atmosphere which prevailed all through the performance.

Background Dominant

The chief difficulty last night was not any paucity of dramatic content. But the drama was not Kingsley's. It was something deep and inherent in the subject which he, from time to time, sharpened by his stage direction and far too infrequently by his dialogue. For "Ten Million Ghosts" is like turning back the pages of your daily newspaper and reading and digesting the highlights of its headlines. Those headlines engulfed and made Kingsley and the characters he drew puny and ineffective against the overwhelming force of the facts they conveyed.

And Hollywood, what? This is propaganda with social force overtones and that would make "Ten Million Ghosts" a dubious enterprise before the cameras. It might better be left alone, for Hollywood, a commercial institution, has to pull punches too often to give a theme such as this the impact terrific which must be its to be significant.

Author, Author!

Bob Goldstein yesterday told the story of a friend of his who caught "Stage Door" when it played out-of-town. Between Acts 1 and 2 there stalked in a man who sat himself down in an adjoining vacant seat and began to rustle newspapers.

"Say, do you mind keeping quiet? This play is bad enough as it stands," remarked a playgoer to the late comer.

A few minutes later the lights blinked on. The tardy arrival was George S. Kaufman, co-author with Edna Ferber.

Goldstein also reports a change in routine. "Instead of calling 'curtain going up,' they're calling 'building going up,' over at "Iron Men."

Much of the action takes place on the steel skeleton work of a giant skyscraper, 63 stories off the street.

F.C.C. Concludes Its Broadcast Hearing taken for some weeks, probably not until after the first of the year.

Nearly three weeks were devoted by the commission to the hearing of broadcasters and radio engineers on such questions as super-power, limitation of time of operation, and reallocation of stations to remove some of the interference now experienced by listeners.

Following the close of the hearings, members of the commission indicated that they would pursue a cautious policy in ordering reallocations, so as to disturb listeners' habits as little as possible and minimize the danger to existing program contracts. In all probability, it was intimated, there will be no general reallocation, such as caused great confusion in 1928, but stations will be shifted to new frequencies, where necessary, one or two at a time.

In dealing with the question of power increases and removal of limitations on operating time, the commission will be able to move more quickly.

Rathner Closes a Deal

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—Harry Rathner, general sales representative for Burroughs-Rice Prod., has closed a deal with Specialty Films, Inc., of which Harry Asher is president. Roy E. Heffner and George A. Ryan are understood to be associated with Asher in the new company.

Weekly Gross Of 20th-Fox $1,150,000

Is 40% Above June and Gain Over Year Ago

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Twentieth Century-Fox's gross from film sales and rentals amounts to approximately $1,150,000 weekly at the present time, an increase of 40 per cent over June and well ahead of the corresponding 1935 period, Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board, told the Pacific Coast edition of The Wall Street Journal this weekend. Schenck estimated that the company would show a net profit of $7,500,000, after all charges and taxes, for the year ending Dec. 26.

Schenck's earnings estimate compares with a net of $3,090,135 for the corresponding 12 months of the preceding year, which included about six months' operations prior to the merger of Twentieth Century with Fox Film Corp. He stated that increased operating efficiency at the studio since

Canada Copyright Problem Up Today

Efforts to work out an agreement with distribution companies to avoid confusion in the future licensing of Canadian theatres for the use of copyrighted music as a result of the new music rate restrictions in the Dominion will be made at a meeting between E. C. Mills of Ascap and Leslie Boosey of the British Performing Rights Society with the M.P.P.D.A. law committee today.

One of the proposals favored by Ascap involves the direct payment of the Canadian music tax by distributors in this country, a procedure which would avoid the Canadian regulations. Distributors, however, are opposed to this on the ground that it would

Union Cinema To Expand to 300 Theatres

Plans Consolidation of Subsidiary Units

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Details of the ambitious plans for a merger-extension by Union Cinema Circuit, already published briefly in MOTION PICTURE DAILY, were made public today. A total of 300 houses is anticipated in the near future.

There will be a consolidation of the Union Cinema Co., Ltd., and its subsidiaries, Oxford and Berkshire Cinemas and National Provincial Cinemas, in a new £6,000,000 company, which will make a public issue of £3,000,000 and also exchange shares on a large scale with shares of existing undertakings.

Union's issued capital is £314,891 in 200,000 seven per cent cumulative participating preference and 114,891 ordinary shares. Oxford and Berkshire capital is £350,000, split into 150,000

London Press Hits G. B. Report Again

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The press here yesterday leveled criticism at the Gaumont financial report, which was issued last week, hitting the increase in the bank debt, and noting the uncertainty attaching to whether the £200,000 which was placed in a special reserve will be used to write off production losses.

The Mail cited the absence of detailed accounts of G.B. Distributors. The Financial Times also hit at the Film Programs Get Broadcast Time in K.C.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 25.—Each week an hour and 15 minutes of gossip about Hollywood stars and films reaches Kansas City audiences over the radio, and there will be more shortly.

On Oct. 20, WLBF Kansas City, Kan., began its unsponsored quarter-hour of comment on film personalities every Tuesday and Thursday at 2:15 P. M.

W9XBY, which has had several picture commentators in the past, will go back on the air next week with a program of this type.

WHB has 15 minutes of Tommy Maxwell and "His Flashes from the Films" on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 11 A. M., sponsored by a downtown department store beauty salon. In its second month, the chatter about film people comes largely

Radio News

Taking cognizance of the increasing community of interest between radio and motion pictures, Motion Picture Daily will launch a daily department of radio news in an early issue.

The policies which will govern this department will be identical with the general policies under which Motion Picture Daily functions. Strictly from a trade point of view and as developments impinge on motion pictures, the news of radio will be predicated on fact, not rumor or gossip. The department will be attuned faithfully to the objective of constructive and dependable news information.

Its department will be conducted by Jack Banner, for four years eastern editor of Radio Guide and well known to the radio industry in New York and elsewhere.

Nazis Switch Film's Origin To Get Dates

Call "Amphitryon," Made In Berlin, French

By CHARLES S. AARONSON

Facts which are cloaked with evidences of a deliberate attempt to circumvent the obstacles to general distribution in this country of any foreign language films which were produced in Germany or financed by German money, since the inception of the Nazi regime in that country, came to light over the weekend.

The specific instance of such practice lies in the booking at the 55th St. Playhouse here of the picture "Amphitryon," sub-titled "The Gods at Play," purported to be, and advertised as a French film, produced in France.

Careful and detailed investigation of the film's source, conducted by MOTION PICTURE DAILY, has disclosed that the film is not of French, but of German origin, that previous attempts to obtain release of the picture under its original production auspices met with failure and that its current exhibition is accompanied by a careful avoidance of reference to its German

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

CURIOUS is the way it goes. The facts: Distributors have committed themselves to most of the trade practice concessions sought by the M. P. T. O. A.; so much is definite. The question: Why do they delay the official word on what they are prepared to give? The answer, perhaps, and not too unlikely: Evasion or stubbornness. Yet the longer they dally, the closer they shear themselves of strategy and the closer they bring fall, winter and spring trips to Washington and interminable hours on the witness stand before Congressional committees, fighting off new attempts to regulate the industry by legislation. Maybe the boys like journeys to Washington and the Chesapeake Bay oysters at Harvey's. . . .

Anti-industry forces, maybe because they have nothing better to do which means nothing since they do it anyway, are preparing further onslaughts. Not only will Congress get a barrage of restrictive measures, but also state legislatures. The day following election the successful candidates will be known and the campaign to win them begun. The impression is afloat that the antis will find matters easier if the industry, on and by its own, has displayed no evidences of intention to tidy up by its own hands. A second impression, which is reasonable although it may yet be wrong, is that the thunder of the opposition will reduce to a sigh if the business can produce a concrete and constructive program of saner trade practice regulations by the time stump speaking is ready to start its 1937 season. . . .

If your memory is sprightly, it may recall that, in the spirited fight put up by the organized industry against the Neely-Pettengill bill last year, not one, but several, ranking executives assured Congressional committees before which they appeared that the business could and would regulate itself. When they go into their return date this winter, as they will, they will be asked about the measure of their performance, a good, old question which distributors talk about every day in their routine affairs. The more direct the reply, the better the chances. Aside from all this, which is obvious stuff anyway, somebody ought to ask why they don't stop fooling. All right, then, we are asking. . . .

The big town operators, a pretty good check demonstrates, deported themselves well in handling "Dodsworth" in which Mary Astor, who likes diaries, appears. If you must have it, this goes for New Orleans, Houston, Providence, Columbus, Cincinnati and Dayton, which is by way of picking out only a few. The unsavory opportunist tactics adopted by a number of shooting gallery experts on several in Miss Astor's Columbia series swung just as sharply in the other direction. Presumably—and we say presumably because the past and its record have a way about them—they will remain true to type when "Dodsworth" gets their way. You should regret that, but you also should not feel too unhappy about it. For the preponderance of evidence in this particular and trouble-laden situation makes it clear that the responsible industry knows what makes up the standards of good taste and is quickly willing to observe them. If you think that little enough, let us remind it was not always so. . . .

Legion of Decency Condemns 'Carnival'

The National Legion of Decency, in its list for the current week condemned "Carnival in Flanders," French production, which previously had been approved. The Legion listing said: "On second review, we find this picture definitely objectionable because of subtle indecent dialogue and incidents. Its entire tone is unwholesome and in addition most of it is boring."

Of the six new films reviewed, three were classed as unobjectionable for general patronage, one as unobjectionable for adults, one as objectionable in part, and the one condemned. The new films and their classification follow:

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage—"Hopalong Cassidy's Return," "Pigskin Parade," "Rose Bowl." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults—"April Blossoms." Class B, Objectionable in Part—"Love Letters of a Star." Condemned—"Carnival in Flanders."

M-G-M Installs Own New Haven Checkers

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 25.—M-G-M is installing its own checkers at the local exchange, the third to go for the plan. The other two are New York and Boston.

William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of M-G-M, told MOTION PICTURE DAILY recently that there is no special significance attached to the employment of checkers. He said: "We have certain ideas we want to try out and since we cannot ask Federal Ross Checking Service to do it, we are putting in our own men in certain spots.

"We may be wrong in our ideas," he added, "but we want to see and convince ourselves. After we complete the experiment, we might replace Federal checkers, but for the time being we have no such thought in mind."

Rites for Julius Schwartz

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25.—Members of the Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors' Ass'n. attended in a body funeral services for Julius Schwartz, local exhibitor, who died suddenly on Wednesday. Schwartz, a life member of the association, came here from New York about 15 years ago. His widow and two-year-old son survive.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Alice Faye is in the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital with influenza.

Sunday Cases Spread In Virginia Courts

RICHMOND, Oct. 25.—Court fights in behalf of Sunday shows continue in several communities.

A case against Harry A. Wesserman is pending before Judge James R. Duncan in the Alexandria Police and Civil Court.

S. H. Nothington, manager of the Bluebird, and H. Rubin, owner of the Century, at Petersburg, appealed fines imposed in Police Court, and juries failed to agree when their trials were held in Hustings Court.

'Brigade' Press Book Out

A 64-page press book on "The Charge of the Light Brigade," which includes novel ideas in advertising, publicity and exploitation, has been completed by Warners' advertising department and is being distributed to exhibitors. In addition to the 64 pages of material a six-page advertising section is inserted. Material of special interest to students is included, as well as contests, puzzles, biographical feature strips of the picture's stars, five national tie-ups, radio campaign stunts and other material of general interest.

"Waltz" Jubilee Film

"Champagne Waltz" will be released simultaneously in all the capitals of the world, according to plans arranged by Neil F. Agnew and John Hicks, Jr. The release will be part of celebration honoring Adolph Zukor's 25th year with Paramount. The Silver Jubilee will begin Jan. 7 and the film will be released some time during the same month.

Cohn Suit Up Today

Hearing is scheduled today in N. Y. Supreme Court on a plagiarism suit filed by Sigbert Cohn against Paramount, Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur on "The Scoundrel." The plaintiff seeks to enjoin further distribution of the picture in addition to asking for all the profits, alleging a play of his was plagiarized in the making of the film

Bruckner to Do Original

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—B. P. Shulberg has signed Ferdinand Bruckner, playwright, to write an original screen play for Sylvia Sidney, the picture to go into production early in January. He has also signed Marcus Goodrich to write an original. The addition of the two makes seven writers now on the Schulberg staff. The others are David Boehn, John Bright, Robert Tasker, Joseph Anthony and William Saroyan.

Shifts Opening Day

BOSTON, Oct. 25.—The Scollay Square will change its opening day to Thursday instead of Friday this week to show "Anthony Adverse" which has just ended its second week's run at the Paramount and Fenway. The Scollay Square will open at 9:30 A. M. to take care of the expected additional attendance.

resents would probably form a protective committee and that another was being considered by Edward Gould, an attorney. Gould could not be reached for a statement on Saturday. Lashins declared that a possible procedure of his group might involve action for liquidating damages under the contract represented by the stock certificates.

"Under this procedure," Lashins said, "we would ask for the liquidation of our preferred stock at its book value of $35 per share, plus the accumulated dividend of $5. This compares with the $28 value placed on the new preferred to be issued under the plans."

The Consolidated board is scheduled to meet today or tomorrow to act on the initial dividend of $1 authorized for the preferred upon approval of the recapitalization plan. The dissenting stockholders were unsuccessful in obtaining either a court restrainer against the holding of the meeting last Friday or a two weeks adjournment of the meeting after it was called to order for a vote on the plan.

Warner Plane Stops Set for 24 Cities

Warners has set the schedule for its air tour as an exploitation stunt for "Gold Diggers of 1937." The plane, with Busby Berkeley and a collection of girls, will leave Hollywood Nov. 15 in an American Airlines ship, and will stop in 24 cities.

In the party will be Jeanne Madden, Fred Lawrence, Rosalind Marquis, Rose Tyrell and others.

The scheduled stops are: El Paso, Nov. 15; Fort Worth, Nov. 16; followed by stops at Dallas, Memphis, St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Washington, Philadelphia, Boston and New York, with arrival here scheduled for Nov. 27. On Nov. 30 the party will leave for Albany, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, Columbus, Cincinnati, Louisville, Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Made German Phone Television — Baird

LONDON, Oct. 17.—J. L. Baird declared at the annual meeting of Baird Television, Ltd., that the company, through its German subsidiary, had supplied telephone television equipment to the German Post Office and could provide the same equipment in this country.

The first Baird set for home reception, he said, would provide a picture 12 by nine inches, and would retail at £89:5. Sales would be in the hands of Bush Radio, a Gaumont British subsidiary. Baird also promised an early demonstration of television on the film theatre screen.

Donat in Korda Pact

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Robert Donat, recovered from asthma, will start work in "Knight Without Armour," the Marlene Dietrich London Films special, immediately. Donat has signed to make three further pictures for Alexander Korda, at a reported salary of £30,000 per film.

British Publicist Attacks Quota Idea

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Guest speaker at a luncheon club get-together, Sir Charles Higham, the famous British publicist, launched an outspoken attack on the quota principle. If in any other industry, he said, buyers were told they must take a percentage of goods whether they liked them or not and whether they were good or bad, they would be up in arms. He suggested exhibitors should "collect a little backbone" and ask whether they were in a racket or in a legitimate business.

Sir Charles, who received uproarious applause for these remarks and also for his reference to the "Aunt Maries" of British production who had to have a say before a picture could be filmed, advocated a national publicity campaign for films on "Drink More Milk" lines.

May Urge Exhibitor Quota

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The Film Group of the Federation of British Industries is said to be considering, for submission to the Moyne Films Act Committee, a proposal that the British film quota shall be abolished as respects distributors, leaving the exhibitors' quota unchanged.

Production Nearing Peak at U. A. Studios

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Production at United Artists will reach its peak within the next three months with seven features scheduled for release by February 1, according to George J. Schaefer, vice-president in charge of distribution.

Chief among the films scheduled for early release are: Goldwyn's "Come and Get It," Selznick International's "Garden of Allah" in Technicolor, Alexander Korda's "Rembrandt," Goldwyn's "Beloved Enemy," Walter Wanger's "You Only Can Live Once" and Selznick International's "A Star Is Born," also in Technicolor.

Planning "Personal History"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—With "History Is Made at Night" about to go before the cameras, Walter Wanger is concentrating on preparations for production of Vincent Sheean's "Personal History," a story of a press correspondent's experiences.

Briskin Will Soon Have 10 on Stages

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Sam Briskin will have 10 in work at Radio before Nov. 15. With the films already shooting, this will be near a production peak.

Now shooting are: "Coast Patrol," "They Wanted to Marry," "Quality Street," "Criminal Lawyer" and the untitled Lily Pons film.

Productions which start within the next three weeks are: "We The Jury," "Michael Strogoff," "Miss Customs Agent," "Convention in Cuba," "Rubber Barons," "Wings of Mercy" and "Easy Going."

"Sissy" a $16,000 Draw, Providence

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 25.—Bringing in a neat $16,000 to Loew's State, "The Devil Is a Sissy" was far and away the best bet of the week. The gross was $4,000 over average.

The only other house to equal par was the Majestic, which caught an even $7,000 with "Give Me Your Heart" and "Yellowstone."

"East Meets West" and "Sitting on the Moon," at the Strand, were $300 under the usual $6,500 and the RKO Albee yanked "Follow Your Heart" and "Don't Turn 'Em Loose" after six days with the take around $3,000, which is $4,000 sub-par. Fay's, with "Missing Girls" and a revue, was $1,000 down from the average, $7,000.

The weather was fallish and cloudy most of the week. Opposition now has settled down to the usual football games and club socials.

Total first run business was $38,200. Average is $39,500.

Milwaukee Grosses Go Into Bad Slump

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 25.—"Ladies in Love" and "Back to Nature," grossing $6,500 at Fox's Wisconsin, took high money in a rather sickly week. This was $1,500 below par.

All other business was off due to the combined Food and Radio Show in the Auditorium which attracted approximately 125,000 people for six days. Two vaudeville shows and numerous daily prizes were offered in connection with this attraction.

The weather for the most part was fair and cool.

Total first run business was $19,900. Average is $24,500.

"Brute" and Lewis Indianapolis Hits

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 25.—Ted Lewis and his band on the stage with "The Magnificent Brute" on the screen did the business here last week, bringing the Lyric $13,700, which was $6,700 to the good. Lewis is a perennial favorite at the house and the management had to turn customers away Saturday and Sunday nights.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" went $1,000 into the black at the Apollo for a gross of $5,000. It was roadshowed at B. F. Keith's here last winter. Federal Players, closing for the week in preparation for an elaborate presentation of "It Can't Happen Here," probably helped "A Midsummed Night's Dream."

General Motors' Parade of Progress showed during most of the week at the edge of the downtown area. It draw sightseers by the thousands and sliced something from first run business.

Total first run business was $26,900. Average is $21,000.

"Cain, Mabel" Gets $16,500 In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 25.—Despite a succession of rainy days and some stiff competition, the Stanley led the field with "Cain and Mabel," bringing in close to $16,500, while "The Magnificent Brute," although it got off to a slow start, built steadily and came through with a first rate $6,800.

Only the Penn was a disappointment. "The Devil Is a Sissy" began excellently on opening day when the annual teachers' institute emptied the schools, and the weekend generally was fine, but it dropped after that to around $10,000, just fair. The Fulton came down the home stretch in great fashion with "My Man Godfrey," getting slightly better than $5,000 on the seventh and final week, while "Three Married Men" and "Isle of Fury" eased off the Warner, unable to better an ordinary $4,100.

Total first run grosses were $42,400. Average is $37,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 22:

"MAGNIFICENT BRUTE" (Univ.)
ALVIN—(2,000), 25c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $6,800. (Average, $5,500)

"Ladies" and Show $17,500 In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 25.—"Ladies in Love" on the screen and Paul Ash directing the stage show at the Ambassador proved the best draw of the week with a take of $17,500, topping the house average by $8,500.

Return of stage acts and high quality orchestral music has aided business of the Ambassador. From week to week its gross business has been growing.

At the St. Louis "My Man Godfrey" and a stage show was headed by Ross & Stone. The take was $7,500, compared with a house average of $7,000.

"Piccadilly Jim" and "Sworn Enemy," the double bill at Loew's, was the chief competitor of the Ambassador with $13,400 for the week, or $3,400 above average.

"The Texas Rangers" and "Wives Never Know" at the Fox were slightly under average with $13,500. The Missouri had an excellent week with "Hollywood Boulevard" and "My American Wife." The bill grossed $10,300 for the seven days, beating average by $1,300.

The first run houses and the neighborhoods and second runs as well got a great break when President Roosevelt delivered his address here in the morning instead of at night. Some 100,000 persons crowded into the vicinity of the Municipal Auditorium to hear the country's chief executive.

Total first run business was $67,400. Average is $55,000.

To Rename Repertory

When the Civic Repertory is reopened on Jan. 1 by the Brandt Bros., it will be known as the Peter Stuyvesant, William Brandt said yesterday. The theatre site at one time was the home of the first governor of New York. It is now being remodeled for picture purposes.

"Broadcast" Minneapolis $15,000 Hit

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 25.—"The Big Broadcast of 1937" which grossed $5,000 more than the average $10,000 at the Minnesota topped first runs for the week in the Twin Cities. The feature was moved to the State.

"Ramona," the only other show to better par, brought in $500 over a normal $5,500 at the Paramount. Otherwise it was a laggard week with snow flurries and colder weather combatting heavy grosses.

Total first run business in Minneapolis was $28,500. Average is $25,500. Total first run business in St. Paul was $13,500. Average is $14,500.

"Libeled Lady" Dual Best New Haven Bet

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 25.—"Libeled Lady" and "15 Maiden Lane" were far in the lead at the Poli, with a $10,000 take, $3,000 over par. The holdover of "Sing, Baby, Sing" at the College was slightly over the $2,800 average, at $3,000.

The Paramount took $4,300 on the holdover of "The Big Broadcast of 1937," which is $500 under the line.

A rainy Saturday helped the weekend business. The Arena Food Show, a packed Kreisler concert, and excellent Shubert houses on legitimate shows, competed for the business.

Total first run business was $21,500. Average is $19,300.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 23:

"SING, BABY, SING" (20th-Fox)
"BLACKMAILER" (Col.)
COLLEGE—(1,499), 35c-50c, 7 days, 2nd week. Gross: $3,000. (Average, $2,800)
"THE BIG BROADCAST OF 1937" (Para.)
PARAMOUNT—(2,348), 35c-50c, 7 days, 2nd week. Gross: $4,300. (Average, $4,800)
"LIBELED LADY" (M-G-M)
"15 MAIDEN LANE" (20th-Fox)
POLI—(3,040), 35c-50c, 7 days. Gross: $10,000. (Average, $7,000)
"A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM" (W.B.)
"THE GIRL ON THE FRONT PAGE" (Univ.)
ROGER SHERMAN—(2,200), 35c-50c, 7 days. Gross: $4,200. (Average, $4,700)

Nazis Switch Film's Origin To Get Dates

origin in either advertising or credit frames on the screen.

The film was reviewed by MOTION PICTURE DAILY last Friday following a preview at the theatre on Thursday. A credit sheet handed to reviewers stated specifically that the film was produced by L'Alliance Cinematographique Europeenne in Paris. The screen stated distribution in this country is being handled by Globe Pictures Corp.

Martin J. Lewis, managing director of the 55th St. Playhouse, of which Herman G. Weinberg is listed as publicity director, and who holds a like post with Metropolis Pictures Corp., declared that to the best of his knowledge the film was produced by L'Alliance Cinematographique Europeenne, which he believed to be a wholly-owned French company, having no connection whatever with any German company, or any German financing.

Lewis Mislead

In support of his contention of the exclusively French origin of the picture, Lewis showed the writer a letter, signed by Dave Brill of Globe Pictures of 630 9th Ave., in which Lewis was "assured" that the film was entirely French both "artistically and economically."

However, on Saturday Lewis announced that the opening of the picture had been postponed, but not cancelled, "until I have proved my case." Meanwhile he is continuing the current attraction at the theatre. The postponement followed the declaration by the Joint Boycott Council of the American Jewish Congress and the Jewish Labor Committee that the house would be picketed beginning Saturday morning.

Further investigation here disclosed that A.C.E. is not a wholly-owned French company, and an advertisement of A.C.E. in La Cinematographie Francaise, French trade paper, in the issue of Sept. 26, 1936, noted the release of a new picture, "La Neuvieme Symphonie," which was described in the advertisement as "a production of UFA," leading German producing company.

Paris Substantiates

A.C.E.'s connection with UFA was further substantiated on receipt of the answer to a cabled inquiry addressed to Pierre Autre, representative in Paris of MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

The answer read as follows:

ALLIANCE CINEMATOGRAPHIQUE EUROPEENNE IS THE FRENCH DISTRIBUTING COMPANY FOR GERMAN UFA FILMS STOP PRACTICALLY A SUBSIDIARY OF UFA WITH W. SCHMIDT AS MANAGER OF ALL FRENCH BRANCHES STOP EXCHANGES IN PARIS, BRUSSELS, ALL MAIN FRENCH TOWNS AND NORTH AFRICA STOP MAIN GERMAN UFA PICTURES GENERALLY PRODUCED IN BERLIN STUDIOS IN BOTH FRENCH AND GERMAN SPEAKING VERSIONS STOP SO HAS BEEN "AMPHITRYON," STARRING HENRI GARAT, MADE IN BERLIN, FRENCH TITLE, "LES DIEUX S'AMUSENT" ("THE GODS AMUSE THEMSELVES").

The cabled reply not only established the connection of A.C.E. with UFA of Germany, but at the same time proved that the film, "Amphitryon" is the same as that otherwise titled in France.

The inquiry here led to another informant, who declared that he was at the UFA studio at Neu Babelsberg, near Berlin, in 1934 while the film was being made there, and that he had occupied quarters adjacent to those of Garat, French player who is starred.

The next step led to Dr. Robert Marcus, secretary of the Joint Boycott Council.

Dr. Marcus indicated that the matter has been taken up with the French consulate in New York.

In Dr. Marcus' office the writer examined a copy of La Cinematographie Francaise for Aug. 10, 1935, in which a page advertisement was carried on the film under its French title. The film was designated in that advertisement as "Une production G. Stapenhorst de la UFA," which translates as: "A G. Stapenhorst production of UFA."

Dr. Marcus further declared that A.C.E. is actually a French distributing arm of UFA in Germany, and that it produces four or five pictures a year in France "as a cover." He said that the film had been offered to several American distributors of foreign product by UFA last year, and that the American firms refused to take the film. Dr. Marcus declared he understood that Brill is acting for "a Mr. Rosner" of Hollywood, who purchased the American distribution rights to the picture after the failure of UFA to obtain distribution for it here.

The film, said Dr. Marcus, has been advertised in the French newspapers in New York as entirely a French film, and produced a copy of such an advertisement.

Questioned concerning the gentlemen's agreement which has been entered into among the operators of the Cameo, Filmarte and Cinema de Paris, which specialize in foreign films, not to exhibit German-made or German-financed films, Lewis said he had not been approached, but that he "would be glad to enter such an agreement." It was indicated, however, from one of those included in the understanding, that Lewis had been aware of the verbal agreement.

Morvay Quits Theatre Unit In Budapest

By ENDRE HEVESI

BUDAPEST, Oct. 14.—Paul Morvay managing vice-president of the Hungarian Exhibitors' Union, whose election a year ago was hailed as a great triumph for the cause of the small, independent exhibitors, has resigned. Morvay, owner of a third run house, at the time of his election was considered the spearhead of the neighborhood theatre fight against the domination of the Gero circuit, largest in the country.

The board of the Union had sympathized with Gero prior to the election of Morvay, and when he assumed office it was anticipated by the independents that he would act in their interests entirely.

A few months ago the small exhibitors determined to form a cooperative booking society in order to obtain product at a lower price. The plan, however, was dropped because of lack of funds to finance it. Then Gero announced he would be willing to supply the necessary money, but on the condition that he decide, with the assistance of a committee, which films the members of such a cooperative group could book.

Morvay supported the proposal, but the majority of the exhibitors protested vigorously, declaring such an arrangement would give Gero even greater power than he now has. The result was a bitter attack against Morvay. Offended, Morvay resigned, and the cooperative buying plan was finally dropped.

A Hungarian film, "200 Pengoes Salary," was the outstanding picture of September at the box-office. It ran simultaneously in three first run houses, grossed very well and started its second week equally well. Among the American films, "Prisoner of Shark Island," at the Radius did average business; "The Last of the Pagans" was weak; "A Night at the Opera" did exceptionally good business, with six weeks first run at the Metro and six more as a second run; "Wife vs. Secretary" went over average in four weeks at the Forum; "Whom the Gods Destroy" and "Tale of Two Cities" were fair, and "Little Lord Fauntleroy" was weak.

Henry St. Blancat, French producer, has started production work at the Filmiroda studio on "En Derive" in French and Hungarian versions. It will be the first French film made here in four years, and the trade is hopeful of attracting other French production capital.

Unitas Distributing Co., owned by Gero and handling U.A. product, has made much in their comparatively sparse advertising on Charlie Chaplin's "Modern Times" of the fact that it will be shown without any cuts by the censor board. Rumors had been current that the censor activity would ruin virtually the entertainment value of the film, which happened in Vienna, causing the picture to slip at the box-office.

Uruguay Production Likely; Montevideo Ponders Studio

By PAUL BODO

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Oct. 14.—(Via Air Mail)—A budding production industry for this country looms in the visit here of Jorge Mendez Delfino, owner of a large studio in Buenos Aires, and Amador Feliu, technical manager, to study local conditions with a view to building a studio and laboratories, completely equipped, here.

Local authorities have gone more than half way to meet Delfino's proposal in the matter of franchises, since his would be the first production studio in the country. It is claimed that weather conditions here are superior to those in Argentina, resembling the climate of southern California, and production costs are expected to be lower than in other production centers.

Teatro Albeniz, former legitimate house, has been transformed into a second run film house, operated independently. The lease on the house has been bought by the Glucksman circuit, which plans to replace the theatre with a modern house to be called Radio City, to seat 1,000, and using American equipment. The house is only a block away from the new Cine Metro.

Juan V. Porta and Francisco Hermann, representatives for Republic have opened a new office here. They are handicapped by the fact that all circuits virtually have completed their release schedules. The two also are agents for Screeno, and plan to introduce the box-office stimulant into local houses.

Interest Is High In Fanck Japanese Film

By TETSUYA MORI

TOKYO, Oct. 4.—Industry interest here is focused on the film, "Die Neue Erde," in production by Dr. Arnold Fanck, the first feature made in this country which is designed primarily for export. N. Kawakita, head of the Towa Shoji Co., will take the completed film to Europe to negotiate western distribution.

It is understood that approximately 500,000 yen will have been spent on the picture before it is finished, an unusually high negative cost in this country.

Reports are current here linking Fanck with Joseph von Sternberg, here on a visit, who spent some time with Fanck. It is believed that the two may have in mind the production of another picture in Japan designed for the foreign market, but perhaps largely dependent on the reception accorded the first film.

It has been pointed out that the cost of production in Japan is considerably lower than in the United Sttates or the leading European countries.

Exclusive of special showings, "It Happened One Night" has played in 396 theatres and halls since its release in Japan, and the figure is expected to reach 450 by the end of the year. The original prints have become so worn that new ones have been imported. The film is booked for all the remaining weeks of the year.

Plan No Increases In Holland Prices

By PHILIP DE SCHAAP

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 14.—The Dutch M. P. Federation has specifically stated that there will be no increase in admission prices in Holland as a result of the devaluation of the guilder, as had been expected.

It is not expected that the Dutch theatre owners will be forced to pay higher film rentals in view of the financial revision. In any case, the Federation has declared that it is impossible for theatre operators to pay any higher rentals. It is equally difficult, the organization has insisted, for the theatres to charge the patron a higher price, pointing out that similar efforts met with failure in Belgium and England, when currencies in those countries were devalued.

It is also apparent that distributors in foreign countries where the currency has depreciated will receive less for their pictures than in the past, since the Dutch theatre owners cannot pay more in guilders.

Loet C. Barnstijn, producer, and distributor here for United Artists, Columbia and the Disney cartoons, has added a short subject department to his studio at Wassenaar, near the Hague, as public interest in short subjects mounts steadily. Barnstijn has purchased all the equipment of the N. V. Omnium Film Corp., which formerly specialized in shorts.

Portable Unit Will Show Spanish Films

DENVER, Oct. 25.—Spanish films will be shown in towns in Colorado, New Mexico and Wyoming beginning Nov. 1 by a portable cicuit which has been organized by Ramon Ponce, Spanish comedian. He will present two shows each night, covering 24 towns in these three states.

Besides Denver, Ponce will operate in Fort Collins, Walsenburg, Fort Lupton, Alamosa and San Luis, all in Colorado; Las Vegas, Sante Fe, Costillia, Cuesta, Taos, Santo Rosa, Tucumcari, Roswell, Las Lunas, Belen, and Alamogordo, all in New Mexico; and in Columbine, Torrington, Laramie and Cheyenne, Wyo.

Build Montreal House

MONTREAL, Oct. 25.—United Amusements, Ltd., a subsidiary of Famous Players Canadian Corp., operating 21 theatres in Montreal and nearby centers, is constructing a new house on Decarie Boulevard to serve a busy suburban district.

Shows Australian Films

TORONTO, Oct. 25.—In a bid for a place in the Canadian theatre field, L. R. MacGregor, Australian Trade Commissioner to Canada, sponsored the showing of a group of Australian-made films before an invited audience in the Toronto studio of Booth Canadian Films, Ltd. Officials of the Canadian and Ontario Governments were among the guests.

Metro Opens First Run In Rio Janeiro

By A. WEISSMANN

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 12.—One of the most sensational social events of the Rio season was the opening of M-G-M's new Metro Theatre, called the finest in the city, and devoted exclusively to films. The house is air conditioned. The opening was broadcast on a national hookup.

Among those attending were: William and Mrs. Melniker, who came from New York; A. Judel of M-G-M; Al and Mrs. Szeler, Universal; Nat and Mrs. Liebeskind, RKO; S. Goldstein, Columbia; J. C. Bavetta and A. Rosenvald, Twentieth Century-Fox; U. Sorrentino, UFA; E. Baez, U. A.; L. Price, Warners; the daughter of the President of Brazil, and others.

Films Show Marked Gains in Colombia

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The popularity of films in Colombia has increased during the current year, according to a report to the U. S. Dept. of Commerce from its Bogota office.

Box-office returns during the first eight months were considerably in excess of the average monthly receipts in 1935. In view of the fact that the number of theatres in operation in Colombia is constantly increasing, it seems likely that this improvement will continue, the report continues.

Capital is being attracted more than ever to theatre construction in Colombia, and in Bogota at least five entities are interested in investing considerable amounts in construction.

Empire Is Celebrating

TORONTO, Oct. 25.—A. W. Perry, general manager of Empire Films, Ltd., Canadian distributor of Gaumont, Republic, Educational and other product, is hanging out the bunting for the fourth anniversary of the founding of the company in Toronto under the presidency of Oscar R. Hanson. Empire has had wide and rapid expansion and operates six branch offices from coast to coast in the Dominion.

TORONTO, Oct. 25.—Laura Elston has resigned as publicity manager of Warners in Canada after serving in that post here for the past four years. She will resume her previous work as a writer.

Republic Student Cast

HOLLYWOOD, Otc. 25. — Christine Maple, one of the members of the Republic talent school, has been cast in the feminine lead of "Old Corral," next Gene Autrey picture.

Short Subjects

"Servant of the People"
(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—This deals with the writing and adoption of the United States Constitution, and is a timely instructive film that can be given exploitation. It shows the colonists, quarreling amongst themselves after the Revolution, and on the brink of disaster until the adoption of the Constitution of 1787. Benjamin Franklin, 81 years old at the time, is pictured as the peace-maker at the Constitutional Convention, the man whose subtle diplomacy settled the differences between delegates and smoothed the way for the drawing of the instrument. Schools, women's clubs and other organizations will doubtless endorse the picture and insure attention for all exhibitors screening it. Production Code Seal No. 2,148. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Going Places No. 29"
(Universal)

A climb up Mount Olympus in Washington and the Indian salmon fishing around the swirling rapids of the Celilo Falls in Oregon. Both parts are well photographed and well presented. Lowell Thomas delivers a top-notch narrative. Pleasantly entertaining. Production Code Seal No. 01,167. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Two Too Young"
(Roach-M-G-M)

Spanky and "Alfalfa" of the Our Gang troupe, plot to get firecrackers in the possession of two other members of their class. A trading deal fails, they pose as G-men and succeed. However, recess is over before they can shoot them off and they return to the class. When "Alfalfa" is reciting "The Charge of the Light Brigade" his intended victim sets them off in his pocket and the end has him extinguishing his trouser seat in a tub of water with the class looking on. For the children. Production Code Seal No. 2,654. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"The Public Pays"
(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—This latest in the "Crime Does Not Pay" series deals with milk racketeering. Showing how racketeers establish themselves in a community, the picture gives the inside on how they browbeat honest merchants into paying tribute which later is tagged on to retail milk prices. When one dealer holds out, the police are able to break the ring and send the criminals to prison. Jack Chertok has given the production feature mounting, and Errol Taggart's direction keeps the action moving rapidly. The story and screen play are by John C. Higgins. Production Code Seal No. 2,739. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Merry Mutineers"
(Mintz-Columbia)

Scrappy is sailing his toy pirate boat on a pond. He meets another boy, representing the navy and their craft conflict. A battle starts and attention is directed to the personnel of the boats. They consist of Charles Laughton, the whip-cracking Bligh; W. C. Fields, the Marx brethren, Crosby, Durante, Bowes, George Arliss, Laurel and Hardy, Joe E. Brown and Wallace Beery. This varied fighting combination makes a hilarious few minutes of comic cartoon action. Production Code Seal No. 2,255. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"A Woman Rebels"
(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Katharine Hepburn presents a finely drawn portrait of a woman who rebels against Victorian restrictions, and, after carving a career for herself, reverts to a mother's instinct for sacrifice and a craving for love.

"A Woman Rebels" is the story of a girl who resents her father's domination of every move, who becomes involved with a young man the night of her sister's wedding, but finds a way out of her difficulties when her sister is fatally injured as news is brought of her husband's death on a naval ship. She brings up her own child as her sister's.

Love enters her life in a tender, restrained way as Herbert Marshall, a diplomat, pays court from time to time for 20 years as the child is growing.

Miss Hepburn becomes the successful editor of a woman's magazine, but finds success means nothing when her daughter falls in love with her half-brother.

The drama speeds up and becomes poignant in the closing sequences. The daughter flaunts her mother when she forbids her romance. Miss Hepburn, because of a visit to the boy's father, becomes involved in a divorce scandal.

Marshall steps in and clears the situation by telling the daughter who her mother is and takes the latter in his arms.

Miss Hepburn dominates the picture. Her characterization is so finely shaded that she retains sympathy throughout and in the closing sequences her work is gripping.

The story, in spite of its Victorian costuming and settings, has young girl as well as adult woman appeal. Youth is always rebelling. Each generation thinks its predecessor is old-fashioned until life's rough edges add perspective.

Some lovely outdoor scenes are introduced.

Fine taste and discretion has been used in presenting some of the more delicate phases of the story. There is a note of restraint throughout, but it is effective. Mark Sandrich deserves credit for his direction and Pandro Berman for his supervision. The photography is by Robert de Grasse and the story by Bayard Veiller and Ernest Vajda.

Production Code Seal No. 2,406. Running time, 93 minutes. "G."

"Fugitive in the Sky"
(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Seemingly written and produced with tongue-in-cheek, this film is average entertainment which has alternate moments of suspense and comedy. The story is concerned with a transcontinental flight, the ficticious hazards of which are provided as usual by the passenger list, which includes a desperate public enemy, a G-man, reporter and bond thieves, all traveling disguised, with a dust storm providing an elemental handicap.

When one bond thief stabs another, Howard Phillips, a gangster, commands the plane to prevent its landing amid police who were radioed for by the pilots. All are at Phillips' mercy and go through the usual adventures until Warren Hull, a reporter, overcomes him, winning Jean Muir, the stewardess, to the bargain.

The story and screen play are the original work of George Bricker and the direction of Nick Grinde gets the most from the script. Individual cast performances, while not outstanding, are good, and Gordon Oliver, Winifred Shaw, Joe Cunningham and Carlyle Moore, Jr., do the best work. The picture will satisfy as a secondary feature in most localities.

Production Code Seal No. 2,505. Running time, 59 minutes. "G."

"No Place Like Rome"
(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—This is a satirical musical, lavishly produced by Jack Chertok, and amusing enough to warrant marquee attention from most exhibitors. Frank Albertson and Suzanne Kaaren head the cast, and the story deals with a law passed by the ancient Roman Senate compelling all bachelors to marry. Albertson opposes the law, pickets the lawmakers, and declares youths who rush to the altar unfair. When thrown to the lions, Albertson is saved by Miss Kaaren, a slave, who is freed by her master in time to marry him.

The story and music by Val Burton, Will Jason and Stanley Rauh is well directed by Reginald Le Borg. Production Code Seal No. 2,396. Running time, 21 mins. "G."

Short Subjects

"Hold 'Em Cowboy"
(Columbia)

Opening with finely composed scenes of cow country and cowpunchers at work, this short goes on to cover a rodeo and the spectacular excitement and spills to be found at these exhibitions. There are roundups of buffalo, bulldogging steers, roping calves and the w.k. bronco busting. Builds up to some thrilling moments. Production Code Seal No. 01,191. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"To Spring"
(Harmon-Ising-M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Color is the main attraction to this one, with music running a bad second and story almost entirely absent. However, color tones have been blended beautifully, and in combinations novel enough to hold attention throughout. Production Code Seal No. 2,723. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Sports On Ice"
(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—This is a companion reel to "Olympic Ski Champions," and features the bobsled races and the figure skating. Shots of the two-man and four-man bobsled races are by far the most thrilling and have been photographed from all strategic points along the course. The reel also includes scenes in the hockey game between Canada and England, and the 10,000-meter speed skating race. Production Code Seal No. 2,710. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Krazy's Newsreel"
(Mintz-Columbia)

A well known newsreel is the butt of this cartoon. And it is done with such good natured satire that it should bring plenty of laughs. It burlesques a peace conference, the latest fashions, floods, golf and a wrestling match with a whirlwind finish. Clever material. Production Code Seal No. 2,733. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Hollywood Extra"
(M-G-M)

For the general run of audiences this short should be of much interest. It tells of the hardworking extra girl and her struggle to get work and how she taxes her ingenuity to keep her contacts alive. Finally, however, after she practiced perfecting her speech she is engaged by the studio because of her beautiful legs. It is well produced and very informative as well as entertaining. Carey Wilson does all the talking. Production Code Seal No. 2,335. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Screen Snapshots No. 1"
(Columbia)

The screen reporter takes the audience to Ken Maynard's ranch, to the star's homes, on a deep-sea fishing trip and finally to the always popular tennis matches at the West Side Tennis Club in Hollywood. There are 42 of the stars appearing. Should be of interest to most all audiences. Production Code Seal No. 2,497. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Business at a High Level in Ohio Area

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 25.—Business in the Fourth Federal Reserve district was substantially at the highest level of the recovery movement during the latter part of August and first half of September, according to the monthly report just released by the Federal Reserve Bank. Employment gains were in evidence in all industrial centers of the district, and payrolls expanded materially, the report said. In some industries shortages of highly skilled labor were reported.

Retail trade made more than seasonal gains in dollar volume over a year ago. In the first eight months of this year, sales were 11.7 per cent ahead of the corresponding period of 1935. Estimated farm income so far this year has exceeded any similar period since 1930. Commercial failures were reported the smallest in number for the past 15 years. The Fourth Federal Reserve district comprises Ohio, western Pennsylvania, including Pittsburgh, and a part of western Kentucky.

Paramount Holds Horton

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Paramount has signed Edward Everett Horton to a new three-picture contract. The actor is currently making "One Man's Bonus" and will do three in addition. He also has been signed by Mervyn LeRoy for "The King and the Chorus Girl," which is scheduled to go into production Nov. 15.

Scott Kolk Gets "U" Contract

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Scott Kolk, who had a part in "All Quiet on the Western Front," has been signed by Universal. He will probably be cast in "The Road Back," the second Remarque novel to be filmed.

New Pact for Andrea Leeds

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25. — Andrea Leeds, who has an important role in "Come and Get It," has been signed to a new long term contract by Samuel Goldwyn. Her next role will be in "The Woman's Touch."

Ben Markson Re-signed

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Ben Markson, writer, has been signed to a new five-year contract at Twentieth Century-Fox. The studio has also taken up an option on Sam Hellman.

Mordiaunt Sharp, another contract writer, has been assigned to write the screen play of "Wee Willie Winkie."

Name Costume Director

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Edward Lambert has been named by Selznick International as head of the costume department. He will work under Edward Flynn, production director. Helen Wilson, formerly with RKO, will do the buying.

Roach Signs Sedgwick

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Hal Roach has signed Ed Sedgwick to a new term contract. As his next assignment, Sedgwick will direct "Pick a Star." The cast will include Jack Haley, Patsy Kelly and Lydia Roberti.

Kahgan in Music Job

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Boris Morros, head of Paramount's music department, has appointed Phil Kahgan as manager of the studio recording orchestra. He succeeds Harry Casey, who died recently.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Tarzan Escapes"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—With comedy and animals for the kids and an interesting story for the adults, this should result in good returns generally. The plot continues where the previews M-G-M "Tarzan" finished.

Benita Hume and William Henry enter the jungle guided by John Buckley to find Maureen O'Sullivan, who lives there with "Tarzan" Weismuller, their purpose being to bring Miss O'Sullivan back to London to inherit an estate. Miss O'Sullivan, promising to return, starts out, but Buckler sells out the party, his object being to capture "Tarzan" alive and dispose of the others to cannibalistic natives. His plans go wrong when the cannibals refuse to carry out their part of the bargain and the expedition is dramatically saved by Weismuller, who sends Buckler to his doom at the finish.

The screenplay by Cyril Hume and the direction of Richard Thorpe make the exaggerated incidents believable and, despite the obvious hokum, there should be no audience complaints. Herbert Mundin in a comedy role amuses until he is unnecessarily killed by Buckler. Sam Zimbalist's production is good and the photography by Leonard Smith is effective.

Production Code Seal No. 1,563. Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

Overseas Previews

"The Man in the Mirror"

(Twickenham-British)

LONDON, Oct. 16.—There are no "buts" about this entirely entertaining picture. It is the best comedy made by the Julius Hagen concern and one of the funniest productions, of any nationality, in which Edward Everett Horton has been seen. On the acting side there is another American value in Genevieve Tobin, and the English players are worthy of their company, with Ursula Jeans putting up a brilliant study of a flirtatious wife.

The theme, from a novel by William Garret, is out of the rut. That there are two men in every man, a mouse and a lion, a "prune" and a dashing lover, is the idea and it is put over by making the second and more dashing individual materialize from the mirrored reflection of the more timid one. There follows the amusing situation that the usual shy and furtive Horton is pursued by this robust and virile counterpart, who steals his office and his wife, puts in some sidelines in intrigue and high-speed business and altogether makes things very hectic for the afraid-of-life one. Any offense the prurient might find in it is removed by the final revelation of the identity of the two men and their merging into one.

The incident is as good as the idea, and the acting as good as the incident. Satire, allegory and farce—however labelled—it is a laugh-getter and a credit to Maurice Elvey, who directed for Hagen's "J.H." unit.

Running time, 75 minutes. "A."

"Everybody Dance"

(Gaumont British)

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Cicely Courtneidge and Ernest Truex are the names in this farce-romance with musical trimmings. Also in the cast are Charles Reisner, Billie de la Volta and Helen Haye, among others. Reisner directed.

With very fair story values based on the predicament of a night club queen who pretends to be a feminine farmer when she is bequeathed a bereaved niece and nephew from America, it limps considerably in development and some of the humor is very forced and very British, but Miss Courtneidge is an attractive and unusual personality and there is burlesque value in her adventures in a strange rural environment.

Running time, 75 minutes. "G." ALLAN.

Buck Jones Starts Soon

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Buck Jones is preparing his next film, "Sand Flow," for a start by the end of the week. Les Selander will direct.

Senft Moves to Barry

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 25.—Robert Senft, former assistant manager of the Penn, has joined Mannie Greenwald's staff at the independently-owned Barry.

telegram read, "It gives me pleasure to join with the members of the American Projection Society in doing honor to F. H. Richardson on his seventieth birthday. Please extend to Mr. Richardson my hearty felicitations."

More than 300 attended the projection group's celebration for the veteran of projection, which was held at midnight to permit working operators to attend.

Lester B. Isaacs was toastmaster, introducing the numerous speakers, headed by W. W. Byrne, president of the American Projection Society. Entertainment under the guiding hand of Jay C. Flippen as master of ceremonies was a feature of the affair, with dancing going on into the small hours.

"Richardson Week" Planned

Among the speakers were: Herbert Griffin and P. A. McGuire, International Projector; A. S. Dickinson, M. P. P. D. A.; Colvin Brown, Quigley Publishing Co.; John May of Schine circuit; M. D. O'Brien, Loew's; Walter Greene and Will C. Smith, National Theatre Supply; William Reed, oldest projectionist; Joseph Basson, president of Local 306; Charles Burton, Glen Humphries, secretary of the I. A. T. S. E.; George Skouras; James Brennan and Richard Walsh, vice-presidents of the I. A., and Louis Krause, representing George Browne, I.A. president.

This week, designated as Richardson Week, will be featured by a series of luncheons to the guest of honor, in conjunction with an exhibit of old projection equipment at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Film Programs Get Broadcast Time in K.C.

from the Emo Movie Service, Atlantic City. The program offers to answer any question about stars, and on Oct. 21 began offering to get pictures of stars for those who wanted them—at 12 cents (in stamps) each.

KCMO has "Hollywood Highlights," 15 minutes of talk about stars and new pictures, Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Most of it is studio publicity material. On the air since May, it has had no sponsor for two or three months, but was at the start—by a beauty shop.

KMBC, Kansas City's No. 1 station, carried a film comment program several times a week for about two years, but recently dropped it for lack of sponsorship. The "Gossip Club," of which persons become members by writing in queries about stars, originally carried talk of both movies and radio. The club was swamped by inquiries on radio stars, and a sponsor (a radio company) was secured for this, but not the film, part of the program.

WDAF, the Kansas City Star's station, has nothing of this sort now but probably will have in the near future.

John McManus, manager of Loew's Midland, conducted a 15-minute film comment program on W9XBY once a week, starting in February, 1935, and running about six months, and from October, 1935, to June, this year. In each instance, he interrupted the programs for vacation. He garnered most of his material from trade journals, and did the job without remuneration except for the plug on his own pictures and stars.

A regular feature of W9XBY, from 9:30 to 10:00 A. M. daily except Sunday, and then from 10 to 10:30, is the Loew's organ recital, a sustainer on which the station plugs the theatre and its current attraction.

A recent survey of listener interest showed KMBC first, WDAF second, and W9XBY, a much younger station than the other two, a close third.

Ted Malone in New York

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 25.—Ted Malone, former program director for KMBC here, is now in New York appearing daily at 11:15 over the Columbia network. Booked as "Ted Malone," he reads poetry, mostly from listeners who write him.

Community Sing Starts

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 25.—The KCMO Community Sing has started in the Little Theatre room of the new Municipal Auditorium. The Sing runs from 8:30 to 9:30 every Sunday evening, and is broadcast the last half-hour of the period. Eddie Krause is master of ceremonies. On the opening night only 25 of the Little Theatre's 750 seats were vacant.

Washington Station Moves

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Station WJSV celebrated its fourth anniversary and at the same time moved from Alexandria, Va., to Washington. Special programs were presented from 11:15 o'clock to midnight, with Manager A. D. Willard, Jr., acting as master of ceremonies.

While no equipment was moved physically the "moving" consisted of using for the first time the Federal Communications Commission reallocation of WJSV from Virginia to the District of Columbia.

Niesen on Cobb Program

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Gertrude Niesen has been set as guest star on Irving Cobb's NBC show, "Paducah Plantation" to follow Ruth Chatterton who appears Saturday.

Guest performers in the future will have something definite to do according to NBC officials and not merely appear for introductions.

Ann Jamieson Assigned

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—Ann Jamieson, soprano under contract to NBC, will appear on the Fred Astaire Packard hour for an indefinite period.

Sponsor Game Broadcasts

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 25.—Tidewater Oil is sponsoring a play-by-play description of the outstanding football game each Saturday over KCMO. National or important local games are reported by Walt Wilcox. The plays come in by leased wire and are relayed by Wilcox in the studio.

Not Recognized

Omaha, Oct. 25.—Ted Healy and his manager, Jack Marcus, decided to attend a local theatre during a stop here, but were rebuffed by the ushers because it was too late to sell admissions.

"A fellow could play here 30 years and nobody would ever recognize him," said Healy. "I like that."

"Sure I told them I was Ted Healy," he continued, "and they wanted to see my identifications. The guy calls the manager and the entire floor staff. The manager knew me."

Healy and Marcus were motoring to New York.

the merger has brought about a reduction in overhead charges to 28 per cent of gross, as compared with a former charge of 33 per cent of gross.

The estimated 1936 earnings would be equivalent to about $4.50 a share on the average number of outstanding common shares during the year, after dividends on the preferred. The estimate is said to be based on net operating income of $8,000,000, exclusive of a $1,000,000 dividend on the company's 42 per cent interest in National Theatres Corp. With an allowance of $1,500,000 for taxes, including provision for Federal surtax on undistributed profits, and minor adjustments, net profit would become $7,500,000.

The company's total dividend disbursements for 1936 are expected to amount to $4,500,000 by the end of the year, which would leave about $3,000,000 for surplus.

get some one to underwrite the reorganization, a plan regarded as remote by Israels and his interests. Efforts have been made by the bondholders' committee to introduce new money to replace the first mortgage securities, but to no successful end. The protective group also objects to giving the RFC loan preference over first mortgage holders in the reorganization.

Both lawyers expressed the view to MOTION PICTURE DAILY that if they could not get together between now and Nov. 13, the matter will be fought out before Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey. This indicates that the protective group also will file a rehabilitation plan.

Meanwhile, appraisers are working on a 10½-year rental estimate for the Roxy lobby lease, terms of which will be included in the bondholders' plan. In the event an agreement is not completed in three weeks, another adjournment will be sought by Israels, who already has been granted two.

Other Universal subsidiaries will be dissolved from time to time in the near future, culminating in about 30 days in the dissolution of Universal Pictures, which will leave Universal Corp. or a successor company as the parent body for operations. Universal Corp. at present is a holding company for controlling interests.

Universal's corporate revamping is similar to that under way in Loew's, Paramount, Twentieth Century-Fox, Warners and RKO. It is designed to effect economies as a result of the new Federal corporate dividend tax.

Rogers Here for Meeting

Charles R. Rogers, executive vice-president in charge of Universal production, arrived from the coast yesterday for a two-week stay. In addition to home office conferences on production plans, Rogers will look over the new Broadway plays, interview new talent discovered by the company's eastern scouts and will look over books and plays on which options have been taken here.

Next week, Rogers will confer with Herbert Wilcox, a Universal director and executive producer of General Film Distributors, Ltd., which distributes for Universal in Great Britain. Wilcox is due here Nov. 2 on the Queen Mary. Plans for the interchange of talent between the Universal studio and General Film's Pinewood studio will be set by the two production chiefs. Anna Neagle, General Film star, will arrive with Wilcox.

Rogers was accompanied east by his secretary, William Pierce.

Ascap to Ask Concessions By Canadians

Joint British - American Move Agreed Upon

Canadian exhibitors will be asked by Ascap and the British Performing Rights Society to petition the Canadian Government to relax its new regulations limiting the rates which may be charged for the public performance of music for profit in the Dominion, it was stated yesterday following a meeting of the M.P.P.D.A. legal committee with E. C. Mills, general manager of Ascap, and Leslie Boosey, head of the British music licensing organization. The two music societies are equal owners of the Canadian Performing Rights Society.

If the Canadian regulations are not relaxed, the music licensing organization for the Dominion will cease to function there except as a policing agency for copyright owners, with the prospect that musical pictures could not be licensed for exhibition in Canada, it was said.

Mills and Boosey will leave for Toronto toward the end of the week to confer there with leading Canadian exhibitors on the move to obtain their support in having the music tax regulations modified. The step is understood to be a last resort of the music licensing agencies and results

Coast Production Down to 41 Films

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—With 11 pictures finishing and only five new ones starting, studio activity registered a decided slump last week. Forty-one features and one short subject were shooting as compared to 47 features and four shorts for the preceding week.

Cutting room activity hit a new high with 61 features and 12 shorts. Twenty-three films will start within the next two weeks, according to production schedules.

The five new films to go before cameras were: "Women of Glamour," Columbia; "Coast Patrol," Radio; "Roaring Lead," Republic; "Men in Exile," Warners, and "Wild Horse Round-up," Ambassador.

Warners held the heaviest production with eight pictures shooting.

Criterion to Drop Marquee Star Rating

Harry Charnas, managing director of the Criterion on Broadway, declared yesterday that the theatre will drop the use of the Daily News star-rating on the marquee, currently utilized in connection with "Follow Your Heart." Charnas said he had received no complaints on the use of the star-rating on the marquee, and had not been approached relative to its discontinuance, but that he would be glad to drop the practice if it was not generally done.

Radio News Dep't Makes Debut

This is in keeping with a recognition of the increasing community of interest between radio and motion pictures. Strictly from a trade point of view and as developments impinge on motion pictures, the news of radio will be based on fact, not idle rumor or elevator gossip. The department will be attuned faithfully to the objective of constructive and dependable news information under a policy identical with the general policies under which Motion Picture Daily functions.

Banner was for four years eastern editor of Radio Guide. He is well known throughout the radio industry in New York and elsewhere.

Air Shows Aim At Restoring Stage to Road

Federal Theatre Project Plans a New Series

The Radio Division of the Federal Theatre Project in New York, under the supervision of Leslie E. Roberts, is preparing a new series of radio broadcasts, which is designed eventually to be extended to the establishment of stage units to play various cities over the country on a roadshow basis.

The first of the broadcasts, which will run for one hour each once a week, is expected to go on the air over an NBC network sometime next month. NBC is cooperating with the Federal Theatre Project in the development of the series, which is said to be the most ambitious and elaborate yet attempted by the project.

At present eight other programs are being broadcast by the radio division, ranging from 15 minutes to one hour, and going out over various stations.

The new series will feature actors, singers and musicians, at present unemployed. Only professional talent will be utilized, no amateurs being employed, it was emphasized by officials of the Federal Theatre Project in New York yesterday. Fred Niblo, former film director, will act as master of ceremonies for the series, and among the performers will be Audrey Maple and Lee Timmon, singers.

The radio series will be titled, "The Goodwill Ambassador of the American Theatre," and is designed to aid the professional talent, some with considerable experience, to return to the stage. It is also expected to be of value in helping to restore the "road," in the legitimate theatre, which is described by officials as having practically disappeared in recent years.

Deny Astaire-Packard Split, But Butterworth May Go In

From Hollywood yesterday came an official denial that Fred Astaire was seeking to break his contract with Packard Motor Co., sponsors of the radio program on which he is featured. The denial came from the coast office of Young and Rubicam, the agency handling the program, and from RKO, to whom Astaire is under contract, and was in response to a wire sent by MOTION PICTURE DAILY, which sought official expression on the rapidly spreading rumors in New York radio circles that Astaire was seeking an "out" from his radio contract.

It was intimated, however, that an important change in the program might be affected in the near future. This change, it was stressed, will not be in the nature of a slice in air time, as has been printed elsewhere.

Rumblings of discord on the program have been rife locally for several days. Various reasons have been advanced hereabouts for the alleged Astaire dissatisfaction. Melting them all, they boil down to the following:

1.—That Charles Butterworth is as good at walking away with scenes in radio as he is in pictures.

2.—That Astaire has come to the belated conclusion that as a dancer, he has very little to offer in the way of entertainment over the air.

The Packard program is now in its sixth week, with seven to go. However, there are optional renewals covering a year. The consensus of opinion along Radio Row is that the options will not be taken up, and that a new star, probably Butterworth, will head the program seven weeks hence.

Stage Ponders Radio

Plans for launching a weekly radio hour to gain new interest for the stage were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the council of Actors Equity Ass'n.

Under the plans, which are virtually complete now, the programs will be sponsored jointly by Equity and the League of N. Y. Theatres. Stage stars appearing on the programs will contribute their time without compensation and the producing managers' organization will pay the broadcasting charges. Institutional talks on the theatre, music and scenes from current plays will be included in the program which will be broadcast over the NBC network.

Waring-Warners in Split

For the first time in three years Fred Waring will not introduce the "Gold Digger" tunes over the air. Waring was all set to give the score from the Warner picture its initial broadcast on Nov. 6, but when Warners advised him that he would have to share honors with Raymond Paige, who is to offer his arrangements of the tunes that same evening on his "Hollywood Hotel" program, Waring balked. He insisted that he be accorded the privilege of doing the score first, as in the past, with Warners equally insistent that laurels be divided. Accordingly Waring has withdrawn from the setup and Paige will offer the tunes exclusively.

Dramatizing Dempsey Fights

Jean Grombach, independent radio producer, has closed with Jack Dempsey for an electrically transcribed program featuring dramatizations of the Manassa Mauler's most famous brawls. There will be 13 transcriptions, beginning with Dempsey's K. O. of Jess Willard and ending with the long count fight against Gene Tunney. Kel Keech, network announcer and m. c., will do the narrations, and Gloria Grafton will vocalize. Royal Crown Cola, a soft drink, is sponsoring.

Republicans Top Democrats

The Republican radio bill for the 1926 campaign will be twice that of the Democrats' bill, judging from the figures that are available at the moment. Up to Oct. 17 the Republicans spent $265,000 with National Broadcasting, while for a similar period over the same outlet the Democrats spent but $165,000. While neither CBS or Mutual has said anything about the amount of money netted since the campaign opened, it is believed that the same two-to-one ratio will apply there. All told the total expenditure for political broadcasts throughout the nation will be about $2,000,000.

Harlow Joining Procession

Jean Harlow, who arrives in New York sometime next week, will make at least three radio appearances during her stay in Gotham. While no deals have been closed as yet, it is believed her first guest shot will be on Rudy Vallee's program.

May Team Durbin-Breen

Deanna Durbin, Eddie Cantor's 13-year-old singing discovery, has been signed for a picture by Universal. The studio is now trying to induce Sol Lesser to loan Bobby Breen for a co-starring role.

Sign Munson on Quiet

Ona Munson of the stage and screen is now a regular member of the "Cavalcade of America" cast, but no one outside the studio knows anything about it. It is the policy on this program not to give billing to any member of the cast.

Sam Hearn in Oakie Film

Sam Hearn, currently in the "Big Broadcast of 1937," has been assigned a role in the new Jack Oakie film and will leave for the coast when his "Showboat" radio contract is completed.

Loore, Cherniavsky, et al

Short Shots:—Peter Lorre, the horror actor, is slated for a guest shot on the Vallee program when he arrives in New York next month . . . Josef Cherniavsky, maestro on the new "Musical Cameraman" program, was Universal's musical director during the silent era . . . Glenn Morris, Olympic decathlon champ, is now a special eventer at NBC, specializing in sports broadcasts . . . "Melody Matinee" sponsored by Smith Bros. returns to NBC on Nov. 15 . . . Anabelle Kiger, midwest radio lass, will be known on the screen as Roberta Vale. She's a Fox-20th Century captive . . . George Comptois of the Federal ad agency now out of town on new radio business solicitations . . . Joe Hill, of the same agency, is a weekly sky rider between New York and Chicago, supervising the Red Grange and Sinclair Minstrels program from the Loop City on Mondays, and returning to New York for the Tuesday and Thursday Knox Gelatin shows . . . Ruth Chatterton guest stars on Irvin Cobb's program Oct. 31, with Gertrude Niesen penciled in for the following week.

Game Broadcasts Hurt

LINCOLN, NEB., Oct. 26.—Saturday afternoon theatre attendance in Nebraska has fallen off, managers say, with the recent dropping of the bars for broadcasts of the University of Nebraska football games. For more than four years, the athletic department has refused to allow broadcasts, but with sellouts on all the home games this year, KFAB here has been permitted.

Two Radio Firms Formed

DOVER, DEL., Oct. 26.—Wichita Broadcasting Co. has been incorporated here to engage in the business of broadcasting, listing capital at $75,000. Cornell Dubilier Corp., has been formed to perfect the art and business of electric or radio communication by wireless, listing capital of $70,000. The incorporators are John H. Vincent, Greenwich, Conn., Henry C. Blackiston, Jr., and John D. Garrison, New York.

Astaire Off Air for Election

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—NBC has cancelled the Fred Astaire-Packard hour for Nov. 3 to concentrate all air time on election returns.

Shell Chateau and the Irving Cobb feature, "Paducah Plantation," will be postponed on Oct. 31 to make room for political talks.

CBS, although not eliminating any scheduled programs, will give election return flashes every five minutes, keeping their lines open until 4 A.M.

Gary Cooper to Broadcast

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—Gary Cooper will return here from New York, Oct. 29, to start rehearsals for a radio appearance on the Lux hour under direction of Cecil B. DeMille. Cooper will present a dramatization of "The Virginian."

To Interview Grant-Landi

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—Cary Grant and Elissa Landi will be interviewed on the Kraft Music Hall program over NBC, Oct. 29.

Gladys George has been lined up for an interview on the same program, Nov. 5.

In Guest Ticket Tieup

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 26.—Radio Station KSL, in a tieup with Intermountain Theatres, is offering guest tickets, selecting at random the names of those who receive them.

Bellew Goes to Texas

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—Smith Bellew, master of ceremonies on the NBC-Shell Chateau program, is in Texas.

units to be derived from the radio series will be established has not yet been determined, it was said yesterday. Also it has not yet been ascertained whether the stage units would be played in film houses, as an adjunct to the feature film, or in separate theatres on a legitimate show basis. If the latter method is determined upon, it is anticipated that the units will be considerably enlarged in point of length of performance.

Crawford, Tone Off Air

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone today were removed from the Camel Caravan program scheduled for broadcast tomorrow. Retakes on their current film, "Love on the Run," was given as the reason. Studio spokesmen stressed the fact that there had been no break between producers and sponsors, adding that players may be held for pictures whenever necessary.

The William Esty Agency stated that the decision had been reached amicably and that Edward Arnold probably would be substituted.

Frederick Ott Rites Will Be Held Today

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 26.—Funeral services will be held tomorrow night in Orange for Frederick P. Ott, 76, associate of Thomas A. Edison, who died on Saturday at his home here. Ott, who worked with Edison on the development of the motion picture, among other work, retired shortly after Edison's death in 1931.

Ott first became associated with the inventor in 1874, left him, and rejoined his staff in 1893. Ott frequently recalled that he was one of the first screen "actors," having posed for some of the first experimental reels. His widow, three sons and one daughter survive.

S. E. Wilhoit Dead

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 26.—S. E. Wilhoit, operator of the Princess, Springfield, Mo., and a veteran exhibitor in this area, is dead at Springfield of typhoid fever. Wilhoit also had the Strand at Mt. Vernon, Mo., managed by his son-in-law, Raymond E. Richardson, and the Park at Eldorado Springs, Mo., managed by his son, Tom E. Wilhoit.

Mrs. Irvin S. Cobb Ill

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—Mrs. Irvin S. Cobb is ill from pneumonia at her Santa Monica home.

No Shearer Plans Yet

Identical statements have been issued by Louis B. Mayer on the coast and Nicholas M. Schenck in New York, relative to Norma Shearer's future plans, that the widow of Irving Thalberg is still gravely ill, the only thought is for her recovery, and that all films prepared for her will be held in abeyance until she is well enough to discuss plans with the executives of M-G-M.

Variety Adopts Boy

Pittsburgh, Oct. 26.—One of the features of the eighth annual Variety Club banquet here last night was announcement of the adoption of a four-month-old orphan, who has been named George Variety Baker.

This is the first time the club has taken a boy. The first two girls adopted have been taken by families.

The child was presented at the banquet in the arms of Art Levy, outgoing chief barker, and was turned over to the new chief barker, John J. Maloney.

The banquet was a complete sellout.

Fairbanks, Goldwyn To Do "Marco Polo"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—Samuel Goldwyn and Douglas Fairbanks have formed a partnership for the production of "The Adventures of Marco Polo," starring Gary Cooper. The film will cost $1,500,000, it is reported. The only other associate of Goldwyn in the production of a film was Florenz Ziegfeld, on "Whoopee."

Fairbanks left for New York by plane last night to confer with Cooper, then will go on to London, where he will meet Captain A. Podson, who will collaborate on the story. Podson is a noted Orientalist. From London Fairbanks will go to China with a camera crew to film backgrounds for the picture.

Tax Judgment Against Fairbanks

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—Simultaneously with the departure of Douglas Fairbanks for New York, a judgment of $88,659 was entered against the actor in Federal court records representing the sum claimed to be due the Government for 1927. In that year Fairbanks paid a tax of $205,313, later claiming a refund of $53,231 which sum was subsequently ruled out by the commissioner of internal revenue. The refund was claimed because of a redemption by the commissioner in the Fairbanks tax on $4,000,000 in Elton Corp. bonds which the actor received in 1925 for certain rights in Famous Pictures. The board of tax appeals later ruled that he was not entitled to the refund and, on a realignment, claimed the $85,659. A jury upheld the board's contention.

The question involved is purely one of law. There is no suggestion that Fairbanks intended or attempted to defraud the Government.

Paul Vallee, Fairbanks' attorney, stated that an appeal would be taken to the high courts.

"Romeo" at $11,900 For Its 11th Week

"Romeo and Juliet" tallied $11,900 in its 10th week at the Astor on a two-a-day policy. The figure is $120 less than the previous week. Loew's lease on the theatre expires in 10 weeks. It is likely an extension will be secured from City Investment Co. for the showing of "The Good Earth."

Opening to a strong weekend business, preliminary estimates indicate "The Magnificent Brute" will wind up the week at the Roxy with $40,000, or better.

To Use Film Players

OMAHA, Oct. 26.—The Omaha Community Playhouse has accepted the offer of Sam Briskin, head of Radio Production, to lend young film players, to permit them to get stage experience. Director E. G. Steinmetz, Jr., of the Playhouse said he is seeking the services of a feminine player for the lead in the January Playhouse production, "Personal Appearance."

Quebec Barring All Films from Russia

QUEBEC, Oct. 26.—Russian films have been barred from the province of Quebec because of the possibility of their use as Communistic propaganda media, declared Premier Duplessis at a gathering here yesterday.

Duplessis said interests representing Soviet films had approached him, but that permission had been denied for the showing of Russian films in the province.

"We are acquainted with the principles upon which these films would be leased, outwardly they might appear innocent, but there would always be the underlying danger of communistic infiltrations," he said.

K.R.S. Refuses to Use Boycott Tactics

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Correspondence between the C. E. A. and the K. R. S. in regard to overbuilding has been officially published, in a report of the last meeting of the C. E. A. general council.

Replying to a request that distributors assist in a joint trade committee, Frank Hill, secretary of the K. R. S., repeats an earlier request for a definite scheme but adds that the K. R. S. would not consider any plan which contained "any provision which would call upon renters to restrict the supplies of films to any cinema."

Para. Signs Mamoulian

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—Paramount has signed Rouben Mamoulian to direct "High, Wide and Handsome," a forthcoming elaborate musical. The screen play is by Oscar Hammerstein, II, and music by Jerome Kern. The cast will be headed by Irene Dunne and Randolph Scott, with Dorothy Lamour, William Frawley and Elizabeth Patterson in principal roles. Arthur Hornblow, Jr., will produce.

First of the Functions Honoring F. H. Richardson

Drucker & Baltes

Group which honored the technical editor of Motion Picture Herald at the Pennsylvania Hotel at midnight Saturday. The function was sponsored by the American Projection Society for "its foremost member" on his 70th birthday.

Today at the same hotel, the International Projector Corp. and National Theatre Supply Co. will be hosts at a luncheon in Richardson's honor. Walter Greene, president of National Theatre Supply, will be chairman, and Herbert Griffin, vice-president of International Projector, will be toastmaster. Among the speakers will be Dr. Alfred N. "Ladies" and Show $40,000 Chicago Lead

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—"Ladies in Love," with the stage appearance of Horace Heidt and his Brigadiers, local favorites, gave the Chicago top honors in the Loop with a gross of $40,000 which was $8,000 over par.

The United Artists, with "Libeled Lady" in the second week of an extended engagement, hit the $20,000 mark which was excellent. "Craig's Wife," which opened at the Apollo, found business very good and $3,100 over the normal $4,500 average.

Giveaway nights at the Oriental and State-Lake helped boost business in these houses. The Palace with "The Magnificent Brute" on the screen and Ann Sothern in person did nicely to get $22,000. "Give Me Your Heart," with a "pink ticket," played at the Garrick, following an opening week at the Chicago. The gross was $6,400 or $900 above average.

The weather was ideal throughout the week and accounted largely for the excellent business in the Loop theatres.

Total first run business was $138,200. Average is $115,000.

Estimated takings for the week were:

Week Ending Oct. 21:

"THE MAGNIFICENT BRUTE" (Univ.)

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"North of Nome"

Larry Darmour Prod.-Columbia

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—Soundly constructed melodrama, contrasted by romantic conflict and comedy, this is above average entertainment for thrill and action fans. Additionally, it is worthy of the attention of those who like to see something different in their entertainment. With Jack Holt, Evelyn Venable, John Miljan, Dorothy Appelby, Roger Imhoff, Paul Hurst and Guinn Williams featured in the principal roles, the film has good name value. Quality of production given the picture by Larry Darmour is of high caliber and William Nigh's direction gets full value out of story and players.

The locale is Alaska, the atmosphere of which has been vividly captured. Recreating Houston Branch's original which was adapted by Albert DeMond, Holt is a seal poacher convincd that he has just as much right to the pelts as have the operators of a concession. A twist lands Holt, Imhof, Miss Venable, Hurst, Miljan and Miss Appelby on an island. The group held prisoner by Holt tries every trick they know to escape. Holt's watchfulness precipitates romance and contrasted drama tinged with fear and hate, further menaced by the activities of Guinn Williams, a fur-hijacker. Fear of Williams forces Holt and his prisoners to make common cause against him which leads to the climax, in which all scores are settled.

The film moves speedily; action and dialogue are well balanced. All the elements of the story are plausible and the manner in which they have been handled gives them realism.

Production Code Seal No. 2,789. Running time, 63 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Killer at Large"

(Columbia)

An active murder mystery yarn, this is unpretentious but satisfactory fare of its kind, and probably will be found entertaining.

There is a full quota of rushing police, automobile pursuits and popping guns to maintain the pace at high speed. There is the usual stupid detective, the boy and girl romance, and the requisite amount of suspense.

When a store is robbed of jewels, Russell Hardie, head of the department, is held responsible. When he checks up one night, finds another robbery and a store executive killed, suspicion falls on him. His sweetheart, Mary Brian, the store detective, is the Sherlock Holmes in the case, and the chase to clear Hardie leads to a wax works exhibit in the store, its owner and maker, and the death of a girl accomplice.

The audience learns the killer's identity early, but the activity centers about the capture of the culprit, and the danger to the couple as he escapes initially and goes gunning for them.

The wax works idea and the trick of the culprit of secreting himself in the guise of a wax figure, opens the way for exhibitor lobby exploitation.

David Selman directed from a story by Carl Clausen and a screen play by Harold Shumate.

Production Code Seal No. 2,537. Running time, 58 minutes.

Three New Theatres Planned in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 26.—Construction of a new downtown theatre and two neighborhood houses is scheduled to start soon.

The space now occupied by Kunderer's cafe, opposite the Liberty has been leased by T. B. Noble, Colorado circuit operator.

Sam Caporal, owner of the Yale, will start construction of the Mayflower on the southwest corner of N. W. 23rd St. and Ellison Avenue during November. He plans to erect a combined store, office and theatre building.

Pat McGee, general supervisor of Standard Theatres, Inc., has approved architect's plans for the Tower on N. W. 23rd St. near Walker Ave.

The new houses are a threat to the virtual monopoly of exhibition in Oklahoma City.

J. A. Cooper controls nearly all Oklahoma City theatres, and he has houses in Colorado besides. The indications are that the Colorado circuit intends to meet Cooper's competition with a house here.

Wis. Jobs Highest Since October, 1929

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 26.—Employment in local factories was higher in September than in any preceding month since October, 1929, and payrolls were higher than in any preceding month since 1930, according to the state industrial commission. Factory employment here increased 3.6 per cent and payrolls .2 per cent between Aug. 5 and Sept. 15, it was reported.

Total factory employment in the state in September was 6.4 per cent greater than in September of 1935. It was, however, six per cent less than the figures for that month in 1929. Aggregate factory payrolls last month were 16 per cent below the level of September, 1929, but were 5.9 per cent above the same 1935 month.

Ohio Deposits Up 200%

CINCINNATI, Oct. 26.—Evidence of continued industrial improvement here is reflected in the September bank clearings, amounting to $247,957,733, a gain of practically 200 per cent over September, 1935.

Employment in 18 selected industries was approximately 100 per cent greater during September than for the corresponding month last year.

Drop Shows Over Taxes

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 26.—Louisville will do without roadshows this winter unless the prevailing state tax is changed, according to William Hoke Camp, manager of the Memorial Auditorium. Every roadshow scheduled for 1936 has been canceled and those booked after Jan. 1 have been canceled tentatively, and will not show unless the state tax is repealed, Camp said. A $2.50 ticket would cost $3.21 after payment of the Federal and state taxes

Universal in Best Shape—Normanly

the current year are almost $3,000,000 in excess of the corresponding period in 1935, that Universal pictures are being shown in more theatres throughout the world than ever before and that this distribution includes all circuits in this country.

Twenty-four of the 42 films scheduled for the year will be completed by the end of this month, Normanly said, adding that the total production cost does not exceed the original budget by more than five per cent. Twenty-five stories—nearly all of next year's product—are being readied ahead of schedule, the comptroller asserted, and he placed emphasis upon the high quality of the product for the coming year.

Normanly paid tribute to J. Cheever Cowdin and Charles R. Rogers for their parts in the elimination of overhead waste and the placing of Universal in the black.

"Godfrey" a Hit

"My Man Godfrey," said Normanly, has already grossed $750,000 in the United States without playing all of the first runs. He predicted a domestic market gross of $1,500,000 for the picture. There will be no write-offs during the fiscal year, he said, adding that since the advent of the new Universal regime many physical assets, especially in the story department, which had been written off the books, subsequently proved to be extremely valuable. In this connection he told of 400 stories listed on the books at one dollar each, one of which recently received a bid of $100,000 for its purchase.

The foreign field is in good shape, said the comptroller. He added that three films, "Magnificent Obsession," "My Man Godfrey" and "Showboat," will be released simultaneously in England.

It was stated that Universal has placed an order for the complete modernization of all sound recording devices with Erpi Mirrophonic equipment. This work will start immediately.

"U" Picks Koster's Next

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—Universal has assigned Henry Koster to direct "It Happened in Budapest," which Joseph Pasternak will produce. The story was formerly called "Recipe for Romance." Production will start as soon as "Three Smart Girls," which Pasternak is producing and Koster directing, has been finished.

Bank Night Policies Stir Georgia Moves

ATLANTA, Oct. 26.—A. R. Wright, deputy insurance commissioner, has requested Solicitor General George Mains of Augusta to prosecute Southeastern Cash Night Indemnity Co. of Augusta, charging that the company is operating without a license to write policies insuring theatre patrons against Bank Night losses when the patron is not present at drawings.

Rosenzweig Closes Deal

Charles Rosenzweig, local exchange manager for United Artists, yesterday closed a deal with Joe Seider for the company's product in 32 theatres.

Ascap to Ask Concessions By Canadians

from their inability to effect an agreement with the American distribution companies on any alternative procedure. Ascap is reported to have urged the distribution companies to pay the standard music tax rates of their Canadian theatre accounts directly to the music licensing organization here, with the implication that the tax could be absorbed by film rentals and the Canadian rate restrictions avoided thereby. Distributors, it is said, flatly rejected the proposal at yesterday's meeting on the grounds that it would be an incentive to exhibitors elsewhere to demand that the music tax be absorbed by the distributors with no assurance that film rentals could be boosted anew to recover it.

High Court Refuses To Hear Aleograph

standing, it was indicated by briefs filed with the court, originating when Aleograph sued Erpi in the West Texas U. S. District Court, which rendered a decision, later affirmed by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, that no infringement had occurred. Aleograph then sued Western Electric, again losing, and Erpi then sought and secured an injunction against the bringing of further suits, which was affirmed by the Circuit Court.

In bringing the case to Washington, Aleograph contended that the lower court decisions infringed on their rights and said there would not be a multiplicity of suits, but only such a number as were necessary to secure justice. The effect of the lower court decisions, the court was told, would be to allow Erpi and Western Electric to proceed without restriction to violate the anti-trust laws.

Color Case Suit Up Jan. 5.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—Trial of a patent infringement suit brought by Max B. DuPont Vitacolor Corp. against Cinecolor, Inc., has been set for Jan. 5 in the U. S. District Court here.

The suit involves four patents on "natural" color film and the process involved. Notice has been served on Warners, Columbia, Paramount, Celebrity and Scientific Film Laboratories that they may be charged with alleged infringement unless they desist from using the process.

Final Skouras Bid Today

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 26.—Referee in Bankruptcy Hope has continued until tomorrow afternoon consideration of the report of Nelson Cunliff, trustee in bankruptcy for Skouras Brothers Enterprises, Inc., on the public auction sale last Thursday of the company's assets to the bondholders' protective committee of Central Properties Corp. for approximately $317,000.

Hope said tomorrow he expects an offer in writing from Arthur Greene of Chicago, of at least $342,000. Greene and his attorney, I. B. Perlman, indicated such a bid will be made if they can obtain from Cunliff information relative to the financial status of the company. Greene offered a certified check for $35,000 to Hope as evidence of good faith. A 52 per cent interest in the St. Louis Amusement Co. is the chief asset of the Skouras company.

For Roosevelt

Nicholas M. Schenck has contributed $10,000 to the national Democratic campaign fund.

Arthur Mullen of Omaha, lawyer who has represented national distributors there from time to time, is down for a similar amount. Karl Hoblitzelle of the Interstate Circuit, Texas, gave $7,500; Joseph M. Schenck, $5,000; I.A.T.S.E. of Los Angeles, $5,000, and S. R. Kent, $3,500.

The National Democratic Committee has "borrowed" $36,876 from Joseph P. Kennedy, a staunch Roosevelt man and former chairman of the S.E.C.

S.E.C. Studies Hollywood Famous

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Counsel for the Securities and Exchange Commission tonight were analyzing amendments to the registration statement of Hollywood Famous Pictures, received late this afternoon, and may call off or postpone the hearing set for Oct. 29.

The commission took exception to the registration statements filed Sept. 8, finding an "appearance" of untrue statements of material facts and omissions of material facts, and set the matter for public hearing.

If the newly submitted material meets the objections raised by the commission, it is possible the hearing will not he held.

G. B. Wins Sink Action

A motion for summary judgment for $8,385 was granted yesterday in N. Y. Supreme Court by Justice Edward J. McGoldrick to Gaumont British Pictures Corp. of America against Max J. Sink, attorney. The amount of the judgment represents money collected by the attorney on behalf of Ideal Films, Ltd. The latter assigned a claim to Gaumont British Pictures Corp. of America.

The court further decided that Sink is entitled to his fee for services from the amount of the judgment.

New Answer for Columbia

Supreme Court Justice Edward J. McGoldrick yesterday signed an order permitting Columbia to file new pleadings in its answer to the suit for $50,000 damages brought by Jack Redmond, a professional golfer.

The plaintiff alleges that in the spring of 1935 he gave a golfing exhibition for Fox Movietone News at the Eatontown Country Club in New Jersey and that in May, 1936, Columbia used portions of the picture in its production entitled "Golfing Rhythm." Redmond asserts that he received no compensation from Fox Movietone News and that Columbia did not have his written consent to use the picture in whole or in part.

Justice McGoldrick ruled that Columbia Pictures must allege that, in its dealings with Fox for the use of the film, the original consent of Fox was in writing or, if a transfer in writing was waived by Fox, that the subsequent consent to Columbia for the use of the film was in writing.

Columbia was given 10 days in which to file a new answer.

Injunction Against Auten Denied

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Peter J. Schmuck yesterday denied, after argument, a motion for a temporary injunction in the action brought by Andrew de La Varre against Harold Auten, as agent.

The court stated that the motion was denied because the case had been set down for trial for Oct. 30. De La Varre, who is a producer of travel shorts, sought to restrain Auten from further distribution of his pictures. He charges that Auten breached their contract by failing to submit proper monthly accounts.

The charges were denied by the defendant.

Cohn Case Decision Reserved

N. Y. Supreme Court Judge Peter Schmuck yesterday reserved decision in the plagiarism suit filed by Sigbert Cohn against Paramount, Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur and Brandt & Brandt. In his complaint, Cohn alleges "The Scoundrel" was taken from his play, "Wer Weint um Juckenack." An injunction and an accounting of all profits of the picture are sought.

Louis Phillips and Irving Cohen represented Paramount in the arguments yesterday, Saul Rogers, the plaintiff; Howard Reinheimer, Hecht and MacArthur; Arthur Spingam, Brandt & Brandt.

Consolidated Case Dropped

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The Securities and Exchange Commission plans no further action in connection with the recapitalization plan which was approved last Friday by stockholders of Consolidated Film Industries, it was said here today. The commission held that statements in the company's letter notifying stockholders of the plan's provisions might be misleading, but said today that any further action would have to be instituted by the shareholders.

Roach Has Plans for Six Musicals Yearly efforts in the feature field will be directed toward musicals. Roach will confer with Nicholas M. Schenck on the amount of money to be spent on the various pictures," he added. Most of his time will be spent looking at shows and interviewing talent.

The first of six musicals this season will be "Pick A Star," with Patsy Kelly, Jack Haley, Lyda Roberti and Mischa Auer. Three of the current schedule of shorts have been finished. The musical angle will not be injected into the comedies, Roach said.

with the production head returning from England.

Wallis plans to see a number of plays. He said the company had made no future plans for Bette Davis, as he understood the star has appealed from the decision against her in the English courts. "Until we know where we are at, no plans will be made," he asserted.

Prints of "Charge of the Light Brigade" and "Black Legion" were brought from the studio by Wallis. These are expected to be screened at the district managers' mid-seasonal sales session planned by Sears within the next few weeks.

Next spring, Wallis will make another trip to Europe. There has been no change in the company's plans to produce 60 features.

Theatre Boom On in England, Warner States

Over 100 Houses Going Up; Grosses at Peak

More than 100 big theatres are now being constructed in Great Britain, Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of production for Warners, declared on his return from England on the Ile de France after a three-month business and vacation trip. Business is at its peak, he said, with the theatres getting their share of the money being spent.

Warner confirmed reports the company would participate in the financing of a number of Gilbert Miller plays, the first being "Tovarich." Others will include "Promise" and "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse." The production head of Warners added he

Renew Talks On Big Claim Against RKO

Compromise Sought with Rockefeller Center

Efforts to settle the $9,100,000 Rockefeller Center claim against RKO by a compromise agreement have been resumed, it was learned yesterday, and their success will have a direct bearing on the time required to complete an RKO reorganization plan for submission to the Federal court.

The claim has been the subject of compromise settlement discussions for almost two years. After unsuccessful attempts by Irving Trust Co., trustee of RKO, which extended over a period of more than a year, settlement negotiations were broken off and litigation of the claim was advanced in court. A decision involving the amount

Consolidated to Ask New Issues Listing

Applications for listing the new common and preferred stock issues authorized under the plan of recapitalization for Consolidated Film Industries are being prepared and may be submitted to the N. Y. Stock Exchange in about a week. The plan is scheduled to become operative as soon as these and other details relative to the issuance of the new securities have been completed.

The immediate payment of a $1 dividend on the old preferred, provided for in the recapitalization plan, has been authorized by the Consolidated board, H. J. Yates, president, said yesterday.

Plush, Lush, Slush

Kansas City, Oct. 27.—Fannie Hurst, novelist and short story writer, holds little hope for the movies as an expression of American creative art.

Visiting this city to speak before the Jewish Center, Miss Hurst admitted that "there have been some signs of progress, particularly in technics. But, artistically, the movies go on as plush, lush and slush as ever."

Miss Hurst didn't mention that she sold "Sister Act" to Warners the other day, or that M-G-M bought "Great Laughter" a short time back at a price reported around $100,000.

Radio Chains Going Limit On Election

Radio is now ready for the biggest special event job in its history—the airing of the national election returns on the night of Nov. 3. Early indications are that many exhibitors, as in previous presidential elections, will tie in through receiving sets and broadcast the returns in their lobbies or in the theatres proper at stated intervals.

NBC has marshalled a staff of more than a half-hundred persons, including announcers, editors, rewrite men, computers, engineers and technicians to bring the returns to the radio audience.

The arrangements at CBS and Mutual are no less elaborate.

The country's four principal news gathering agencies, A.P., U.P. I.N.S. and Universal, will combine to feed

"Can't Happen" Is Leftist Frolic at Taxpayers' Cost

"It Can't Happen Here," the widely discussed Sinclair Lewis novel, done into dramatic form by John C. Moffitt and Mr. Lewis, was presented at the Adelphi theatre last night as a Federal Theatre project under the Works Progress Administration. The presentation was one of twenty-three like events, two taking place elsewhere in New York City and the remainder in other cities throughout the nation. Two versions were in Yiddish, one here and the other in Los Angeles. A Spanish version was offered in Tampa, Florida.

The play is a garrulous soap-box discussion, virtually barren of anything bordering on a play of dramatic merit. In a theatre crowded with first-night enthusiasts and a generous sprinkling of persons with a political ax to grind, it received a markedly lukewarm reception.

The story, difficult to follow in its dramatic form, and at many moments

Treasury May Investigate 'Amphitryon'

Law Requires Indication Of Country of Origin

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—There were indications here today that the Treasury Dep't, which has jurisdiction over the Customs Bureau, might launch an inquiry into the importation of the film "Amphitryon" on the basis of the story which appeared in MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Monday.

The German origin of the film in question, which was designated and advertised as having been produced entirely in France, was revealed in MOTION PICTURE DAILY following an investigation. It was scheduled to play at the 55th St. Playhouse in New York, but the showing has been indefinitely postponed.

The department, it was explained,

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THE adding machine in us began to tick away at a furious click yesterday. Furnishing no respite, nothing else would do but a foray into columnizing, tabular not typewriter, until the conclusions became whatever they were to become. It all had to do with a long array of financial reports which have been appearing in the New York Times in the last handful of days. This being the ordinary time of the year for public companies to report the status of their financial condition, that newspaper has been going to it in hammer-and-tongs manner. The results were interesting. . . .

Of a total of 104 companies telling their all, or nearly their all, on the basis of nine months' operation so far this year, fifteen reported a loss. Seventy-eight, however, turned in profits and some of them were not merely handsome, but imposing. The difference between the losers and gainers in the total went to corporations which failed to compare the rate of current earnings with previous periods. Thus, they were eliminated. What interested us and may you was the range these enterprises roamed. . . .

They went from Skelly Oil and United Biscuit to Casco Products, the Square D Company, whatever that may be, and the Kalamazoo Stove Company and dipped into a sufficiently variegated assortment of enterprises to cinch the impression that industry at large is having a time of it these days, a pleasant time. The conclusion is not far behind and it is axiomatic that unemployment has decreased, that more money is in circulation and that, reasonably enough, exhibitors are getting their share. It is proper to point out, while we are at it, that Hollywood, for an emphatic once in its life, is delivering a steady flow of attractions, sufficient in calibre to hold old quarters and attract new ones and that the sun shines practically every day now. . . .

It's no use. The excitement over "Tovarich" and who makes it is over. As a matter of fact, it has been over for a neat eighteen months, the rights reposing triumphantly in the Warner coffers or wherever it is they deposit their vehicles for future use. Jack L. Warner said as much upon his return from Europe yesterday. And that makes curious indeed the message from Jake Wilk, via the usual secretarial route, that "there was nothing to it" on the pre-Warner-arrival effort to check into the very matter now confirmed. . . .

So barren has been the New York stage season thus far that the interest in "Tovarich" takes on an importance which, by the normal appraisal of values, is considerably exaggerated. The play, from the French of Jacques Deval, is amusing and touched up by the gallantry of its two principal characters, played here by Marta Abba and Jack Halliday. Yet, its pivotal dramatic situation in which Halliday, representing the Czarist regime, relinquishes four billion—billion is correct—francs to the emissary of Red Russia for love of mother country and to keep foreign oil concessionaires from cutting up native soil is pretty much of a phoney no matter how you approach it. . . .

The play garnered pretty swell notices from the Atkinsons, the Wattses and the Andersons. Sweller notices than actually it rated and explainable because the stage so far has blossomed forth so sparsely. The cost of new plays to date, taking it from a qualified expert as learned as Lee Shubert, has been $300,000 and the results, costly and generally ineffectual. This reminds us that we have been meaning to crow loudly and even blatantly about the sort of a job Hollywood is doing week in and week out. Comparisons, according to the best books on quotations, continue to be odious. Odoriferous might be the fitting adjective to describe the current status of the exalted theatre. Yet there is one factor about which we should appreciate light if some kindly disposed soul would venture it. We do not understand the judgment, in the very first instance, that has persuaded stage producers to embark on their junk parade. . . .

Reflecting the town pump complex, inherent in this business whether you deplore it or whether you're for it, was an incident of yesterday. At the Astor and at one table having lunch which they had to have somewhere anyway, were Barney Balaban, president of Paramount; Jimmy Grainger, general sales manager of Universal, and Junior Laemmle. Thereafter and throughout the afternoon, the telephones of one or more of the dramatis personae rang lustily, seeking information and asking questions. Now as a matter of puncturing what might otherwise be a perfectly good mystery story, all there was to it was this: Laemmle had never met Balaban. Grainger arranged that they should and was there to send the conversation over the dead spots, if and when. . . .

Ask Canadians to Discuss Music Tax

Arrangements for the meeting of E. C. Mills, Ascap general manager, and Leslie Boosey, president of the British Performing Rights Society of London, with Canadian exhibitors, are being made by officials of the Canadian Performing Rights Society in Toronto, where the meeting will be held on Friday.

Representative Canadian exhibitors will be asked to attend the meeting, which is being called to enlist exhibitor support in clearing up the music tax problem resulting from the adoption of new Canadian regulations governing music licensing rates which may be charged in the Dominion. Ascap and the British organization, owners of the Canadian licensing society, assert that if a solution cannot be reached the Canadian unit may cease operations, which would either prevent the licensing of musical productions for exhibition in Canada or would make it necessary for exhibitors there to negotiate individually, for music licenses for such productions.

Mills and Boosey plan to return to New York immediately after the Toronto meeting. Boosey is scheduled to sail for London next Wednesday on the Queen Mary.

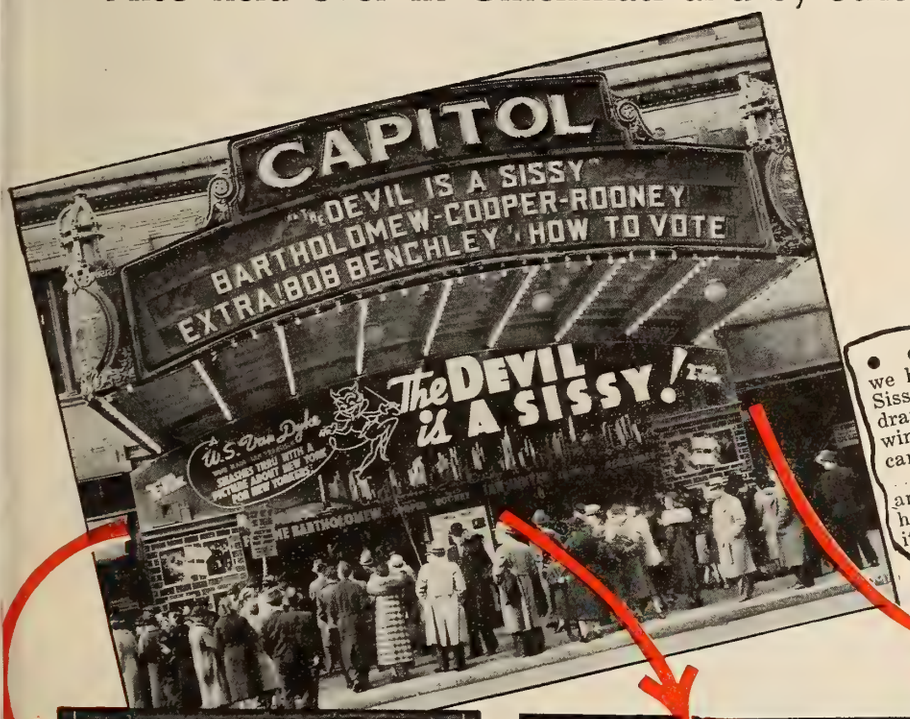
Dinner Fund Up $700

After paying all expenses in connection with the affair, the committee handling the William F. Rodgers testimonial dinner at the Waldorf recently has completed its accounting with an additional $700 profit, which will be given to the M-G-M general sales manager. At the dinner, the committee presented Rodgers a check of $2,000, which he said he would donate to charity, or to whatever funds he saw fit.

New World Borrowing

LONDON, Oct. 17.—New World Pictures, Ltd., the Robert T. Kane unit which made "Wings of the Morning," first British all-color feature, has issued a debenture for £300,000 to Denham Securities, with a specific charge on the negatives of four pictures to be made by the company and a floating charge on the general assets.

ITOA to Discuss Sales



The sales policies and method of selling by a number of unnamed distributors will be discussed today at the I.T.O.A. meeting at the Astor. Several out-of-town exhibitors are expected to attend.

JOHN EDGAR HOOVER
DIRECTOR

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION
U. S. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
WASHINGTON, D. C.

I want to take this opportunity to congratulate the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures Corporation upon its series of "Crime Does Not Pay" pictures. I have personally viewed several of these pictures and feel that they are performing a most worthwhile purpose in helping to curb crime.

In my opinion, every public-spirited citizen should be alert to the viciousness of organized crime throughout the United States and the lesson that there is no romance in a life of crime should be taught at every opportunity. The youngster should be impressed with the fact that he cannot get anything out of a life of crime but sorrow and that those who think they can make crime pay wake up too late to find that crime has made them pay.

The "Crime Does Not Pay" series has been most helpful in bringing this lesson to the motion picture public, and I take pleasure in commending the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures Corporation upon this series.

Sincerely yours,

J. Edgar Hoover

USE IT IN YOUR LOBBY TOO!

- It is an honor to acknowledge the tribute of Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, and a privilege to reproduce it here.

- M-G-M'S "CRIME DOESN'T PAY" series have achieved a triple success.

- They have been a source of profit to theatres; they have entertained millions; they have done our nation a service.

The Next One in M-G-M's Great Series!

"THE PUBLIC PAYS"

Two gripping reels of vivid drama that is vital to every man, woman and child in your audience! The most absorbing of them all! Get ready for it!

Theatre Boom On in England, Warner States

had closed the 'Tovarich" deal a year and a half ago when the play opened in England.

That the company was extensively interested in the legitimate theatre was stressed by Warner, who asserted that in addition to "Sweet River," which opens tonight at the 51st St. Theatre, George Abbott will produce "Brother-Rat" and "The Nightingale" with Warner financing. No players were signed abroad, he said.

On the same ship was Fernand Gravet, who had been signed six months ago by Mervyn LeRoy. He will remain in New York for eight days and then leave for Hollywood, making stopovers at important cities. He has never visited the United States. His first picture, "The King and the Chorus Girl" with Joan Blondell, will be in the nature of a test film, he stated. Gravet's contract provides that LeRoy must direct the picture. After completing "The King and the Chorus Girl," Gravet will return to France where he has another picture commitment. LeRoy will begin production on Nov. 16.

Met by Hal Wallis

Gravet said his continuance in American films is contingent on the success of "The King and the Chorus Girl." He speaks perfect English.

Meeting Warner and Gravet at Quarantine was Hal Wallis. He stated Warners next month will place in production "Danton," "Prince and the Pauper," "Call It a Day," "Slim," and "The Singing Marine." "Danton" and "Robin Hood" will each be produced at a cost of $1,000,000, he asserted. The latter will go into production after the first of the year.

Louise Fazenda, Wallis' wife, is now working in "Ready, Willing and Able" at Warners, after which she will transfer her makeup to the RKO lot for one picture. From three to four pictures a year is the future plan for Miss Fazenda.

New Talent Bureau Gets Started Here

Central Artists' Bureau, formed recently for the purpose of bringing out new talent and doing a general booking business, has taken offices in the Brill Bldg.

Irvin R. Gwirtz, Sam G. Harris and Harry D. Goldberg are backers of the project.

Goldberg has been an executive with Paramount, Universal, Fox and RKO. Gwirtz has been affiliated with the Motion Picture Bureau, and Harris has been a vaudeville booker and at one time was with Paramount's eastern studio.

"Can't Happen" Is Leftist Frolic at Taxpayers' Cost

exceedingly pointless, is an indictment of fascism and dictatorship at large. It undertakes to sketch a situation in which a windy demi-god attains the presidency of the United States, aided and supported by a political army. Immediately following the election events reminiscent of those reported from Germany and Italy commence to take place throughout the country. Eventually there is a revolt, at first nurtured quietly underground and then finally leading, presumably, to a return to democracy, although this latter development trails off among other obscurities of the play. The cast is industrious.

It will be recalled that this story was withheld from motion picture production on the grounds that it appeared to contain elements inimical to the public welfare. There was also probably the consideration that certain foreign markets might not relish the state of affairs depicted under a dictatorship. Apparently the authorities of the Works Progress Administration entertain no such scruples as to the public weal and as far as what the other nations may think it is probably felt that is what the State Department is for.

Moffitt-Lewis Efforts Futile

Dramatically and histrionically the production is quite without merit. Hollywood, if it set about the task, doubtlessly could whittle an entertainment out of the elements of the story. But this decidedly has not been done through the aid of Mr. Moffitt and any assistance Mr. Lewis may have rendered. Artistically Mr. Lewis may not be happy about the outcome of the play but the fifty dollars per engagement per week allotted to the author may render him tolerant of the production's shortcomings.

The play will cause a sharp, emphatic bit of wonderment in the minds of many persons whose ears are not pleasantly attuned to the strident tones of the Internationale. Done as a piece of political propaganda by those who hate democracy only a little less than they hate fascism it would be just another voice amidst the enveloping clamor. But done by the authority of the United States Government, through an agency wholly within its control and, incidentally, out of public funds, it raises a loud and resounding question.

Largely Illogical

There will be those, for instance, who will wonder about lines of dialogue classifying the United States with the nations of brutal conquest; about the burlesque of the opposition candidate's alleged lack of a foreign policy; about the villification of manufacturers generally with a shot at the steel industry. A rousing cheer for the class war can hardly escape notice. There will be those who will remark that it is odd that the international neutrality of the State Department does not include its adjoining bureau. And it even may be noticed that this wholesale and nationwide production of "It Can't Happen Here" has taken place on the eve of a national political election.

"Can't Happen Here" Presented in Newark

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 27.—"It Can't Happen Here," produced by the New Jersey unit of the Federal Theatre, opened here tonight at the City Theatre to an audience of about 1,100. WPA workers predominated in the audience.

Reaction to the production was warm but generally controlled. Anti-fascist sympathizers indulged in some over-enthusiasm but there were no real demonstrations of feeling.

The play is expected to run three weeks. The house has been engaged for several performances by radical organizations.

Renew Talks of Big Claim Against RKO

at which the claim should be allowed is now being awaited from Federal Judge William Bondy.

Following the trustee's attempts to settle the claim, the Atlas Corp.-Lehman Bros-RCA interests devoted about six months to settlement attempts and then, abandoning them, attempted to reach an agreement with Rockefeller Center on the amount of new RKO securities which should be issued for each $1,000 of the claim when the courts have finally decided the amount in which it should be allowed.

Resumption of the settlement discussions is understood to have been undertaken in an effort to speed the completion of the RKO reorganization plan. While the negotiations promise any hope of success for the immediate future, the Federal court will probably defer its decision on the allowance of the claim, at the behest of the negotiators.

Effort to Speed Plan Seen

Atlas-Lehman-RCA efforts are now centered on completing the RKO reorganization plan before the end of next week, but the success or failure of the current negotiations with Rockefeller Center probably will affect the realization of that objective. Failure to reach an agreement at this time on this largest of the unsecured claims against RKO might, however, result in its being left for treatment apart from the reorganization plan, which would not unduly delay submission of the plan to the court. Provision could then be made for subsettlement is made at some date in the future.

Projection Revenue Builder—Richardson

Theatre Supply were joint hosts at the function, second in the series under way this week.

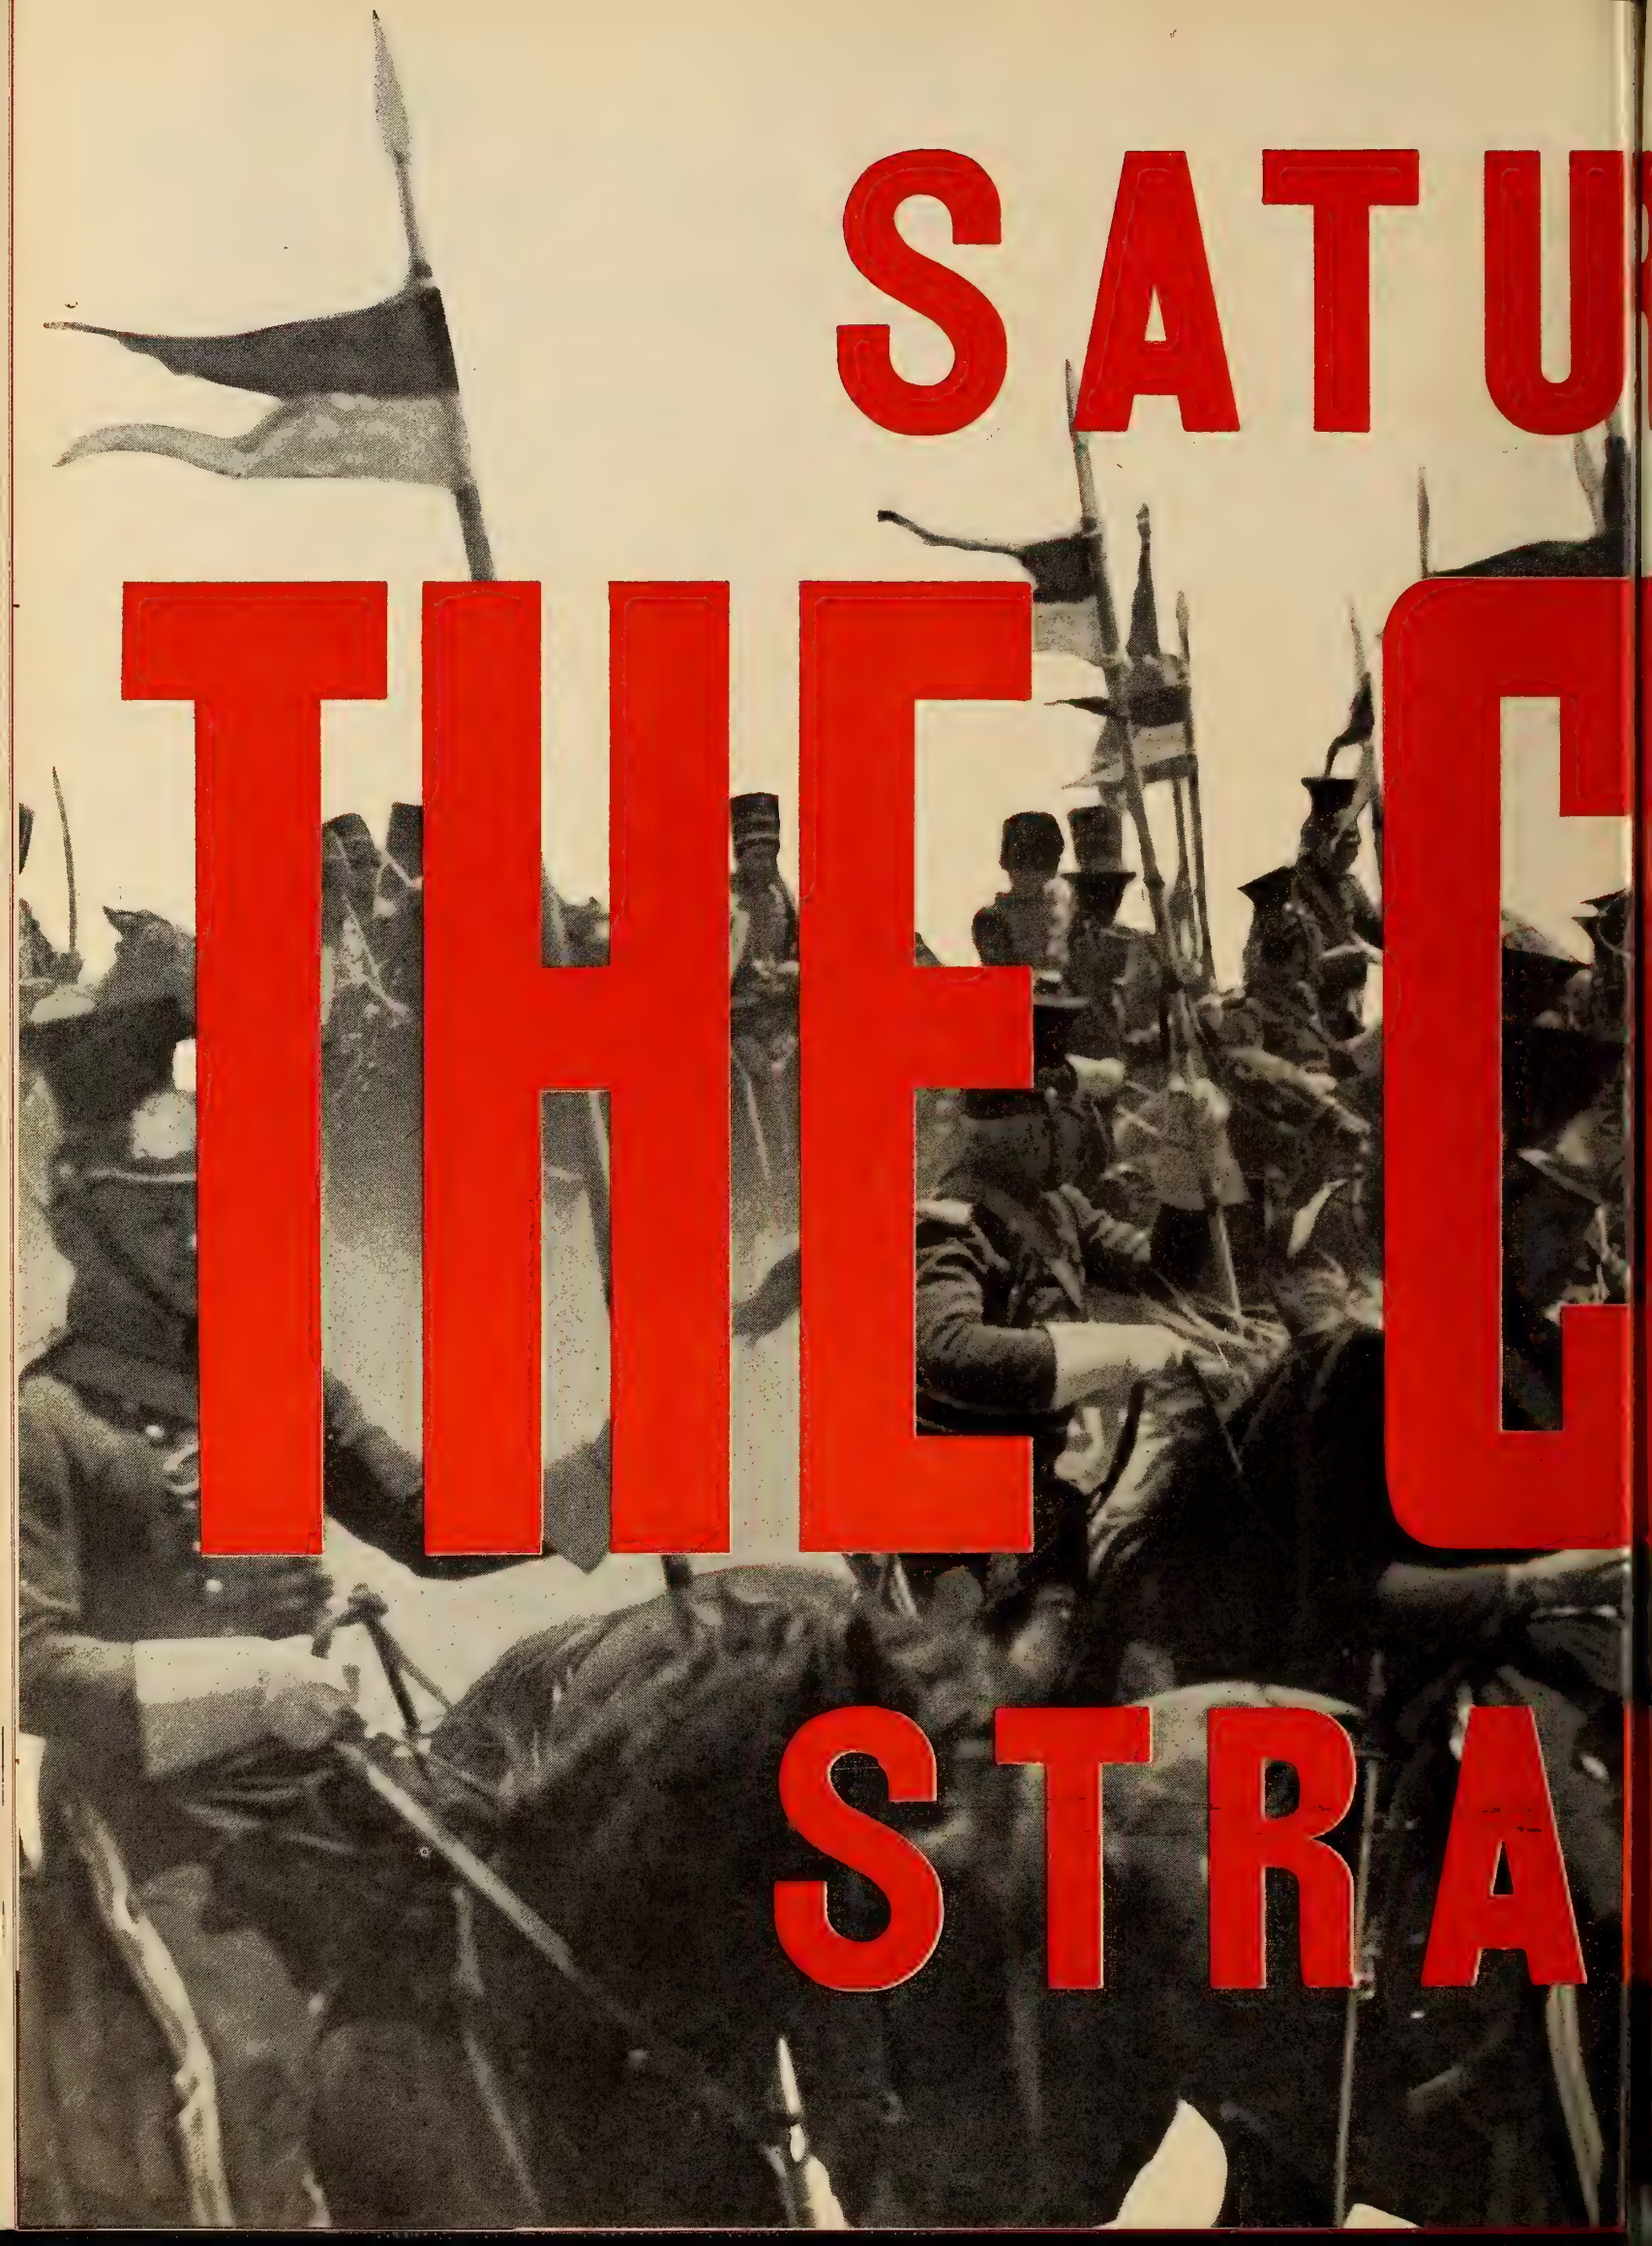
"If each theatre in the United States spent only $100 a year additionally to constantly better its booth, millions in added return would follow," he declared.

H. Griffin, vice-president and general sales manager of International Projector, was the toastmaster at the luncheon with approximately 55 present. Walter Green, president of National Theatre Supply, was chairman of the day. The speakers included Dr. A. N. Goldsmith, who stressed the value of Richardson's contribution officially on behalf of the Society of M. P. Engineers, which was also represented by its newly elected president, S. K. Wolf of Erpi. Martin Quigley and Terry Ramsaye were among others who paid recognition to Richardson's endeavors and the final, brief remarks were made by Earle G. Hines, representing General Theatre Equipment, Inc., and International Projector.

Long Guest List

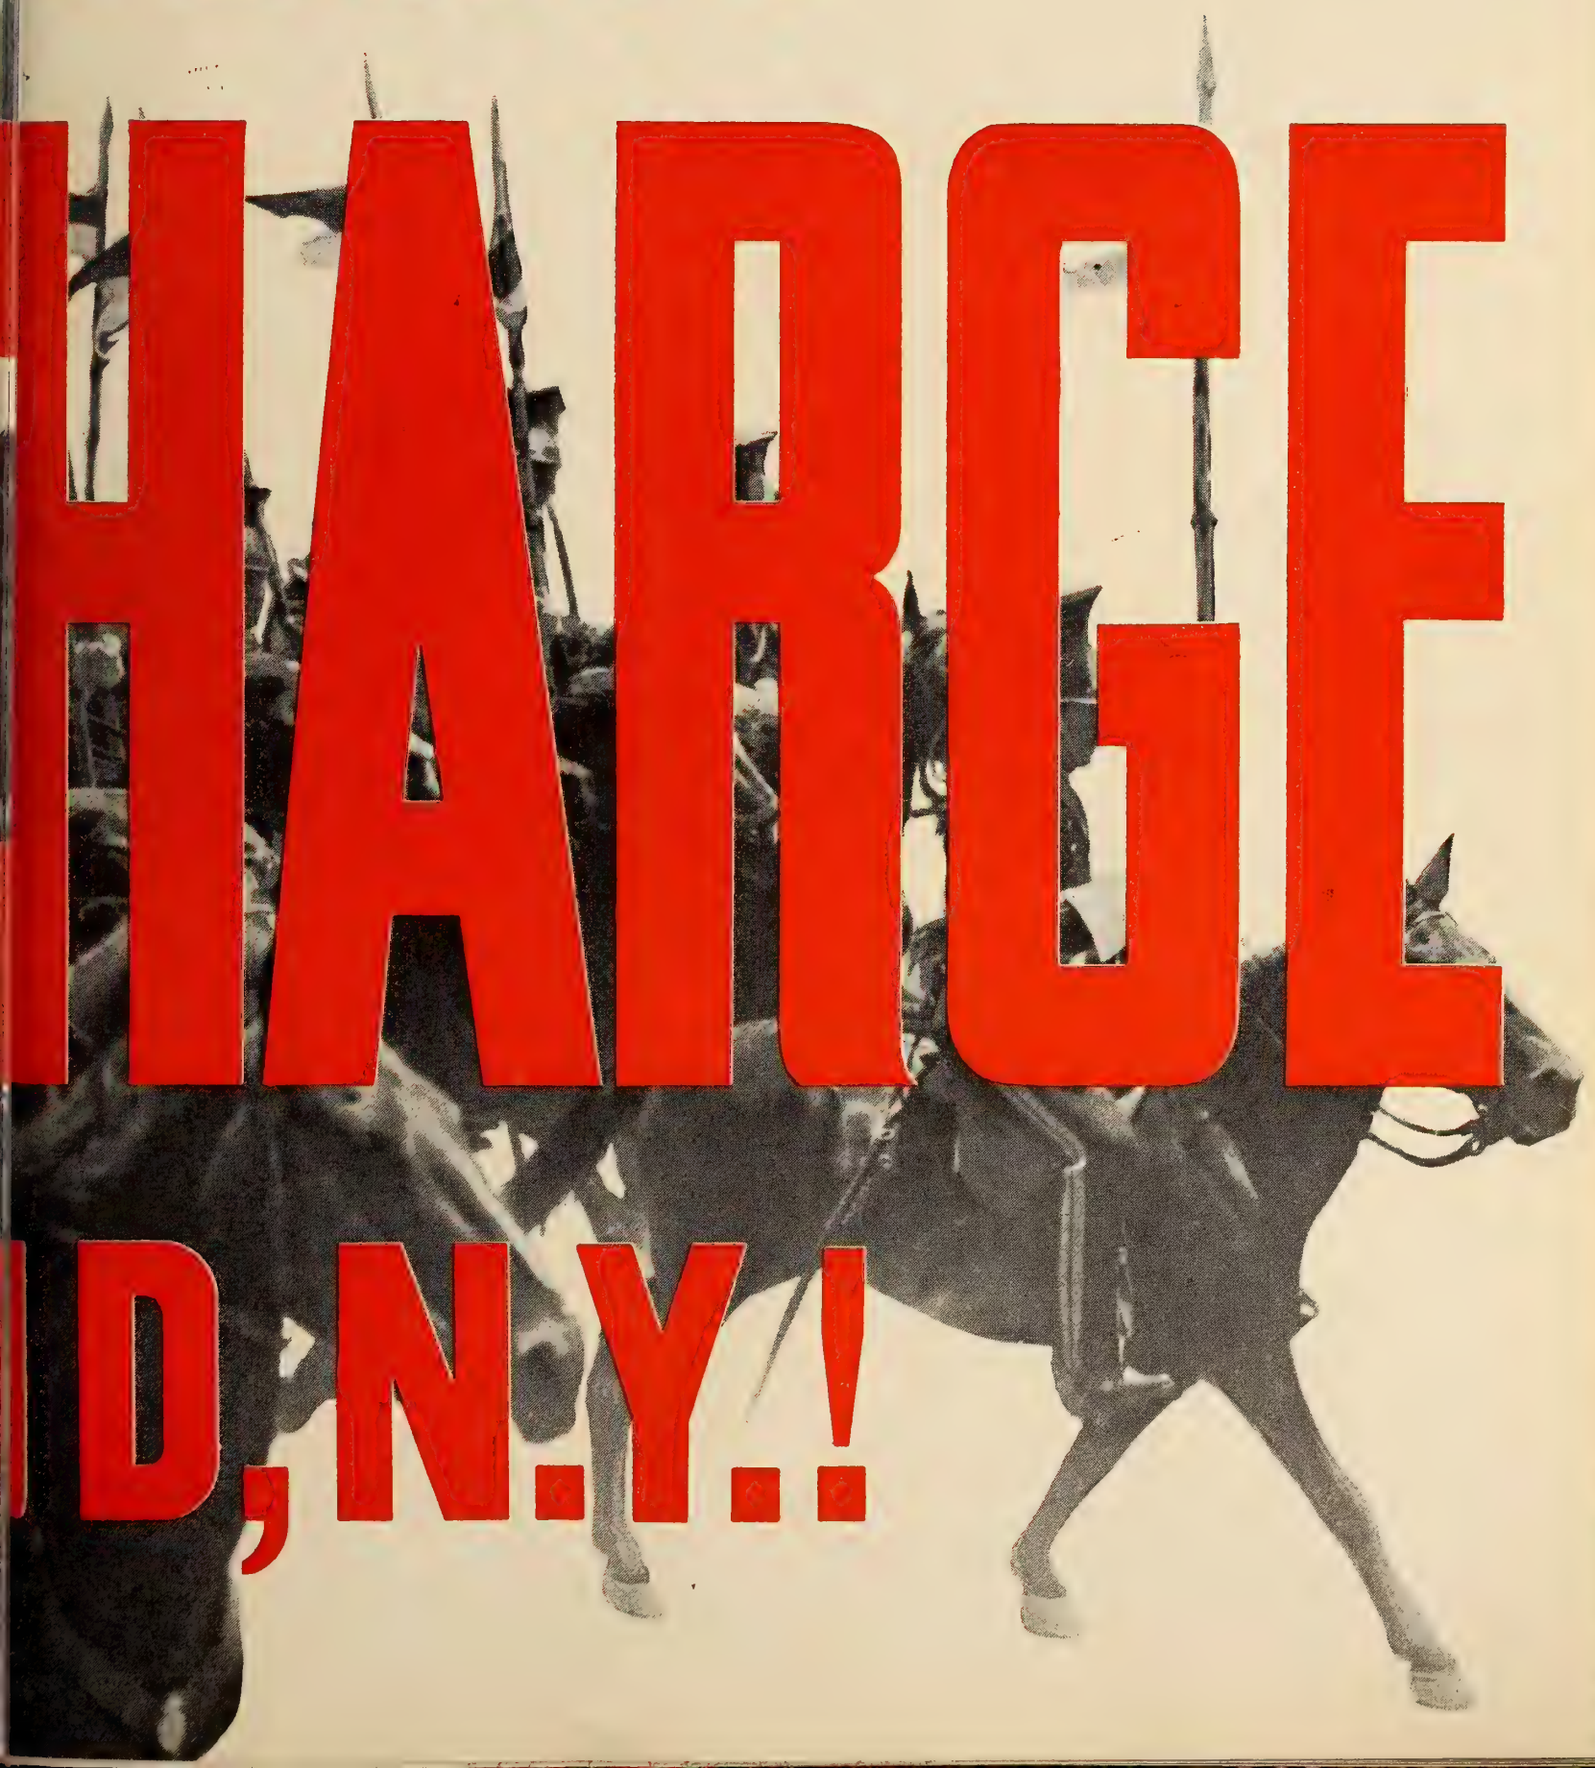
Those present included Colvin Brown, P. A. McGuire, Sylvan Harris, William A. Reed, Cecil R. Wood, Sr., William W. Byrne, John R. Krulish, Will C. Smith, George C. Edwards, W. C. Kunzmann, P. D. Ries, Tony Ruginio, Otto Nelson, E. R. Morin, M. F. Heidigger, J. Frank, Jr., P. J. Haller, G. A. Erickson, Rudy Kneuer, Joseph D. Basson, Frank J. Ruddock, Harry Ruben, M. D. O'Brien, Lester Isaacs, A. J. Palmer, H. Stengel, A. S. Dickinson, A. E. Meyer, Alfred R. T. Bishop, F. J. Nolan, F. A. Healey, J. J. Connolly, M. C. Carroll, Oscar Neu, Ben Shlyen, Leo Brady, M. Turnbull, J. N. Servies, Larry Jones, Martin F. Bennett, Jr., D. Shea, J. J. Finn, A. L. Raven, Ray Gallo, George Schutz, H. Levine and Red Kann.

Of interest was an inspection of early projection equipment assembled by the American Projection Society, which tendered Richardson a midnight supper at the same hotel last Saturday.



Today Pioneer Day

Today will be Pioneer Day in the course of the celebration of the 70th birthday of F. H. Richardson, the day's activities being sponsored by the Pioneer Projectionists' Ass'n. In connection with the historical exhibit of old projection equipment at the Hotel Pennsylvania, the pioneer group will hold an informal luncheon for Richardson and William Reed, the oldest projectionist in the country.



Julian Bryan Returns

Returning after a five-month trip to Turkey, where he photographed Ataturk Mustapha Kemal, and scenes in Bulgaria, Russia, Roumania and France, Julian Bryan, March of Time cameraman and lecturer, brought back 10,800 feet of film, he said yesterday on his arrival on the Ile de France. This was his seventh annual visit to Russia.

On Nov. 2, he will start a lecture tour, opening at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia. He will appear at the Town Hall, New York, on Dec. 5.

Rules Pennsylvania Court Has Fox Case

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—Judge George A. Welsh has ruled that the U. S. District Court for Eastern Pennsylvania has jurisdiction in the suits filed to settle the ownership of about $500,000 in a brokerage account here held by the All-Continent Corp.

Claimants of the fund are the All-Continent Corp., owned by Mrs. Fox and her two daughters; Capital Co., San Francisco, which holds a judgment against Fox, and Hiram Steelman, trustee for Fox creditors in the bankruptcy action pending in New Jersey.

Predicts New Contempt

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 27.—Robert E. Steedle, Federal refereee in the William Fox bankruptcy hearings, said today he would certify Herbert Leitsteen, Fox family bookkeeper, in contempt as soon as the necessary papers could be prepared.

Mrs. Fox has already been certified in contempt and her case is under advisement before Judge John Boyd Avis in U. S. District Court at Camden.

Leitsteen today refused to answer questions put by Walter Hanstein about All-Continent Corp. affairs. Leisteen read a statement prepared by counsel, he said.

Elsie Finn Asks Withdrawal

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—Elsie Finn, film editor of the Philadelphia Record, has filed a petition seeking withdrawal from the suit filed against RKO and Frank Beetson in her name and that of David Wittels, her collaborator on "I Dream too Much."

In her petition she claims the original conspiracy suit was filed without her knowledge or consent and that she did not know of it until notified by an attorney for Wittels. Her petition has been filed in Common Pleas Court.

Skouras Decision Reserved

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 27.—Referee in Bankruptcy Hope today again took under advisement the report of the trustee in the sale of Skouras Brothers Enterprises, Inc., after Thomas N. Dysart of the bondholders' protective committee raised his bid $25,000 to meet the informal offer made by Arthur Greene and associates of Chicago.

Hope indicated that he probably will recommend acceptance of Dysart's new offer within the next few days. It is equivalent to $342,600 in cash.

Jubilesta Turns in $9,287 K. C. Profit

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 27.—The Jubilesta, the eight-day, $125,000 jubilee fiesta show to introduce Kansas City's new Municipal Auditorium the last of September and first of October, netted the city a profit of $9,287.

Cash receipts were $87,696.80. Of this amount, $73,165 went for George White's Scandals, Rubinoff, Bob Burns, etc.; $10,773 for salaries and services, and $11,078 for advertising.

The Jubilesta committee will meet in January to discuss the next annual affair in the fall of 1937. Next year a bigger guarantee will have to be pledged by merchants and others, Conrad Mann, committee chairman, believes.

For most theatres the affair was a headache.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Come and Get It"

(Goldwyn)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27.—As close to the last word in entertainment value, this will bring increased prestige not only to Samuel Goldwyn but also to the industry at large. The excellence of story, screenplay and direction are accentuated by lavish mounting that overlooks no detail. Typically American in theme and plot, the film combines heart appeal with a gripping characterization by Edward Arnold.

Arnold is an ambitious lumber camp boss who will allow nothing to stand in the way of his determination to become a lumber king. Ruthlessly he casts aside the dance hall girl who is his physical and spiritual mate, to marry Mary Nash, the daughter of his boss. When Joel McCrea and Andrea Leeds, children of the marriage, reach maturity, Arnold discovers that his first love has married Walter Brennan, his former lumber buddy, and borne a daughter who has matured with all the beauty of her mother.

Falling in love anew, Arnold is faced with the rivalry of McCrea, his own son. Artfully, both fence for the favor of the girl with the climax reached in physical combat between the pair, after which Arnold learns that his love regards him as an old man. He retires ungraciously, but pathetically as the picture ends.

Frances Farmer plays the dual role of mother and daughter, giving a delicately shaded performance. She is always convincing as a prize worthy of any masculine effort. In subplots, Miss Leeds scores in a romance with Frank Shields. Mady Christians, Cecil Cunningham and Edwin Maxwell give interesting characterizations. The screen play of Jane Murfin and Jules Forthman faithfully portrays the Edna Ferber novel, as does also the direction, jointly credited to Howard Hawks and William Wyler. The photography by Ray Bingler and Paul Eagler in the opening lumber camp scenes and by Gregg Toland and Rudolph Mate in the later sequences approaches close to pictorial perfection. The film as a whole is a real prestige builder and looks like a natural in all houses from de luxe runs downward.

Production Code Seal No. 2,793. Running time, 103 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"The Lonely Trail"

(Republic)

Another chapter in that endless saga of the building up of the southwest is offered in "The Lonely Trail" but as it unreels there is presented a stirring and exciting story played with much movement against compelling backgrounds. It is possessed of those qualities which make good entertainment.

In the period of Reconstruction following the Civil War, affairs in Texas lure John Wayne and Jim Toney. As they come on the scene they are aroused by the villainy of Cy Kendall, an overbearing, slick carpetbagger who has the community under his thumb. Following a brush with Kendall's "troops" they join up with him as a means to an end. Turning the tables on Kendall's men they aid Ann Rutherford's hunted brother to escape and later they are captured. They make their escape and after an exciting series of events affairs are finally straightened out to the detriment of Kendall.

Miss Rutherford is good in the feminine lead, Wayne rides well. The cast includes Yakima Canutt, Lloyd Ingraham and Danny Meadows. William Noble's photography is excellent. Joseph Kane directed. The original story is by Bernard McConville, who collaborated with Jack Natteford on the screen play.

Production Code Seal No. 2,213. Running time, 55 minutes. "G."

Set "Lloyds" Premieres

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27.—"Lloyds of London" will have simultaneous world premieres on a roadshow basis at the Carthay Circle here and at the Astor in New York. Nicholas M. Schenck stated that the opening will take place in about a month. He paid tribute to the national and international appeal of the film.

"U" Signs Barbara Reed

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27.—Universal has signed Barbara Reed for the feminine lead in "Treve," Albert Payson Terhune dog story, soon to go into production. The cast will be headed by Charles Winninger and Noah Beery, Jr., with Alma Kruger, Hobart Cavanaugh, and "Tuffy" the dog also in prominent roles.

Says 10% in Conn. Not Using Long Reel

With 160 theatres in the state, exclusive of 140 schools and churches showing films, approximately 10 per cent of the houses in Connecticut are not using 2,000-foot reels, it was stated by Earl R. Morin, inspector for the state police, prior to his return to Fairfield, Conn.

There is no law against the use of the larger spool, Morin said, and exhibitors have been using them for some time. However, the exchanges do not send out prints in 2,000-foot containers.

Morin visits New York once a month to inspect latest developments in theatre accessories. Theatre owners in Connecticut are not permitted to install a new device unless passed by the inspectors.

British Exhibitor Dead

LONDON, Oct. 19.—E. E. Hewitson, president of the CEA in 1927-8 and an original member of the Advisory Committee under the Films Act, died in Birmingham yesterday from heart failure, aged 63. Three times mayor of Smethwick, he had several theatres in the Birmingham district.

Harvey Hunt Married

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—Harvey Hunt, booker at the head office of Famous Players Canadian Corp., has married Adele Cashman. Mrs. Hunt is a former film exchange employe.

Post, Cooper Marry

LA VEGAS, Oct. 27.—Guy Bates Post and Lillian Kemble Cooper, film players, were married here yesterday.

Change Horton Title

Radio Chains Going Limit On Election

lection returns to NBC and CBS, via he Press Radio Bureau. Mutual will ie fed by Transradio.

Remote pick-ups will be made by all etworks from the Democratic Nation-il Headquarters in New York, from President Roosevelt's Hyde Park ome; from Republican National Headquarters in Chicago, and from Governor Landon's home in Topeka.

Commentators handling CBS as-ignments will be the veteran H. V. Kaltenborn, Bob Trout, and Hugh Conrad. Dave Driscoll, Vincent Con-olly, Gabriel Heatter and Raymond Gram Swing will bring the results and nterpret the news for Mutual. Gra-am McNamee and John B. Kennedy will act similarly for NBC.

WOR and Mutual election returns will be sponsored. Chevrolet will pay for the early evening bulletins begin-ning 7:15 P.M. and concluding at 10:50 P.M. From 11:15 until the election has been conceded, the Mod-ern Industrial Bank of New York will provide the news flashes.

The Mutual network will air a 30-minute sustainer, from 10:15 to 10:45 P.M. News and election results will be picked up by remote control from Bos-ton, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cincinnati, and Chicago. The Chicago Tribune, owners of WGN, the Mutual station in the Loop City, will furnish the news for its station exclusively.

The three chains will probably car-y messages from the elected and de-feated candidates.

Report N. D. Station Deal

New Orleans, Oct. 27.—It is re-ported that former Governor Noe is flickering for one of the independent broadcasting stations in New Orleans, with a view to establishing an inde-pendent chain among the smaller sta-tions in Louisiana, part of Texas and Mississippi. The former governor, it is said, is financially interested in a number of the smaller stations in the territory.

Shift NBC Denver Station

Denver, Oct. 27.—NBC is now put-ting its blue network programs into Denver over KVOD, part-time sta-tion. The programs have been in Denver several years through KOA, leased by NBC from General Elec-tric. All commercial stations here now have chain affiliations, with KLZ the Columbia outlet, and KFEL tied up with Mutual.

Charlesworth Retained

Toronto, Oct. 27.—Hector Charles-worth of Toronto, chairman of the old Canadian Radio Commission, has been retained in an advisory capacity by the new Canadian Broadcasting Corp., which controls radio in the Dominion. Charlesworth is a former dramatic critic and film reviewer.

Reward Mystery Solvers

Kansas City, Oct. 27.—W9XBY is giving cash prizes for the first solu-tion to a murder mystery every Satur-day night at 7:30 P.M. Listeners telegraph their solutions. The pro-gram goes on at 10:15 P.M. the same night.

'Hollywood Hotel' Air Show To Warners for a Musical

The rights to "Hollywood Hotel," important Friday night radio musi-cal, have been acquired by Warners, who will convert the air opus into a film musical. This, of course, will not affect the radio program.

Dick Powell and Frances Langford, the program's stars, will be featured in the film, along with Jeanne Madden, Warner contract player, who appeared with Powell in "Stage Struck." Miss Langford, it is understood, is being loaned to Warners by M-G-M and Walter Wanger, who jointly hold her contract. Bill Bacher, director of the radio program, will assist in the adap-tation and direction of the picture.

This is the second instance of a radio program being converted into a film. Paramount recently purchased the rights to "One Man's Family," popular radio serial.

33 Banks Taking to Air

Thirty-three banking institutions in as many cities will cooperate in shar-ing the expense of a new program which begins Friday, Nov. 13. The program, as yet untitled, will be fed to the 33 Columbia stations serving the banking area. Locally the pro-gram will be heard over WABC, under the sponsorship of the Chase National Bank.

The program will feature the music of the Philadelphia Orchestra under the direction of Eugene Ormandy and talks on public services performed by the financial institutions concerned.

The banks in the sponsoring group include Chase in New York; Penn-sylvania Commercial, Philadelphia; First National, Chicago; the Marine Midland group; First National, St. Louis; First National, Pittsburgh; Fifth Union Trust, Cincinnati; Ohio Citizens Trust, Toledo; Bankers Trust, Des Moines; Rhode Island Hospital Trust, Providence; Lincoln National, Fort Wayne; American Na-tional Bank of Indianapolis; Mar-shall and Isley Trust, Milwaukee; The Detroit Bank, Detroit; and the Delaware Trust of Wilmington.

Wessel and Co. of Chicago, negoti-ated the deal.

No Rush on Radio News

Theatre owners are not exactly fall-ing over themselves in a rush to sign contracts for a news bulletin service in theatres, it was admitted yesterday by Herbert Moore, president of Trans-radio News Service, an independent agency now supplying several hundred radio stations with daily news dis-patches. Nothing concrete has been ac-complished to date, according to Moore, who indicated that exhibitors are exhibiting a discouraging lack of enthusiasm for the plan.

The plan is not a new one. The movement is now three years old and by turn has gone forward, been aban-doned, and revived many times. Moore attributes the present renewal in ac-tivity to the proximity of the national election, which has made theatre own-ers news-conscious. This has merely resulted in bringing in subscriptions for election night bulletins.

While Moore refused to comment about the attitude of the exhibitors, he stated he viewed adoption of such a service in theatres as inevitable. In the meantime, it appears that the im-mediate prospects for news bulletin readings in theatres are rather re-mote.

They're At It

Lincoln, Oct. 27.—The first freak election bet has ap-peared here, Barney Oldfield, who runs the "Theatre Top-ics" column in the Sunday Journal Star, challenging Bruce Nicoll, who pens the "Behind the Mike" depart-ment in the same paper.

Should Landon win, Nicoll must walk a block on Lin-coln's main street at high noon the Saturday following election, clad only in shoes, sox, shorts and a barrel.

Should Roosevelt win, Old-field must remove his shoes and walk a half block on his hands, same time, place and day.

NBC Plans 10th Anniversary

NBC yesterday revealed its plans for a monster banquet to be held at the Waldorf in commemoration of the chain's 10th anniversary. Nov. 9 is the evening and about 1600 guests will at-tend, the guests including the most dis-tinguished European radio officials ever assembled in the United States. They include Robert Jardillier, the French Minister of Communications; Maurice Rambert, president of the In-ternational Broadcasting Union; Eric Mattson and Dr. Carl Anders Dym-ling, heads of the Swedish Broadcast-ing Co.; Chamberlin C. Lerche, head of the Danish Broadcasting Co.; M. Pellenc, Inspector General of the French Broadcasting Co., and 20 other radio potentates representing prac-tically every country in the world. Most of them are already en route to America at the personal invitation of Lenox R. Lohr, executive head of Na-tional Broadcasting.

Fidler Picks Up Nov. 10th

After an absence of several months from the airwaves, Jimmy Fidler re-turns with his Hollywood Gossip pro-gram over the NBC red network on Nov. 10, at 10:30 P. M., in the inter-est of Ludens Cough Drops. The broadcasts will emanate from the NBC studio in the film colony.

Films Come to Berle

Milton Berle, currently featured on a Community Sing, bent efforts for months to secure a film contract. None came along, however, and so he signed a 39-week radio contract. Last week M-G-M offered a contract which Berle was compelled to turn down because of his radio commitment.

Radio Forum Resumes Nov. 9

The National Radio Forum returns to the air Nov. 9, over NBC's blue network, from 10:30 to 11 P. M., E. S. T. Oliver Kuhn, managing editor of the Washington (D. C.) Star, will conduct the forum.

The same night brings Gary Cooper to the Lux Radio Theatre in "The Virginian."

Noel Suit Up in November

Kansas City, Oct. 27.—Trial of an equity suit of Sidney Q. Noel, president of First National Television, Inc., which controls Station W9XBY, against Kansas City Power and Light, in which Noel asks that 1,025 shares of First National stock be de-livered to him, will be heard in the November term of the Circuit Court by Judge Ben Terte.

Noel alleges that on Sept. 23, the power company offered him the shares at $50 each if the deal were closed by Oct. 8. Noel wrote six stockholders, including A. B. Church, head of the Midland Broadcasting Co., which op-erates KMBC, offering them a chance to participate in the purchase. They declined.

On Oct. 8 Noel claims he personally paid in a check of $51,250, the full amount, in payment for the shares. The power company returned the check Oct. 13, with a letter from its president, Joseph F. Porter, who said the company did not consider it advis-able to sell to Noel personally and to outside associates, it is claimed.

In their answer, the defendant asks the court to determine if Porter's Sept. 23 letter constitutes a binding obligation.

F.C.C. Licenses 3 Stations

Washington, Oct. 27.—Licenses were issued today by the Federal Communications Commission for three new broadcasting stations to be located in St. Paul, Minn., Rochester, N. Y., and Sherman, Tex.

Two of the stations are limited to 100 watts power during the day. One station—that at St. Paul—will be per-mitted to operate at night, it being given 100 watts for night operation and 250 watts for daytime use.

The Commission also granted to Station WSMB, New Orleans, per-mission to increase its power from 500 to 1,000 watts and authorized Station KMA, Shenandoah, Ia., to increase its day power from 2,500 to 5,000 watts, its night power remaining unchanged at 1,000 watts.

London to Televise Daily

London, Oct. 19.—The British Broadcasting Corp. will begin regular daily television transmissions on Nov. 2, from the Alexandra Palace in North London, which has approxi-mately a service area of 25 miles.

During a trial program transmission today by E.M.I., an archery demon-stration in the grounds of Alexandra Palace was put over, and studio items included a scene from T. S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral."

"Stage" Hits Big $21,000 In Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. — "Stage Struck," with Ina Ray Hutton and Her Melodears to celebrate the sixth anniversary of its vaudeville policy, sent the Earle to top position last week, $21,000, above average by $2,600.

Loew's' Capitol, however, was big money-taker, with $21,300 for the Technicolor production, "Ramona," and a stage show.

"Murder with Pictures" beat par by $500 at the Metropolitan, for a take of $4,800.

A return engagement of "The Great Ziegfeld"—without increase in prices—took $3,700 at Loew's Columbia, above par by but $100, but only four instead of six shows were possible.

A revival of "Cynara" at the Belasco took a par $3,000 for seven and a half days.

"Dimples" at Loew's Palace slipped to $12,800, or $3,100 under average, to be the first Shirley Temple to do less than two weeks. "My Man Godfrey" at RKO-Keith's bore up swell on the third week, taking $8,000, under the first-week average by only $2,600.

Opposition: Jane Cowl in "First Lady," at the National; "Dresden Dolls," at the Gayety. Weather: Fair and seasonably cool.

Doyle Theatre Approved

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The Westminster Council has approved the general plan to erect a super-cinema, shops, a restaurant and business premises on a site in Lower Regent St., originally announced in New York by the Australian film executive, Stuart Doyle. Also approved by the council were the Schlesinger plans for the reconstruction of Daly's as a theatre-cinema-cabaret.

"Libeled" $16,000 Hit in Providence

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 27.—Playing five shows a day, Loew's State cracked out a sensational $16,000 with "Libeled Lady," which was held over. The usual take is $12,000.

Another top notch gross was captured by the Strand where "The Big Broadcast of 1937," on a dual with "Shakedown," breezed in with $11,000, which was $4,500 to the good.

"Dimples" caught $8,000 at the Majestic and was moved to Fay's for a second week. The gross was over by $1,000. At the RKO Albee, "The Big Game" and "Two in a Crowd" garnered $6,000, down by $1,000. Fay's likewise was down $1,000 with "Bengal Tiger" and vaudeville, catching $6,000.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27.—Radio has signed Mark Kelly, former sports writer and recently with Twentieth Century-Fox, to adapt his original untitled story just purchased.

"Libeled" Up In Cleveland With $22,000

CLEVELAND, Oct. 27. — "Libeled Lady" broke all Sunday attendance records at Loew's State, playing to 1,700 more people than "Mutiny on the Bounty." It chalked up a gross of $22,000 and continues its downtown run at Loew's Stillman.

The Allen take for the week was $7,500 with a split week policy. "15 Maiden Lane" had a take of $4,000 in four days, with "Bengal Tiger" grossing $3,500 the remaining three days.

"The Big Broadcast of 1937" at Loew's Stillman, where it moved from Loew's State for a second week downtown, topped the $6,000 weekly average by $200, going to $6,200 for the run.

"The Big Game" at the RKO Palace with Major Bowes' Anniversary unit on the stage, had an average $15,000 gross.

"Dimples" went $1,000 over average at Warners' Hippodrome, grossing $11,000.

The weather was cold with considerable rain. Competition consisted of "Lady Precious Stream" at the Hanna, opening of the Cleveland Symphony concerts, and a packed house to hear Kirsten Flagstad in concert.

Majestic Is Dissolved

ALBANY, Oct. 27.—A certificate dissolving Majestic Film Distributing Corp. of New York has been filed with the Dept. of State here.

Majestic operations were consolidated with those of Republic Pictures about a year ago, at which time Herman Gluckman, former head of Majestic, became identified with Republic as an eastern district sales manager.

Team Arthur-MacMurray

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27.—Paramount will co-star Jean Arthur and Fred MacMurray in "Exclusive," a story by John Moffitt. Alexander Hall will direct, and the picture will start as soon as Hall returns from his loan assignment at Radio. Charles Ruggles is also tentatively set for the cast.

In W. E. London Post

LONDON, Oct. 19.—E. M. Hall has been appointed commercial director of Western Electric, succeeding Clifford Smith, who returns at the end of the month to take a post with Erpi in New York. Hall was assistant export manager in New York.

Treasury May Investigate 'Amphitryon'

is quick to respond to all information that there have been violations of the Tariff Act, and while often such information is found inaccurate, there are enough cases where it leads to detection to make it worthwhile.

While there have been no cases, apparently, of the mismarking of films, it is believed that if the picture in question was actually made in Germany, the law would require the marking to be to that effect, even though distribution may have been handled by a French firm.

Earlier, officials of the Customs Bureau explained willingness to make an investigation of the matter should a complaint be filed with the Collector of Customs at New York, under whose jurisdiction the matter would come.

It was explained that the question whether the film was properly marked to show the country of origin could be settled only by scrutiny of the film itself, and not necessarily by the picture as shown on the screen. Under the customs law, it was pointed out, it is required that imported articles be marked to show country of origin in a conspicuous manner but not in such a way as to damage the article. Thus, a film could be marked as to source in such a way that it would not show on the screen.

Ruling Vague

Further, it was said, there apparently has been no definite ruling setting forth just how a picture should be marked. If there is any allegation that the film was not marked at the time of importation, investigation will be made to see whether it was released from customs custody without marking.

The Treasury Dep't is very strict regarding compliance with the marking regulations and does not hesitate to impose the 10 per cent penalty provided for violations.

At the French Embassy here it was said that no information or complaint regarding the film had been received.

It was indicated that if the picture actually was a German production and is being represented as of French origin, the Federal Trade Commission might act under charges of false advertising and misrepresentation. To obtain investigation by the commission, however, as in the case of other agencies, would require the submission of a complaint.

Rosener in Explanation

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27.—Herbert Rosener, mentioned in MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S story of Monday on the origin of the film "Amphitryon," operates the Clay International here, the Grand in Los Angeles and plans to open a new house in Seattle next month. All of them show, and will show, foreign films exclusively.

Rosener acts here as the main office in the regional distribution of the product of Amkino, which handles Russian pictures in this country for the state-owned Soviet production industry and for other foreign films.

Rosener, questioned today on "Amphitryon," issued this statement.

"I have a commercial interest in 'Amphitryon,' but I have never seen the picture and know nothing of its origin. Everything was handled by Globe (Distributing Co.) in New York while I was here in San Francisco. I do not know whether or not I shall show it in my Pacific coast houses."

Brill Undecided on Course

David Brill, head of Globe Film Distributing Co., said yesterday Martin J. Lewis, managing director of the 55th St. Playhouse, had asked him to refrain from making any other first run commitments on "Amphitryon" until Lewis has had an opportunity to go further into the matter.

Brill said he has not yet determined whether or not he will accede to the request of Lewis, or what the eventual disposition of the film will be.

Meanwhile, "Mysteries of Notre Dame," feature, and "Opera of Paris," short, and both French, opened at the 55th St. Playhouse last night.

Purely Personal

ELLIOTT NUGENT who arrived yesterday on the Ile de France, will leave for Hollywood today to start work in a Paramount picture. His plans to produce "Uneasy Virtue" on Broadway have been called off because of casting difficulties, he said. While in London, MARION GERING asked him to appear in a bit in "Thunder in the City," which he did —as a favor.

JEFFERSON MACHAMER, creator of the "Gags and Gals" strip in the Sunday Mirror, starts today at Astoria in a short "Amuse Yourself." AL CHRISTIE is directing.

MARION DAVIES, WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST, NIGEL BRUCE and CONSTANCE CUMMINGS will be among those sailing today from Southampton on the Queen Mary, due here Monday.

J. ROBERT RUBIN and WILLIAM ORR of M-G-M will leave for Washington today, the former by train and the latter by plane. Both will return tonight.

a premium of $.006 per person admitted, while a few pay 10 cents a seat. If the suggested new plan proves feasible, members will take the new type of insurance at the close of their present contracts. A committee was appointed to investigate the plan.

Double features and raises in admission were discussed today without any decisions being reached. W. O. Carpenter of Ohio Allied described the Akron board of exhibitors which decides when and where duals may be used. He also urged a decrease in taxes, the raising of first run admissions to a 50-cent top and a five-cent increase in the neighborhood and grind houses.

The association voted no opposition to Allied's defense fund but decided that Indiana's quota of $5,000 is too high. All contributions in this state are to be voluntary. No drive will be conducted.

Charles R. Metzger of the Hays office was another speaker.

The directors elected are: Vern Young of Gary, Maurice Rubin of Michigan City, Harry Markun, Fred Sanders, I. Holycross, H. C. Calloway and R. R. Bair of Indianapolis, Tom Baker of Monticello, Oscar Fine of Evansville, William Studebaker of Logansport, Roy Harold of Rushville, Alex Manta of Indiana Harbor, Claude Davis of Winchester, Walter Easley of Greensburg, Bruce Kixmiller of Bicknell, Leonard Sowar of Muncie, Billie Connors of Marion, Harry Vondeschmitt of Bloomington and Wendel Werner of Tell City.

Bair, who presided, stated that officers will be elected soon, probably November 5.

A dinner and floor show tonight brought the meeting to a close.

Heywood-Wakefield Refunding Plan Up

BOSTON, Oct. 27.—A special meeting of stockholders of the Haywood-Wakefield Co. has been called for Nov. 9 to vote upon a plan of recapitalization under which unpaid accumulations of $47.25 a share on the first preferred would be paid off in bonds, new preferred and cash.

At the present time the company has outstanding 6,731 shares of $7 first preferred. Also outstanding are 22,277 shares of $7 second preferred. If the proposed plan is carried out, Haywood-Wakefield will be capitalized at $673,100 of five per cent debentures.

New National Organization Before ITOA

Committee Chosen, but Details Kept Secret

Initial steps were taken yesterday for the development of a new national independent exhibitor organization with the I. T. O. A. as a nucleus, it was learned following a meeting of the local unit and a number of out-of-town theatre owners at the Astor.

Details were cloaked in secrecy, with both Harry Brandt, president, and John Manheimer, secretary of the I. T. O. A., declining to discuss any phase of the session for publication purposes.

From other sources it was learned that a group of exhibitors who did not join the new U. M. P. T. O. will form a new Quaker City unit which will serve as a second organization. An unnamed Philadelphia exhibitor yesterday spoke to the assembled theatre men and expressed a willingness to join. New Jersey and New England groups also are understood to be ready to align with the proposed plan.

Resolutions for the formation of the new national association were put over until next Wednesday, it was said,

Para. Silent About Report of Dividend

Paramount officials yesterday declined to comment on reports that dividend action on the company's first preferred stock might be taken by the board at its monthly meeting today. Accrued dividends on the first and second preferred are in arrears for the period from Jan. 1, 1935, to date.

The company's third quarter financial report which will show a substantial profit may be released by the board today. Paramount first preferred closed at 117½ on the N. Y. Stock Exchange yesterday, for a gain

New Writer-Producer Pact in Preparation

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—The abrogation of the Academy-writer-producer pact in favor of a new agreement to be reached between Screen Playwrights, Inc., and the producers seems imminent. Although the producers definitely will not violate the present contract which still has a year to run, it is reliably understood that the writers plan to make the first move by

Austria, to Sell Germany, Must Make "Aryan" Films

By HANS LORANT

VIENNA, Oct. 19.—In order to assure themselves of the German market for their films, without which they could not continue in operation, Austrian producers have been forced to confine their activities to the production of so-called Aryan films exclusively.

Several producers here attempted to produce German-speaking films without regard to the Aryan stipulation maintaining in Germany, hoping that they could obtain sufficient revenue in other countries, but found themselves mistaken. It was discovered that without the 200,000 to 250,000 marks which is the usual return from German distribution, producers could not realize a profit on production in this country.

Negotiations are under way between the German and Austrian Governments, urged by producers here, to raise the German quota on importations of Austrian product. Under the present arrangement only 14 Austrian films are allowed in Germany annually under the same treatment accorded German product, that is, booking of the films before they are seen. In addition 30 other films may be imported,

A New High

"Ladies in Love" grossed $2,020 by 4 P.M. at the Rivoli yesterday, thereby establishing a new opening day's high to that hour for the theatre in some time. The take compares with $1,900 for the opening day of "The Road to Glory" and is the best at the Rivoli since "Les Miserables."

Schwerin Has New Checking Service

Interstate Checking Service, a new entry in the field of theatre checking, will make its debut shortly. Plans of the new company will be announced Nov. 5 by Charles Schwerin, who has temporary offices in the Paramount Bldg.

Although Interstate has not started servicing any accounts, a tieup already has been effected with Postal Telegraph whereby daily receipts will be

NBC to Have New Washington Studio

National Broadcasting will build studios in Washington comparable to those in Radio City but on a smaller scale. The company is expected to announce its new point of program origin today.

The new studios in the nation's capital will occupy the entire second floor of a new building now being erected by the Trans-Lux Washington Corp. on 14th St., between New York Ave. and H. St. It is anticipated that

Fox-All-Continent Accounts Disagree

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 28.—The books of William Fox and those of All-Continent Corp. differed on the amount Fox owed that company, it was asserted at today's session of the Fox bankruptcy proceedings before Federal Referee Robert E. Steedle.

The amount of the discrepancy was not revealed in the questioning, but it was stated later that it totalled about $750,000. Accountants representing creditors have been working on the All-Continent Corp. books for months.

'Tom' Show Reaches B'way, But No Eva Reaches Heaven

Like a nostalgic bouquet out of the past, and not entirely free of thorns among its blossoms, "Sweet River" by George Abbott, nee "Uncle Tom's Cabin" by Harriet Beecher Stowe, came to Broadway last night in three acts, eleven scenes and one bloodhound.

Exactly why, is something this department cannot quite answer. It can guess and its hunch would be, with no assurance whatsoever as to accuracy, that Abbott, who produced as well as adapted with Warner financing, figured Times Square was ready for a "Tom" show. He will get his answer soon enough and this space thinks he won't like it.

If the reason for the play is something else, this reporter gives up. But, before he does, he can, at least, report

Sales Policy Stand Awaited By Kuykendall

Predicts Action Today Or by Tomorrow

Statements from distribution companies defining the concessions which they will make in line with the M. P. T. O. A. trade practice program are expected by Ed Kuykendall, president of the exhibitor organization, either today or tomorrow, the M. P. T. O. A. head said yesterday on his arrival here from the south.

Kuykendall said he had no explanation of the delay on the part of the distributors in making known their concessions. Seven of the eight major companies had given assurances they would accede to most or all of the trade practice reforms sought by M. P. T. O. A. at the time of Kuykendall's last visit here three weeks ago, and their definitive statements of concessions were expected to be made known not later than Oct. 26. The exhibitor leader stated that since his arrival yesterday he had not been in touch with any of the distribution companies and, therefore, was not informed of the reasons for the delay.

From distribution sources it was learned that at least four of seven

B. & K. Will Extend Doubles Next Week

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Balaban & Katz is expected to use duals in the "B" and "C" week houses starting next week. The "A" houses are dualling now, and as a result the independents undoubtedly will turn to double bills about Nov. 6 or the following week, as new pictures will be available to them at that time.

The independents declare they will continue a single bill policy as do the other circuits, but distributors believe they will go overboard for duals early next month.

Will Mark Don Lee-Mutual Hookup with 4 Hour Show

When the Don Lee stations join the Mutual network on Dec. 29, thereby moving the latter chain into competition with NBC and CBS on a coast-to-coast basis, the event will be marked by a four-hour program, it was learned yesterday by MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

While details are as yet incomplete, this much has been established definitely: The program will be divided in two equal parts; one half of the entertainment to be provided by the basic Mutual stations, the other half by the Don Lee outlets. The basic Mutual stations are WOR, New York; WGN, Chicago; WLW, Cincinnati; CKLW, Detroit-Windsor, and WAAB, Boston. The Don Lee stations are KHJ, Los Angeles; KFRC, San Francisco; KGB, San Diego and KDB, Santa Barbara. Mutual's Denver station, KFEL, will also participate in and contribute to the festivities.

Wallenstein Group Included

Mutual will offer a panorama of its most popular musical programs, headed by Jazz Nocturne and Alfred Wallenstein's Sinfonietta. The bands of Guy Lombardo, Shep Fields, Eddie Duchin, Cab Calloway, and other top flight orchestra units will follow in an hour-long dance presentation. Ed Fitzgerald will probably act as Mutual's master of ceremonies for the evening.

What the Don Lee stations will offer as their share toward the program has not as yet been established, although it is almost certain that many Hollywood favorites will be in the studios that evening. Conrad Nagel, now a Don Lee employe, will m. c. from the coast, with the probable assistance of Clark Gable. Brief addresses will be made by A. J. McClosker, president of WOR and chairman of the Mutual board; W. E. Macfarlane, president of Mutual; Fred Weber, Mutual general manager; and Tom Lee, executive head of the California web.

Politics Cancelling Sustainers

Politics continues to be no respecter of radio programs. With the campaign now in its final week, many of radio's most important sponsored offerings will be cancelled out to make room for political talks. Tonight for instance, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's speech on the NBC Red network kills the last half of the Vallee program.

Tomorrow night on NBC, speeches by gubernatorial candidate Bleakley, Herbert Hoover and John W. Davis kill the Waltz Time and Radio Guide shows. At 9:30 Saturday night on the Red, President Roosevelt's address, to be followed at 10:30 by Governor Landon's, ousts Irving Cobb's program, as well as a few sustainers.

Monday on the Red, the Republican National Committee, with Governor Landon on the speaker's platform, removes from the air the "Contented" Milk and Kreuger beer programs (10 to 11 P. M.). The same evening, 11 P. M. to midnight, President Roosevelt's final campaign speech delivered over the NBC Blue and Red networks, cancels a brace of dance programs.

Columbia is not so seriously affected as NBC. On Saturday an address by President Roosevelt, from 9:30 to 10:30 P. M., completely cancels the "Pet" Milk program, and the first half of the Lucky Strike Hit Parade. An appeal by Landon, which immediately follows, cuts the final half of the Lucky Strike offering.

On Monday, the eve of the election, a final address by President Roosevelt, 11 P. M. to midnight, cripples the repeats of Renfrew of the Mounted, and Pick and Pat.

A Bit Previous

Quite by accident, NBC reveals that it expects President Roosevelt to be returned to the White House. Announcing that the President would inaugurate the 1936 Mobilization for Human Needs Campaign on the air Nov. 6, NBC goes anticipatory by saying the speech "probably his first general address following the election, is expected to originate in the White House."

NBC to Have New Washington Studio

construction will be ended in April, 1937, and that the studios will be officially opened either in May or June. The building will have a separate NBC entrance and marquee.

The new quarters will double in size the facilities now available to Stations WRC and WMAL, NBC's Washington stations.

Blue prints call for an audience, or "show" studio 26 by 39½ feet, with an elevated observation booth 26 by 39½ feet; two program studios, 14 by 27 feet; two speaker studios, 10 by 18 feet; two transcription rooms; one conference and clients' audition room, and one master control room.

In addition there will be room for 18 general offices and program rooms, a music library, an artists' lounge, technical laboratories, and storage rooms. The entire floor will be air conditioned.

O. B. Hanson, NBC chief engineer, who was in charge of building and installing the broadcasting equipment in Radio City studios, is acting in a similar capacity in Washington.

Boost Pearl Via Transcriptions

Raleigh and Kool cigarettes, sponsors of the new Jack Pearl series which starts Nov. 9 on the NBC Blue network, will try an unusual stunt when the program gets under way. There were only 43 Blue network stations available when the program was signed. Desiring more coverage, the sponsor has decided to make electrical transcriptions of the weekly episodes, which will be broadcast as a "canned" program over 18 additional network outlets. Most of these stations are located in the belt from North Dakota to Texas, where the sponsor's cigarette sales are fairly heavy.

Style Show, Male-Conducted

Something new in sponsored programs will come to the air on Nov. 5, from 4 to 4:30 P. M. over the NBC Red network. It will be a style show for women, conducted by a man, Charles LeMaire. Cadillac will sponsor. Eddie Duchin's orchestra will provide the musical setting.

LeMaire will give style advice to the listeners and will introduce prominent fashion exponents. Of course, there will be Hollywood fashion pick-ups.

Want Comedian for Parker

Lennen and Mitchell, advertising agency handling the Paul Whiteman show, is seeking a comedian to balance the program when Frank Parker takes over the guiding reins early in January. Parker has been guesting periodically on the program for the past two months, but becomes a permanent feature in January when the Whiteman contract runs out. Incidentally, Whiteman, who has been broadcasting from Texas, returns to the New York studios Nov. 8.

$300,000 Transmitter for KSTP

KSTP, NBC's station in St. Paul, goes on the air with a new $300,000 transmitter on or about Nov. 11.

Film Names Surround Cooper

Gary Cooper will be in fast company when he stars in "The Virginian" on Monday night's Lux program. Screen lights assigned to assist Gary are Charles Bickford, Helen Mack, and John Howard.

Contract Allows Musicals

Burns and Allen's new contract with Paramount carries a four months' leave of absence clause. January, therefore, will find them heading east from Hollywood to appear in "I Always Say," stage musical.

Schipa, Muse, Rubinoff, et al

Short Shots: Tito Schipa, Metropolitan Opera tenor, guest stars on the Sears-Roebuck "Then and Now" program Nov. 5 . . . Deanna Durbin's new picture will be titled "Three Smart Girls" . . . Clarence Muse, colored actor heard on "Paducah Plantation," starts work on his 250th picture in January, titled "Murder on the Mississippi" . . . Elaine Sterne Carrington, author of "Pepper Young's Family," network scripter, entrains to the coast Jan. 2 to produce her play, "The Empress," in Hollywood . . . Loretta Lee, CBS songstress, will broadcast from the coast after the first of January . . . Happy Cronman and True Boardman, Warner writers, have been assigned to do the "Hollywood Hotel" story . . . Sid Silvers, who wrote "Born to Dance," Eleanor Powell's new picture, will arrive in New York in two weeks. He was formerly Phil Baker's radio stooge . . . Dave Rubinoff now dickering with Sam Saxe for a brace of Vitaphone shorts.

Continue Amateur Hour

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—The California amateur hour which was scheduled to end Nov. 2, will continue to be an NBC coast feature until the end of the year.

Conrad Nagel will stay as master of ceremonies. Donald Novis will continue temporarily, although it is believed that Jane Froman will return as featured soloist later.

Radio Not Hurting in N. O.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 28.—A check of film houses reveals that broadcasting, even Roosevelt, Landon, Gov. Leche or Rev. Gerald Smith's talks, does not detract from attendance. The morning newspapers carry the speeches in full.

In the smaller cities and towns upstate a different story can be written.

May Join Affiliated

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 28.—Station WBNO is considering hooking up with the Affiliated network, according to E. R. Richards, general manager of the station. An application for full time is also pending with the F.C.C.

Reunion for George-Faust

OMAHA, Oct. 28.—Gladys George, star of "Valiant is the Word for Carrie," held a reunion here with Arthur Faust, dramatic director of Station KOIL, with whom she was co-starred for three years in Bainbridge Players stock at Minneapolis.

To Interview Skolsky

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—Cecil B. DeMille will interview Sidney Skolsky over CBS on Nov. 2.

His subject will be none other than Sidney Skolsky, who will submit to DeMille's third degree on the Lux program.

Bennetts to Broadcast

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—Constance Bennett will be interviewed by Elsa Schallett Friday over KHJ on the Columbia network. Joan Bennett has has been set for the following week.

New National Organization Before ITOA

when Brandt will announce at least six eastern states as tied in with the setup.

The new plan is not identified with previous discussions for the creation of a new national exhibitor setup with representation in each Congressional district.

Percentages were attacked on all sides with every major company included in the harangue. Action on this type of selling was deferred until next week.

A committee was appointed yesterday to further the new independent exhibitor scheme. Efforts to learn the names of the members selected were met with this response: "There will be no statement about anything discussed at the meeting."

Several exhibitors stated that M-G-M is finding it difficult to sell under its new sales policy. However, an exchange executive answered this by declaring that practically all the important independent circuits already have been signed. The same holds true for Paramount.

O'Reilly-Brandt Talks Fruitless

Charles L. O'Reilly, president of the T. O. C. C., for many months had conferred with Brandt on the idea of creating a new national exhibitor unit along Congressional district lines. Nothing came of it. Brandt has criticized both Allied and the M. P. T. O. A., claiming that neither organization represents the interests of independent exhibitors.

Under O'Reilly's plan the proposed merger of the T. O. C. C. and the I. T. O. A. was to serve as the first unit in the Congressional system organization. O'Reilly has delayed combining his unit with the I. T. O. A. until after election. Whether this plan will eventuate is problematical, since the T. O. C. C. has been inactive for more than three years and its membership reported to have dwindled.

Van Leer to Dictograph

Arnold Van Leer, exploiteer, yesterday was appointed to post of public relations head for Dictograph Products, Inc., where he will take charge of sales promotion for the firm's New Silent Radio.

Revise S. R. Kent Claim

Sidney R. Kent's claim against Paramount will be allowed at $72,527 under an amended order signed yesterday by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe. The claim was based on an alleged breach by Paramount of Kent's employment contract in 1931, and was filed against the company in connection with its bankruptcy proceedings some time ago.

this morning that this "Uncle Tom's Cabin," or "Sweet River" if Abbott insists, is well produced, tolerably acted in the main, overtoned with interesting and usually well-rendered Negro spirituals, blessed with one half of one beautiful and touching scene and no ascension of Little Eva to heaven. The audience must have missed that because it appeared to cling to its seats awaiting the traditional finish.

The one half of the one beautiful and touching scene introduced the third act after St. Clare arranged for the sale of his slaves. In they troop, sorrowful and respectful, to surround in friendly ring and on their knees their kindly master while offstage in soft crescendoes comes the chant of the colored chorus.

Material Antiquated

But "Sweet River" or no other play has any right to rest on such flimsy laurels. It may have been because the familiar and semi-classic tale has been made static by the very weight of its years. After all, Abbott merely adapted, did not write which perhaps explains why the results are what they are. The evening, as a consequence, seemed long indeed despite an audience which hissed Legree and applauded the heroics in a minor enterprise in a lagging season.

As the play changed its title so did the theatre which housed it. Once the Warners' Warner, the Broadway frontage last night was dark while those who went found their way through the side entrance, defined in electrics as the 51st Street Theatre.

Warner money behind it does not at all mean that company will film "Sweet River." If it's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" they're after, the Brothers can always go back to the original. After all, in it Eva did go to heaven.

New Writer-Producer Pact in Preparation

voiding the existing agreement thus automatically relieving the producers of their contractual obligations.

The possibility of the new development was strongly in evidence at the dinner tendered the producers by Screen Playwrights at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel. Among the guests were Darryl Zanuck, Louis B. Mayer, Edward J. Mannix, Ben B. Kahane, Adolph Zukor, Henry Herzbrun, William Koenig, Sam J. Briskin, Harry Cohn and Joseph M. Schenck.

Committees have been named to work out details. Briskin, Mannix and Kahane will act for the producers while Waldemar Young, Paul Scofield and William Slavens McNutt will represent the writers. The first of several scheduled meetings was held today at the RKO studios. At this meeting it was pointed out that approximately two-thirds of the Academy writer members belong to Screen Playwrights.

Officers of Screen Playwrights today refused to affirm or deny the report. It is believed, however, that a definite agreement will be reached within 10 days.

Players for Drive Captains

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—Paramount's Adolph Zukor Jubilee Drive is to have honorary captains for sales districts. Their names were made known to Zukor at a studio luncheon.

The districts and their leaders are: District No. 1, Boston, Ray Milland; No. 2, New York, Lynne Overman; No. 3, Philadelphia, Marsha Hunt; No. 4, Cleveland, Eleanor Whitney; No. 5, Chicago, William Frawley; No. 6, Kansas City, Roscoe Karns; No. 7, Atlanta, Gail Patrick; No. 8, Denver, Martha Raye; No. 9, Los Angeles, Shirley Ross, No. 10, Minneapolis, Mary Carlisle; No. 11, Dallas, Dorothy Lamour. The two Canadian districts will be captained by Sir Guy Standing and Robert Cummings.

Zukor to Help in Drive

Assurances that the production forces will back up the sales department in the four-month Silver Jubilee drive which will officially get under way Jan. 3 were expressed yesterday by Adolph Zukor, president, in a message to the men in the field.

"I am sure," Zukor said, "the product coming from the studio will justify whatever you may say about it in the field.

"In looking forward to Paramount's Silver Jubilee, apart from my very deep appreciation of its dedication to me, I feel that it will afford a basis for the most successful campaign in the history of the organization.

"With an unusually high standard of product now in preparation for the new season, the jubilee should give added impetus to both production and distribution efforts.

"It is indeed gratifying to be called upon to head a world-wide drive of this sort in behalf of the company. It is to be hoped that in celebrating our 25th anniversary in the motion picture business 1937 will be a year of records for Paramount.

"And I want you all to feel that as the drive gets started I will back you up in every possible way."

Charles Reagan, western division manager, was in Chicago yesterday where he met Myke Lewis, western drive captain, and held a conference with the Windy City sales force. From there they will head for Milwaukee, Detroit and Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Milt Kusell, New York state district manager and eastern drive captain, met last night with the local exchange sales force. Accompanied by J. J. Unger, he will leave for Washington tonight and hold a meeting in the Paramount exchange tomorrow. From the Capitol, Kusell and Unger will go to Atlanta, where they are due Saturday. They will be in New Orleans on Sunday and Dallas on Monday. From then on the schedule is undecided.

Neil F. Agnew, general sales manager, will leave for Hollywood next week where he will confer with Zukor and production executives.

Starting with Jan. 1, the aim of the Paramount domestic sales force is to average a weekly revenue of $1,000,000.

Although tentative plans called for a two-a-day policy on "The Plainsmen," it has been decided to release the Cecil B. DeMille film as a special on the regular schedule. Paramount executives are anxious to get the picture into circulation as soon as possible, it was said.

Locally, Paramount has closed with every important independent circuit with only a few small accounts to be completed.

Jan. 3 to Jan. 9 has been designated as "Adolph Zukor Birthday Week."

Pollak Writes, Says He's 'Out of Woods'

Joe Pollak, former president of National Screen, who was gravely injured when he fell from the Orient Express about 20 miles from Budapest a number of weeks ago, is now "entirely out of the woods."

In one of the first communications to reach this country directly from Pollak, he says:

"During the last week I have recuperated wonderfully. I am up every day for six to eight hours getting my strength back and, although according to the doctors' statement, I still have to stay in the sanatorium (the Janos Sanatorium Budapest) for three or four weeks longer and afterwards an equal period at one of the hotels in order to fully recuperate and take further treatments, I will, at the end of that period, be none the worse off for my flight into the open spaces except for the horrible memory."

The letter was received yesterday by Red Kann.

Rifkin to Be Guest At a Boston Dinner

New England exhibitors will tender Herman Rifkin, Republic franchise holder, a welcome home dinner at the Statler, Boston, on Nov. 6. A group of former New England sales executives who have moved to New York within the past few years will attend.

Rifkin, who arrived Tuesday on the Ile de France after a seven-week trip to Russia, Poland, Switzerland, Austria, Italy, France and England, left yesterday afternoon for Boston. He was optimistic over conditions abroad, particularly Russia, where, he said, one must buy theatre tickets two days in advance, the minimum price being two rubles, or 40 cents.

Very few American pictures are shown in Russia, he said, as most of the films booked are Russian-made. During his stay in that country, the only American film advertised was "City Lights," he added.

Set Dividend Under GTE Reorganization

A dividend of $1.10 a share on its capital stock, payable Dec. 10 to stockholders of record Dec. 1, has been declared by the directors of General Theatres Equipment Corp. as an initial distribution to its stockholders.

It was stated that 95 per cent of the debentures, 89 per cent of the preferred stock and 78 per cent of the common stock of the old company has been deposited under the reorganization plan of last June. The remaining stockholders under the old regime must exchange their securities for the new issues to which they are entitled on or before Dec. 1 in order to be eligible for inclusion in the current dividend.

Looking 'Em Over

"Les Miserables"

(Franco-American)

In this, France's own film version of the immortal Victor Hugo novel, has been produced one of the finest works to come out of French studios.

The Pathe-Natan production is very long, in a sense is ponderous, and at times moves slowly, in the pace of the weighty tragedy which marks much of the story's unfolding, but in all, it is an achievement, powerful, dramatic and purposeful.

Since the comparison is inevitable, it must be recorded that it does not flow with the speed and sharply intensified pointing up of dramatic incident that was true of the Hollywood production.

The work of Harry Baur, the great European actor, as Jean Valjean, the symbol of an era of authoritative tyranny of the underdog, should rank in the forefront of any comparative estimate of previous characterizations of the beaten Valjean, whose effort to be honest after an unreasonable imprisonment, is beset by the implacable pursuit of the machine-man Javert.

The supporting cast, with Charles Vanel as Javert; Henry Krauss as the kindly priest; Jean Servais as Marius, and the others, are eminently satisfactory. Hollywood should turn attentive eyes on the child, Gaby Triquet, who as the child Cosette, has an appeal and a natural talent which make her stand out in the support.

The film has been elaborately mounted throughout, the highlights the courtroom scene where Baur acknowledges his identity to save an innocent man, the night battles in the streets of Paris, and Baur's struggle with the injured Marius through the Paris sewers, the unyielding Javert in pursuit.

Perhaps only for metropolitan audiences, although subtitle translations make understanding easy, the film is a high point in French production.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 155 minutes. "G."

"Brilliant Marriage"

(Invincible-Chesterfield)

With a story that drops from time to time into the realms of drama, comedy and romance, but never at any time convincingly, "Brilliant Marriage" has little to offer patrons who will almost immediately recognize the hackneyed plot.

Joan Marsh emotes through the story in her role as the daughter of a convict mother who has been adopted by Doris Lloyd and Holmes Herbert. This is further complicated by the arrival on the scene of Ann Codee, from St. Nazaire, the French women's prison, on blackmail intent. Miss Codee's bit after she obtains the sought after money and gets drunk, is entertaining relief, though improbable. However, Ray Walker, a reporter, meets and falls in love with Miss Marsh. Their romance is blasted when Inez Courtney, a fellow scribbler in love with Walker, spills the details of Miss Marsh's parentage. After a series of reconciliations and heartbreaking experiences Miss Marsh finally manages to get off with and married to John Marlowe, who has been her rejected suitor and silent champion all along. Miss Courtney also gets her man, Walker.

Phil Rosen is responsible for the direction. The story is by Carl Perez.

Production Code Seal No. 2,105. Running time, 64 minutes. "G."

"A Woman Rebels," opening this morning at the Radio City Music Hall, was reviewed on Oct. 26.

"Libeled Lady," Friday morning's opener at the Capitol, was previewed by wire from Hollywood on Oct. 6.

"In His Steps," now current at the Criterion, was also previewed from Hollywood on Sept. 12.

"Wives Never Know," tonight's preview at the Rialto, was reviewed on Sept. 4 from Hollywood.

"Ladies in Love," reviewed from Hollywood by wire on Oct. 5, opened yesterday morning at the Rivoli.

"East Meets West," another of tonight's previews, was reviewed by cable from London Sept. 8.

Muhl New Koenig Aide

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28. — Edward Muhl, who for some time has been in charge of contracts in the Universal legal department, has been made assistant to William Koenig. Ralph McClellan will take over most of Muhl's contract work in the future.

"Broadcast" at $62,000

"The Big Broadcast of 1937" ended its first week at the Paramount with approximately $62,000. Clyde Lucas and his band are the stage attraction. The fifth week of "Dodsworth" was good for $23,000 at the Rivoli. It was replaced by "Ladies in Love."

Short Subjects

"The Sunday Round Up"

(Vitaphone)

Dick Foran, as a struggling preacher in a western cattle town, is having his difficulties with the local saloon. With its rowdy entertainment it is luring the populace away from his church on Sundays. After a futile encounter with the proprietor Foran arranges to put on a benefit show which serves his purpose. An agreement is finally struck between the conflicting factions when the saloonkeeper discovers Foran's fine baritone voice and promises to close his watering place on Sunday on condition that Foran sing in his quartette. The film is done in Technicolor and Linda Perry, Jane Wyman, Ed Cobb, Fritz and Jean Hubert, Steve Clemente and Glen Strange give the narrative many entertaining moments. Production Code Seal No. 2,458. Running time, 21 mins. "G."

"Can't Think of It"

(Vitaphone)

Ken Murray is en route to his wedding and gets himself involved with a prison-bound gangster. Handcuffed together, Murray must go along when the criminal escapes. At the gangsters' hideout some entertaining business takes place between Murray, Sassafras and a female George Givot who, as the chief's moll, is good for many laughs. It is all done as high farce and has many hilarious moments. Production Code Seal No. 01,210. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

Sales Policy Stand Awaited By Kuykendall

major distributors have completed their programs of sales policy revisions in line with the M. P. T. O. A. proposals, but that statements incorporating them were being held up for final scrutiny by company officials before being made public. The same sources asserted that there was "an excellent chance" of the statements being ready for publication prior to the end of the week.

Kuykendall will go to New Haven on Saturday to confer there with Ed Levy, M. P. T. O. A. counsel, and will attend the Yale-Dartmouth game on Saturday afternoon. He plans to go to Philadelphia from New Haven on Sunday for a trade dinner at the Bellevue-Stratford, and returns to his home at Columbus, Miss., on Election Day to vote. He plans no return trip to New York in the immediate future.

Kuykendall denied recent reports linking him with theatre operation in the east, asserting that his plans for the future were undecided, except that he would devote himself to exhibitor organization work "at least until next March." His term as M. P. T. O. A. president expires then and, although declining to say specifically that he would be a candidate for reelection then, he commented that his plans thereafter "would be up to the M. P. T. O. A. board." Kuykendall recently leased his two theatres, located in Columbus, Miss., to M. A. Lightman operating interests.

MPTO Units to Meet

An extensive schedule of late fall and winter meetings of M. P. T. O. A. regional organizations is being set in all sections of the country to discuss legislation, trade practice and other subjects affecting exhibitors. Most or all of the sessions will be addressed by Ed Kuykendall, president of the national exhibitor organization.

Among the regional meetings already scheduled are those of the M. P. T. O. of North and South Carolina, to be held at Charlotte, Dec. 7; the Theatre Owners of Oklahoma, at Oklahoma City, Dec. 14 and 15, and a meeting of the Texas unit immediately thereafter. Others will be scheduled in the near future.

Nebraska Meeting Nov. 10

OMAHA, Oct. 28.—M. P. T. O. A. for Nebraska and western Iowa will meet here Nov. 10 and 11, according to President C. E. Williams, to discuss possible legislation, relations with producers and to elect officers.

Williams doesn't anticipate any tax action against Nebraska exhibitors because both candidates for governor have campaigned on promises on no additional taxation.

but without the special privileges accorded the 14. But on the group of 30, Austrian producers have no assurance of acceptability in Germany, hence few beyond the 14 are actually produced.

Austrian producers also are seeking a revision by which the transfer of money resulting from German distribution may be expedited. The present long delay through official clearing has resulted in costly halts in Austrian production schedules, due to the lack of available funds, and a private clearing of money is sought.

Legion Men Forming Variety Club Posts

CLEVELAND, Oct. 28.—The Variety Club of the American Legion, recently formed for show people who served in the World War, will hold its first meeting on Friday at the Variety Club, Statler Hotel, to elect officers.

Organizers of a Variety Post are Howard Roth, head of the Paramount booking department, and Dave Lederman, local attorney who produces stage plays on the side. The idea developed during the recent national Legion convention in Cleveland, and after being launched here will be extended into a national chain of Variety Posts.

Eligible to membership are musicians, stage hands, operators, theatre executives and film employes with World War records.

Col. Harry E. Long, Loew division manager, has been invited to become initial commander of the Cleveland Variety Post.

Film Men for Brunner

The candidacy of William F. Brunner for president of the New York Board of Aldermen on the Democratic ticket is being supported by a number of local and show world film men and organizations. Banded together on his behalf are:

Botsford East; Holiday

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—A. M. Botsford left for New York today via the Canal on a vacation. On his return, he will take over the producer duties formerly assigned to Chandler Sprague who resigned his Paramount post Tuesday night due to a difference of opinion on policy.

The studio bought up the unexpired four months of Sprague's pact. Bogart Rogers will handle the post while Botsford vacations.

Schwerin Has New Checking Service

wired to the company's headquarters in New York.

Schwerin yesterday denied the new service will be competitive to Ross Federal Service. He also stated it had nothing in common with M-G-M's new checking system adopted in New York, Boston and New Haven.

Schwerin is a veteran exchange man, having opened the Fox exchange in Pittsburgh about 25 years ago. For the past few years he has been in the independent exchange field there.

G. N. in 3 New Deals

Grand National has closed deals for its entire output with Central States Theatres of Des Moines, headed by H. M. Weinberg, and with the Butterfield circuit of Michigan.

Grand National has also arranged with the New York Criterion for a group of films to follow "In His Steps" which opens Oct. 30.

Zeidman to Produce "Peppers"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—B. F. Zeidman will produce for Grand National "The Five Little Peppers and How They Grew," the American classic of Margaret Sidney.

20th-Fox Studio Active

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—Within the next 10 days, seven films will go into work at the Twentieth Century-Fox studio. Already in work are seven others, and four are now being edited for early release.

Warners Take G.B. List

G. B. has closed a deal for the playing of the entire schedule in Warner theatres in the Chicago territory.

Warner Radio Move Seen as Network Step

Two Coast Stations Tied In with KFWB

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29. — Station KFWB, Warner owned and operated, has joined hands with KMPC locally and KFXM, San Bernardino, in what is viewed as a further step in the gradual development of a fourth national radio network.

At the same time, the executive personnel at KFWB is being enlarged. Under the general direction of Harry Maislich, Leon Leonardi, formerly with NBC, has been named musical director and Beverly Latham, formerly with NBC in Chicago, has arrived to assume the post of program director.

A closer cooperation between the studio in Burbank and KFWB is part of the impending development. Plans provide for the frequent use of name players. The first are Beverly Roberts and Rosaline Marquis of the Warner stock company for a Nov. 3 broadcast on "The Gold Diggers of 1937."

If and when the Warner radio idea assumes coast-to-coast proportions, the impression in radio circles here is

Fairbanks-Goldwyn Deal for One Film

No Playwright Deal Despite Financing

Although Warners, M-G-M and Paramount are participating in the financing of several Broadway shows this season, the attitude of major film companies on the basic agreement has not changed and no new contracts have been entered into with stage producers, a spokesman for the companies stated yesterday.

It was pointed out that Warners'

Para. Issues Hit New Highs; Warner Common Also Soaring

All Paramount issues on the big board yesterday hit new highs for the year. Warners common also reached a new top figure. Spirited trading in these stocks was a feature of the market with large blocks changing hands during the five-hour activity.

On a turnover of 36,400 shares, Paramount common soared to 17¼, closing at this price for a net gain of a point. Loew for the day was 16⅛. The first preferred jumped 7½ points for a closing high of 125. Low for the session was 119. Approximately 4,700 shares were sold. The second preferred reached a new high of 16, closed at 15⅞ after dropping to 15¼ for a gain of ⅞ of a point. About 18,900 shares were traded.

The number of Warner shares changing hands almost amounted to the aggregate of the three Paramount issues, which totaled 60,000. On a turnover of 57,200 shares, Warners common closed at 15, the high, after dipping to 14⅜, for ¾ of a point profit.

Paramount stock has advanced almost 20 points in the last three days and much of the gain has been credited to expectancy of dividend action on the first preferred at the monthly meeting of the board held yesterday, and the release of the company's third quarter financial report which will show the best profit for any quarter this year. The company reported following the board meeting that only routine business had been transacted and no comment concerning the financial statement was made.

Ascap Session Draws 450 to Hear Reports

Approximately 450 publisher, composer and author members of Ascap attended the organization's semi-annual luncheon meeting at the Astor yesterday. The meeting was addressed at length by Gene Buck, Ascap president, who presented reports of officers of the organization on activities since the last membership meeting during the late winter.

Good Musical Might Have Been Better; Durante Fine

Durante, the schnozzle man, might not have been red and he might not have been blue, but he was hot all right most of last night over on West 52nd Street. There, at the Alvin, the town's latest contender for musical and dollar honors entered the lists in a season of theatrical competition which has been as marked for its lack of it as it has for its plays.

"Red, Hot and Blue" is the name, and it's a good one—snappy and sprightly which is more than can be said for the entire length and breadth of the show. Not that this new Vinton Freedley play hasn't got what it takes. It has in the aggregate and despite interruptions which occurred too frequently for the good of the whole. As musical comedies go, this one went well enough, although it

Majors Again Delay Trade Policy Move

Reassert an Intention To Act, However

Distributors yesterday reasserted their intention of making concessions which will be "acceptable" to exhibitors who are supporting the M.P.T.O.A. trade practice program, but declined to commit themselves to a definite date on which announcements of their concessions would be made, Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, said yesterday after communicating with sales offices.

Kuykendall had expected announcements of the concessions to be made by at least several of the companies prior to Oct. 26. He said that no satisfactory explanation of the delay in making known the concessions was advanced by any of the companies which gave assurances that "acceptable" concessions would be made. He declined to state what policy he would pursue in the event the declarations are not forthcoming from distributors prior to his departure tomorrow from the city, but indicated that no hasty action by the national exhibitor organization which he heads was possible under the circumstances. Kuykendall pointed out that the adoption of any course of action would require the holding of a board meeting and that directors of the organization could not be assembled overnight.

"Capt. Kidds" Are Law's Aim—Patman

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—"The recently enacted Robinson-Patman law is aimed at the 'Captain Kidds' in business who have been detouring the golden rule," Representative Wright Patman said today in an address at the annual convention of the Central Supply Ass'n.

He declared that act "makes effective the original intention of the Clayton act, the prevention of direct or indirect price discrimination by the seller among his customers."

Sees No Restrictions

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 29.—The Robinson-Patman act will impose no onerous restrictions on business, former U. S. Attorney Felix H. Levy said here today before the Manufacturers' Ass'n of Connecticut.

Leo Spitz on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—Leo Spitz, president of RKO, arrived here from New York and Chicago today. He is expected to remain for about two weeks.

Fox Bankruptcy Case Goes Over to Nov. 10

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 29.—Questioning of witnesses in the William Fox bankruptcy proceedings was adjourned late today until Nov. 10 by Federal Referee Robert E. Steedle because of Election Day and other interruptions next week.

Before the date for resumption Steedle expects to complete and forward to U. S. District Judge John Boyd Avis at Camden papers certifying Herbert Leitsteen in contempt for refusing to testify on All-Continent Corp. affairs.

Fox was on the stand again today.

Carroll Sues Warners

A suit for $100,000 for alleged plagiarism was filed in Federal Court yesterday by Richard Carroll, New York magazine and newspaper feature writer, against Warners. The complaint alleges that Carroll wrote two manuscripts entitled "Panama" and "Conquest" and that he submitted them to Warners, who rejected them.

The complaint further alleges that the defendants registered with Producers' Ass'n notice of their intention to make a picture concerning the construction of the Panama Canal. Carroll says that the subject matter was part of his manuscript.

Orders Coast Depositions

Federal Judge Samuel Mandelbaum yesterday signed an order in connection with the suit brought by Mary Louise Esmond McFadden against Warner and First National for the taking of depositions in Los Angeles of Jack Warner and five others. The suit was originally commenced in 1934.

The complaint seeks $15,000 damages for the title "Girl Trouble," which, she says, was acquired in 1928 and which Warners later introduced. She says that although the Warner picture, "Girl Trouble," contained different subject matter, the use of the title destroyed the value of her play.

SEC Postpones Hollywood Case

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Indefinite postponement of proceedings on the $100,000 registration of Hollywood Famous Pictures was ordered today by the Securities and Exchange Commission to permit the company to submit amendments to its original statement.

The company filed the statement Sept. 8 and was asked by the commission to clear up certain apparent discrepancies. It was explained by Irvin L. Langbein, attorney for the commission, that the company inadvertently had failed to respond to the request and the registration having become effective through the lapse of time it was considered advisable to issue the stop order on which a hearing was to have been held today.

Commission officials said that it was probable the deficiencies in the registration statement could be cleared up by correspondence and that no further hearings were likely to be called.

Call Empire Hearing

A hearing has been set for Nov. 10 in the Jersey City Postoffice Bldg. by Referee in Bankruptcy John Grimshaw, Jr., on an offer of J. E. Brulatour, Inc., to settle a suit by Empire Laboratories, Inc., for $2,092.39.

High Hopes

Pittsburgh, Oct. 29.—At the suggestion of Harry M. Warner, Paul Pendarvis, band leader at the William Penn Hotel, had a screen test made at the Vitaphone studio in Brooklyn. Warner saw the handsome young musician while he was playing at the Variety Club banquet and made the arrangements.

Pendarvis is due back in Pittsburgh tomorrow, where he will await the outcome of the test.

Rodgers Heads West After B. & K. Talks

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Following conferences with B. & K. and Great States executives, William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of M-G-M, today left for the coast where he will meet with other important circuit operators on future release.

Accompanied by Howard Dietz and William R. Ferguson, Rodgers arrived here a few days ago from Pittsburgh where the group conferred with Harry Kalmine, zone manager of the Warner circuit. The M-G-M trio en route here from New York stopped over at Philadelphia, Washington and Cleveland where sessions were held with Warner circuit zone heads.

While on the coast, Rodgers will go into a huddle with Al Lichtman and Spyros and Charles Skouras.

Budd Rogers Dating Two Films from BIP

Budd Rogers, American representative for B.I.P., is releasing two pictures, servicing out-of-town accounts from New York until distribution arrangements for the company have been completed.

The two British features are "Give Her a Ring" and "Radio Follies." A number of first run accounts have been sold in various key cities. In St. Louis, F. & M. has already played "Radio Follies" and today the Shubert-Rialto will reopen with "Give Her a Ring" as the companion picture to "They Met in a Taxi."

Imperial Set Shortly

Imperial's national exchange system, with branches in about 26 cities, will be active within approximately two weeks, it was said yesterday. Branches already have been established and are operating in 10 key cities, with Boston and New Haven to be set in a few days. Thirty features and 26 shorts are on the season's Imperial schedule.

Warner Club to Dance

The Warner Club will get its fall social season started tonight with a Hallowe'en dance and party at the home office clubrooms. Harry Mayer is chairman of the entertainment committee and has secured an 11-piece band for dancing.

U. A. Invites Executives

United Artists has invited a representative group of company executives and stars who happen to be in town as well as circuit officials to attend the trade showing of "Come and Get It" at the Astor this morning.

Present Richardson With Unique Degree

Dr. A. N. Goldsmith, honorary chairman of Richardson Week, yesterday created a new scholastic degree when he presented F. H. Richardson, technological editor of Motion Picture Herald with a diploma designating him "doctor of perfect projection." It is the only one of its kind on record with indications pointing to no return engagements.

The occasion was a luncheon tendered Richardson by his paper at the Pennsylvania and was attended by the executives of the Quigley Publishing Co. and members of the staffs of Motion Picture Herald and Better Theatres with Terry Ramsaye as toastmaster.

Speakers at the completely informal affair included Martin Quigley, John Chalmers of the former Moving Picture World, W. W. Byrne of the American Projection Society, Walter Green of National Theatre Supply and P. A. McGuire of International Projector. At the dais also was Colvin Brown.

Traveling Case Presented

Aside from members of the staffs of the two publications, outside guests included Herbert Griffin, M. V. Carroll and P. H. Haller of International Projector; Will C. Smith of National Theatre Supply; Sidney K. Wolf, president of the Society of M. P. Engineers; William C. Kunzmann, V. J. Nolan and P. D. Riese of National Carbon, Lester Isaac, projectionist chief of the Loew circuit, Sylvan Harris of the Society of M. P. Engineers, and A. S. Dickinson of M.P.P.D.A.

Richardson was presented with a pigskin traveling case with compartments for papers.

RKO and F. & M. Set Terms in St. Louis

RKO has closed with F. & M. on the terms for the first year of a 10-year product franchise the circuit has in St. Louis. The franchise was arranged at the time of the out-of-court settlement of the Government's anti-trust suit against Paramount, RKO and Warners.

Although F. & M. is playing Warners and Paramount product in the Mound City, negotiations are still underway on terms for 1936-37 product.

The Shubert-Rialto in St. Louis will be reopened today with a first run dual feature policy. The first two pictures booked are "They Met in a Taxi" and "Give Her a Ring."

Beverly Hills Plans Memorial to Rogers

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—The Beverly Hills Post of the American Legion and members of political, social and film groups have banded together for the purpose of erecting a community center which will be a memorial to Will Rogers.

On the Board of Perpetual Commissioners are Fred Stone, Mrs. Leland Atherton Irish, Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz, Leo Carrillo, Elissa Landi, Edward Spence, Mayor of Beverly Hills; Harriet Parsons, director of "Screen Snapshots;" Clarence Singer and Virginia Salter. The central figure in the building will be a statue of Rogers by Jack Gardner, young American sculptor.

Warner Radio Move Seen as Network Step

that the availability of Warner talent for outside programs on other networks will be curtailed.

On Sept. 29 MOTION PICTURE DAILY exclusively reported that the Warners were seriously contemplating the development of a new national network in competition with National Broadcasting, Columbia Broadcasting and Mutual, the latter of which assumes nationwide proportions beginning Dec. 29, when the Don Lee network on the West Coast becomes part of the hookup.

The nucleus of the Warner radio chain is the Transcontinental Radio System, which, in turn, is being developed by John Clark, former general manager of Station WLW, Cincinnati. He is reported to be in California now, but whether or not he is devoting his time to crystallization of the Warner air enterprise could not be ascertained yesterday.

Station KMPC, Los Angeles, and KFXM, San Bernardino, which the coast despatch declares are now tied in with KFWB, are independent outlets with no current national tie-in.

Air Cuts Child Patronage

ALBANY, Oct. 29.—M. A. Silver, zone manager for Warner theatres in New York state, in a bulletin directed to managers under his jurisdiction, urges that they take immediate steps to increase child attendance. He points out that in his opinion children are losing the film-going habit, which he attributes in large measure to the competition of the radio.

Claudette Colbert Signed For Camel Caravan Nov. 17

The affinity of interest between radio and films continues.

Claudette Colbert has been signed for a guest appearance on the Rupert Hughes' Camel Caravan program Nov. 17, thereby marking her first air stint since last July when she appeared with Walter Huston in a condensation of "The Barker" on the Lux program.

Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone will do their postponed "Elizabeth, the Queen" skit on the same program Nov. 10, thereby killing off reports that difficulties had developed between the M-G-M players and their radio sponsors.

Francia White's Tuesday night's stint for the Caravan will mark her last guest appearance of the season. Henceforth, she will be heard only on the Nelson Eddy "Open House" series, on which she is a regular performer. Miss White's contract with Vick's, sponsors of "Open House," limits her to six guest shots, five of which have been taken up.

The Camel Caravan programs are on Tuesdays from 9:30 to 10:30 P.M. E. S. T. over CBS.

NBC Festivities Set

Gen. James G. Harbord, chairman of the board; David Sarnoff, president of RCA; and Lenox R. Lohr, NBC president, will officially welcome the 25 foreign broadcasting executives now here for NBC's 10th anniversary celebration, at the Rockefeller Center Club, next Thursday morning. The reception will be followed by a luncheon in the Rainbow Room.

All told, an 11-day program of receptions and entertainment has been arranged for the visiting dignitaries. A tour of Rockefeller Center and a visit to a broadcast will fill in Thursday afternoon. An informal dinner, to be followed by a tour of the theatrical district, visits to the Empire State Bldg., a Harlem tour, and another broadcast will conclude the day's events.

The following 10 days will be taken up by a reception by Mayor LaGuardia; additional broadcasts and dinners, a television demonstration, trips to Princeton and West Point, Niagara Falls and Washington, at which point they will be entertained by Federal Communications Commission officials—at a dinner on Armistice Day.

Attendance at the final NBC 'Round the World Anniversary broadcast on Sunday, Nov. 15, will bring to an end the program of entertainment.

Eddie's Mystery: Linda Hayes

Eddie Cantor and the CBS publicity departments have attempted to keep secret the identity of a new "mystery" singer, who will be introduced "cold" to the Texaco audience Sunday at 8:30 P.M., E. S. T. Insofar as MOTION PICTURE DAILY is concerned, however, the youngster's identity is no longer a secret. She is Linda Hayes, a coast "blues" singer.

Bringing "Paducah" Show East

Irvin Cobb's "Paducah Plantation," aired from Hollywood in the interest of Oldsmobile, heads east next week to entertain the Oldsmobile dealers, who will meet in convention at the Commodore Hotel, Nov. 11. Part of the entertainment will be broadcast on the NBC Blue network, 9 to 9:30 P.M., E. S. T.

Instead of heading back for the coast immediately, the "Paducah" troupe will remain in New York until the following Saturday for the regularly scheduled broadcast, heard on the NBC Red network, from 10:30 to 11:00 P.M., E. S. T. Thereafter, they return west.

Dorothy Page and Clarence Muse, permanent features on the program, will accompany Cobb east. However, Harry Jackson's band will be left behind. Chick Webb's orchestra will fill in the music for the Wednesday night special show, while Ray Sinatra's orchestra has been engaged for the Saturday program. Jane Frohman will guest sing on the second program.

Myrt and Marge Again, Maybe

Two veteran radioites, Jack Pearl and Ed Wynn, appear to be traveling along the comeback trail, with sponsored series about to begin. Now it appears likely that still another once-popular air feature, Myrt and Marge, will be heard on the networks soon. The William Morris office, agents for the mother and daughter team, admit that several sponsors are angling for the services of the pair.

Don Lee Men Leave

His conference with the heads of the Mutual chain completed, Tom Lee, president of the Don Lee network, last night headed back to California. W. J. Gleason, W. J. Brown and Harold Peary, officials who accompanied Lee to New York, are now en route to Detroit for a conference with an unnamed auto manufacturer.

May Pass Up California

From Chicago comes word that Amos 'n' Andy, radio's famous blackface comics, may not broadcast from California this winter, as planned. Loop City reports have it that the boys weren't pleased with the cool reception they received in California last year and, as a consequence, are reluctant to return.

Ameche to Sears-Roebuck

Don Ameche, radio's "First Nighter," who scored in pictures, will be a guest on the Sears-Roebuck program some time in November. Ameche, now in Hollywood, will fly to Chicago for the engagement, which originates in the WBBM-CBS studios.

Miss Latham to Warners

Beverly Latham, for eight years editor of NBC's Chicago continuity department, resigned yesterday to accept the position of program director at Warners' Hollywood station, KFWB.

Goodwin, Ballew, Et Al

Short Shots:—Betty Goodwin, of NBC's local press division, has been advanced to the post of fashion editor . . . Robert Romaine and Parker Wilson, Chicago network players, will go to Hollywood at the invitation of Wesley Ruggles . . . Smith Bellew and Victor Young of Shell Chateau now vacationing because of the postponement of Saturday's broadcast—Ballew in Texas, his home state, and Young in San Francisco . . . Queena Mario of the Metropolitan Opera will be Floyd Gibbons' guest on the Nash-Lafayette Speedshow Nov. 7 . . . Preceding her on the same show tomorrow night will be Bill Robinson . . . E. P. H. James, sales promotion manager of NBC, addresses the Cleveland Advertising Club tonight . . . Mitchell Benson, of WOR's announcing staff, has been promoted to production manager. Roger Lyons, formerly of WAAT, takes over Benson's announcing job . . Adele Ronson, NBC actress, weds Horace Hamilton Nahm this evening . . . Jesse Block and Eve Sully guest star on Benny Rubin's WOR program on Sunday . . . Herb Polesie, in charge of production of the Shell Chateau program in Hollywood, now visting the J. Walter Thompson, New York office.

Procter, Gamble Net at Peak; Largest Single User of Radio

Procter and Gamble's earnings for the third quarter were $6,629,564, the highest figure for the period in the history of the company.

P. and G. is the largest single user of network and daytime broadcasting in the country. For the first 9 months of '36 the company spent $2,278,875 for time alone—all with National Broadcasting which carries its programs exclusively. The programs follow:

Program	Network	Time (E.S.T.)
Cap't Tim Healy	Blue	9:45 to 10 A.M.
Five Star Jones	Blue	10:15 to 10:30 A.M.

S ON THEIR HEADS

THESE JOYOUS WORDS ABOUT THE GOLDWYN PRODUCTION! . . . . .

"Come and Get It" provoked unusual critical enthusiasm and is regarded as one of the year's outstanding films.

—Douglas Churchill, New York Times

"Come and Get It" is an invitation to any red blooded American audience for a rare evening of superb entertainment.

—Jimmy Starr, Los Angeles Herald

Remarkable for consistent all-around entertainment . . . every sequence is of epic importance and with its tremendous box office appeal no doubt will hang up many new records.

—Showmen's Trade Review

My hat is off to Samuel Goldwyn for his production of "Come and Get It." Surely one of the finest films ever to emerge from Hollywood.

—Virginia Wood Editor Silver Screen Magazine

"Come and Get It" is the best audience picture I've ever seen and I've seen all of them. It is a picture that will thrill every audience everywhere.

—Harry Niemeyer, St. Louis Dispatch

Even if this were not the superlative story and production that it is "Come and Get It" would rate the highest praise for the amazing cast magician Samuel Goldwyn has assembled . . . here in breathless pace he has done what other producers merely dream about.

—Ruth Waterbury, Photoplay

Pictorially thrilling and beautifully dramatized, with this production Samuel Goldwyn has to his credit another of the year's most notable productions.

—Clark Wales, Detroit Free Press

"Come and Get It" is further proof of Samuel Goldwyn's sagacity as a producer.

—Louella Parsons

Samuel Goldwyn doesn't make many pictures but when he does make one, you can depend upon its being the best . . . "Come and Get It" is certainly no exception to the rule . . . it is an absorbing, virile epic, the likes of which you seldom see.

—Marian Rhea, Editor Screen Play Magazine

Samuel Goldwyn's "Come and Get It" will go and get it anywhere.

Ascap Session Draws 450 to Hear Reports

where they will meet today with representative Canadian exhibitors in an effort to work out a music tax agreement which will permit the continuance of the Canadian music licensing organization despite recent restrictions regulating the music tax rates which may be charged in the Dominion. Ascap asserts that the newly authorized rates will force the suspension of its Canadian subsidiary unless an agreement can be worked out with exhibitors there permitting a revenue increase. If the Canadian subsidiary should suspend, exhibitors in the Dominion would be obliged to negotiate individual music licenses from copyright owners for every picture shown or be liable for copyright infringement, Ascap states.

Arthur Schwartz of Schwartz & Frohlich, attorneys for Ascap, left for Washington last night for several days of conferences there with members of the Attorney General's staff in connection with agreements on stipulations of fact which are being entered in an effort to expedite adjudication of the Government's monopoly action against Ascap. Much work remains to be done before the stipulations can be submitted to the Federal court here. When completed, the court may decide the case on the basis of the stipulations or may order a resumption of the trial for additional evidence and testimony.

Florida Bank Night Case to High Court

Inc., operator of the Tampa, following a verdict for $1,583 granted to W. A. Rice in a lower court.

Texas Situation Cleared

DALLAS, Oct. 29.—Bank Night has been legalized in this state by a ruling of Chief Justice James McClendon in Third Court for Civil Appeals dismissing an injunction granted A. M. Morgan at Brady by a lower court against the Griffith Amusement Co. The court ruled that Bank Night lacked one of the three essentials of a lottery since an entrant was not required to buy a ticket to win.

While the case was pending Bank Night operated in the state without interference.

No Playwright Deal, Despite Financing

participation in a number of Gilbert Miller and George Abbott shows dates back to contracts made last year. Paramount is interested in "Red, Hot and Blue," while M-G-M is financially behind several of the Max Gordon shows, including "St. Helena."

M-G-M recently acquired the music rights to "Manon," the opera, but no decision has been made for use of the composition. The same company is negotiating for several stage plays, but only for screen purposes, it was stated.

Good Musical Might Have Been Better; Durante Fine

could have been considerably better.

Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse had an idea. A perfectly nutty one, but broad enough to be good enough for musical comedy, reminiscent as it is, of "Of Thee I Sing" and not nearly so well turned. It takes Durante out of Lark's Nest Prison, where life is sweet and the polo good into the home of "Nails" O'Reilly Duquesne, played by Ethel Merman, whose interest in sociology and prison reform is matched only by her wealth. It seems Durante gets thrown out because he allows 10 pug uglies to break in.

Out of virtually nowhere at all develops a plan to run a giant lottery with Bob Hope the "lottery lover" seeking the "Baby" he had known as a child of four years along Riverside Drive.

"Baby," as foolish youngsters will in musical comedy, had parked that portion of her body which hits the seat first on a hot waffle iron. The country, thereafter, is turned upside down in the frantic search for the identifying mark. Hope learns to love Miss Merman and she him. So out of the way of the delicate plot must go "Baby" who grows up as Polly Walters. It happens, or didn't you surmise?

Supporting Cast Competent

There are lots of pretty young things in the girl line, bedecked right handsomely as they do their stint for Terpsichore. Wandering into the first act and out of it and then into the second are the Hartmans, a fine team of eccentric dancers, plus magician tricks; they furnished a highlight of the evening.

It was Durante, however, on whom the authors concentrated their fun and Jimmy came through with bang and an enthusiasm that earned him long and, let be said, proper applause. Miss Merman, arrayed in several startling and theatrical stage costumes, did well by herself and the songs Cole Porter provided. Porter's score, in no manner, ranks with the job he did for "Anything Goes" which may be asking too much. Neither did his tunes, always lilting if not outstandingly distinguished, match his own lyrics for the songs.

At the midnight hour with the deadline making faces at the typewriter, the most persistent of them rattling around in this reviewer's head is one called "It's De-Lovely." You'll be hearing it.

Some Toning Down Needed

Paramount opened the money bags for "Red, Hot and Blue." By the time it gets ready to put it before the cameras, there will be new lyrics necessary. There will likewise be required dry cleaning of the basic plot motivation, for waffle irons and the rear ends of girls are no go on the screen today. The dialogue also will have to be finecombed and the off-color lines—there are many—will have to go.

Then, there probably will be a picture. That is, after the writing department in Hollywood finds a story. All it will find in "Red, Hot and Blue" is an idea for one.

Versatility

Representative William I. Sirovich, sponsor of considerable legislation from time to time affecting the film industry, is an extremely versatile man.

In the midst of a political campaign requiring the delivery of four or five speeches nightly, Sirovich is writing a play, he revealed yesterday, dealing with the life of the great 17th century philosopher, Spinoza.

In other odd moments, Sirovich is penning additional chapters of a novel, on which 23 chapters already have been completed.

The play is going to be a good one, says Sirovich.

Majors Again Delay Trade Policy Move

lation, an alternative move advanced by the M.P.T.O.A. earlier, could make little headway before Congress meets in January, and requires no immediate action, it was said.

Distribution sources disclosed that four of the seven companies which plan favorable action on the exhibitor trade practice program have fully decided what concessions each will make, but no explanation is advanced of the delay in making them known. The remaining three companies are said to be awaiting final executive or legal approval of their decisions, delayed because of the absence from the city of these officials.

Kuykendall leaves for New Haven tomorrow and goes to Philadelphia from there on Sunday. He will return to his home at Columbus, Miss., to vote on Tuesday and plans no early return to New York because of conventions of regional M.P.T.O.A. units which he is scheduled to attend in various parts of the country during the next few months.

Turn in False Alarm

While "Ladies in Love" was being shown to a capacity audience at the Rivoli yesterday afternoon, somebody in the men's room turned in a false alarm. Through the alertness of Manager Ludwig, who notified the firemen upon arrival of what had happened, no patron left the theatre. In fact, while the firemen were investigating, a continuous line of ticket-holders was entering the theatre.

"History" Starts Nov. 2

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29. — Walter Wanger will start "History is Made at Night" Nov. 2. The cast is headed by Charles Boyer and Jean Arthur.

Universal has just celebrated the 15th anniversary of the establishment of its agency here. It was one of the first North American firms to be started here. Leo Hersh, who came here as an accountant at the time of the start of the branch and shortly afterward was made manager, has been in charge ever since.

Fairbanks-Goldwyn Deal for One Film

Paramount over Gary Cooper's services, Fairbanks said: "That is not my worry. Cooper's contract is supposed to be with Goldwyn. I haven't given the matter any thought." Cooper is slated for the starring role in the picture, work on which is to be started next May for release in the fall of 1937. Some of the sequences will be made in China, Fairbanks said.

The picture is budgeted now at $1,500,000. A director has not been selected yet nor have the supporting roles been filled. Fairbanks will supervise production, but will have no part in the picture, he said. The idea for this version of Marco Polo's adventures was supplied by Capt. A. Pogson of London, and Fairbanks prepared the story from it. Robert E. Sherwood will do the screenplay.

Fairbanks sails for Europe on the Queen Mary next Wednesday and will go to Switzerland for skiing before returning here about Jan. 1.

Sells Chicago Circuits

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—After selling away from B. & K. and Great States last year United Artists has finally made deals with these groups.

Current with this announcement was the report that "The Gay Desperado," a U. A. picture, will open at the RKO-Palace here Nov. 6. The deal was made in New York and has local executives puzzled as B. & K. usually get all U. A. product for first run.

Botsford Pact Renewed

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—Paramount today renewed the producer contract of A. M. Botsford.

M. Gravet Meets the Press

Striking for something different, Warners yesterday used a big set of "White Horse Inn", the stage of the Center Theatre and young women of the chorus to dispense food and whatnot at a press reception yesterday for Fernand Gravet, French actor now here en route to Hollywood to launch his American film career. The stage was crowded but no casualities were reported, despite the yawning proximity of the orchestra pit, scotch, rye, Manhattans and the like.

Chicago's Film Row Shifting Southward

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Chicago's Film Row, which is located along Wabash Ave., is gradually moving southward. The announcement of a new $150,000 fireproof building at 13th St. and Wabash Ave., to house the Universal, Columbia and United Artists exchanges, shows the trend.

The deals for space in this building, which is being erected by Herbert R. Butz, local financier, have been concluded with Universal and Columbia, but the United Artists arrangements are still pending. It is expected they will be agreed upon soon.

A. M. Brown is agent for the building which will be a two story structure. The lower floor will house the Universal and Columbia exchanges while the upper floor will take care of the U. A. offices and a projection room for Universal and also their poster room.

Construction is set to start March 1, and it is expected the building will be ready for occupancy by Sept. 1, 1937.

Midwestern Houses Use Political Film

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 29.—Approximately 65 to 70 per cent of the theatres in Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska are showing the short political films prepared by the Republican party, according to W. H. Hendren, Jr., manager for the United Film Ad Service, Inc. The company opened its distribution facilities to pictures of both parties, but only the Republicans have availed themselves of it so far. The films go into theatres at the prevailing price of advertising.

Only about 40 per cent of Kansas City subsequent run theatres are showing the film. Among these is Jay Means of the Oak Park and Bagdad, who has played such Republican shorts as "Don't Blame the Butcher."

"We have had a lot of phone calls from Democrats who objected to the pictures," Means commented, "even though they're preceded on the screen by the notice that they are paid advertisements, and though we tell people that we shall be glad to show partisan pictures for the Democrats at the same price."

"Adventure" Pulls $63,000 First Week

"Adventure in Manhattan" finished its week at the Music Hall with a tally of $63,000. The Roxy last night wound up a week's run of "Magnificent Brute" with approximately $42,000.

The Palace, with "Stage Struck" and "Daniel Boone," ended the run last night with about $10,000. The Criterion took in around $9,000 on "Follow Your Heart." The Capitol garnered close to $22,000 on the second week of "The Devil Is a Sissy," while the Rialto with "Big Game" tallied around $9,000.

"Charge of the Light Brigade" will open at the Strand tomorrow morning after a two-week run of "Cain and Mabel." The latter picture will wind up a fortnight's run this evening with approximately $40,000 for the two weeks.

Resume on "Maytime"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—"Maytime" has resumed at M-G-M after five weeks' delay. Production was halted by the death of Irving Thalberg, and the interim has been spent in realigning staff and shooting schedules under Producer Hunt Stromberg. Edmund Goulding, who had been directing opening sequences, resigned, and has been replaced by Robert Z. Leonard. Also new are Oliver Marsh, cameraman; Joe Newman, assistant director, and Frank Messenger, unit business manager.

Besides the principals, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, the only cast members to date are John Barrymore, Virginia Reid, Russell Hicks and Joan Breslau.

Sign New Oberon Pact

Merle Oberon has been signed to a new contract for five years by Samuel Goldwyn and Alexander Korda. Her old contract on this joint basis had two and one-half years to run.

Robert Donat Re-Signed

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Robert Donat has been signed by Alexander Korda for three more films after "Knight Without Armour."

Short Subjects

"Opera De Paris"
(DuWorld)

A backstage view of the famous Paris Opera, this film, produced by Jean Monti-Jean Margueritte of France, should be found of general interest by intelligent audiences. A rather lengthy short subject, it presents a quick, entertaining picture of the making of opera and ballet performances, featuring in a sequence the work of Serge Lifar of the Diaghilev Ballet. The camera darts about, showing the ballet at practice, the vocal chorus at rehearsal, the leading singers at work, and a flash of actual performances of opera and ballet.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 30 mins. "G."

"Steel"
(Modern Talking Picture Service)

Made to answer the queries put forward by an interested public, "Steel," an industrial item, has a ballet-like quality as the camera invades the steel mills and records with excellent photography the spectacular scenes within. There is a fine musical score which blends well with the scenario. The many remarkable processes in the making of the product are clearly and, in a manner, dramatically presented. An entertaining little offering which may be had without charge, but for the transportation. No production code seal. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

RCA Equipment Goes Into 64 Loew Spots that the remaining half of the circuit will be equipped by Erpi with Western Electric Mirrophonic.

The contracts already closed with RCA Photophone call for installations of the new High Fidelity type equipment in 64 of the Loew houses, 34 of which are in the New York metropolitan area and the remaining 30 are located in 21 other cities in various sections of the country.

Claims New Erpi Record

All sales records in the history of sound equipment were shattered this week by Erpi, the greatest previous sales peak having been reached during the week ending Dec. 28, 1929, according to C. W. Bunn, general sales manager. This brings the total number of theatres contacting for Mirrophonic to 318 since the new sound was introduced to the trade less than two months ago.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Wanted: Jane Turner"
(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—A postal inspector is the hero of this crime and crook drama through which runs a vein of comedy and love interest. Carrying its complement of dramatic suspense, menace and danger, leavened by humor in dialogue and situations, the film is of the excitement-provoking character designed for mass reception. Entertaining in that atmosphere, it is also educational and instructive as it picturizes the manner in which the Government protects the mails and, when occasion arises, uses them to break up gangster activities.

Lee Tracy, assigned to capture a killing mail robber, feels that he is encumbered by the presence of Gloria Stuart, secretary, whom the Post Office Dep't has ordered to be his assistant. The crook's, Paul Guilfoyle's, trail leads to Los Angeles. Knowing that he has confederates, Tracy places inspectors at the general delivery window and also watches the personal columns in newspapers. A mysterious Jane Turner is expected to claim a letter. Two Janes, one an innocent outsider, the other an ally of Guilfoyle, show up. The complicated character of the situation builds to the climax which entails a lot of weird goings on until Miss Stuart shoots Guilfoyle and she and Tracy, who have been squabbling all through the story, decide they can work better in double harness.

The story is by John Twist, which he and Edmund L. Hartman adapted. Edward Killy directed.

Production Code Seal No. 2,602. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"Laughing at Trouble"
(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—The title might convey the impression that comedy elements prevailed in this story. They don't. It is a grimly serious murder mystery done in reverse.

Instead of leading up to a trial for life as a climax it starts with the trial and a conviction, and the drama revolves around the efforts of a woman editor of a small town newspaper to unravel the crime so young romance can resume its normal course. The tension is sustained by the fact that the prisoner, Allan Lane, escapes and goes to the editor's house, and it takes about two reels for her to get him back in jail again with the aid of the sheriff.

Jane Darwell, as the editor, is vigorous and talkative, so talkative in fact that about 50 per cent of the dialogue is hers. That's not her fault, of course, the scenario department can be blamed. Even so, she does a good job.

The characters are well chosen, and they depict the petty jealousies, the intrigues and conflicting ambitions of village life understandingly. The picture will probably have its greatest appeal in small town and neighborhood spots.

Frank S. Strayer directed from the play by Adelyn Bushnell. The screen play was done by Robert Ellis and Helen Legan. In the supporting cast were Sarah Haden, Delma Byron, John Carradine, James Burke and Margaret Hamilton.

Production Code Seal No. 2,675. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Make Way for a Lady"
(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—This is good light entertainment, with an imaginative adolescent messing up the romance of her father and finally straightening it out. It has its serious and gay moments and an appeal for youngsters as well as adults.

The cast is top notch. Herbert Marshall, widower and publisher, living in a New York suburb with his young daughter, Ann Shirley, finds it necessary to be diplomatically nice to Margot Grahame, novelist. The complications set in when Miss Shirley finds a book by Miss Grahame autographed to Marshall and referring to "our" story. She immediately assumes her father is in love with the novelist, and, in a sacrificial spirit, tries to foster the romance.

In the meantime he is paying marked attention to Gertrude Michael, teacher. Although she adores Miss Michael she tells her she never can be her stepmother and nearly wrecks the romance.

It's light material, lightly treated, and staged and directed in a way to make it very pleasant entertainment.

David Burton did a good job with the directing. The screen play by Gertrude Purcell was from a novel by Elizabeth Jordan.

Production Code Seal No. 2,561. Running time, 74 minutes. "G."

Variety Club

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Oct. 29. — Major Bowes' anniversary amateur unit was brought to Tent No. 3 from the RKO Shubert to provide entertainment, under the direction of ARTHUR FRUDENFELD.

JOE OULAHAN won the playoff in the Variety Club golf tournament, defeating LARRY BENTON. Both had a score of 71 in the recent match, making the playoff necessary. Both barkers tied at exactly the same score last year, BENTON winning the playoff at that time.

HARRY J. WESSEL, chief barker, is rounding up a representative delegation to attend the house-warming of the Indianapolis Tent on Nov. 7.

Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 29. — Variety Club will hold a Hallowe'en party Oct. 31 at the clubrooms for 100 couples. Prizes have been offered for the best costumes.

So far this fall, activities of the club have been limited to special affairs. However, Monday luncheons probably will be resumed later this fall, although they may not be held every week.

Omaha

OMAHA, Oct. 29.—The local Variety Club has installed a form of Bank Night for its weekly meetings.

Recent visitors to the club rooms were GLADYS GEORGE, LINA BASQUETTE and TED HEALY.

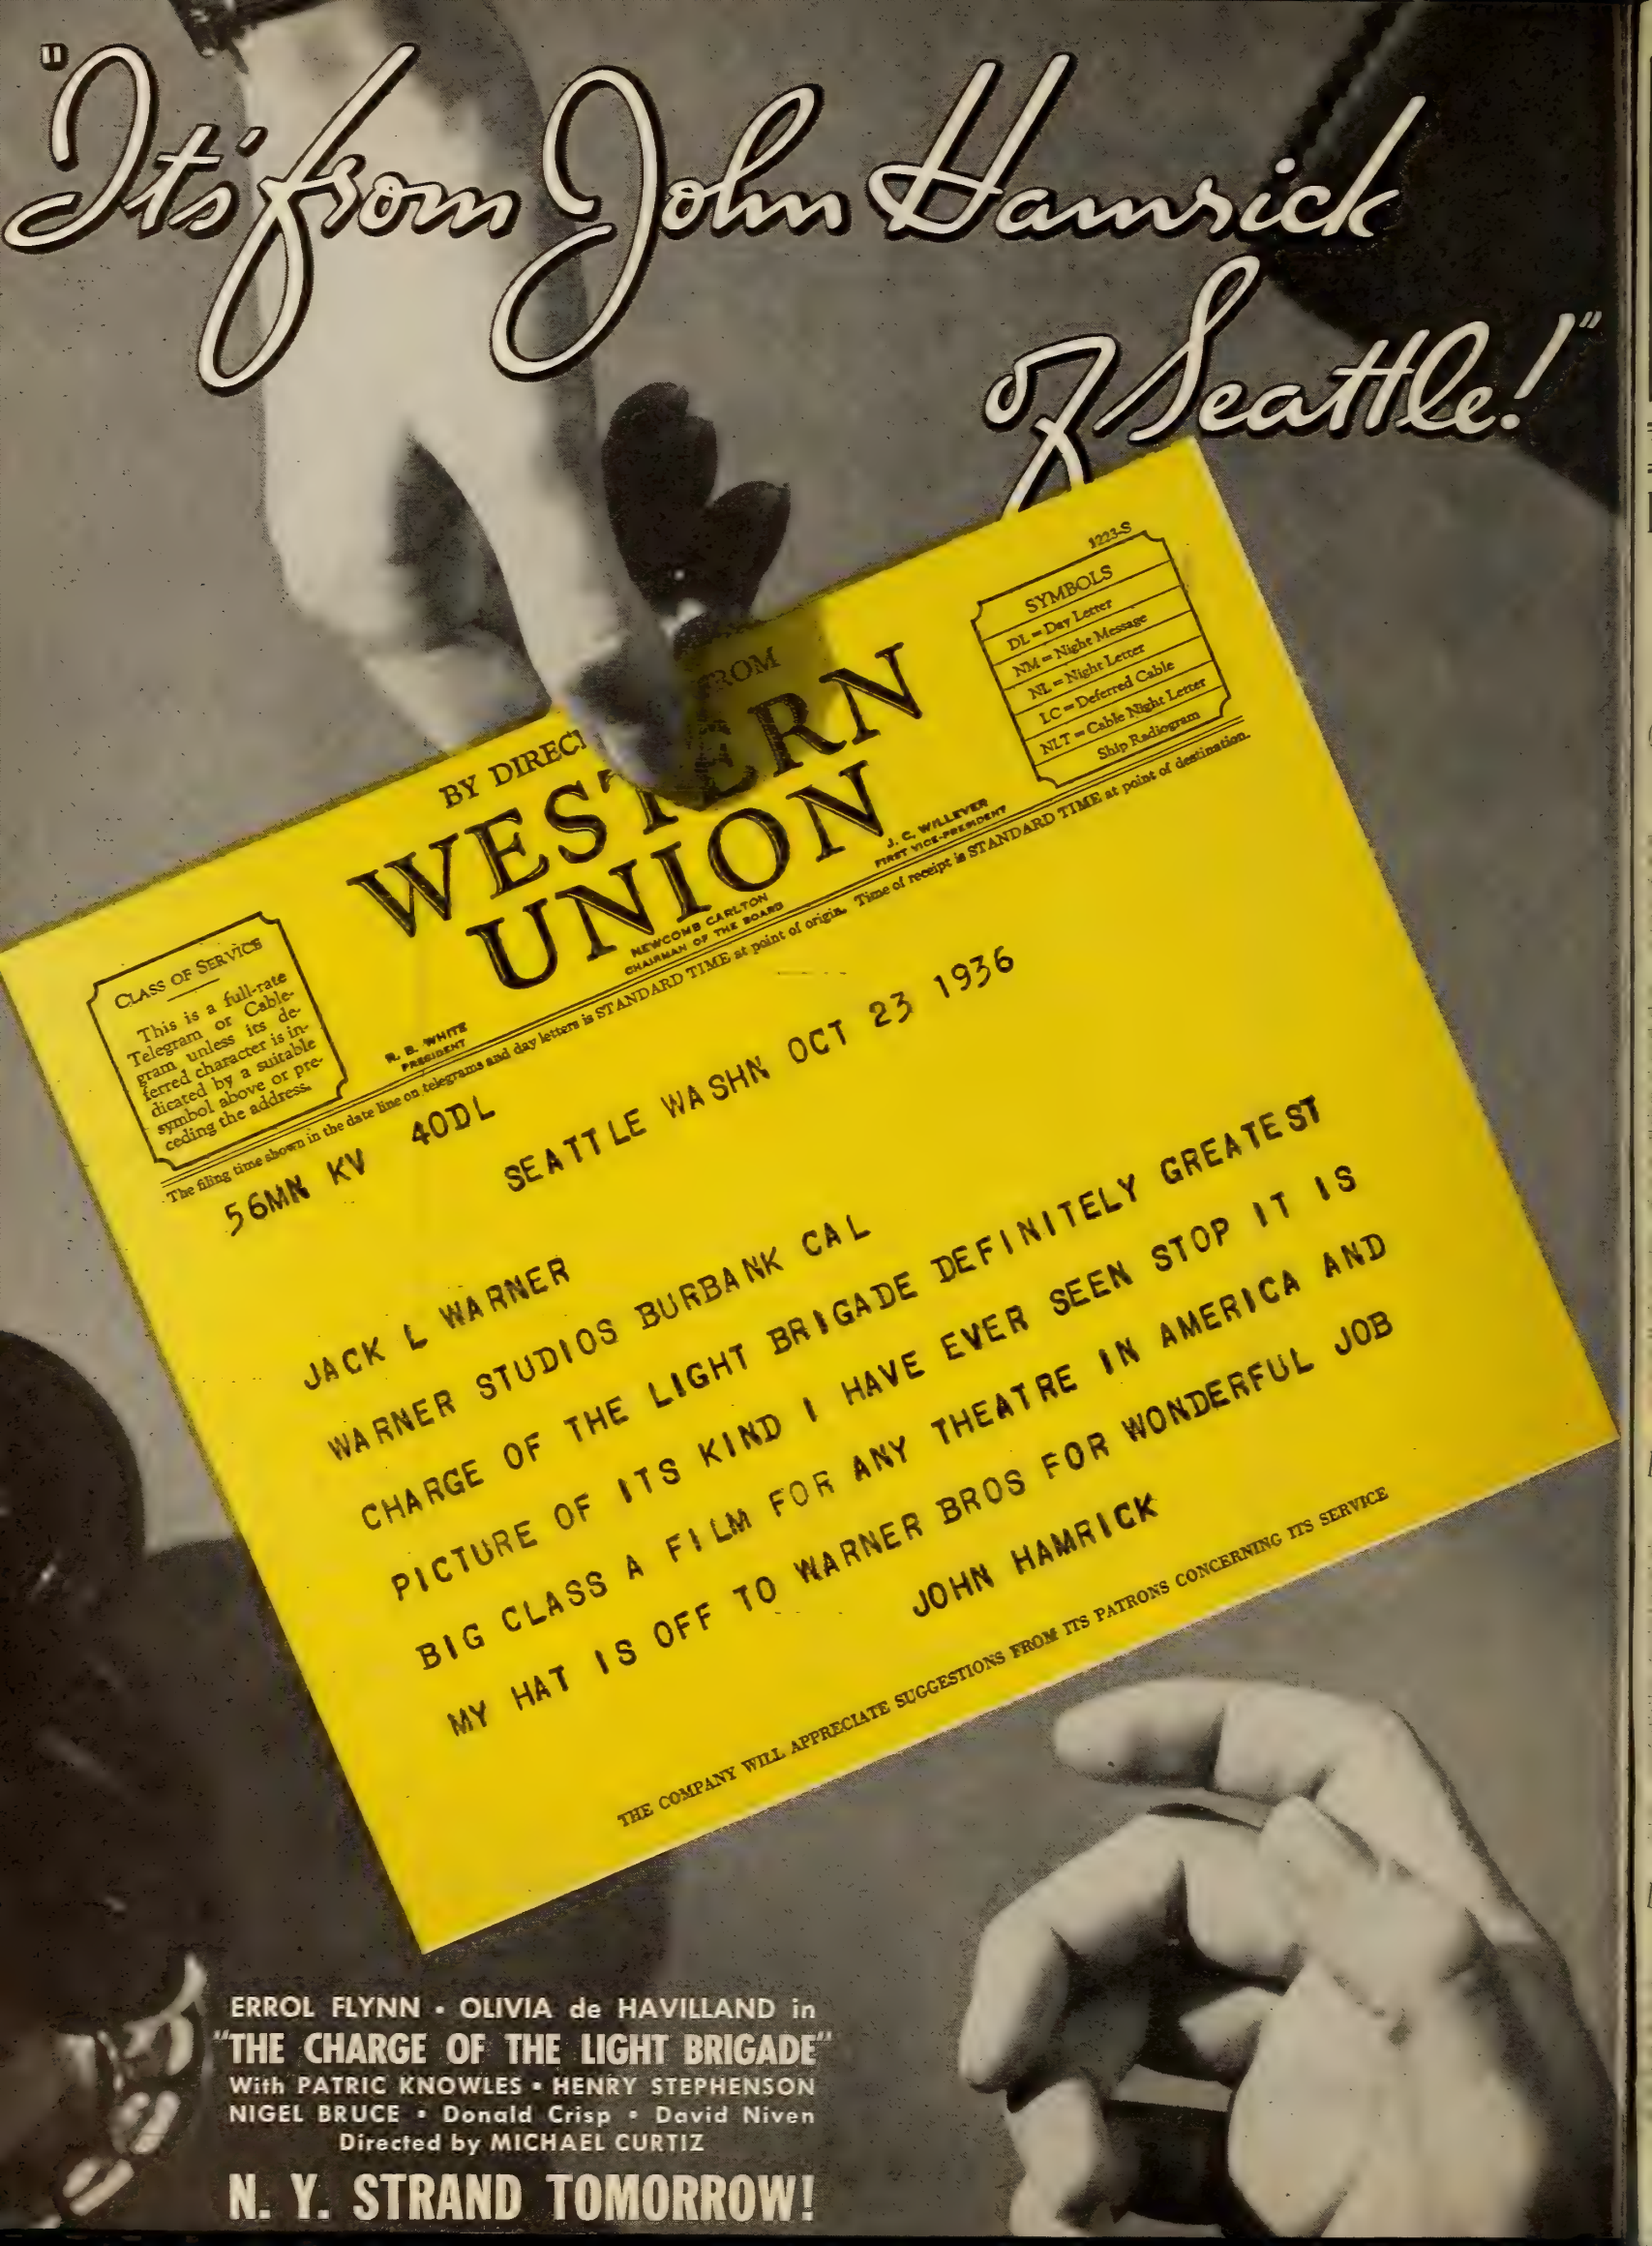
Rosenzweig-Cocalis To Build 3 Houses

Dave Rosenzweig, associated with Sam D. Cocalis in the operation of a number of theatres in Brooklyn, Bronx and Long Island, has completed plans with other associates for building three theatres, two in Brooklyn and one in Maspeth.

The Brooklyn projects call for a 1,200-seat structure at Liberty and Drew Aves., and the second a 1,700-seat house at Liberty Ave. and Van Wyke Blvd. The third unit will be at Maspeth and will seat 600.

Rosenzweig has owned the sites for the contemplated theatres for a few years. He is expected to have all units completed for next season.

May Variety Club Guest



BUFFALO, Oct. 29.—John May, accountant for Schine Theatres, Inc., Gloversville, N. Y., and Republican candidate for state comptroller was honored at a luncheon held by the local Variety Club. Judge Rowe, Sid Samson and Ted O'Shea were the speakers.

Griffis Expects Figure To Top Estimate

Paramount's third quarter report, which may be released in about two weeks, will reflect earnings even better than those anticipated at the close of the period a month ago, Stanton Griffis, chairman of the executive committee, said yesterday.

Griffis declined to make an advance estimate of the earnings, but the estimate of third quarter profit early this month was in excess of $1,000,000. Griffis said that the earnings report for the company's British subsidiaries is completed about 30 days later than the domestic report, and a decision by Paramount not to make public any preliminary or incomplete report accounts for the absence of a third quarter earnings statement at this date.

Asked to comment on reports that dividend action was a likelihood, Griffis said that they were not entirely unfounded. Indications are, however, that such action would not be taken until well along toward the end of the year. The November meeting of the board may be postponed until a December date because of the probability

Ford Company Makes Offer For Air Use of MGM Stars

The Ford Motor Co. awaits decision from M-G-M on an offer to pay the company $25,000 a week for an hour's broadcast once a week for a full year over the coast-to-coast Columbia Broadcasting System network for the exclusive radio appearance of the film company's starring and featured player roster.

Looming as one of the most sweeping deals engineered in radio, the automobile company is prepared to launch the series early in January with indications it will replace its Sunday night program of concert players and symphonic music which runs from 9 to 10 P. M. Eastern Standard Time through a 94-station outlet over the CBS system with the M-G-M arrangement, if and when completed. Behind this important potential shift in air shows is reported a desire of Ford to more closely match in popular entertainment the Major Bowes' Amateur Show, now Chrysler-sponsored, on the same hour Thursday evenings over the same network and the same number of station outlets.

The plan had its origin with Abe Lastfogel, coast general manager of the William Morris Agency, who approached and sold it to N. W. Ayer and Son, Inc., advertising agency for Ford. The agency, in turn, sold it to its client and M-G-M then was approached with the decision so far in doubt. It ties in also with the most significant effort to date on the part of the William Morris office to invade the radio talent agency field in a move designed to establish for that

Ostrer Moves To Slash G.B. Studio Costs

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, Oct. 30.—Mark Ostrer, G. B. executive, in an official statement today, said that costs at the Shepherd's Bush studio of G. B. will be cut.

In explanation of the move, he asserted that with five big pictures completed and few in preparation "our immediate program can be handled by two units, without any lowering of the standard which won for us an international market."

G. B. has had six units working. The decision looks like the first stage in the production economy campaign which was foreshadowed in the company's recently issued financial report.

Ostrer's statement followed stories

Frederick Lonsdale Is Sued by M-G-M

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30. — Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, through its attorneys, Loeb, Walker and Loeb, today filed suit in Superior Court to recover $50,000 advanced to Frederick Lonsdale on a contract signed in 1930.

The complaint charges that Lonsdale refused to deliver, to the producers' satisfaction, two originals and a sequel to "The Last of Mrs. Cheney" after having received an advance of $25,000 on each original.

Phila. Unit Will Picket Grand Nat'l

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—At a stormy session today the United M. P. T. O. gave authority to its board of managers to start picketing Grand National because of allegedly high rentals asked by the company, particularly in competitive spots. Authority also was given to picket houses of exhibitors who play Grand National product.

The meeting was held at the Hotel Broadwood. The organization went on record with the declaration that it did not want to boycott, but was using picketing as a definite means of protest. Recalled was the picketing of Warners here a few years ago over "Gold Diggers."

The exhibitor group also set in

Negotiate Air Program From Sound Stages

General Mills Seeks to Broadcast Daily

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30.—General Mills, manufacturers of Gold Medal Flour and other kitchen products, is negotiating with major studios here through a Chicago advertising agency for the daily broadcast of a 15-minute program direct from the studio sets, the programs to be put on the air over a national network.

According to present plans the broadcasts will be dramatized in the March of Time fashion, giving the news from the sets while it is actually occurring. A different studio will be used each day.

It is understood that the film companies here are reacting favorably to the idea. However, the negotiations have been referred to the Hays office for definite action which will probably be taken next week.

Astaire's Contract Renewed by Packard

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30. — Packard Motor Car Co., through Young & Rubicam, today renewed for 13 additional weeks the broadcasting contract of Fred Astaire. As the current Astaire contract does not expire until Dec. 8, today's move nullified reports that the actor's pact would not be renewed.

The air program will continue with the same cast as heretofore.

Majors Silent on Trade Concessions

No statements defining the trade practice concessions which seven major companies have declared they will make in furthering the M.P.T.O.A. 10-point program of industry self-regulation were made up to last night, when the period within which leaders of the national exhibitor organization expected them closed..

Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, who came here this week in anticipation of several of the statements being issued, leaves for New Haven this morning and from there will return to his home at Columbus, Miss., following a stopover at Philadelphia. Kuykendall declined to comment on the failure of the distribution companies to act within the expected time and, likewise, refused to discuss any

Davis Will Not Appeal

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Bette Davis will not appeal from the recent decision of the King's Bench Court here, which held that she may not perform in England for three years, or until the expiration of her existing contract with Warners. The actress will return to the United States and the Warner studio, planning to leave here on the Aquitania on Nov. 24.

Mailing Ban Holds

DALLAS, Oct. 30.—Karl Crowley, solicitor general of the Post Office Dept., said here today that the Texas court ruling favorable to Bank Night would not affect the mailing ban on advertising of Bank Night.

Approve Empire Changes

The amended petition on the reorganization plan of Empire Theatre Supply Corp. was approved yesterday by Referee Oscar W. Ehrhorn.

English Pass "Carnival"

"Carnival in Flanders" has been passed by the English censor board, according to the operators of the Filmarte, where the film is playing here.

Says W. E. Sound in 1,950 British Spots

Approximately 1,950 theatres in England are now equipped with Erpi sound, Clifford W. Smith, who has been in charge of the British office for six years, stated yesterday on his arrival on the Manhattan. He will assume new duties at the home office with W. A. Bach taking over the assignment in England.

Seven studios in England and as many on the Continent are using the compay's recording equipment, he said. The number of theatres on the Continent with Erpi reproducers now total 700. Prior to his transfer to the London office, Smith was in charge of French activities with headquarters in Paris.

"Business is good in England, but not so good on the Continent," Smith observed. "The political and financial unrest are responsible," he said. "The Continental countries are still trying to solve the problem of producing pictures in their own languages.

"They are struggling to force production in their languages by quotas and other means. The pictures have little value in outside countries; and because of the limited playing time within their own territories, local production does not pay, no matter how good the pictures may be."

Hode Backs Slapstick

The suitability of slapstick comedies for children was emphasized yesterday by Hal Hode of Columbia in an address before the Long Island and Queens units of the N. Y. State Federation of Women's Clubs at the Jamaica Y. M. C. A. Mrs. Paul Wolfskehl was chairman and Arthur De Bra of the M.P.P.D.A. was master of ceremonies.

Move G. N. in Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 30. — After getting offices furnished and ready for business the Grand National exchange was notified to vacate headquarters in the Warner Bldg. No reason was given local executives for the change in plans and Earl Silverman of the local Grand National office is now looking for a new location. He expects to announce the new address by Nov. 1.

Singer Reopens Liberty

Mort Singer yesterday reopened the Liberty, New Orleans, which has been closed since he acquired it for extensive repairs.

Singer will leave today for Chicago after spending a few days in conference with RKO home office executives. Joseph M. Berne, Cleveland attorney associated with Singer, also will head for his headquarters in Ohio today.

Shapiro to Make Tour

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30.—Victor Shapiro, chief of publicity for Major Pictures, will accompany Mae West on her personal appearance tour which opens Nov. 6 in Chicago. Dates for other engagements have not been set, but Miss West will be gone for at least four weeks.

Embassy to Use Cartoon

The Embassy will feature a cartoon subject starting next Thursday for the first time. It will be a Krazy Kat cartoon burlesquing Lowell Thomas, Ed Thorgersen, Lew Lehr and Louise Vance.

Censor Takes Tour

New Orleans, Oct. 30.—Elias Irwin, head of the state censor board, is on a trip upstate to talk to exhibitors who have forgotten that such a board exists, he says.

Warner Washington Has House Opening

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Warners opened the new Uptown at Connecticut Ave. and Newark St. last night with a number of Government officials present.

Among those present were: Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the District of Columbia Commissioners; Harry C. Grove, president of the Cleveland Park Citizens' Ass'n; Audrey Sieber, mistress of ceremonies at the Earle; Albert Warner and Joseph Bernhard.

This makes the 14th theatre for Warners in this territory under the supervision of John J. Payette. Walter Carsley is manager of the new house.

Lina Pictures Sues Principal Pictures

In a suit for $10,000 damages filed in Supreme Court yesterday by Lina Pictures Corp. against Principal Film Exchange the plaintiff charges that its assignor, Principal Distributing Corp., released prints and sound records through the defendant and that the defendant has failed to return them in accordance with an agreement so to do.

The Lina Pictures Corp. at the same time discontinued an action for $3,000 in city court against the same defendant.

Gogniat-Universal Trial Set

The trial of the suit alleging plagiarism of songs brought by Georges A. Gogniat of United Music Co. against Universal Pictures was set down yesterday for trial before Federal Judge Woolsey on Dec. 14.

Selznick Buys "Variety"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30. — "Variety," the silent film which starred Emil Jannings, will be remade by Selznick-International. E. A. DuPont, who directed the film, has sold the dialogue rights to Selznick, and negotiations are now on with Paramount for the silent film rights. DuPont will direct, with Edward Arnold starred.

Minelli to Paramount

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30.—Paramount has signed Vincente Minelli, New York stage producer and director. He will act as general adviser to producers on musicals.

Closes with Tri-States

George W. Weeks has closed a deal with Tri-States Theatres for the entire 1936-37 G. B. lineup.

Weeks is now in St. Louis for conferences with the exchange staff.

Two Plays Discontinue

"Sweet River," which opened at the 51st St. Theatre Wednesday night, closes tonight.

"Iron Men" which made its debut at the Longacre Oct. 19, also folds.

Police Guard Posted In Bombed Theatres

Following the gas and tear bombing of eight theatres, seven being operated directly or indirectly by Brandt Bros. and the eighth by Consolidated Amusements, Mayor LaGuardia yesterday ordered a special squad of policemen and police women to cover the houses affected and others that might meet with similar explosions as a result of labor differences. From the Windy City the Mayor telephoned Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine and ordered an investigation.

Considerable damage was caused in some theatres, while in others many persons were injured. Allied M. P. Operators and Local 306 for weeks have been cross-picketing independent and major circuit theatres in every borough. Harry Brandt is an important factor in Allied and several times has stated his theatres would not employ Local 306 under present conditions. Negotiations for merging the two unions have been on and off for months. Relations between the two groups were broken off during the summer and shortly after the pickets again began to exhibit their signs.

Audiences Returned

In most instances where tear bombs were set off, patrons returned to theatres after the smoke and gas cleared. The theatres affected by the latest bombings include the Liberty, Times, Park, Times Square, Audubon, Central and Globe; the Sanders, Brooklyn, and the Colony, Jackson Heights, L. I.

Several months ago considerable damage was done to the Globe, Park, Colony, Times Square and Central when bombs exploded. Following the incident, eight suits were filed by the I. T. O. A. against Local 306 seeking $650,000 damages and charging "intimidation, coercion and terrorism."

Kay Francis Is Ill

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30.—Kay Francis is suffering from toxic poisoning and is temporarily out of the cast of "Another Dawn," now shooting at Warners. The company is shooting around her part, but her illness will delay the ending of the picture for at least a week.

Shirley Temple Better

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30.—Shirley Temple has returned to the studios entirely recovered from a cold which kept her at home for several days.

Rites for Mrs. Bronfin

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 30.—Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Fanny Bronfin, mother of Mrs. I. J. Hoffman. Mrs. Bronfin died upon her arrival in Florida, where it was expected she would spend the winter.

Ragnor, Graziano Sail

Lord Ragnor and Victor Graziano, members of the board of B.N.P. of American, Ltd., will sail today on the Georgic. They plan to start two productions in this country in the spring, they said. One will be a musical.

"Racing Lady" New Title

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30.—"Racing Lady" has been selected as the final title for "All Scarlet," the Damon Runyon story to be filmed by Radio.

that Barney Balaban, Paramount president, and Griffis may not be back from their projected coast visit by Nov. 26, the scheduled date for the board meeting. Balaban left for Chicago yesterday and will be joined there next Wednesday by Griffis. The two will go on to the Paramount studio for two or three weeks.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"King of Hockey"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30.—In the sequences which show players in action, this holds attention, but the trite story and situations all but overcome any advantage the picture might otherwise have had. The plot which centers on Dick Purcell as a star hockey performer with a swelled head is too familiar.

Purcell becomes involved with George E. Stone, a gambler, forces his attentions on Anne Nagel and has other difficulties which lead to his being fired from the team and made temporarily blind as well. He is cleared at the end and with his sight restored wins the championship for his club.

Other performers who help carry this slim story thread include Marie Wilson, Wayne Morris, Joseph Crehan and Ann Giles, a child actress. The direction by Noel Smith fails to arouse excitement except in the game sequences and the original screen play by George Bricker seems like a rush job. An interesting picture with professional hockey can possibly be made but this is not it.

Decide Moss Cannot Disturb Zoning Plan

down in connection with the appeal of Robert Walton Goelet from a ruling of the Supreme Court which denied Goelet's petition to direct Moss to grant a license for a theatre site on Park Ave. and 53rd St.

Moss had originally refused the license on May 8 and counsel for Goelet took the matter to the Supreme Court, where Moss was upheld. Goelet filed an appeal with the higher court, which unanimously reversed the decision of the Supreme Court and granted $20 for costs and disbursements.

The Appellate Division's ruling also referred to the application of the Henry Phipps' estate which had asked the commissioner for a license to construct a theatre on the northeast corner of Madison Ave. and 62nd St. It was proposed to build a 500-seat house. The Supreme Court granted the petition for the license in the Phipps' case and the license commissioner appealed to the Appellate Division. In handing down the decision on this appeal, the Appellate Division unanimously affirmed the order of the Supreme Court granting the license and assessed $20 costs and disbursements against the license commissioner.

Peskay Named Head Of Sales for G. N.

Toronto looking over the situation.

Peskay currently operates 10 theatres, two in Greenwich, two in Stamford, Conn., two in Peekskill, one in Cornwall and three others. Paramount supervises the two Peekskill houses, which are included in a local pool.

George Rich, who has been handling the Connecticut group, will include the others as operating head for Peskay Enterprises. Edward L. Alperson, president of Grand National, stated yesterday that the company is not interested in the theatres. A report was current and denied some time ago that Grand National may take over Peskay's houses as a nucleus for the formation of a new national circuit.

Peskay has been identified with the business since 1913. He first met Alperson in 1913 when he was P. D. C. branch manager in Kansas City. Peskay was on the distribution end for 10 years, after which he entered exhibition with the Skourases in St. Louis and New York.

Leserman closed one of the most important deals during his Grand National association yesterday when he signed the Loew circuit with 68 theatres in the local area.

Ostrer Will Slash G. B. Studio Costs

here to the effect that drastic cuts in G. B. production were contemplated and that Michael Balcon and many department heads were slated to go.

On good authority it has been learned that Balcon has been asked to accept a 50 per cent cut and that he is likely to end his contract immediately, although it has about a year to go.

Mark Ostrer admits that the program has been cut from 16 to 10 or 12, but asserts he will maintain the standard for America and says that G. B. has taken £1,000,000 from America.

"The organization is at the disposal of all British producers and we invite them to offer Americans their pictures through us," he said.

A mystery buyer is asking private holders of G. B. ordinaries to state a price for their holdings and deals on 5,000 shares at 13 shillings and three pence and 120,000 at 14 shillings against a market price of 10 shillings, three pence are rumored.

Offers asked by today suggest a deal before the G. B. meeting Monday. This may be a Maxwell-Ostrer move to stave off criticism at the meeting by strengthening their position.

Lee and Campbell on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30.—Arthur A. Lee and James Campbell arrived here today for conferences on the G. B. sales drive. They will remain a week.

mount has not made any plans to withdraw from the Italian field; also, no personnel changes have been made of any kind.

Miss Haas, who said this was her first trip over, is anxious to see America and Hollywood and has set aside two months to do it in. Within the next two or three days she will leave for the coast, making stopovers en route. She denied being interested in any offer to appear in pictures in Hollywood. She is under contract to the Myron Selznick agency.

Tevlin stated he had been in England for two months working on distribution deals for Imperial product and also negotiating to bring over a number of British films. A deal for England is practically set, he said, and two of the parties interested came over on the same boat with him. Six British films are being sent over for screening, but Tevlin refused to mention the titles.

John Hodge is here on a three-week vacation with his wife, daughter of S. R. Kent, who is due to arrive from England on the Queen Mary on Monday.

Ohio ITO Asks for Details of Buying

COLUMBUS, Oct. 30.—Circulars have been sent to members of the I.T.O. of Ohio asking them to fill in tabulated blanks showing how much they are paying for pictures of all the majors under the new season schedules, whether they were forced to buy all features, pay score charges, how many are on percentage and other details.

Because members in the past have been reluctant to reveal this information for their competitors the blanks are not to be signed.

Studies of the tabulated answers will be discussed at a meeting of the I.T.O. to be held here Dec. 1-2.

Ford Seeking Exclusive On MGM for Air

organization as important a spot in radio as it once occupied in the field of vaudeville.

The proposed hourly program would divide itself into dramatizations and condensations of current and coming Metro attractions, the first to be an ether version of "Parnell" with Joan Crawford and Clark Gable essaying the leads. The remainder of each broadcast would be musical, concentrating on past, present and future songs from Metro attractions and the catalogue of the Robbins Music Co., which M-G-M controls. Pete Smith, now in charge of short subjects for the studio, has been mentioned as the master-of-ceremonies.

Policy Entirely New

Considerable interest manifested itself yesterday among those who were familiar in some detail with the proposed series. It was pointed out that this would be the first instance where the starring roster of any major producing company would be delivered to a radio sponsor in its entirety and exclusively. It was further pointed out that any such deal as the one broached by Ford would mark a departure in general policy at M-G-M where the control of the air appearances of its topflight personalities has been more rigorously guarded than in any other studio in Hollywood. Currently, Gable is understood to have arranged with the studio to make four of five radio appearances each year. This applies to Miss Crawford, while Wallace Beery is cited as holding permission to appear on two programs, the sponsors varying with the deals as they are closed.

The exclusive angle is viewed as not only interesting, but of great importance. Louella Parsons, who conducts the "Hollywood Hotel" program, sponsored by Campbell's Soups, as well as nation-wide Hollywood column in the Hearst and other newspapers, already is reported to have wired Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, and M-G-M, a protest for the obvious reason that a solo deal with Ford will remove from her programs of the future all Metro personalities.

May Affect Theatres

The 9 to 10 P. M. hour which is being considered carries with it a theatre angle as well. Many exhibitors view this time as the best 60 minutes of the week and the assumption which parallels that belief is a questionable attitude with which many of them are apt to view such strong competition as the discussed Ford-M-G-M arrangement would offer.

Ford currently also sponsors two other radio programs each week. Fred Waring and His Band appear on both.

If the arrangement with M-G-M is closed, it is not considered remote that Ford will buy an additional 30 minutes during the week and rearrange Waring's schedule accordingly. If, on the other hand, Sunday night should be the broadcasting period, it is understood the current symphonic program will be abandoned.

Sponsored Daytime Program Gaining, NBC and CBS Show

It wasn't so long ago that daytime periods on the air were filled, willynilly, with sustaining programs of small merit. But no more. With sponsors finding it increasingly difficult to buy evening time, the day spots have come into their own. As an indication of the growing importance of sun-up periods, here are a few figures compiled for Motion Picture Daily by the statistical departments of NBC and CBS:

Based on a six-day week, Columbia reports as follows:

1933 the average sold daytime time was 1 hour, 59 minutes, per day.

1934 the average was 2 hours, 19 minutes per day.

1935 the average was 2 hours, 37 minutes per day.

1936 covering the October period, the average was 2 hours, 55 minutes.

NBC, going back to September, 1935, reveals that its networks carried 341 daytime sponsored programs for the month. This year, for September, the networks sent out 568 sponsored daytime programs, a gain of 66 per cent. The October tabulation has not yet been completed.

9 New Bands for Mutual

Beginning Monday and continuing over a period of two weeks, nine new bands will be added to Mutual's nightly dance schedule. Monday's additions include the orchestras of George Hamilton, from New York and Little Jack Little from Chicago.

On Wednesday, Mutual adds the bands of George Sterney, New York; Frankie Dailey, New Jersey; Herbie Kay, Cincinnati; Leon Belasco, Cincinnati. Archie Blyer and Art Warren, New York, complete the influx on Nov. 15.

Irene Dunn Deal Out

The whys and wherefores remain a mystery, but Irene Dunne is out, and the "Three Men on a Horse" picture cast is in, for Friday night's (Nov. 6) "Hollywood Hotel" broadcast. Joan Blondell, Guy Kibbee and Frank McHugh will contribute a scene from their forthcoming picture. Dick Powell, of course, remains as m. c. and vocalist.

Miss Dunne was to have offered a sequence from her soon-to-be released picture, "Theodora Goes Wild."

Set Federation Dinner

The annual radio dinner to be held by the radio, music, refrigeration and allied industries division of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria on Nov. 22. Screen, radio and stage stars are expected to contribute their services.

Gladys George in Crosby Show

Gladys George's current road tour culminates in Hollywood on Nov. 5, when she will guest star on Bing Crosby's Kraft Music Hall Program, along with Warren William. Bing will interview the stars.

Gibson, Moran as Guests

Jackie Cooper, heard twice weekly over WOR, 8 to 8:15 P.M., EST, will present as his guest Hoot Gibson and Polly Moran the coming week. Hoot guests Monday night, while Polly follows on Wednesday.

Bowe, the Bakers, et al

Short Shots: Morton Bowe has been signed to do the vocals on Jack Pearl's new program . . . Manhattan Merry-Go-Round tomorrow night celebrates its 5th year on the networks . . . The Phil Bakers will be heard around Easter time . . . Eddie Cantor and his entire company start east Nov. 9. They will do one broadcast from New York before returning to Hollywood . . . Ruth Etting will be Ben Bernie's guest on Nov. 10 . . . O. Soglow is now doing promotion cartoons for Mutual . . . Frank Forrest, Caravan tenor, begins a series of concert dates in December . . . Lily Pons and Adolphe Menjou will do "Conversation Piece" on the Vallee program Nov. 16 . . . Robert Benchley making the rounds of the agencies, trying to sell a program idea . . . Gene Conrad signed to write the scripts for a "wax" series by NBC . . . Virginia Rea and husband, Edgar Sittig, have closed their country home and are now residing in city . . . Thomas J. Lipton Tea will renew Ralph Kirberry's contract when it runs out Nov. 20 . . . Beth Wilson is Vincent Lopez's new vocalist.

Crosby on Store Program

Hollywood, Oct. 30.—Bing Crosby will appear as a special guest artist on the California chain store hour Nov. 1 on a loan arrangement with his Kraft sponsors. The program is a Sunday feature over KHJ and the Don Lee network and is devoted to amateurs singled out from a certain California city.

After Nov. 1, the program, which has Conrad Nagel as master of ceremonies, will salute the various universities of California instead of the towns up and down the coast.

Bernard Joins WWL

New Orleans, Oct. 30.—After approximately 10 years of stage trouping, phonograph recording, radio singing and song writing, Al Bernard, "The Gentleman from the South" is back and is being heard regularly with the Dixie Dandies over WWL. He plans to put his own version of the song "Staving Chain" on his program. John A. Lomax, creator of folk songs for the Library of Congress in Washington, has launched a nation-wide search for a character.

Tampa Has Radio Tieup

Tampa, Oct. 30.—The Tampa has a tieup with the local broadcasting station for 15-minute broadcasts of organ music by Eddie Ford at noon each day. The announcer sits in the front row of the balcony and gets in a plug for coming attractions.

Crosley, Jr., Entertains

Cincinnati, Oct. 30.—Powell Crosley, Jr., executive head of WLW and WSAI, was host to several hundred rifle experts from various sections of the country in a muzzle-loading rifle contest, held at his country estate near the Ohio-Indiana line.

motion a plan for a strike against an unnamed company, asking exhibitors to refrain from giving dates to the company for 30 days at a time. The plan was referred to a committee for further development as a weapon to be used in the rental war.

Contact, the organization bulletin, became a weekly instead of a semimonthly with the current issue, and will be used in the fight. A first page story, in which Al Lichtman was named as responsible for M-G-M's high rentals, was read.

Segall Denies Bolt

The organization, still in a belligerent mood, advised members not to settle individually with the bill posters' union which has been picketing theatres. The legal aspects of the case have been investigated and it was reported that there is no precedent in Pennsylvania courts for collective action in such matters.

Charles Segall today denied a story appearing in Motion Picture Daily that a statement had been made in New York at the I. T. O. A. meeting on Wednesday about a new group of independents breaking away from the United M. P. T. O. here.

He stated he was the only Philadelphian at the meeting and the matter had not been mentioned.

Exhibitors reported announcements from the American League Against War and Fascism, asking theatres not to renew Hearst Metrotone News contracts, threatening to take action if they did. Some exhibitors reported that the M-G-M exchange had cancelled issues of the news and that the Hearst name had been deleted from recent issues.

Pizor Calls for Cooperation

Lewen Pizor, president, made a fiery plea to members for concerted action in all these drives and told them to "forget themselves as individuals and work collectively." He stated that the organization could take credit for the reduction of "Anthony Adverse" rentals from 50 to 40 per cent. Pizor also announced that more than 600 exhibitors and friends would attend the harmony banquet Sunday night at the Bellevue Straford Hotel.

An exhibitor who attended the Wednesday meeting told Motion Picture Daily later that Philadelphia exhibitors, believed to comprise a group who did not join the new United M. P. T. O., would support the I. T. O. A.'s plans for developing a new national independent exhibitor organization. No names were mentioned.

E. B. Hatrick, in charge of film activities for W. R. Hearst, could not be reached yesterday for confirmation of reports that the Hearst name had been dropped from recent issues of the Metrotone News.

Stars at Trade Show

Merle Oberon, Brian Aherne and Douglas Fairbanks were among the Hollywood personalities who attended a trade show of "Come and Get It" at the Astor yesterday morning.

Canada Music Deal May Need Gov't Sanction

High Rates Involved Are Cited as Reason

TORONTO, Nov. 1.—Government approval may be required before the agreement among representative Canadian exhibitors, Ascap and the British Performing Right Society for the continuance of the music tax rates for theatres which have prevailed in the Dominion heretofore can be placed in effect, according to legal opinion here.

The probability of a Government scrutiny of the agreement arises from the fact that the old rates which it proposes to continue are considerably in excess of those which the Government commission prescribes under the new Dominion legislation regulating music taxes. It was pointed out here that while the government undoubtedly would not attempt to restrain exhibitors who are parties to the agreement from paying rates in excess of those prescribed by its commission, it would move to protect the interests of any exhibitor not a party to the agreement who declined to pay the higher rate. The larger theatre interests, however,

Loew Buys by Rubin Reported by S. E. C.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The acquisition on Sept. 14 of 7,890 shares of Loew's common stock by J. Robert Rubin, New York, and the sale the same day of 7,800 shares was disclosed tonight by the Securities and Exchange Commission in its semi-monthly report of the trading activities of corporation officers and directors. On Sept. 25, the report showed, Rubin acquired a further 200 shares, increasing his holdings during the month by 290 shares to a total of 3,090 shares. At the close of the month, also, Rubin's holding company was shown to have 350 shares of Loew's $6.50 cumulative preferred.

Also filed with the commission was

Expect $20,000 Net At Pathe on Quarter

Pathe's third quarter financial report, due Wednesday, is expected to show a net profit of $20,000, or better, after taxes and other expenses. The company is still writing off losses from First Division, which are said to have reduced the profits considerably.

Plummer Hopeful for Film Industry in Hectic Spain

Harry Chapin Plummer, writer of the article below, is an American newspaper man, who has just returned to this country from Spain, where he has been the correspondent for MOTION PICTURE DAILY and Motion Picture Herald, with headquarters in Barcelona.

His careful and complete reporting of the revolutionary situation in war-torn Spain, as it affected the film industry, set a high mark in trade journalism.

Plummer left Spain when it was no longer possible for him to continue accurate reporting of the news, following the virtual collapse of cable communication, and the serious hampering of ordinary mail.

The following article represents his view, in retrospect, of the situation in which the industry finds itself in Spain.

By HARRY CHAPIN PLUMMER

It was Bismarck who once said of the Spaniards: "The people who ever have sought ruin, but never have found it." I would amend that historic phrase by saying, rather: "The people who ever have faced ruin." It is decidedly presumptuous of me to claim a better acquaintance with my subject than the Iron Chancellor. However, upon the occasion of his sojourns in and about Biarritz and the French country within sight of the Spanish frontier, he could have had no more than fleeting visits into the neighboring Vasco region of Northwest Spain and so must have depended for acquaintance with the Spaniards upon those whom he met outside the confines of their country—a land of infinite beauty and of physical and economic resources vastly greater than the world has given it credit for.

I have only this one advantage over the molder of the destinies of the Germanic State. I have lived for three years among the Spanish people, in all parts of Spain and Morocco, and among the Catalan and Vasco components of their nation. I have lived among them, worked for and among them, shared their joys and their sorrows and, alas! I came to suffer with them in the last dark, tragic three

Grand Jury Probe Of Bombings Seen

A grand jury investigation into the bombings of eight theatres late last week loomed as a result of a police raid on Local 306 headquarters, it was intimated over the weekend. More than 30 men and seven women were released by police after being taken into custody and questioned.

Lieut. James Pike, who led the raid on union headquarters with Asst. Chief Inspector John J. Lyons would not comment on the results of the raid and investigation.

After the hearing, Matthew W.

G. B. Will Reduce All Sales Forces

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The G.B. economy campaign has gone a step further, with the appointment of a supervisor to tour all the distribution branches in the country, who is charged with the task of reducing the sales staff in each branch office by at least one salesman.

An initial economy step was taken earlier this week, when Mark Ostrer declared that the production staff at the Shepherd's Bush studio will be reduced to two units only.

Photophone to Have Indianapolis Plant

A new sound equipment manufacturing plant will be opened at Indianapolis by RCA Photophone to take care of increased sales of both recording and reproducing sets which have overtaxed the company's plant at Camden, Edwin M. Hartley, RCA Photophone division head, said on Saturday.

Hartley said that Photophone had experienced a 100 per cent increase in theatre installations of its equip-

Rush for Film Names on Air Is Looked for

M-G-M Dicker, Warners' Moves Narrow Field

Competition for topflight Hollywood names over the air will take on added fury if the Ford deal for exclusive use of M-G-M stars and talent is consummated, in the opinion of advertising agency executives available on Saturday.

Account executives have been signing up coast talent where they could get it and the field, in a general sense, has been wide open thus far. Under the Ford proposal which calls for an hour's broadcast weekly for a full year at $25,000 a broadcast, the pivot of the arrangement is the exclusive use of the Metro's personalities, thereby obviously curtailing possibilities for other national advertisers. Further, this would be the first time that any major producer had entered upon such an arrangement insofar as radio is concerned.

Agency men, at the same time, are looking further afield and submitting to as close examination as the sparse facts thus far allow the Warner plan for a new national network. That company's headquarters are generally silent on the development, one Warner executive describing MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S coast dispatch of Friday as "taking liberties." This was the story

By RED KANN

IT was only the other day when Bill Boehnel, film critic on the World-Telegram and a persistent theatre first-nighter for all that, sprinkled about some star dust. A sensible piece sent up to the tune of no lofty and theoretical airings, Boehnel recognized at the outset that stars remain because the customers are willing and "apparently because so-called 'nameless' films haven't the same draw as those studded with stars." His conclusion, thereafter, was that the system "must be satisfactory and no one, least of all the writer, should protest." So far so good. "But the fact remains that there must be something wrong with a system which depends on names rather than the merit of the story," writes he then. . . .

Let's poke around a bit and see what comes out. Boehnel should realize, and we are certain he does, that this industry does not establish the system, but executes it and you needn't get funny about it. Too slavishly, no doubt; and with a too great reluctance from time to time about stepping forth briskly and daringly into unexplored channels. The system, if you will, is traceable to the public, obviously. It is where the customer manifests his approval or no, which is to say the box-office, that the system continues to flourish and to make known its preferences. With it, the producer has occasionally tried tricks, including the familiars which scorched his fingers pretty badly.

The star system long ago established itself as an integral part of the celluloid structure. As a matter of fact, it is this same part that causes much of the troubles, plus headaches. But even a headache is mild if you can at all diagnose what ailments might trail efforts designed to change that which the buying customer wants. You can like it or you cannot, and that sounds a great deal like something we've read in this column more often than is good for the column; but stars will remain much longer than the Theatre Guild's show of the same moniker. The industry will curse the system over its levies and drool with extreme pleasure over its returns, but will hold on to it with all claws buried because it is good business to do so. . . .

A delightful cable out of Moscow, via the Associated Press wires, tells:

Three executives who "went Hollywood" in Russia were sentenced to labor camps today. The men, former executives of the Eastern Film Trust, were convicted of frittering away State money for the production of movies.

The manager was sentenced to serve four years, the director to two years and a bookkeeper to one. They were charged with purchasing a bad scenario, countenancing excessive production expense and with wasting money searching for talent.

We are all for liberty and the pursuit of happiness, but this does automatically and at once set us off along paths which, perhaps, had better remain in the think tank and off the printed page. A hint, however. It parallels and has to do with Hollywood's Hollywood, things that have a habit of happening there and what might be done about some of them along similar and somewhat related lines. If you want to go frolicsome and further, you could recall that there is an enterprise, Government-initialed as the WPA, which has a theatre project bouncing up and down the land. You're on your own from this juncture forward. . . .

Those two suits brought in the New York Supreme Court against officers and directors of Paramount Publix by the trustees before reorganization. A throwback to 1934, which is quite something in this business, the possibility is around, albeit remote at this stage, that settlement may be reached out of court. Of memory none too dulcet for those involved, you may remember these were the actions seeking accountings and recovery for Paramount of an estimated $20,000,000 in alleged "excessive compensation" paid to some of the defendants from 1927 to 1930; profits realized by defendants on participation in the company's so-called employes' stock purchase plan; losses realized by the company in transactions in its own securities, and losses incurred through the repurchasing of its own stock at guaranteed redemption prices from persons to whom it was issued during the company's theatre acquisition and expansion years. There it is in one long and complicated sentence and the interested parties include Sidney R. Kent, Jesse L. Lasky, Adolph Zukor, Jules Brulatour, Felix E. Kahn, Daniel Frohman, Gilbert W. Kahn, Sam Katz, Ralph A. Kohn, Elek J. Ludvigh, Maurice Newton, Sir William Wiseman and some others. . . .

Universal Party to Draw Throng Tonight

The Universal Club, organization of home office employes, will hold its annual dinner-dance at the Waldorf-Astoria tonight, with numerous prominent figures in the industry scheduled to attend.

Among those expected are Robert H. Cochrane, president of Universal; J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board; James R. Grainger, general sales manager; Willard S. McKay, secretary; Charles B. Paine, treasurer; William Pierce, studio executive secretary.

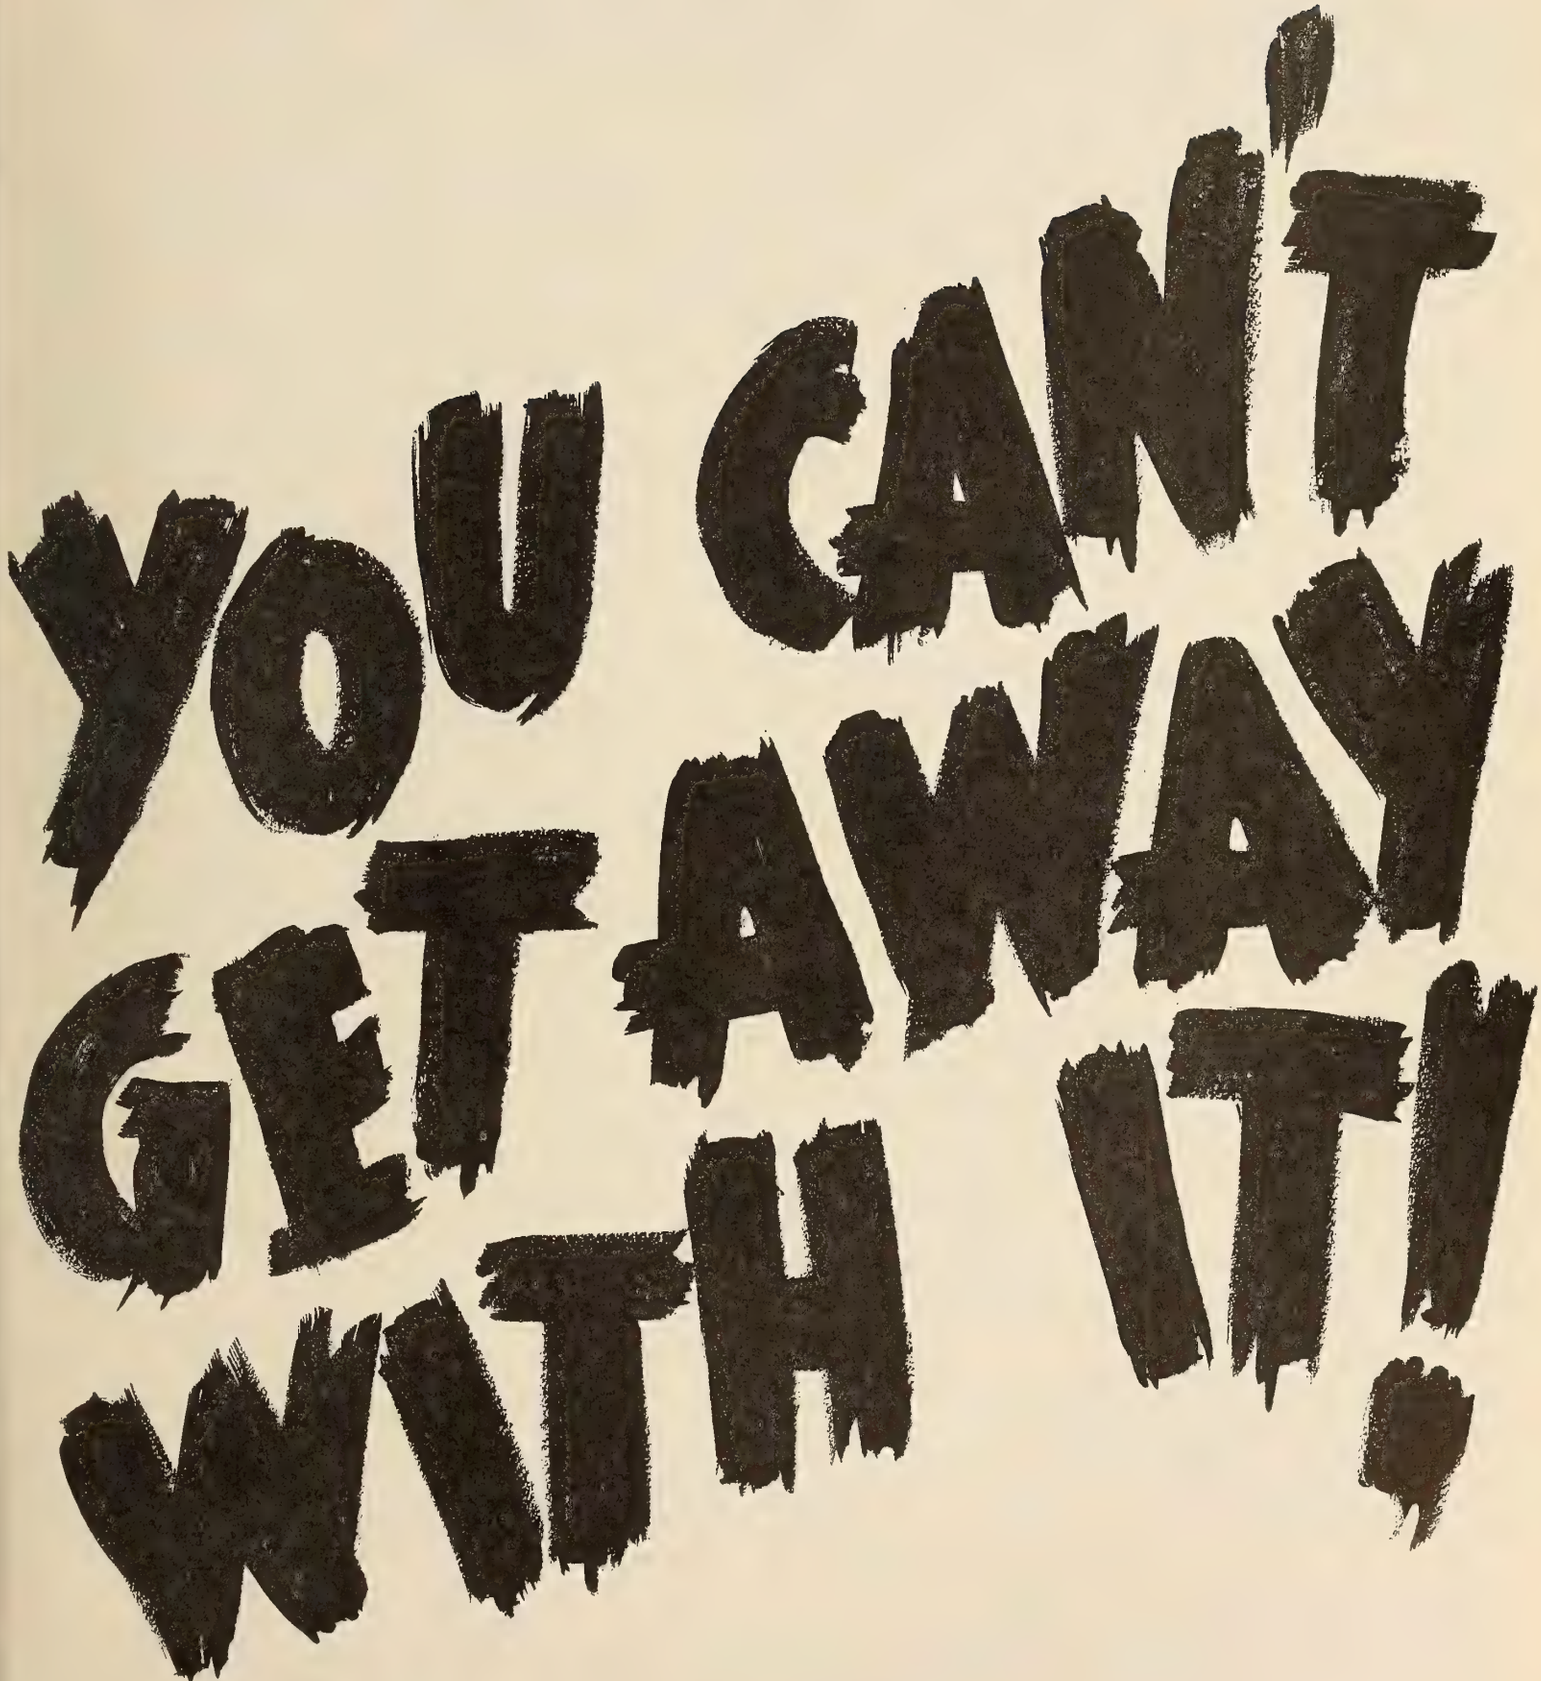
Also, Herbert Wilcox, producer-director of General Film Distributors, Universal English company; Woodham Smith, General's counsel; Harry Joe Brown, Warner producer; Dr. A. H. Giannini, president of United Artists; Jules Brulatour, Herbert J. Yates, Consolidated Film president; W. G. Van Schmus, managing director of the Music Hall; Merlin H. Aylesworth, RKO board chairman; Irene Dunne, Anna Neagle, Martha Sleeper, Sally Eilers, Clayton Bond and George Balsdon of Warners.

Orders Securities Sold in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1.—Judge Charles B. Davis in U. S. District Court here has ordered that $110,000 in debentures and 1,100 shares of preferred stock of Paramount-Publix, received by the voting trustees of the Missouri Theatre Bldg. Corp. in settlement of a rent claim on the building must be sold for cash.

The proceeds are to be turned over to the Boatman's National Bank as trustee under a deed of trust securing $1,917,500 in bonds issued by Missouri Bldg. Corp. The order is in connection with the reorganization plan for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, which the court construed as having application to the Missouri Theatre Bldg. The bank petitioned the court, asking that the proceeds of the sale be turned over to it as security for a new mortgage.

Notables on Queen Mary



With perhaps the season's longest list of notables from the entertainment and film fields, the Queen Mary arrives today with Sidney R. Kent, Herbert Wilcox, Percy Phillipson, William Randolph Hearst, Hugh Walpole, Dudley Nichols, Constance Cummings, Tullio Carminati, Sally Eilers, Anna Neagle, Marion Davies, Nigel Bruce, Ricardo Cortez, Jack Oakie, Buddy G. De Sylva, Max Thorpe, William K. Howard, Benjamin Miggins, European manager of Twentieth Century-Fox and Tamari Desni. Bette Davis is reported to be aboard.

Haven Takes Post as Arkansas Unit Head

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 1.—L. F. Haven of Forrest City, Ark., has assumed the presidency of the I. T. O. of Arkansas following the resignation of Ray Morrow, who recently sold an interest in his theatre in Malvern to Robb and Rowley. Haven was first vice-president.

The executive board of the group revealed that the winter business session and convention will be held here Nov. 8 and 9. Governor-elect Carl E. Bailey of Arkansas and Attorney General-elect Jack Holt will be second day speakers and honor guests at the ball to be held as the final feature of the convention.

Present at the executive meeting, in addition to Morrow and Haven, were B. V. McDougall of Monticello, "Hy" Saunders of Little Rock; Jesse Norman of Malvern, secretary-treasurer; and W. B. Mailin of Augusta. Morrow is the second president of the unit to resign before expiration of his term in as many years. T. W. Sharp, whose unexpired term Morrow filled in 1935, resigned after the sale of his four local theatres to Saunders and Wheeler. Morrow was elected at the spring convention here this year.

New Academy Casting List to Have Photos

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—The Academy has completed plans to publish a casting directory with photos accompanying an alphabetical listing of players. Rates for the service will be extremely low, it is understood, with the same space rate applying to all players.

The directory will be published every two months and the Academy has had assurances of cooperation from several studios and talent agencies.

Canadians to Dance

TORONTO, Nov. 1.—All problems and differences will be laid aside by the film folk in Ontario for the annual ball which is to be held at the King Edward Hotel Nov. 6 under the auspices of the M. P. Distributors' and Exhibitors' Ass'n.

The committee on arrangements includes: Harry Ginsler, Iola; Harry Lesterm, Bonita; Sam Bloom, B. & F. circuit; Raymond Allen, Premier; Ben Cronk, F. P. Canadian Corp.; Dorothy Wilson, Regal Films; W. J. O'Neill, Paramount, and Harry Bailey, Twentieth Century-Fox.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Garden of Allah"

(Selznick International-U. A.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—A delicate, intimate theme is treated with intelligent discretion here. Bringing to the screen the full essence of Robert Hichens' study of two tortured souls, "The Garden of Allah" tells a powerful, penetrating story of immutable spiritual allegiance in conflict with predestined human love. It is produced on a lavish scale with expert Technicolor application making each frame a beautiful picture and with the musical accompaniment just as much a part of the film as the dialogue and action. The story is directed with consummate good taste by Richard Boleslawski and acted with sympathetic understanding by Marlene Dietrich and Charles Boyer as well as the rest of the cast.

As Miss Dietrich rises to the heights and delivers a superlative performance, Boyer further establishes himself among the screen's leading actors. Both have an ideal vehicle in which to display their respective and considerable talents.

Boyer, a Trappist monk succumbing to the earthly temptations of the flesh, breaks his holy vows and flees the monastery. Miss Dietrich, God-fearing, heeds the advice of Lucille Watson, a nun, that she will find happiness in the sanctuary of the desert. She and Boyer meet on the edge of the Sahara, where a vividly executed passion dance by Tilly Losch sets the souls of both afire. They are married by C. Aubrey Smith. In the desert-fabled Garden of Allah their ecstatic love is consummated, only to crash in the dust when earthly forces, represented by Alan Marshall and Basil Rathbone, cause Boyer to confess his monstrous deception. Their great joy turns to horrible tragedy which for the moment impels both to defy the laws of man and God. But there is no bitterness in Miss Dietrich's being, only sublime joy. Boyer, his soul washed clean of sin to God and woman, returns to the monastery. Both envision greater happiness together in another life to be lived in some future world.

Although the leading roles dominate the picture, the work of Marshall, Rathbone, Smith, Joseph Schildkraut, John Carradine and Charles Waldron is of the highest caliber. The transcription of the Hichens' story to the screen by W. P. Lipscomb and Lynn Riggs is sincere and dignified, wholly in keeping with the most exacting standards.

Once before with "Little Women" David O. Selznick measurably influenced screen trends. While this may be considered daring by some, as it concerns topics which the industry in recent years has been careful to avoid, the honest straight-forward manner in which he has handled the subject indicates that he may do so again.

Looking 'Em Over

"Mysteries of Notre Dame"

(DuWorld)

An architect of some distant tomorrow, when time or war have leveled the magnificent Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris, who is a specialist in ecclesiastical architectural styles, may well refer to some vault and this film, and learn in minutest detail, through the camera eye, the structural beauty and sculptural detail of the edifice.

This film, produced by Religious French Films, in France, is an historical document in its careful pictorial description of the cathedral, one of the world's finest. Of considerable assistance in holding audience attention is the symphonic musical score in accompaniment by the great organ and the cathedral choir.

The picture is at once of some historical value and a high tribute to those concerned in the erection of the cathedral, but it is not entertainment in any generally accepted sense of that term. For special audiences, under particular circumstances, it will serve a purpose, but is not for general theatrical use. The statuary, within and without, the details of the bronze paneling, the magnificent exterior, the almost inspiring interior, are all pictured, but an essential is lacking, perhaps necessarily. That is the human occupation of the cathedral, which would attach to the film a far greater significance and interest than it now posesses.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 63 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Wanted—A Master"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—Pete Smith's comment, which here expresses the thoughts of a homeless dog, and the acting of the pup, make this an unusual dramatic subject. The dog, lovable and pathetic, finally acquires a home just as the clock ticks the final minutes before the deadline when all stray pups must be brought to the pound. Gunther von Fritsch and Arthur Ornitz directed. Production Code Seal No. 2,662. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Oklahoma As Is"

(Vitaphone)

Cal Tinney, reputed to be well known for his humor and writing, acts as guide in a novelly presented variety of travelogue which covers the town of Oolalah, Okla. The quaint, rustic characteristics of the hamlet are shown and many gags are introduced. Much realistic local color and a few timeworn but still serviceable jokes are also given. It does, however, strike an odd and amusing note. Production Code Seal No. 01,112. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Olympic Ski Champions"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1.—Pete Smith has here collected the best newsreel shots of the winter Olympics, and presents them with interesting comment. Events shown include the 40-kilometer relay race, won by Finland; the high jumps won by Birger Ruud of Norway, and the fireworks display which ended the winter games. Production Code Seal No. 2,711. Running time. 9 mins. "G."

"Vaudeville Is Back"

(Vitaphone)

Johnny Perkins, rotund master of ceremonies, introduces a number of snappy acts among which are Joe and Jane McKenna, the Four Creedon Girls and The Maxellos. Their performances are diverting and pleasantly entertaining. Production Code Seal No. 01,243. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Theatre Trailer Is Set for 20 Places

With the appointment of Max Wintraub, independent exchange man, as Omaha and Des Moines representative; Joe Lee and S. A. Arnold for Memphis and Indianapolis territories; Max Heiner, Detroit, and Ashby T. Ball, Kansas City, Walter Freudenberger, general sales manager for Theatre Trailer Service, has closed 20 situations with a number of other deals in negotiation.

The company does not plan to extend its activities to the coast until it is ready to open an office of its own, Freudenberger said. This is expected within the next six months.

Rush for Film Names on Air Is Looked for

pointing out that KFWB, the Warner station in Hollywood, had reached out and made deals with KMPC in Los Angeles and KFXM in San Bernardino in what the wires declared to be an initial step toward the formation of a Warner network from coast-to-coast. An integral part of the dispatch made it clear that arrangements, perhaps tentative at this stage, are under way for the extensive use of Warner players. The first are to be Beverly Roberts and Rosaline Marquis in a Nov. 3 broadcast of "The Gold Diggers of 1937." The impression in New York over the weekend was that, if and when the Warner chain is developed, efforts will be made to hold Warner stars and players exclusively for the company's own network on lines identical with those discussed under the impending Ford-M-G-M deal.

This, agency executives recognize, will remove from the competitive lists the rosters of two of the largest producing companies in the film field and make the race for remaining talent, which is regarded as considerable despite the prowess of the Metro and Warner aggregations, even more keen. Prices, they declared, will jump with the bidding.

"Hank" Wharton Dead

MEMPHIS, Nov. 1.—H. D. SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—Sterling Goss, San Francisco theatre man, died here this week from injuries sustained when the car in which he was riding collided with another machine. Four others were injured in the crash.

Rites Held for Kalbfell

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1.—Funeral services were held here for Charles A. Kalbfell, 68, owner of the Pauline, who had operated the theatre for about 20 years.

Waring's 3-Year Deal with Ford Expiring December 25

Following closely on the heels of the negotiations between Ford and M-G-M for a new coast-to-coast CBS program featuring the exclusive radio appearances of the film company's topflight players, MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Saturday learned Fred Waring's contract with Ford comes up for renewal on Nov. 25, and if not acted upon at that date, expires on Christmas Day.

The Waring unit has been broadcasting exclusively in behalf of Ford for almost three years. At present the Pennsylvanians are heard over CBS on Tuesdays, and on the NBC-Blue Network on Fridays. The contracts for both programs run concurrently. N. W. Ayer, advertising agents for Ford, did not participate in the deal between Waring and Ford. Waring acted as his own agent.

It has been estimated that the cost for the proposed M-G-M program would approximate $25,000 weekly. The Waring unit is currently the highest paid act in radio, receiving $13,500 per week.

Waring and his "gang" are due in Detroit this week to perform for the 7,000 Ford dealers meeting there on the new auto season Nov. 5-6. It is taken for granted Waring will confer with Ford officials upon his arrival in the auto city. Perhaps then some definite word will be received as to whether or not Waring's present status with Ford will be affected by the new program if the deal is consummated.

Gable on Caravan Time

Clark Gable, whose M-G-M contract permits him to make a limited number of radio appearances a year, has three down and two to go. Naturally, every important sponsor with a Hollywood program has been trying to snare him for one or both of the remaining air allotments permitted him. While no announcement has been made, MOTION PICTURE DAILY over the weekend learned that he has given options to R. J. Reynolds, sponsor of the Caravan program, for his two remaining mike stints.

Gable's inaugural offering under his present contract was in behalf of Lux in "The Legionnaire and the Lady," with Marlene Dietrich. When Camel premiered early this spring he did "Men in White." Two weeks ago he offered the much-discussed portrayal of George Washington in "Valley Forge."

The Caravan dates or vehicles have not been set as yet.

Will Broadcast from Road

This seems to be the open season for road tours. On Jan. 1 Nelson Eddy leaves Hollywood to make an extended series of concert appearances. On or about the same date, Helen Hayes leaves Broadway for a cross-country jaunt of "Victoria Regina." Within the next few weeks Phil Baker begins a personal appearance run. In each instance the stars will take their radio companies traveling with them and broadcast en route.

Lorre-Vallee Date Set

Peter Lorre will be Rudy Vallee's feature guest Thursday evening. Lorre will do one of his "horror" characterizations in an original specialty titled "Prelude to Murder." Cab Calloway, Sheila Barrett and Eddie Conrad complete the guest talent for the broadcast.

Lola Lane, erstwhile of the films and sister of radio's Priscilla and Rosemary, has been signed under exclusive contract for radio by the William Morris office. Her first air appearance probably will be on the Ben Bernie program.

Bulova Signal Drive On

Regina Schuebel, of the Biow agency, leaves New York next week on a business trip in behalf of Bulova Watch Co. Her stopovers will include Omaha, Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco and Los Angeles. The trip is understood to involve the sale of Bulova time signals to radio stations in the above cities.

Gorin: Igor and Charles

Warners and the sponsors of "Hollywood Hotel" have come to a definite decision on the billing of Igor Gorin. On "Hollywood Hotel" he will retain that name, but in pictures he will be known as Charles. Incidentally, Igor, or Charles, will begin his first concert tour on or about Nov. 23.

New Series for Wrigley

Wrigley's gum will sponsor a new series over the Columbia network beginning Nov. 9. Mondays through Thursdays, the program will be known as "Poetic Melodies," and will feature Franklyn MacCormack in poetry readings and Jack Fulton as vocalist.

On Friday the program will be known as "Mortimer Gooch," and will consist of a company of actors in humorous skits. Both offerings will be heard at 7 P. M. E.S.T.

Lady Esther in Spanish

The Lady Esther Serenades, starring Wayne King's orchestra, soon will be available to radio listeners in Spanish-speaking countries, according to word received from Chicago. Tryouts are now being held for a candidate to handle the Lady Esther role in Spanish. When she is found the programs will be recorded for use by broadcasting stations in Central and South America.

Fitzgerald Transferred Here

John D. Fitzgerald, formerly head of Columbia's public events and special feature departments in Chicago, has been transferred to New York as assistant to Paul White, local special features head. James Pratt, formerly with KMBC, Kansas City, Mo., replaces Fitzgerald in Chicago.

O'Brien Signed by Lux

Pat O'Brien stars for the first time on the Lux program of Nov. 9 as the lead of the famous crook meller, "Alias Jimmy Valentine." Featured with him will be Allen Jenkins, film "tough guy."

The story is a repeat on the Lux Radio Theatre, Dick Barthelmess having played the lead last summer.

a report by James E. MacPherson, New York, showing the disposition in September of 3,700 shares of Consolidated Film Industries common stock, apparently his entire holdings of that class, and the acquisition of 1,400 shares of $2 cumulative participating preferred.

Disposition of 4,000 shares of $1 par common stock of Grand National Films was reported by Edward L. Alperson, New York, who at the close of the month still held 22,546 shares, while a report on International Cinema showed that Regan Day, Inc., held 240,000 shares of common.

Belated reports covering several months were filed by officers and directors of Twentieth Century-Fox. An August report by Chase National Bank disclosed that it sold 5,946 shares of common under an escrow agreement and held at the close of the month 381,431 shares, and has sold, also under an escrow agreement 11,892 shares of $1.50 cumulative preferred, of which it held 762,862 shares at the close of the month. March, 1936, reports showed that Felix A. Jenkins held one share of common, and that A. R. Jenkins, his wife, acquired 20 shares of $1.50 preferred, while William C. Michel acquired 88 shares of common and 176 shares of the preferred.

Consolidated Move Held Up by a Stay

WILMINGTON, Nov. 1.—Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott has issued an order restraining Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., from filing with the Secretary of State any certificate of amendment purported to have been adopted recently by either directors or stockholders and has issued an order for the company officers to appear Nov. 13 to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be granted.

The action was taken on a bill filed by Norman Johnson of New York, preferred stockholder. Howard Duane of Wilmington represents the complainant. The bill alleges that 150,000 shares of an issued 524,973 shares of common stock owned by Setay Corp., which, it is alleged, is controlled by Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated, and directors of Consolidated are largely interested in the common stock and the purported amendment was proposed by the directors to improve the position of the common stockholders at the expense of the preferred stockholders, the complainant charges.

"Ladies Love" On Dual Best Coast Grosser

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1.—"Ladies in Love," on a dual with "All-American Chump," was the only high grosser of the week. It garnered $17,000, up by $3,000, at Loew's State, but failed to get going at the Chinese and finished $1,000 under par on a take of $11,500 there.

"Valiant is the Word for Carrie" went $1,250 over the line on a take of $4,500 at the 4-Star. "Don't Turn 'em Loose" and "The Girl on the Front Page" were a little better than fair at the Hillstreet with $8,300, but they turned in a weak $6,500 at the Pantages.

"The Big Broadcast of 1937" pulled $16,380, with the help of a stage show at the Paramount, in its third week. This was $6,380 to the good.

Total first run business was $89,880. Average is $107,950.

were represented in the agreement and it is from these that the music licensing society derives the bulk of its Canadian revenue.

Under the agreement the Canadian Performing Right Society will continue in operation, according to E. C. Mills, general manager of Ascap, and Leslie Boosey of the British Performing Right Society, whose organizations control the Canadian music licensing unit. Attending the rate conference here at which the agreement was adopted were David Bernstein of Loew's; Col. John A. Cooper of the M. P. Distributors and Exhibitors of Canada, the Hays organization affiliate in the Dominion; Matt Taylor of the Canadian Performing Right Society; Arthur Thompson and T. J. Bragg of Famous Players Canadian, Mills and Boosey. The latter will leave from New York on his return trip to London aboard the Queen Mary on Wednesday.

The exhibitor interests were given an option on a four-year contract with the Canadian society at slightly increased rates which may be exercised later.

Plummer Hopeful for Film Industry in Hectic Spain

months. For, from the volcanic eruption of July 19 to the night of Oct. 15 I lived in Barcelona, the Cradle of Spain's Revolution and a breeding-ground of anarchy even in Bismarck's time, but, in its sane and normal aspects of life one of the handsomest and finest cities in Europe. It is slightly larger than Boston.

The final adjustment and outcome of the anarchy, chaos and strife into which that glorious land is today plunged will depend upon the rank and file of the Spanish people and upon the Catalan and Vasco contingents of their population of 23,000,000. Most surely the deciding factor in the eventual denouement of the drama now being enacted over the Peninsula will be that element of the 23,000,000 which is referred to by its present tyrants with alternating contempt and fear as the "bourgoisie"—they who enjoy a moderate degree of prosperity derived from small independent enterprises or from the wage of a relatively high class of labor. Very typical of that bourgoisie element is the rank and file of officials and employes of the motion picture trade in Spain, one of the most flourishing and progressive of the country's many and varied industrial and mercantile activities.

U. S. Leads in Film Trade

As the 1936-37 issue of the Motion Picture Almanac presents a comprehensive survey of the different phases of the trade in Spain, it is not necessary to more than stress here the fact that the American representation in that industry and trade is the dominant factor. Eight major distributing houses of the United States—Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer, Universal, Radio, Fox, United Artists, Paramount, Warners, First National and Columbia, maintain large offices and distributing outlets in Barcelona, the largest city and seat of film operations, and good-sized branches of those eight in Madrid, Sevilla, Bilbao, Valencia and the Canary and Balearic Islands.

The Metro main establishment in Barcelona comprises one of the most modern and completely equipped "dubbing" plants outside of Hollywood. The capital investment of this American group represents probably 80 per cent of the entire film industry of the country, including the native Spanish producing and "dubbing" studios, laboratories and exchanges and the many French, British, German, Italian and Russian offices and agencies.

Nine Major American Firms

There are about 400 theatres on the mainland of Spain. So the official and working personnel of this really great and important division of Spanish industry represents an army of people, of which easily 2,500 are to be accounted for by the forces of the Spanish affiliate companies of the eight American importing houses—or nine, if we include the representation of the Western Electric Co. of Spain and the two model "dubbing" studios with which that unit maintains a quasi-proprietory contract.

Still another native studio, that of Trilla y La Riva, in Montjuich Park, Barcelona, which has complete producing facilities and in which some of the most important of recent Spanish pictures have been filmed, is now under contract to Warner-First National for "dubbing" purposes only, a clause in the contract prohibiting the filming or "dubbing" of any pictures without Warners' consent. Of course, under the present overturn of legal principles and standards these contracts are being constantly violated at the pleasure of the C.N.T., the controlling Anarcho-Syndicalist group, and its creature subsidiary dominating the film industry, the Comité Económico de Espectáculos Públicos.

The staffs of officers and employes of these several entities of American affiliation will serve to illustrate this brief, hasty analysis of the character and qualities, the human psychology of a cross-section of the Spanish and Catalan bourgoisie directly and seriously affected by the political and economic upheaval in Spain—more than that, whose future and whose happiness, whose liberty and even whose lives are directly and seriously menaced by that upheaval.

Up-to-Date Business Men

When one enters one of the film offices in Spain there is an atmosphere of brightness and snap—we'd call it "pep." This does not proceed altogether from the clean and wholesome physical environment nor from merchandising and salesmanship technique. That brightness and snap are inherent in the nature of the personnel—in the nature of the individual man and woman, and more than that, in the nature of his or her atavistic background. As one tarries upon the threshold, he may note that one of the staff approaches another with a query or an item for consultation and he will be struck by the intuitive courtesy and kindness with which the man or woman approached looks up and enters upon the business in hand.

All are dressed correctly in the prevailing mode and in quiet, good taste. They would compare favorably with any crowd of officials and employes reporting at the Fox or Paramount or Metro offices in New York, Hollywood or Chicago. Address an inquiry or a greeting to anyone and a smiling, courteous and intelligent response is to be had. Whether it be the manager, the sub-manager, secretary, accountant or film inspector, one will sense an innate kindness, a willingness to serve, to accommodate, in their acknowledgment of one's salutation or in the answer to one's question. If perchance one brushes past without the traditional "Buenos dias!" or "Buenos tardes," a sense of disappointment, of hurt, is registered.

Future in Hands of Youth

Spain is a land of youth, of virile youth, of indomitable spirit, of the joie de vivre and the hope of crushed and bleeding Spain today lies in that virility of youth, in that indomitable spirit, in that joy of living, that has been struck down and trampled upon, but not vanquished.

In the relations between employer and employe in Spain and particularly in the Spanish distributor houses, force majeur counts for little or nothing, but reason and common sense and frankness accomplish wonders. If the esprit de corps characteristic of the units of representation of the American industry there which prevailed before the present disturbances has continued through and despite the otherwise confounding and demoralizing influences of the last three months, it has been due in good part to the fundamental, sound common sense of the rank and file of the employes—that, coupled with a sense of humor, which never fails the Spaniard.

This rather rambling tribute to an element which has borne the brunt of one of the most devastating collapses of government and authority in history leads me to the point I wish to stress. That is that the average level of the Spaniard and the Catalan in personal honesty and integrity is high, very high; that his standards of schooling are infinitely higher than they have been given credit for; that his spirit of cooperation is one with his fine and winning courtesy and his sense of sportsmanship, which comes to the fore in any dispute.

Philosophy the Salvation

It has taken personal courage of a high order, stout hearts, resilient nerves and quick intelligence to meet the demands made alike upon each and every employe of the film companies in Barcelona since that fateful July 19, when Red Revolt swept the Peninsula from the French frontier to the Portuguese and almost to Gibraltar. Had the employes indiscriminately followed the alluring cues given them by the Anarcho-Syndicalist leaders of the Revolt untold confusion and hardship would have resulted. But understanding, and a true spirit of co-operation growing out of the respect, the good will and, in not a few instances, out of the positive affection existing between the staff members and their executives, thus far have saved the day.

the exhibitor in the very near future.

Twelve features were completed last week and eight new films were started.

New films in the current lineup were: "A Slug For Cleopatra" at Columbia, "Headin' for the Rio Grande," Grand National, "Trail Dust," Harry Sherman production for Paramount release, "They Wanted to Marry," Radio, "The Chinese Orange Mystery," "The Old Corral" and "Beware of the Ladies," Republic, and "Singing Buckaroo," a Monarch production, in the independent field.

Columbia had five features shooting, four in preparation and scheduled for cameras within two weeks and eight editing. Samuel Goldwyn had zero, zero and two; M-G-M three, zero and 12; Paramount six, four and six; Republic three, three and five; Roach two, one and one; Selznick-International zero, one and zero; Twentieth Century-Fox five, two and seven; Universal two, two and two; Walter Wanger one, one and zero; Warners six, one and nine; independents two, two and three.

The sole short subject in work was at M-G-M, which also had two shorts in preparation and four in the cutting rooms. Radio had one preparing and two editing. Roach one and one; independents one and zero.

Pathe Out of G.N. so Kolbe Leaves Board

Firm Intends to Limit Activity to Laboratory

Pathe has disposed of its stock holdings in Grand National Pictures, ending the interest it has had in the new film company since its formation, it was learned yesterday following the resignation from the Grand National board of Frank F. Kolbe, a director and former president of Pathe. The company's Grand National holdings were disposed of in the open market over an extended period of time, it was said.

A large block of Grand National stock was issued to Pathe on the formation of the new picture company in return for Pathe's interest in First Division Exchanges, which was taken over by Grand National. Pathe's liquidation of its First Division and now of its Grand National holdings has been in line with its declared policy of withdrawing from production and distribution interests to concentrate on its laboratory operations. Arrangements were completed recently by Pathe for the retirement, as well, of obligations of the Van Beuren Corp. which it holds.

Kolbe said that he would continue on the Pathe board, but would devote

Score Directors at Annual G. B. Stockholder Meeting

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The annual stockholders' meeting of G.B. here today developed into a heated series of attacks on the directorate with reference to the alleged inadequacy of the financial report and the breaking off of negotiations on the Twentieth Century-Fox-M-G-M deal for the purchase of G.B.

After one hour and a half of sharp criticism, the meeting ended abruptly with the passage of a resolution for adjournment for two weeks or until the directors can present a complete consolidated balance sheet of the company and its subsidiaries.

About 300 attended the session in the G.B. private theatre. An earlier amendment to appoint a committee to investigate the company's affairs lost

"Allah" Set Back

The trade show of "The Garden of Allah," slated for the Astor Theatre at 11 A.M., tomorrow morning has been set back by United Artists due to the request of a number of exhibitors who have found it inconvenient to come into New York so soon after the Election Day holiday.

United Artists will show the film later.

Wilcox Here To Get U. S. Distribution

Herbert Wilcox, British producer, arrived on the Queen Mary yesterday to arrange distribution of four or five of his recent pictures and bringing word with him that he is also organizing a new producing company to make 12 next season along international lines. The new group will be made by a company about which details are promised in a couple of days. The series of 12 will cost $5,000,000.

Wilcox is the executive producer of General Film Distributors, Ltd., of which C. M. Woolf is chairman. The Woolf company figured in the purchase of Universal from Carl Laemmle and is understood to rate first consideration from "U" on distribution of

New Play Shy on Tunes and Comedy, Long on Dullness

The gloomy and reflective rafters of the New Amsterdam last night looked down on tunes and girls far less glorified than many they could have told about, had they been of the mind. They saw a lot of this and that in a piece called "Forbidden Melody" for reasons not quite apparent and equally as unimportant. They saw and heard book and lyrics by Otto Harbach and music by Sigmund Romberg and they must have wondered, as did others, in what kind of an off moment those two old hands tossed this one off.

They saw Carl Brisson make his American stage debut in a story about Carol and Roumania, intrigue and counterplot, Bucharest and Budapest, mistresses and the real thing in as tinsel-like an assortment of situations that ever banded together in the name of musical comedy.

Maybe they did not, but those venerable rafters might well have wondered about other activities far below

20th-Fox Will Oppose G.B. Shift—Kent

Will Not Approve Ostrer Sale and Won't Sell

Twentieth Century-Fox will not approve the proposed sale by the Ostrers of their 5,100 "A" shares in Metropolis & Bradford Trust, holding company for G.B., to John Maxwell and associates, Sidney R. Kent, president, declared yesterday on his arrival on the Queen Mary after spending five weeks abroad, principally to negotiate a deal with the Ostrers.

Neither will Twentieth Century-Fox sell any of its 4,900 "A" shares in M. & B., he said. "As far as our company is concerned and as far as I know, that's the way things will lay," Kent added.

Under the original trust agreement entered into by William Fox at the time Fox Film Corp. purchased the 4,900 "A" shares, Twentieth Century-Fox has the right to veto any deals for a transfer of the "A" stock, which carries voting power.

"Because of their attitude, we won't approve the proposed sale of the 5,100 shares on which Maxwell holds an option. Naturally, we will try to enforce our veto power.

"We are still friendly," Kent added, "but as far as the disposition of the them. It may have occured to them here was a perfectly beautiful job of stage design by Sergei Soudeikine and competent stage direction by Macklin Megley with superb lighting, but no music and no comedy to grace their effectiveness, which is a very sad state of affairs for a comedy in music.

They could have gone on ad infinitum. They might, for instance, have speculated dolefully over the dialogue direction of Jose Ruben, who knows (or knew) a thing or two about the theatre; why Brisson interrupted his performance by persistently mopping his brow and straightening his hair; about the doubtful comedy histrionics of Jack Sheehan; that there were no voices to sing the little music and lots of aimless conversation to add to the dullness which came along very regularly and at long stretches between frequent musical numbers which were pretty dull in themselves.

Couple of Good Tunes

There was one good number and to be fair and square about it, this reviewer failed to get its name. All right, then, to make up he'll throw in another to a grand total of two. Not enough to keep any show going an entire performance as last night proved all too well.

Ruby Mercer as the girl who taught Brisson how to stop being nomadic did a nice job in a small way, but Joseph Greenwald in a comedy role turned downright annoying before the first act was over. Brisson got by, without distinction and with much perspiration. One of his numbers called "Just Hello" reached out to these eardrums as "Just Alone" or something akin. You can't tell. Brisson and "Forbidden Melody" are quite apt to be.

"Don't Look Now!"

Tangled in a barrage of words there are some amusing situations, some smart lines and the basis of a satirical film story in "Don't Look Now!" After a listener becomes tuned to the speed of the word-flow he begins to catch the wisecracks on the wing, as it were, but chuckles get no chance to develop into guffaws. The dialogue is in the way.

This new comedy by John Crump opened last night at the Bayes with Joseph Buloff featured.

It's the story of a film producer who seems goofy, but is shrewd enough to know that the only way he can get a wandering star back on the set to finish a picture is to give her what she wants, even if it happens to be a husband. In this case the prospective bridegroom is engaged to the backer of his play, but he solves that problem by having one of his writers make love to the fiancee.

Buloff dominates the show, as a high-powered Hollywood producer should. His temperamental flights are something to write home about, but the author—or perhaps it was the director—keeps him talking so fast that the laughs are about 50 words behind.

A tall blonde girl, Beverly Phalon, does a neat piece of acting as the film star in search of a mate. She gets a chance to change her mood—often. She glides from the stormy star defying the world—meaning Buloff—to the cooing temptress, and the scheming feminine, jealous of a rival.

Some of the other roles are handled well, too—Edward Marr, as a press agent; Robert Shayne, as a playwright for whom the film star is on the make; Oscar Stirling, as a butler, and a gangling six-footer named Jack Harles, as a young drunk.

As it stands now it's good for a series of quick laughs and holds the attention as the story intrigue develops. Pruned of some of its excess verbiage and given some careful timing it might go places as a mirth-provoker on the screen.

Music Rates Up to Canada Commission

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—The Canadian commission for regulation of music tax rates would be called upon to decide the rate which could be charged any theatre in the Dominion which declined to pay the tax schedule agreed upon at a meeting here last week between representatives of the larger theatre circuits and those of the Canadian Performing Rights Society, it was stated on good authority today.

The function of the commission, it was pointed out, is to intervene only when a user of copyrighted music refuses to pay a levy fixed by the society and protests the rate as unreasonable to the commission. Under the new Canadian law the commission then may specify what it finds to be a fair rate.

Will Air "Born to Dance" After Its Preview Nov. 13

A bit of Hollywood's celebrated preview hoopla will seep into broadcast channels on Friday, Nov. 13, when M-G-M's "Born to Dance" will be offered on the CBS "Hollywood Hotel" program direct from the stage of Sid Grauman's Chinese theatre immediately following the preview of the picture. Attendance at the broadcast will be by written invitation only.

Eleanore Powell, Frances Langford, Una Merkel, Virginia Bruce, Buddy Ibsen and Sid Silvers will comprise the radio cast. Dick Powell and Louella Parsons will be heard, as usual. Tunes will be confined to those heard in M-G-M pictures, beginning with the original "Broadway Melody" and ending with the "Born to Dance" score.

Golden Heads Theatre Radio

Plans for a promotional radio hour for the theatre are now in the hands of John Golden, producer, who originated the idea and is endeavoring to make it possible, it was stated yesterday following a meeting of the council of Actors' Equity Ass'n, which has agreed to cooperate in its sponsoring.

Equity would authorize appearances of its members on the program without pay and would contribute in other ways to the project, it was said.

Authority Starts in Canada

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—Canadian Broadcasting Corp., newly organized Governmental organization for the control of broadcasting and the licensing of studios in the Dominion, commenced operations today with Murray Gladstone as director.

The corporation is answerable to Parliament through the Minister of Transport. The establishment, maintenance and operation of studios as well as the making of agreements with private broadcasting companies are authorized. The new organization's operations will be financed by licensing fees on receiving sets and by parliamentary appropriation.

Bing Crosby Withdrawn

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 2.—Bing Crosby has been removed from the Monday night broadcast of the California Chain Stores Hour as guest artist on Station KHJ, Don Lee coast network. The chain stores organization has been campaigning against the proposed chain stores tax. Independent stores and other proponents of the tax amendment threatened to boycott Kraft products if the company allowed Crosby to appear. The withdrawal followed.

Tauber Sues Hochreich

A $100,000 suit alleging fraud and deceit was filed in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday by Samuel Tauber against the Vocafilm Corp. of America and its president, David R. Hochreich. The complaint charges that in December, 1935, Hochreich represented to Tauber that he was president of Vocafilm and that he was working on a plan for organization of a company to be known as the Exhibitors' Franchise Corp., which was to take in several other film companies. Tauber charges that Hochreich further represented that he was to become president of this new corporation in addition to securing for Vocafilm a settlement of the $5,500,000 suit which is pending against A. T. & T., W. E. and Erpi. Tauber says he was to become Hochreich's personal representative in all public and personal matters and prepare plans for this enterprise. He stated further that he had a three-year contract at $500 a week and that he performed services up to last June 16, but received no compensation.

Hochreich entered a complete denial to the charges.

Ostrers' 'A' shares in M. & B. is concerned, that's another thing."

Asked if G.B. planned to withdraw from Twentieth Century-Fox exchanges in view of announcements made recently that Maxwell intended to release other products in addition to B.I.P. in this country, Kent said he was not aware of any plans by G.B. to move out. The president of Twentieth Century-Fox held that the company's exchanges were not equipped to handle more product than currently being distributed since there is no room available for it.

Maxwell a few weeks ago concluded negotiations with the Ostrers for 250,000 "B" shares in M. & B. On this angle, Kent said Twentieth Century-Fox had no voice in the sale.

Robert T. Kane, producer for New World, British producing unit for the company, recently completed "Wings in the Morning" in Technicolor and has started the second, "Under the Red Robe." The four pictures made by this company will be distributed in the American market, Kent said.

made public because of his cabled request to the home office to withhold the announcement until he had had an opportunity to examine it. He said that this would be done at the first opportunity and that the statement would out in "two or three days."

Kent declined to discuss the nature of the concessions which his company would make and, in reply to a question, said that he did not know what the attitudes of other major companies were toward the M. P. T. O. A program but "believed their positions would be somewhat different" from that of his company.

Kent's is the first statement from a major company head indicating definite action on the exhibitor program of trade practice reforms and indications are that the Twentieth Century-Fox statement will be the first to be issued. The major features of the M. P. T. O. A. program involve the granting of an unrestricted cancellation program, elimination of the score charge, adoption of the short form of contract and establishment of local conciliation boards.

Says English Are Building 150 Theatres

Outlook Bright, States Percy Phillipson

English interests are building on the average of 150 new theatres a year and there is no sign of this figure waning, Percy Phillipson, president of General Register, said yesterday in commenting on the outlook in Great Britain. He arrived Monday on the Queen Mary to spend six weeks here on his usual business trip.

Average seating capacities of the theatres is 1,500, Phillipson stated. He did not estimate the latest total of theatres in England, but indicated optimism over the progress made in the last year.

20th-Fox In Circuit Buy In Australia

Purchase Insures Outlet For Its Product

By CLIFF HOLT

MELBOURNE, Oct. 13 (By Air Mail, Via London).—Official announcement has been made of the purchase by Twentieth Century-Fox (Australasia, Ltd.), Charles E. Munro and Stanley S. Crick of a substantial interest in Amalgamated Theatres, Ltd., of New Zealand, thereby giving Twentieth Century-Fox a guaranteed outlet in the 65 theatres which are owned or controlled by Amalgamated.

Walter J. Expect Upturn In Grosses as Election Ends

Theatres Hit Badly in Political Battle

An immediate resumption of gains at the box-offices of the nation, which were noticeably affected during the last 10 days or two weeks of the political campaign, is anticipated by exhibitors now that the national election is behind them.

The consistent gains made generally by theatres since early in the year, and which persisted to give the industry one of its best summers in recent years, suffered an estimated setback of from five to 15 per cent in grosses during the closing days of the campaign, theatre men estimate. The business recession is attributed entirely to intense interest in the Presidential candidates which kept large segments of the theatre-going public away from the box offices, particularly as the campaign was drawing to its close. For this reason, the recovery of recent attendance losses is expected by theatre men to be instantaneous and the continuance of the gains begun earlier is looked for.

Public interest evidenced in the campaign just closed is regarded in industry circles as unique in many respects and explanatory of the effect it

See Approval Today Of Loew-Penn Deal

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—Loew's is expected to conclude negotiations tomorrow with the preferred stockholders of the Penn on a new term lease. Discussions have been under way for some time and are expected to come to a head Wednesday.

The date for turning over the theatre and details in connection with Loew's resuming a pool with Warners also will be worked out tomorrow.

Hearst Name Stays On Reels—Hatrick

The name of Hearst will not be removed from the Hearst Metrotone News, Edgar B. Hatrick, general manager for Hearst's film enterprises, stated yesterday in denying reports such a move was contemplated.

Hatrick added that he knew of several instances where exhibitors have been supplanting their own titles without Hearst's name to lead off the newsreel, but this was not general.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THE nationalistic drums, sounding off at Whitehall, make plenty of racket from London these days. They beat in steady crescendo and their volume will increase as the days drop from the calendar. You find evidences of it in the Gaumont British upset and you must have noticed it in the recent resolution of the general council of the Cinematographic Exhibitors Association opposing the further acquisition of British theatres by that arch villain, "foreign interests" . . .

This sort of circumstance telescopes strangely into the American point of view and, because it is unfamiliar, it is also lacking in clarity and reasons why. Having spent exactly sixteen days in London this summer and, of course, now qualifying as an expert on British characteristics, we are here to tell you on this post-election morning that matters having to do with the national interest are important on the other side and many autocratic gestures undertaken in its name. Conceivably, it could even serve as an excuse to wiggle out of a deal in favor of another which happens along on sweeter terms for the seller. . . .

Those who kept both optics on the staggers of the Twentieth Century-Fox - Loew transaction for Gaumont British may have overlooked the part the English government has played from the wings. Never appearing openly, since that would never do, the reasons seem substantially strong now to credit that government with killing off the purchase which the Schenck brothers had every right to conclude was theirs. The proof? Well, now wait a minute and have a heart. We are in no position to produce it and, as a matter of fact, it may never be produced by this purveyor or any other of that scene.

Yet the evidences of any such proof could take several forms. It could, to go specific, display itself in the form of a grateful state, in whose name much has been committed in the past, knighting one of the outstanding figures in its film industry. In other words, Sir John Maxwell. It might, to go on with this, take the form of plenty and easy financing for Maxwell and his augmented holdings through a word, slipped quietly, mind you, to the City, which is British for Wall Street, and it might very well make not the slightest difference whether Twentieth Century-Fox approves the sale of the "A," or voting stock, by the Ostrers to Maxwell. Now or ever. There are instances in British corporate history where amalgamations, completed by private industry, were kicked squarely in the pants because the government there held such deals contrary to the national interest. Really, a very handy something to have around in case. . . .

All of this has its amusing angles, much outweighed by the serious. One of them is the importance which the American picture plays in the British scheme. Everyone in London admits readily that Hollywood, six thousand miles removed, regularly supplies British theatres with the backbone product without which any contemplation of the future would be dolorous in the extreme. For the penalty of maintaining this steady supply of theatre profits, not to overlook the job done in keeping the employment index there from falling lower than it might otherwise, the American distributor for almost ten years now has been punched regularly on his schnozzle, through official subsidy referred to as the quota with every likely prospect that the blows in the future will be harder and arrive more frequently. Some of his money, moreover, is compelled to go into quota pictures which is another cute angle of the idea in that it instructs the British producer how to become a producer with part of the expense borne by the competitor which the former one day hopes to reduce to obscurity. . . .

Bringing the situation across the Atlantic now and under scrutiny closer to the comprehension of the domestic exhibitor, you find Gaumont British operating in this market and getting deals with no Federal restrictions except the routine as it has to do with import taxes and the like. And that is entirely proper. G.B. and all others should be permitted to enter an open market to rub shoulders with native merchandise on a free wheeling basis and to take their chances on the results. Competition should provide for no less when it is fair and untrammeled. The unfortunate truth is that the sort of competition thrown across the path of the American industry when it reaches the Isles is neither fair nor untrammeled, but selfish, unreasonable and, we are afraid, completely unbeatable. . . .

Seek a Washington Statue for Rogers

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 3.—Proposal to place a statue of Will Rogers in Oklahoma's niche in the Hall of Fame at Washington will be urged before the next legislature, Gov. Marland states.

He said that the plan is to erect a replica of the statue on the capitol grounds in Oklahoma City. State appropriations would be sought to pay for both.

At the same time Marland revealed that a P. W. A. grant will be sought to help build a $250,000 Will Rogers museum on a 20-acre tract near Claremore, offered by Mrs. Betty Rogers.

Marland said he had been informed that Oklahoma's half-share of funds raised nationally for Will Rogers memorials would amount to about $128,000. Another $25,000 will be given by Oklahomans who are waiting until a project is definitely decided upon.

Leitsteen Contempt Papers Go to Court

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 3.—Federal Referee Robert E. Steedle has forwarded to U. S. District Judge John Boyd Avis at Camden the papers certifying Herbert Leitsteen, Fox family bookkeeper in contempt of court for refusals to answer questions in the William Fox bankruptcy examination.

A hearing is scheduled for Thursday morning in New Jersey Chancery Court here when counsel for the All-Continent Corp. will ask a modification of the temporary restraint against disposing of any assets.

This restraint was granted Oct. 14 by Vice-Chancellor W. Frank Sooy.

Kendricks Gets Another

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 3.—Harry Kenricks, who is managing the Missouri for F. & M., also is handling the recently reopened Shubert-Rialto.

Charles Daniels is managing the Grand Opera House, reopened last Friday. Vaudeville and pictures will be the policy of this second run house. It is not being operated by F. & M.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 3.—Noel D. Smith, former treasurer of the Orpheum, is the new manager of the Liberty, reopened last week by Mort Singer after a complete renovation.

Ohio Eliminations Jump

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 3.—During the five-week period in October, the censors reviewed a total of 714 reels and ordered eliminations in 49.

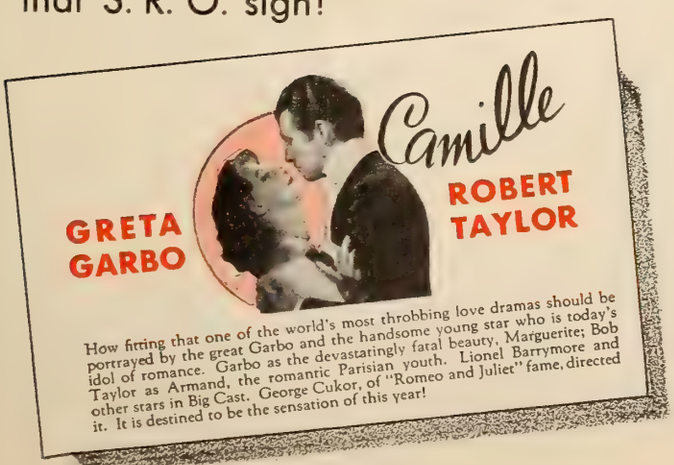
The above record compares with 460 reels reviewed in September, from which there were 13 eliminations ordered.

Foreclose on 3 Houses

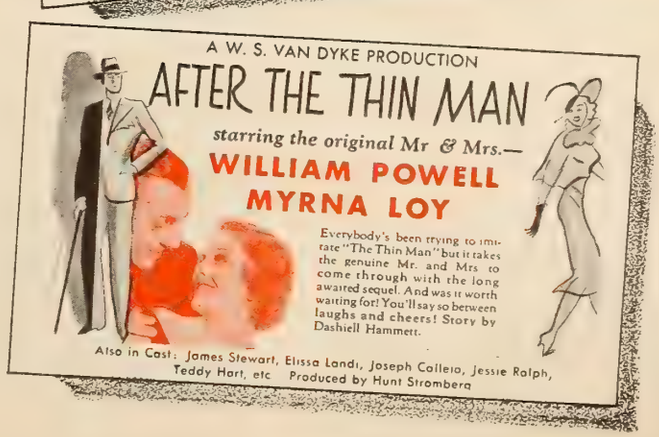
The Theatre Masque, the Golden and the Majestic, all located on the block bounded by 8th Ave., 9th Ave., 44th and 45th Sts., will be offered at an auction sale at the Vesey St. Salesroom on Nov. 23.

Plan Doyle Rites Today

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Arrangements will be made by Del Lord tomorrow for the funeral of Laird Doyle, 29, Warner contract writer, who died yesterday in a plane crash.



STANDING ROOM ONLY!



This is a tip-off to M-G-M exhibitors to keep the old S. R. O. sign handy after they have finished playing "Great Ziegfeld", "Gorgeous Hussy", "Libeled Lady" and other Fall Season hits from M-G-M!

There's more on the way as you can see on this page. And, oh mister, how you're going to need that S. R. O. sign!

A Double Veto

Paul White, head of the special events department of CBS, yesterday instructed Ed Murrow at Hyde Park to arrange a final air talk by President Roosevelt at 7 P. M., E. S. T. Later in the day, John Royal of NBC heard of it and hurried Carleton Smith, assigned to Hyde Park, to beat CBS with a similar talk at 6 P. M.

Upshot: the President cancelled out on both.

Loew Station to Act as a Talent "Farm" in CBS Deal

WHN, independent station owned and operated by the Loew circuit, will act as a talent "farm" for artists now being coached by the artists' bureau of the Columbia Broadcasting System, according to arrangements now being completed by Ralph J. Wonders, manager of the CBS artists' bureau, and Louis K. Sidney, manager of the Loew station.

While it has been a common practice for new talent to try out over local stations before attempting to make the networks, this is the first time that two major radio units have arranged for a systematic development of promising talent.

Benefits of the plan are expected to be reciprocal. Sidney sees in it a better calibre of talent and higher standard of radio shows for the WHN listeners. On the other hand, increased air time will be available to Columbia for the introduction and tryout of new aspirants. Heretofore, because of the crowded CBS schedule, many aspirants who successfully passed rigid auditions faced the possibility of not getting beyond the audition room. The additional broadcasting time opened up by the new arrangement is expected to solve this problem. Active participation in the plan is expected to begin within the next few weeks.

8 Auto Show Programs

Eight special Automobile Show programs will be broadcast over the Columbia network between Tuesday, Nov. 12 and Wednesday, Nov. 18. Among those who have been invited to speak are William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president of General Motors; A. J. Chanter, president of Pierce Arrow; Myron C. Foy, president of DeSoto; Paul G. Hoffman, president of Studebaker; and A. E. Barrit, president of Hudson. The schedule of programs follows:

Tuesday, Nov. 10, 1:45 to 2 P. M.; Wednesday, Nov. 11, 1:15 to 1:30 P. M. (to be broadcast direct from the floor of the automobile show): Thursday, Nov. 12, 1:45 to 2 P. M.; Friday, Nov. 13, 1:15 to 1:30 P. M.; Saturday, Nov. 14, 12:15 to 12:30 P. M.; Monday, Nov. 16, 4:30 to 4:45 P. M.; Tuesday, Nov. 17, 1:45 to 2 P. M.; Wednesday, Nov. 18, 1:15 to 1:30 P. M. All programs are Eastern Standard Time.

The NBC schedule for broadcasting the auto events during the week of the show are as yet incomplete. However, John B. Kennedy, veteran announcer and commentator, has been assigned to broadcast the opening of the exposition on Nov. 11. In addition, NBC will describe a race between autos of ancient vintage from the Tavern-on-the-Green to Rockefeller Center on Nov. 10. The time and network for both NBC programs are still indefinite.

Case of Public Tuning Out

One of the rare instances of network broadcasting under commercial sponsorship for exclusive dealer promotion will be represented in the new William Wrigley, Jr., Co. program opening Nov. 9 over Columbia.

The public will be pointedly invited to tune out the program, which it will be informed is designed as a forum for dealer sales and promotion ideas. The script will be fictional, and will have a dramatic background. The background will comprise the adventures of "Mortimer Gooch," a high-powered chewing gum salesman. Chewing gum sales will get only general treatment. Dealers throughout the country, whether handling confections or furniture, will be invited to submit sales and promotion ideas to be presented on the program.

With more than a million retailers in the country, the audience for the program will not be as limited as supposed. The Wrigley company expects to cash in from goodwill created by discussing retailers' problems and successes.

"Mortimer Gooch" will be a Friday evening presentation. Neisser-Meyerhoff, Inc., Chicago, is the agency.

Reciprocity in Des Moines

As a result of a reciprocal promotion deal, all picture houses in Des Moines are now getting active boosts over stations KSO and KRNT. In return the theatres are using trailers to advertise the station features.

Attractions of independent theatres are featured in a daily half-hour show on KSO. The Tri-State chain offerings are broadcast mornings over the same station, while the Paramount theatre billings are heard over KRNT. In addition, a film gossip program hits KSO listeners daily. The theatres change the station trailers every two weeks. When screen "names" come to Des Moines, the stations get them on the air for interviews and performances.

On the Carpet

Developments in the Ford-M-G-M radio hookup under which the sponsor would have exclusive air use of the Metro starring roster are expected in about a week or 10 days.

William Morris returned from the coast yesterday, but refused to comment on the status of the deal. It is understood, however, the negotiations are still actively under way.

Concert Notables for Ford

The Ford Sunday Evening Hour has contracted for an imposing list of concert and operatic artists for the fall and winter seasons. The guest artist schedule follows: Nov. 15, Jose Iturbi; Nov. 22, Richard Crooks; Nov. 29, Ezio Pinza; Dec. 6, Marjorie Lourena; Dec. 13, Lawrence Tibbett; Dec. 20, Lauritz Melchoir; Dec. 27, Jascha Heifetz; Jan. 3, Lucretia Bori.

New General Food Show

General Foods, Inc., has contracted for a new series of programs to be heard over the NBC-Blue network each Sunday from 3:15 to 3:45 P.M., E.S.T., beginning Nov. 15. The program, a script "meller," will be known as "Cape Diamond Light," and will plug Diamond Crystal Salt. Benton and Bowles is the agency.

Sign More Picture Names

Two last minute picture personalities have been added to the week's network offerings. Tomorrow night Olivia De Havilland joins Peter Lorre on the Vallee Variety Hour, while Madge Evans will be heard on the CBS "Lux Radio Theatre" bandwave assisting Pat O'Brien in "Alias Jimmy Valentine."

Sears, Roebuck Sign Film Star

Despite its Chicago point of origin, Sears, Roebuck seem to be holding their own in the radio scramble for picture names. Grace Moore is the latest to be signed for a guest appearance by the mail-order house. Miss Moore will be heard on Dec. 3.

Toomey, Elman, Et Al

Short Shots: Regis Toomey will be the "Morning Matinee" guest tomorrow on WOR. . . . Sidney Kingsley's play, "Dead End," will be offered on the Mobilization for Human Needs program over the CBS and NBC networks on Nov. 8 at 7 P. M. Mischa Elman set for the Nov. 26 Sears, Roebuck program. . . . Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champ, will sing an operatic aria, of all things, on Sunday's "We the People" broadcast. . . . Charles Crutchfield, WBT (Charlotte, N. C.) program director is mourning the loss of a sister. . . . Phil Regan arrived yesterday from Hollywood. . . . Curtis Mitchell, editor of Radio Guide, due in New York this week. . . . Jack Costello, NBC announcer, yesterday shocked unconscious by a wire break in a "live" mike. . . . Same morning in an adjoining studio, Nellie Revell slumped to the floor in a faint just as she was about due on the air.

KSFO, San Francisco Joining CBS Network

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—The local radio picture will undergo several important changes in the next two months.

Late this month KSFO will be taken over as the northern California outlet of CBS, following the network's abandonment of the two Earl C. Anthony stations, of which the local one is KFRC, heretofore outstanding in the local field. KSFO, which has developed rapidly from a second-rate station, will handle all CBS network programs in future.

KYA, the local Examiner station, will have the new transmitter on the Bay Shore Highway finished some time in January, and KYA salesmen are making a strenuous drive for new commercials.

Marion Talley Switching East

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Marion Talley will switch to New York for two Ry-Krisp broadcasts, one on Nov. 22 and the other on Nov. 29. Joseph Koestner, director of the program, will fly east to direct.

The main reason for moving for the two broadcasts is to give Miss Talley an opportunity to visit her ranch in Kansas. The broadcasts will be resumed from the coast the first Sunday in December.

"Wedding Bells" a Hit

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3. — WHB's "Wedding Bells" program, in which "Daniel Cupid, Sr." interviews newlyweds or engaged couples about weddings and honeymoons, has proved so popular there are many more interviewees than time to interview them. The program, which was inaugurated recently, is sponsored by a furniture store. Those interviewed are presented appropriate wedding gifts.

Has Film Fashion Program

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—A new 15-minute program called "The Hollywood Revue" has just been launched here over WCAE by Stephanie Diamond, wife of Harold W. Cohen, film and drama editor of the Post-Gazette. It is sponsored by a fur store and is broadcast every Sunday at 6:30 P.M. The program consists of transcribed music and Miss Diamond's news on the latest fashions worn by the stars.

Breen Joins WISN

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 3. — Thomas Breen, Jr., former member of the CBS production department in New York and more recently engaged in transcription development work on the coast, has been named announcer and assistant manager at station WISN here.

WHB Gives an Oyster

Kansas City, Nov. 3.—A tip for premium-hungry theatres: The Harris-Goar department store's "Voice of Kansas City" broadcast over WHB, a man-on-the-street interview type of program, last week gave to the person being interviewed on the program when a concealed alarm clock went off, an oyster.

This was no ordinary oyster, however. It was canned in sea water and had been treated according to Japanese oyster culture so that when opened it contained a pearl worth from $10 to $12. The can sells for $2 retail, and the canners guarantee the buyer will find a pearl worth $2 or more. The station plugged the giveaways and had one of the biggest crowds in the history of the program. One angle suggested was use of the can as a bridge prize, but the woman who won it promptly opened it and took out the pearl.

had on theatre business. Unprecedented registration in most sections of the country testifies to the scope of this interest. The huge attendance figures reported for every appearance of the candidates and their supporting speakers, and the fact that a record $2,000,000 was spent by political organizations for radio time is indicative further of the command of public interest which the campaign held, much of it to the exclusion of the theatre, naturally.

Another manifestation, unique in this campaign, was the necessity for withdrawing newsreel shots of the leading candidates from exhibition in numerous theatres in order to avoid audience demonstrations and ill feeling among theatre patronage. Veteran exhibitors report that the need for curbing audience outbursts has never been so widespread as during the past campaign.

All Pictures Hit

Good pictures suffered with the poor in the past 10 days, according to box-office reports. Efforts to overcome the anticipated competition for public attention were begun early in the fall by the industry and, probably, had some effect in staving off attendance losses until the closing days of the campaign. The M.P.P.D.A., through publicity and advertising directors of major companies, conducted a planned drive to emphasize the number of good pictures being exhibited in the nation's theatres, and distributors themselves maintained release lists of uniform quality.

Excellent business was registered by most Broadway houses in yesterday's holiday atmosphere, which was apparent early in Times Square. Attendance was swelled throughout the city from early evening on as thousands took advantage of the election returns services which the great majority of theatres made available.

Hamrick to Open House

SEATTLE, Nov. 3.—On Nov. 6 John Hamrick's Music Hall here will be reopened under the Hamrick-Evergreen (F.W.C.) banner. A policy of double-feature class "A" attractions at a 40-cent top will prevail. James Q. Clemmer will be in charge of the house. On the same date, Hamrick's Orpheum will inaugurate a film-vaudeville policy, with class "B" dual product, and five acts of vaudeville. Top price will be 35 cents.

board of Amalgamated. J. P. Moodabe and Munro will be joint managing directors, and Crick will be on the board. It is understood that the Hoyts circuit has no connection with the deal, except indirectly through the fact that Munro, who is managing director of Hoyts, and Crick, who is board chairman, have personal holdings and, it is supposed, will act as Twentieth Century-Fox nominees.

Completion of the deal places Twentieth Century-Fox in an almost impregnable position of the Australian and New Zealand markets.

Of international interest is the decision given by Chief Justice Sir Frederick Mann in the Practise Court here that the rights granted to J. C. Williamson, Ltd., to produce the musical play, "Rose Marie," include rights to prevent exhibition and distribution of a talking picture version of the play.

The question was before the court preliminary to the trial of an action brought by Williamson to restrain M-G-M from producing and distributing the talking picture, "Rose Marie," and claiming damages. Williamson claimed exclusive ownership of production rights in the Commonwealth, New Zealand and South Africa, except as a silent motion picture. The defendants contended that Williamson's rights did not include production by talking picture.

Differentiation Interesting

The judge said that in 1924, when Williamson obtained its rights, there were two classes of performance, namely, performances which people went to hear and performances which they went to see. The word "picture" in the phrase "motion picture film" conveyed the essential nature of the performance. An audible production of the words of the play was something generically different, and not included in the rights reserved for Williamson.

It is understood that upon receiving a copy of the judgment, M-G-M will consider further action in the matter. Meanwhile, the release of "Rose Marie" is delayed indefinitely.

Richard Dix Turns Down Stage Offers

Richard Dix, who is here on a 10-day vacation, has turned down two offers to appear in plays on Broadway. He will return to the coast next Monday.

Dix recently finished "Below the Depths" with Dolores Del Rio for Columbia. Miss Del Rio will be in his next picture, as yet unnamed. "Below the Depths" is the first picture on a two-year Columbia pact.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Go West Young Man"

(Major Prod.-Paramount)

Hollywood, Nov. 3.—A typical Mae West show, this is for the West clientele plus those who expect something spicily different when the glamorous personality is featured. Based on the legitimate play, "Personal Appearance," numerous changes in the original were made and additions have been written in by Miss West to give her ample opportunity to demonstrate her special talents.

Liberally sprinkled with characteristic Westian gags and wisecracks, and including two somewhat similar solos, the film is basically farce comedy and, while noticeably different from previous West features, it does not fail to deliver all that is expected.

While on a personal appearance tour, Miss West has a receptive eye for any attractive male, which presents Warren William, as her publicity manager, with a constant source of trouble. Tuning some hectic fun with action, Williams beats down his charge's first romantic invasion involving the all too willing politician, Lyle Talbot. Then the road party becomes stranded in a country hotel peopled by interesting characters and Mae sets her cap for a local automobile mechanic, played by Randolph Scott. She becomes a super-menace to the honest romance of Scott's local sweetheart, played by Margaret Perry, and William has to stage a faked kidnapping and call upon hordes of cops to prevent his star from making the unwilling but highly tempted Scott her victim and, to prevent similar recurrences, finally marries her.

Emanuel Cohen's production and Henry Hathaway's direction give the star plenty of opportunity for her particular type of performance, which is enhanced by the contributions of Isabel Jewell, Alice Brady, Elizabeth Patterson and Etienne Girardot.

"Theodora Goes Wild"

(Columbia)

Hollywood, Nov. 3.—A farce comedy-romance, crowded with surprising and amusing twists rollicking along at a merry pace, "Theodora Goes Wild" seems headed for important boxoffice figures. Composed of gay and airy elements, all soundly blended, it is rich in the qualities which audiences like for fun-provoking entertainment and which exhibitors look for in the better type of feature.

Based on two unusually humorous premises, the Mary McCarthy original with the Sidney Buchman screen play moves to the tune of intriguing situations and clever dialogue. The technique of Richard Boleslawski's direction, plus the class performances contributed by Irene Dunne, Melvyn Douglas and a well-chosen supporting cast, causes comedy to predominate.

Miss Dunne lives in a Connecticut town with her sternly moralistic maiden aunts, Eliza Beth Risdon and Margaret McWade. The aunts, with the aid of their clubwomen friends led by Spring Byington, force the publisher of the local daily to discontinue serialization of a sexy best seller. In New York, Miss Dunne is revealed as the author of the book, whereupon Douglas, the illustrator, moves in to make her live the same kind of life as the flaming character which her book heroizes. The resulting sequences seethe with fun.

Fearful that her identity may be made known to her home-towners, Miss Dunne returns home only to be followed by Douglas, whose antics drive her aunts and neighbors to distraction. Miss Dunne is horrified but also captivated and falls hard for the nervy swain only to learn that he is married.

In New York again, she publicizes herself as a red hot mama and adapts the Douglas wild man tactics to give him and his politically ambitious father, Henry Kolker, the jitters. The rapid-fire comedy reaches its peak when again she returns home, this time with a baby to scandalize her aunts and all the townsfolk except Jed Waterbury, the editor of the paper. But finally the infant is revealed as the granddaughter of Miss Byington in the climax of the lively show.

Intriguing and different is the film's treatment of those elements that sometimes cause a bit of eyebrow-lifting. These situations always erupt into hilarious surprises that result in a clean and wholesome show for any kind of an audience.

"Lady" High on Coast

"Libeled Lady" in the second week of its Hollywood run at the Chinese and Loew's State, recorded 83.47 per cent compared to the first week, according to M-G-M. "San Francisco" rated 81.45 per cent in a comparable period there, they claim.

Short Subjects

"The March of Time No. 3"

(RKO)

The first part of the latest issue of this commendable subject is a manner of tribute to Horace Mann, the founder of the present day school system. The modern method of teaching the youngster is contrasted sharply with the theory of past decades. The sequence is a fine pictorial study of children and there are many deft touches of humor interwoven.

That focal point of attention at the moment, the White House—that is its next occupant—makes up the second and final reel. Perhaps for the first time the camera invades the beautiful rooms of the executive mansion and captures on film the settings against which the drama of government is played. The last topic, so well done and with fine photography, is one which will enlighten a nationwide curiosity.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"How to Be a Detective"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, Nov. 3. — Robert Benchley slips below the standard set by his earlier educational subjects in this one. Unlike "How to Sleep," and "How to Vote," etc., there are no surprises, and most of the gags are telegraphed to the audience before they take form on the screen. However, Benchley addicts will not be too disappointed, and the picture should fit happily on most programs. Production Code Seal No. 2,422. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Milk and Money"

(Looney Tune-Vitaphone)

The mortgage forecloser calls around at Porky's homestead and gives the usual notice. In order to stave him off, Porky takes his horse to the city and gets a job delivering milk. He loses the position when he smashes the wagon. Inadvertently while passing a racetrack, they find themselves in a race and with the aid of a vicious horsefly they win, so saving the day. It is an amusing cartoon. Production Code Seal No. 2,581. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Vitaphone Pictorial Revue No. 2"

(Vitaphone)

A few interesting sequences presenting insights on how film stars are found and selected, George Rector's method of preparing a steak, trick umbrella and sun shades, and others of equal novelty. The finish is a style show in color. Fairly good material Production Code Seal No. 01,132. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

Brauman in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Nov. 3.—Milton Brauman, recently promoted from chief booker for the M-G-M exchange here to office manager of the St. Louis branch, has been transferred back to Pittsburgh to become office manager here. He succeeds Herbert Genter, now in the sales post left vacant by the resignation of Jules Lapidus, who became exchange manager here for Grand National.

over since he was promoted six months ago. It is more of a get-together with the home office personnel visit.

Others arriving included Julian Bermann, Max Thorpe, Anna Neagle, Ricardo Cortez, William K. Howard, Jack Okey, Hugh Walpole, Philip Astley, Dudley Nichols, Tamari Desni, Buddy G. DeSylva, Marion Davies, Sally Eilers, Mary Carlisle and Nigel Bruce.

Bermann is en route to Japan for M-G-M. He will leave for the coast Sunday and from there take the Asama Maru the end of the month. He has been supervising sales in a number of countries, including Poland, Austria and France. He has been working out of the Paris office since May.

Cortez Did Film in U. K.

Thorpe is here on his first trip, which he said is a vacation. He may go to the coast tomorrow or Friday and after a sojourn here will sail on the Normandie Nov. 23.

Miss Neagle, who will stay about a month, will confer with Lee Shubert on the possibility of starring in "Nell Gwynn," on the Broadway stage. Her last picture was "The Three Maxims."

Cortez returned from England where he appeared in "With Your Voice" for B. & D. He will leave for the Warner studios today.

Howard has been directing "Fire Over England" for Alexander Korda. He will remain in town about four days, he said, then leave for St. Mary's, O., and report to Walter Wanger on Nov. 18 to direct "Summer Lightning." He will return to England in May when he will be assigned direction of "Broken Road," by A. E. W. Mason, for Korda.

Okey, not the film star, will head for the coast in a few days. The first thing he will do on his arrival, he said, is to have his appendix removed. He is not identified with any company.

Walpole on Visit

Walpole is not here on picture work this time. He will remain in New York until Friday and then begin a lecture tour, returning to England around Christmas.

Astley left for Hollywood Monday to visit his wife. He has no business in mind. On the same train were Nigel Bruce, who has just finished a role in "Thunder Over the City" for Atlantic Films, and Mary Carlisle, headed for the Paramount lot after a vacation abroad.

Nichols returned from a visit to 10 foreign countries, including Russia, where, he said, the attitude toward American production has changed completely since M. Shumiatsky's trip here. He added Russian producers are all interested in Hollywood and eager to learn American production methods. He will report at the RKO studios on Nov. 15. His last picture was "The Plow and the Stars." Nicholas left yesterday for his farm in Connecticut where he will rest until Nov. 14, and then fly to the coast.

Miss Desni is here for a five-day vacation to look over the sights. She will sail to England the end of the week to be married to Bruce Siton, English actor, and return later to appear in a picture to be directed by Howard.

DeSylva was away on an eight-week vacation, visiting England, Scandinavia and Russia. He will leave for the coast in two weeks to report either to Universal or M-G-M.

Miss Eilers will leave for Hollywood and the Universal studio tomorrow. She has just returned after appearing in "With Your Voice" for B. & D. Her Universal contract calls for two a year, she said.

Miss Davies is expected to appear in "Twelfth Night" next, she said. She will remain in New York until Christmas. Her schedule is two a year.

Carminati, who recently finished roles in "The Three Maxims" and "London Melody," will head for the coast shortly to appear in a Universal or M-G-M film. He will sail for England in three months to make two more pictures for Wilcox, he said.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Night Waitress"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Although the cast offers no exploitable names, if this picture is sold as interesting melodrama it should give average audience satisfaction. As the maiden production effort of Joseph Henry Steele, the story reflects intelligent preparation and understanding of the market sought for.

Plot combinations are furnished by the plight of Margot Grahame, as a waitress in a waterfront cafe, and Gordon Jones, skipper of a shady schooner, who become innocently involved with gangsters who have hijacked a gold shipment. Donald Barry is put on the spot and murdered by other mobsters while attempting to charter Jones's schooner. Miss Grahame and Jones, trapped by police during the investigation following the killing, are compelled to solve the entire mystery in order to clear themselves and smooth the way for their romance.

Lew Landers' speedy direction gets the most from a script by Marcus Goodrich by pacing the action for a maximum of suspense. The supporting cast includes Otto Yamoaka and Billy Gilbert, who contribute comedy, and Vinton Haworth, Arthur Loft and Marc Lawrence, who give creditable performances in straight roles. The original story is credited to Golda Draper. As acceptable average entertainment the picture should be favorably received.

Production Code Seal No. 2,668. Running time, 57 minutes. "G."

"Flying Hostess"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Drama, romance, comedy, suspense, melodrama and exciting thrill action are the materials which this film uses in its glorification of the air hostess. The early part of the story is devoted to showing how modern air lines select the hostesses from the ranks of trained nurses. Turned down once, Judith Barrett again becomes a candidate, thus winning the respect of William Gargan. Accepted for the job, she arouses romantic interest in William Hall, playboy flier, when she makes a sensational parachute drop.

Many complications build comedy and drama before Miss Barrett and Hall become engaged. When Hall demands that the girl give up the career for which she fought, Gargan assigns both to the same plane. Escaped convicts on the plane incapacitate Hall and Andy Devine, co-pilot, and commandeer the ship. Miss Barrett outwits the bandits by communicating via radio with Gargan. She follows his instructions, landing the air liner and its human cargo with the minimum of damage. The thrill action sequence is handled realistically, resulting in a nerve-jingling episode. The girl gets a medal for her courage and Hall for her husband in the finale.

Geared for mass consumption, the film was produced in workmanlike fashion by Edmund Grainger. The acting is of consistently high character, with Gargan, Miss Barrett and Hall giving good performances and Andy Devine and Ella Logan taking care of the comedy contrast nicely. In lesser roles, Astrid Allwyn, Addison Randall, Jonathan Hale and Richard Tucker match the principals' strides. The screen play is the work of Harry Clork, Brown Holmes and Harvey Gates and is adapted from the story by George Sayre. Murray Roth directed, blending material and talent into a quality production, intelligently mixing comedy, romance and melodrama to make a better than average thrill action show.

Production Code Seal No. 2,670. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

La Guardia to Probe Bombing of Theatres

George E. Browne, president of the I.A.T.S.E., and Joseph D. Basson, head of Local 306, issued after the first series of bombings, Brandt declared them "ridiculous."

"The purpose of Local 306 in negotiating with exhibitors always has been, I imagine, and always will be, to draw a red herring across the trail of the nefarious practices which they continue to perpetrate against the public patronizing theatres. This is not new," he said.

Brandt added that members of Allied today are receiving more in wages than operators in Local 306.

At Local 306 headquarters it was said Basson is "heartbroken over what has happened." It was also stated that completion of an amalgamation of the three local unions, Allied, Local 306 and Empire is further away than ever before.

Operators Given Raise

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Projectionists' wage-scale discussions have come to an end, with theatres giving a five per cent increase effective Nov. 1 and continuing until Aug. 31, 1939. Then they get another one-half per cent, calculated on the basic salary as of Oct. 31, 1936, which continues until Aug. 31, 1940, and finally a four and a half per cent increase on the original basic salary, continuing until Aug. 31, 1940.

petitions on March 8, 1933, will be ended.

Jones's trusteeship ended, for all practical purposes, May 4, 1935, when National Theatres Corp. bought the assets. Fox Film Corp. and Chase National Bank, which had bought approximately 98 per cent of the claims against the two properties, formed the National corporation, which made its offer to buy on April 12, 1935. Creditors approved the offer April 26, the trustee completed the sale and delivered the estate May 4. Judge Reeves then confirmed the sale.

Pendency of litigation by a group of General Theatres Equipment bondholders, however, has prevented a final settlement.

Rolsky Appeals in Conspiracy Action

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3.—Emanuel Rolsky and seven independents today appealed the verdict in their conspiracy suit against Fox Midwest and major distributors. This is the suit in which Judge Merrill E. Otis decided in favor of the defendants in Federal district court here on Aug. 5.

The 8th circuit appeals court probably will review the case during its March or April term.

M-G-M Gives 60 Options

Approximately 60 possibilities have been optioned by M-G-M for tests and auditions, according to Al Altman, eastern talent scout. So far this year, 15 players have been sent to the studios on short term contracts, he said.

Higher Film Rentals Seen For Germany

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—It is reported that a substantial increase in film rentals in Germany will be made effective beginning next season, in an attempt to make up the loss during the past year to German producers and distributors of 13,000,000 marks. The figures on the loss were the result of a detailed survey directed by the authorities.

It is said that the loss was mainly due to increases in production costs, from approximately 370,000 marks per film to 400,000 marks, and to the increase in star salaries.

Rentals, at present running about 35 per cent of theatre grosses, are expected to be raised to 45 per cent, on the basis of the contention that exhibitors have profited from gains in theatre attendance. It is claimed exhibitors have profited to the extent of 15,000,000 marks from the attendance increase.

Giveaways Taxed in Texas

DALLAS, Nov. 3.—Examination of the omnibus tax law passed by the Texas legislature reveals that the legislation anticipated the legalization of Bank Night by court ruling and incorporated a levy on the giveaways.

Theatres and other places sponsoring Bank Night or similar prizes are assessed a tax amounting to 20 per cent of the "cash value" of the award. Such amusement places are responsible for payment of taxes and must make reports thereon and remit such taxes as are payable to the state comptroller.

Tokens Swamp Louisiana

New Orleans, Nov. 3.—Louisiana has adopted a "luxury" tax which is collected by means of tokens in the denomination of one mill—10 to a cent. These tokens pass for real money and can be used by theatre patrons.

Fifty will buy a ticket for a child. 250 are necessary for an adult at the neighborhoods, while at the Saenger (if they will accept them) 400, not including the tax. Imagine the surprise of a winner in one of the Bank Night payoffs if the local manager decides to pay off in tokens.

They are useful in other ways: 400 will buy a cocktail; one will tip a waiter; a dray load will carry a couple through an enjoyable evening at the Blue Room at the Hotel Roosevelt; one will make a man solid with the deacon when he passes the plate at the morning service. They can also be used for poker chips.

But Uncle Sam refuses 'em for stamps or duties.

Dutch Group Reorganizes Tuchinski's

By PHILIP DE SCHAAP

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 26.—The Tuschinski Trust, which operates a number of theatres in Amsterdam and Rotterdam, has been reorganized through the intermediary of the Dutch M. P. Federation.

With the investment of new capital, enabling the company to retain its important status in the industry, two new companies have been established, the Tuschinski N. V. and the N. V. Tubem. The first named will handle all real estate matters, under the direction of K. Blom, while the second firm will operate the theatres, with J. van Santen as director. Listed as executives are A. Tuschinski, H. Ehrlich and H. J. Gerschtanowitz.

"Desperado" Dual Providence Leader

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 3.—The reopening of Narragansett hit grosses a hefty wallop with the result that the RKO Albee was the only house to reach par. "The Gay Desperado," on a dual with "Second Wife," just came under the wire with an even $7,000.

The Majestic caught $6,800 with "Ladies in Love," down by $200, and "Libeled Lady," in its second week at Loew's State, garnered $8,000. The usual take is $12,000.

The second week of "Dimples," which moved from the Majestic to Fay's, was $2,000 under at $5,000 and the Strand found "Hollywood Boulevard" and "Nine Days a Queen" good for only $5,200, under by $1,300. The pictures ran only six days.

The weather was rainy and cold and horse racing and football games cut in on matinee business.

Total first run business was $32,000. Average is $39,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 29:

Overseas Previews

"Stadt Anatol"

(City of Anatol)
(Ufa)

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—Anatol is a small and insignificant country town somewhere in the Balkans with poor and hard-working inhabitants. A young engineer discovers oil in this town and the way to happiness and unforseen fortune for the peasants seems to open up. Oil refineries are built and a new life completely changes the face of the town. Anatol becomes the center of a new international industry, huge buildings are constructed, amusement centers are erected over night and money penetrates through walls and windows.

With the fortune, the envy comes. It begins with disorders and ends with a big explosion which completely destroys the town with all its factories and new buildings. A love affair is woven into the story, a love between the young engineer and a poor girl who proves a faithful and valuable comrade. The technical side of the film is gorgeous, imposing and thrilling. The boring of the oil, the industrialization of the town and the ever-growing refineries make the picture impressive and interesting. Photography is excellent, although the love affair is a little weak and unconvincing.

In the leading roles are Gustav Frolich as engineer and Brigitte Horney as the country girl. The film was directed by W. Tourjansky.

Running time, 94 minutes. "A." RUTENBERG

"Crime Over London"

(Criterion-United Artists)

LONDON, Oct. 26.—That American gangsters, finding it too hot at home, descend on London and plan a spectacular raid on a big department store, is the plot idea here. The final shoot-up, amidst the fancy goods, is peppy enough, and there is an original twist in the story in the impersonation, by a down-and-out actor in the gang, of the old German-Jewish store owner.

Joseph Cawthorn, in both roles, is the acting success of the picture, which is most effective in the scenes showing the fake shopkeeper leading the crooks to the room where thousands of pounds in notes, "Jubilee" bonuses for the staff, are waiting for them.

The love interest, with Rene Ray and Bruce Lister interpreting it, is intensified by the fact that the young man, nephew of the store magnate, is wrongfully accused of the murder of one of the gang, but is not a strong feature. Margot Grahame is good as a moll and Basil Sydney as the gangster-in-chief. Alfred Zeisler directed.

Good story values and originality in incident are not made the most of in the film in its present form. Re-editing should make it a possible proposition in America.

Running time, 80 minutes. "A." ALLAN.

"Godfrey" An $8,000 Smash In New Haven

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 3.—"My Man Godfrey," on the Paramount dual with "Postal Inspector," walked away with the business this week, reaching $8,000, or $3,200 over par for this theatre. The bill was held.

The College, repeating 'Libeled Lady" and "15 Maiden Lane," with prices raised from the usual, edged $400 over the $2,800 average. "Dimples" and "Back to Nature" at the Poli dropped $800 under the $7,000 line; while "The Magnificent Brute" and "Here Comes Carter" grossed $4,200, $500 under the Roger Sherman average.

A mild weekend brought good attendance to all houses, but the sudden cold snap which followed was harmful.

Total first run business was $21,600. Average is $19,300.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 30:

"LIBELED LADY" (M-G-M)
"15 MAIDEN LANE" (20th-Fox)

Finish "Leave" Score

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Sammy Stept and Ted Koehler have completed the musical score for "23½ Hours Leave" which Douglas MacLean will produce for Grand National release. The picture was scheduled to go before the cameras before Nov. 1 but the producer has not yet selected the actor for the part which he himself made famous in the silent version 17 years ago.

MacLean Purchases "Facts"

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Douglas MacLean has purchased screen rights to "Face the Facts," a magazine story by Clarence Budington Kelland, and will produce it as the third of his series of six for Grand National release.

LeRoy Buys "Crooner"

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Mervyn LeRoy has bought Clarence Budington Kelland's novel, "The Great Crooner," for his second production, and will start as soon as he finishes "The King and the Chorus Girl" for Warners. LeRoy gradually is building an organization. The latest addition is Margaret Irving, seen in "Thanks a Million," and "San Francisco," who has been signed to a personal contract.

"Lawless Land" Started

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—A. W. Hackel has started production of "Lawless Land," next in his series of Johnny Mack Brown stories for Republic release. Frances Kellogg has the feminine lead opposite Brown and Albert Ray is directing.

"Cain" Pulls $26,000, Top Boston Gross

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—"Cain and Mabel" took top honors at the Metropolitan with $4,000 over average. The film, coupled with the stage show featuring Harriet Hoctor, did $26,000.

Sharing honors with "Cain and Mabel" was "Back to Nature" at the RKO Boston with $4,000 over average on a take of $15,000. The stage attraction was "Scandals of 1937," featuring Morton Downey.

"The Devil Is a Sissy" at the two Loew's houses for the second week did $500 over average at each house. Loew's State grossed $11,500, while the Orpheum took $12,500 for the second week.

"The Big Broadcast of 1937," playing second run at the Paramount and Fenway, took $8,500, up by $1,500 at the former and $6,000, over par by $1,500, at the latter.

"The Gay Desperado" at the RKO Memorial took $15,000, up by $3,000.

The weather was cold and rainy the first part of the week while the latter part was somewhat warmer. The rain hurt Saturday business.

Total first run business was $80,000. Average is $79,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 29:

"Libeled" $21,004 Is Buffalo's Wow

BUFFALO, Nov. 3.—Indian summer heat sent downtown grosses soaring, as every house bettered average. The Buffalo's "Libeled Lady" pulled $21,004, a new high for a single picture without stage show. It was moved to the Great Lakes for a second week.

A dual at the Lafayette, "Craig's Wife" and "Shakedown," clicked at $11,000, over normal by $5,000. "The Devil Is a Sissy," at the Hippodrome, drew $10,290, cracking par by $2,990.

Total first run business was $56,494. Average is $38,400.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 24:

"LIBELED LADY" (M-G-M)

"Ziegfeld" Omaha Smash at $10,500

OMAHA, Nov. 3.—Despite the counter-attraction of the Ak-Sar-Ben livestock show with a Canadian mountie troop which drew record crowds, the Paramount reopened with a bang, taking $10,500 with "The Great Ziegfeld" and exceeding all expectations.

The 55-cent top with single features is apparently a hit in spite of the 40-cent top with duals elsewhere.

Other houses suffered. The Brandeis pulled "Don't Turn 'Em Loose" and "Here Comes Carter" after six days and the $3,100 take was below average. The Omaha, playing "The Road to Glory" and "Kelly, the Second," had its worst week in months, pulling $5,200. The Orpheum, with "Ladies in Love" and "Forgotten Faces," slipped over par for an $8,000 gross.

Two conventions, drawing a total of 2,500 persons, and ideal weather, helped somewhat to offset the stock show.

Total first run business was $26,800. Average is $24,200.

Estimated takings:

Week Ending Oct. 28:
"DON'T TURN 'EM LOOSE" (Radio)
"HERE COMES CARTER" (F.N.)

"Broadcast" Dual $8,500, Portland

PORTLAND, Nov. 3.—"The Big Broadcast of 1937" and "The Big Game" at the Paramount secured the heaviest take of the week, $8,500, over house average by $3,500.

"Dodsworth" was held for a second week at the United Artists and brought in $7,200, or a plus of $2,200.

"Gorgeous Hussy" finished a fourth downtown week at the Mayfair with a take of $5,000, or $2,000 over the usual.

Total first run business was $35,200. Average is $24,700.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 24:

"Godfrey" Is $15,000 Hit In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—"My Man Godfrey" had a take of $15,000 at Warners' Hippodrome. This was $5,000 over average. The picture was moved to the Allen.

"Libeled Lady," playing its second week downtown at Loew's Stillman following a big week at Loew's State, took $9,000, or 50 per cent over the $6,000 average.

"The Devil Is a Sissy," going $5,000 over par to a $17,000 total at Loew's State, was held a second week, moving over to the Stillman.

"Adventure in Manhattan" at the RKO Palace with a stage show came within $1,000 of the $15,000 average.

"Killer at Large," in four days at the Allen, and "Pepper," in three days, brought the house $4,800, or $200 under the $5,000 average.

The weather was clear. Competition was "Tobacco Road" at the Hanna, and "It Can't Happen Here" at the Federal.

Total first run business was $59,800. Average is $48,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 30:

"KILLER AT LARGE" (Col.)

LeRoy Picks "Crooner"

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Mervyn LeRoy has set "The Great Crooner" as the second of the pictures he will make for Warner release. Michael Uris has been signed to do the script. "The King and the Chorus Girl," first of the LeRoy productions, will start around Nov. 10.

Film Replaces Speakers

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 3.—A 20 minute film will replace the usual speakers' bureau in the city's annual Community Fund drive this year, for showing before various civic groups. James Adams, manager of the Folly, and Paramount newsreel cameraman here, did the photography.

Shilkret on "Plough"

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Radio has assigned Nathaniel Shilkret to write the score of "The Plough and the Stars" and "Winterset." Both pictures are complete save for scoring, and will be previewed shortly.

Two Roles for Rains

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Warners have two roles ready for Claude Rains. The actor has been cast in "The Prince and the Pauper" and "Danton." Michael Curtiz will co-direct the latter picture with Max Reinhardt.

Vaude in Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 3.—Vaudeville has come back to Birmingham and is being shown at Pantages. The house tried vaudeville two years ago but dropped it.

"Pigskin" $10,300 Smash Houston Hit

HOUSTON, Nov. 3.—With perfect fall weather prevailing, and little opposition, "Pigskin Parade" caught the fancy of this football-minded town to run up a take of $10,300 at the Metropolitan this week, $3,000 up.

"Ladies in Love" scored second with $7,900 at the Majestic, and "Romeo and Juliet" took a good $5,000 in its second week at Loew's State. Average at each of the three theatres is $7,000.

"The Private Life of Henry VIII," a re-issue, had a take of $2,100 at the Kirby in the three-day midweek spot, to lift grosses for the week to $5,100. Average is $5,000. "Tough Guy" and "Two in a Crowd" had normal takes of $1,000 for one day, and $2,000 for three.

Total first run business was $28,000. Average is $26,000.

"Dodsworth" Pulls $8,000, Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 3.—"Dodsworth" and "Two in A Crowd" grossed $8,000 in eight days at the Warner here despite heavy outside attractions. This was $3,000 above par.

Only other business to break average was "Old Hutch" and the "Longest Night," which did $6,200, just $1,200 above par, at Fox's Wisconsin.

Competition included the Milwaukee and Wisconsin Exposition at the Milwaukee Auditorium featuring Horace Heidt and His Brigadiers, which attracted more than 125,000 people in eight days, and the Marquette University homecoming with its dances, parties, and football game which drew 20,000.

Weather for the most part was fair and cool.

Total first run business was $25,500. Average is $24,500.

Triple Change Top At Lincoln House

LINCOLN, NEB., Nov. 3.—The Orpheum led the parade with a strong first half stage show, "Folies D'Amour." Pictures helping round up the money were "Don't Turn 'Em Loose," "Wives Never Know" and "Thank You, Jeeves." The gross was $4,100, which is over par by $2,350.

Shirley Temple was just another little gal as far as the Stuart was concerned, a lukewarm $3,300 going for "Dimples," only $200 to the good. The Lincoln was taking a good share of the money with "Last of the Mohicans" at $2,700, $500 up.

The weather brought cool nights and frequent freezing temperatures have been noted. This has been banging down on night business two or three times a week.

Total first run business was $11,100. Average is $9,000.

Estimated takings:

"Libeled" Up In Pittsburgh With $17,500

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—"Libeled Lady" at the Penn turned in a first rate $17,500, over normal by $6,500. It wasn't felt that figure was impressive enough to earn a holdover.

At the Alvin, "Dimples" was a definite disappointment. It collected only around $6,000 and was the first Shirley Temple picture since the youngster became a star that hasn't gone beyond a single week.

At the Stanley "The Big Broadcast of 1937" took $16,500 for that house's best take since "Anthony Adverse." The Fulton had a flop on its hands in "Follow Your Heart" after seven fine weeks with "My Man Godfrey" and slipped to $3,000, while a timely and entertaining double bill, "The Big Game" and "Here Comes Carter," sent the Warner up to $4,700. Weather conditions were ideal.

Total first run grosses were $47,700. Average is $37,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 29:

"DIMPLES" (20th-Fox)
ALVIN—(2,000), 25c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $6,000. (Average, $5,000)

Conn. Stage Shows Gain

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 3.—Spot bookings of stage shows are increasing in Connecticut. A new Major Bowes unit moves into the Palace, Hartford, on Friday, followed by a week at the Poli, Springfield. The Colonial, Southington, has booked Doc Schneider's Texans for early this month. The Plaza, Stamford, is playing "Adrienne" with a single feature picture, and the Paramount here is due for a stage unit some time before the end of the year.

Book Vaudeville Units

LINCOLN, NEB., Nov. 3.—The Wilbur Cushman vaudeville circuit has booked eastern units with Comerford in Williamsport, Hazleton and Pottsville, several houses in Oklahoma and in Wyoming, the latter through Rick Ricketson.

Warners Sign Raymond

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Warners have signed Gene Raymond for the lead in "Life Begins," which is soon to go into production. Mary Maguire will play opposite Raymond, and Hugh Herbert will also be in the cast. No director has been set.

Columbia Signs Writers

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Columbia has signed Lee Loeb, Harold Buchman and Leslie Swabacker to new writing contracts. Loeb and Buchman have been assigned to prepare the screenplay of "Lovers on Parole," and Swabacker will adapt "New Trail Ahead."

HOW DO WE KNOW?

BECAUSE.....

at a sneak preview in California an audience laughed itself silly and shouted itself hoarse!

BECAUSE.....

it has all of the elements—personalities . . . direction . . . production . . . writing—that make a great picture!

BECAUSE.....

a lot of people who should know a helluva lot about pictures are screaming about its possibilities!

"Broadcast" $9,000 Hit, Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3.—Business for first runs was only fair in a week that called for umbrellas, air conditioning and furnaces, in that order, and saw the annual American Royal Livestock & Horse Show as strong outside competition. "The Big Broadcast of 1937," in its second week at the Newman, took $9,000, $2,000 over, to show the best comparative gross.

"Dimples" did $9,900 at the Mainstreet, where $8,000 is average. It was moved to the Fox Uptown for a second week. "The Girl on the Front Page" went $500 over $6,500 average at the Tower.

Backed by a strong campaign "The Devil is a Sissy" and "All American Chump" took the big gross of the week with $11,900, $400 over normal for the Midland. "The Devil" did the bringing in. The other first run double, "East Meets West" and "Three Married Men," plodded along to a poor $3,800 in nine days, under the line by $1,000.

Total first run business was $41,600. Average is $37,800.

"Game" Grabs Minneapolis' Top, $6,000

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 3.—"The Big Game," backed by a stageshow with Lottie Mayer's Hollywood water ballet, brought in a $4,000 increase over a normal take of $6,000 at the Orpheum to lead the hit parade in the Twin Cities this week in which six houses showed better than average with warmer weather boosting grosses.

"The Big Broadcast of 1937," which had brought a 50 per cent increase at the Minnesota the week before, did $3,000 over an average of $5,000 at the State. "Anthony Adverse," helped by the first attempt to placard roads leading into the city in an effort to attract hunters and football crowds, brought in $4,000 over a $10,000 par at the Minnesota. It was moved into the Lyric.

"Cain and Mabel" boosted the $5,500 average at the Paramount by $1,500 to lead St. Paul out of a slump in both cities.

Total first run business in Minneapolis was $34,900. Average is $25,000. Total first run business in St. Paul was $15,400. Average is $14,500.

Wilson on New Shorts

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Carey Wilson is doing the dialogue and will do explanatory comments in a new series to be produced by Jack Chertok at M-G-M. "What do You Think?" is the title of the series which will deal with psychic phenomena. Wilson also will be heard in a sequel to his "Hollywood Extra," a short called "The Second Step."

Gillespie's House Burned

OKANOGAN, WASH., Nov. 3.—While Loris Gillespie, owner of the Paramount here, was attending a dance in Seattle, his theatre was damaged by a fire which started from the furnace to the extent of $3,000. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

"General" Up In St. Louis With $17,500

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 3.—"The General Died at Dawn," with a stage orchestra attraction headed by Paul Ash as the guest conductor, dragged $17,500 to the Ambassador, beating average by $8,500 and topping all rival attractions both on the basis of actual gross and also on percentage.

"Dimples," at the Fox, also was a money-maker with $16,000 against an average of $14,000. The second picture on the bill was "A Star for a Night."

"Dodsworth" and "Kelly, the Second" at Loew's was the Ambassador's chief rival for top honors with a take of $16,950, or $6,950 above house average.

"Lady, Be Careful" and "Three Married Men" at the Missouri also slipped into the profit class with $9,700, or $700 above par.

"Ramona," playing second run at the St. Louis in conjunction with several acts of vaudeville headed by "Slim" Timblin & Co., took in $7,200, which was just above normal.

Total first run business was $73,050. Average is $55,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 22:

"THE GENERAL DIED AT DAWN" (Para.)

"Drive-In" for May

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 3.—Rhode Island's first "Drive-In" theatre will be located on the site of the old Cycledrome on the Pawtucket-Providence line and will be ready in May of next year. There will be graduated places for 750 automobiles instead of seats for the audience. Peter Laudati is the promoter and the theatre will be patterned after the one now in use in Quincy, Mass. The cost will be about $50,000.

Al Raboch on "Birthday"

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Al Raboch has been appointed production manager for David Loew's "When's Your Birthday," starring Joe E. Brown. John Bucasse Schulze has been signed as art director. Shooting will start Nov. 9 at the RKO-Pathe lot.

Anderson in Des Moines

DES MOINES, Nov. 3.—Arthur Anderson, Warner city salesman in Minneapolis, has been appointed manager here, replacing E. J. Tilton, who has resigned to join Republic as manager in Des Moines and Omaha.

"Libeled Lady" at Top in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3.—Top money last week went to "Libeled Lady," which grabbed a nifty $21,000 for the RKO Albee, where the established figure is $12,000. This rated a hold-over, a rarity at this house.

"Pigskin Parade" balanced the average figure of $10,000 at the RKO Palace, and moved to the RKO Capitol for a second stanza. "Dimples," playing its second down-week at the RKO Grand, drew $3,200, up $450 on the average. These were the only pictures to get over par.

"Wedding Present" sank to a low of $3,000 at Keith's. "The Big Broadcast of 1937," although falling short of the mark in its third downtown week at the RKO Capitol, was shifted to the RKO Grand for a fourth week. Returns at other houses were fair.

Total first run business was $57,950. Average is $58,700.

Estimated takings:

Week Ending Oct. 29:

"LIBELED LADY" (M-G-M)

RKO ALBEE—(3,300), 35c-42c, 7 days. Gross: $21,000. (Average, $12,000.) Held.

"Follow Heart" Is Montreal's Leader

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—"Follow Your Heart" captured first place with the help of Blackstone on the stage. It brought $12,500 to Loew's, $2,000 over par.

"Stage Struck," top feature at the Princess, scored $8,000 while "Dimples," feature No. 1 at the Capitol, was good for $10,000 without juvenile patronage which is barred here. "Dodsworth," half of the dual at the Palace, took in $10,500 and the second week of "Nine Days a Queen" took $4,500 after a first week at $9,000.

Total first run business was $45,500. Average is $44,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 24:

"DIMPLES" (20th-Fox)

"TWO IN A CROWD" (Univ.)

"Broadcast" Second Week Frisco Lead

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—In a week of warm weather and moderate business "The Big Broadcast of 1937," on a dual with "15 Maiden Lane," held up to $17,500, over a first week normal by $1,500, at the Fox.

"Libeled Lady" and "Sitting on the Moon" pulled $14,500, also over the line by $1,500, at the Warfield. "Dodsworth" took $6,000 in its third week at the United Artists, but grosses elsewhere were nothing to get excited about.

The only competition was the stage opening of "It Can't Happen Here."

Total first run business was $88,600. Average is $93,500.

Estimated takings:

Week Ending Oct. 27:

Bert Lahr in
"Whose Baby Are You?" 18 mins.
Educational Grand Laffs

A side-splitting comedy with Bert Lahr trying to do a kind deed for a pal. His friend who runs a stationery and candy store has a wife in the hospital with a baby on the way. The trick is to keep the information from the loan company which is about to loan him $500, but he can't get it if they hear about the new baby and the added overhead. So Lahr gets himself all involved in the eyes of his girl and her dad as the prospective father, and has a deuce of a time trying to square himself. Good for big laffs in any theater where folks want to let themselves go. Produced by Al Christie. Story by David Freedman. In the cast are George Haggerty, Gertrude Mudge, Sally Starr, Earl Gilbert, Eddie Lambert.

Buster Keaton in
"The Chemist" 19 mins.
Educational Swell Gags

A very funnily gagged reel, with Buster Keaton seen as the bright pupil in the chemistry class at college. Buster is in the laboratory, where he has worked out a series of marvelous inventions, which he proceeds to demonstrate to the professor. One is a magic candy that makes the gal who eats it fall all over the gent who presents the morsel. Another invention makes animals grow three times their original size. But the prize discovery of Buster is a noiseless powder for firecrackers for the Fourth. Three tough yeggs read about it in the paper, and kidnap Buster and the powder to blow open a safe. After some hair-raising experiences with the bandits, Buster finally turns the tables and captures them in a very novel and laughable manner. In the cast are Marlyn Stuart, Don McBride, Earl Gilbert, Herman Lieb. Produced by Al Christie, Story by David Freedman. Photographed by George Webber.

"Kiko Foils the Fox"
(Terry-Toon Cartoon) 7 mins.
Educational Lively

The trained kangaroo, Kiko, proves himself a pal of the little folks in the woods, especially the family of three young birds when they get into trouble with the crafty fox, and their parents are unable to protect them. One of them falls right in the path of the foxy Reynard, and Kiko comes to the rescue. Before he does his great life-saving act, he stages a novelty bombardment of the rascally fox with the help of the feathered folk of the woods, using the fruit of the trees as the ammunition. The youngsters will go for Kiko, for he has a way about him that will make the kids cheer. Authored by Paul Terry, Mannie Davis and George Gordon. Scored by Philip A. Scheib.

"Symphony In Snow"
(Treasure Chest) 9 mins.
Educational Thriller

One of the most impressive snow pictures ever filmed. Shows the grandeur of the Swiss Alps, with three daring mountain climbers risking their lives in a hazardous climb, part of the journey there and back negotiated on skiis. The photographs show many close-ups of the climbers hanging precariously over the side of steep chasms that drop sheer for thousands of feet. Here is an outdoor adventure thriller that will hold any audience breathless. Story and narration by A. L. Alexander.

"Krazi-Inventions"
(Treasure Chest) 10 mins.
Educational Unusual

A funny novelty, which burlesques certain nut inventions that have actually been patented in Washington. One shows a mechanical device placed inside a gent's derby which automatically tips his hat for him. In the demonstration the invention goes blooey, with disastrous results to the inventor. Another invention grows hair on bald heads, but when the barber inventor tries to put eyebrows on a girl who had her eyebrows singed off, the machine goes haywire and puts hair all over her face. The reel is well handled for laughs, and the narration by Senator Ford is very funny and full of laughs. In the cast are Eddie Hall, Frank Jaquet, Earl Gilbert, Aileen Cook, Rose Kessner, Jimmie Fox. The authors of the reel are Juliet Lowell and Mort Lewis.

The Cabin Kids in
"Pink Lemonade"
(Song and Comedy Hit) 11 mins.
Educational Pop Kid Stuff

The pop pickaninnies, the Cabin Kids, appear in a circus skit where they crash the gate of the big top by crawling under the canvas. Caught by the cops, the clowns intercede for them, and Toto the Clown puts on a private act for them on condition that they reciprocate by singing one of their darky harmonies. In this way a neat show is put on with the clowns and the kids doing their specialties. The clown stuff will go great with the kids. Story by Art Jarrett. Produced by Al Christie.

Along the rialto with PHIL M. DALY

THERE ARE more laffs to the frame in Educational's current Bert Lahr and Buster Keaton shorts than any producer is reasonably expected to deliver . . . spot these two shorts in on your next two programs and there will be more smiles on the faces of your customers than have been seen going out of your lobby in months . . . "Whose Baby Are You" is the Bert Lahr tickler, while Buster Keaton comes through with "The Chemist," one of his very best . . .

SIDE-SPLITTING COMEDY
GRAND LAFFS . . . . .
VERY FUNNILY GAGGED
WILL HOLD AUDIENCE . . . . BREATHLESS

New Canadian Music Tax Is Slash of 25%

Under U. S. Rate; Seek General Acceptance

The new music tax rates for Canadian theatres which were agreed upon at Toronto last week by representative exhibitors and officials of the music licensing society represent a 25 per cent reduction on the former Canadian rates which were identical to those now in effect in the United States, it was ascertained here yesterday.

E. C. Mills, general manager of Ascap, which is a half owner of the Canadian Performing Right Society, said in explaining the rate differential that film rentals paid by Canadian exhibitors are on the average 25 per cent less than those paid by the exhibitor in the United States and that during the negotiations with Dominion exhibitors last week it was agreed that the Canadian music tax should reflect the same differential. He said that the reduced charges for Canada took into consideration a lower prevailing admission scale and correspondingly

Para. 13-Point Gain Leads Stock Advance

Election day results reacted on the N. Y. Stock Exchange yesterday in such fashion as to send virtually every film security issue on the big board into the plus column on the day's trading, led by Paramount first preferred, which scored the phenomenal gain of 13 points, closing at 136.

That was far and away the outstanding gain, but Eastman Kodak common gained 4½ points, Paramount second preferred 2⅞, to close at 17¾; Warner common 1¼ to close at 15¾; Twentieth Century-Fox preferred 1¾ to end the day at 42⅛; Paramount common 1⅞ to close at 18⅝, and others scoring similar gains. The closing prices on all of the Paramount issues represent new highs for

Warners Reported Seeking Houses Throughout Britain

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, Oct. 25.—Reports current in film circles here link Warners with plans for theatre acquisitions on a large scale.

From various cities in the provinces it is reported that two individuals are seeking to obtain options on properties, stating that their principals want to acquire a theatre "in every town in England."

Among the exhibitors who have been approached is Harry Buxton, who controls 20 houses, in the Lancashire and Yorkshire areas chiefly.

Inquiries here led to the belief expressed in some quarters that speculators are after the options, in view of a potential trade situation which may develop into a scramble for theatres on the part of distributors.

Sam E. Morris, vice-president in charge of foreign activity for Warners, declared here yesterday that Warners are not engaged in an attempt to acquire theatre properties in England.

Richey Has 7-Point Program for Allied

Detroit, Nov. 4.—A seven-point program for Allied of Michigan to pursue during the coming year was outlined today by H. M. Richey as the highlight of the opening session of the 17th annual convention in the Hotel Statler.

The matters on which Allied will center attention are: Adverse legislation, "horizontal unionizing of the industry," protection, admission prices and zoning; over-building; major company sales policies, including percentage and preferred playing time; unfair competition and double bills.

Percentage pictures constitute the gravest problem the exhibitor faces,

"Rembrandt"

London, Nov. 4.—Opening tonight at the Leicester Square, this latest of Alexander Korda has followed the life of the famous Dutch painter with fidelity. Charles Laughton's characterizations and flawless diction lend distinction to a role for which he is, unfortunately, not suited physically.

The film, which runs 84 minutes, describes Rembrandt's descent from fame to poverty, ending on a note of pathos as he spends his last cent for paint.

"U" Will Drop 15 Corporate Subsidiaries

Universal will consolidate or dissolve 15 subsidiaries, including three of major importance in the company's present operating scheme, as well as one of the oldest in the Universal setup, under plans for corporate simplification completed yesterday after having been under consideration for some weeks past.

The initial step in the program was taken recently with the dissolution of Universal Prod., Inc., a company incorporated in Delaware in November, 1935, as a wholly owned subsidiary of Universal Pictures Corp. to carry on most of the parent company's production activities. Universal Pictures

"Green Waters" Mediocre; Theme Is Film Untouchable

Tradition and the joke books tell that the Scotch are parsimonious. That and more may be true when it comes to money, but they seem to have their moments otherwise.

Last night at the Masque, "Green Waters," an importation from London where Lee Shubert saw it on a July night and evidently arranged for its transportation, sets out to tell about one of them and the tragedy which stalks its trail.

Max Catto, the author, centers on the family history of the Frasers, living their uneventful life where the moors, the sea and the Scotch mists converge. There is the father, played quietly and effectively by Reginald Bach, and the results of his Highland

Men Active on Films Retain Congress Jobs

More Capital Legislative Moves Are Expected

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, Nov. 4.—Retention of their seats by practically all members of Congress who have taken an active part in the drive for film legislation is indicated by election returns as received today from various parts of the country.

In the Senate, Senator Metcalf of Rhode Island, a member of the subcommittee which last session held hearings on the block booking bill, was defeated by Governor Green, while in West Virginia the count tonight did not show definitely whether Senator Neely, who headed the subcommittee, had defeated his Republican opponent. In the House of Representatives the indications are that Congressman Pettengill of Indiana as well as Sirovich, Bloom and Celler of New York will be returned.

Most of the members of the House Patents Committee who were interested in copyright legislation were reelected, although complete returns

Industry Is Thanked By Democratic Body

The Motion Picture Division of the Democratic National Committtee, in a statement issued last night, expressed its appreciation to the industry in all its branches for the part it played in the reelection of President Roosevelt. In particular, the statement thanked the co-chairmen throughout the nation.

An expression of appreciation to the trade publications was included for their fairness and impartality in reporting the activities of the division.

Lewin Here for Voyage

Albert Lewin, Paramount executive producer, arrived yesterday. He will leave shortly for a four-month business and pleasure tour of Europe where he will look over talent and story material.

Bette Davis Sails

SOUTHAMPTON, Nov. 4.—Bette Davis sailed on the Aquitania today en route for Hollywood. Miss Davis stated that she had decided to be a "very good sport" about losing her contract fight with Warners.

"Swing Time" Tops Box-Office Champs

"Swing Time" takes front position among the six Box-Office Champions for September listed in the current issue of Motion Picture Herald. The Astaire-Rogers opus is followed by "Anthony Adverse" and "Romeo and Juliet" in second and third place, respectively.

Number four on the list is "The Great Ziegfeld" which is followed by "The Gorgeous Hussy" and finally, by "My Man Godfrey" in sixth position.

Police Guards for Theatres Increased

Police Commissioner Valentine has increased the detective force guarding theatres against further bombings to 225.

One of the bombs which failed to explode is in the hands of the police. It had a percussion cap in the neck of a bottle of acid, with wires and batteries connected to an alarm clock.

Local 306 Goes to Court

Joseph D. Basson, president of Local 306, obtained a show cause order returnable this morning from N. Y. Supreme Court Judge Wasservogel against Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine and District Attorney William C. Dodge why they should not return to Local 306 the papers, documents, personal belongings and other material which was taken in a raid made on the local's headquarters last Friday. Basson declared the raid was made without a warrant.

"U" Music Deal Near

Either the Leo Feist or Robbins Music Co. would become publisher of the song numbers written for Universal productions if negotiations now under way between Jack Robbins, head of the music companies, and William Koenig, Universal production manager, are consummated, it was reported here yesterday. Robbins is now in New York, but will resume the negotiations with Koenig on his return to the coast in the near future.

Morris to Ascap Board

Ed Morris, Warner Bros. music company head, has been reelected to the Ascap board as the film company's representative. Morris was a member of the board up to two years ago when Herman Starr replaced him as a Warner representative. Starr resigned when the Warner companies withdrew from Ascap at the first of the year and the film company has had no representative on the Ascap board since.

Films Offend Chinese

NANKING, Nov. 4.—The government foreign office has demanded the destruction of all prints of "Klondike Annie" and "The General Died At Dawn" on the grounds that the films ridiculed and insulted the Chinese people. It was threatened that unless the producers complied with the request their films will be barred in the future.

"Pigskin" Opens Strong

PORTLAND, Nov. 4.—A holdover is indicated for "Pigskin Parade," which grossed $1,800 on its first day at the Orpheum here.

One Long Jump

Sam Dembow, Jr., now devoting his time to the Magnalite sign, controlled by National Screen Service, yesterday moved from temporary quarters in the RCA Bldg. to permanent offices in the International Bldg.

"From 630 9th Ave. to 630 5th Ave. in one hop," was the way Dembow put it.

Loew's Returns to Operation of Penn

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 4.—Loew's resumed operation of the Penn here yesterday following the successful conclusion of negotiations with the preferred stockholders of the theatre property. Discussions leading to the assumption of Loew's operation have been carried on over a long period.

Under the terms of the operating agreement with the preferred stockholders, the outstanding stock has been reduced by one-half, and Loew's has guaranteed to the stockholders dividends of 4½ per cent. A default on the preferred stock of the house, which originally was operated by Loew's and United Artists, resulted in operation by the security holders for a time.

Club Pays Out $60,000

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—The studio branch of the Warner Club has paid out more than $60,000 in benefits to members during the past two and a half years, according to a report just issued by Tennant C. Wright, president. Most of this sum was disbursed in sick benefits, with death, marriage, and birth bonuses making up the balance. The studio division has a membership of 2,600 and was started 30 months ago.

Would Bar All Standees

REDWOOD CITY, CAL., Nov. 4.—The city attorney is drafting an ordinance to prohibit theatres from selling more tickets than there are actual seats available. It is a move against Screeno, Bingo and similar premium games. Virtually every peninsula theatre offers some such device on dull nights.

Chic Sale Seriously Ill

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4. — Charles "Chic" Sale is critically ill with lobar pneumonia and has been withdrawn from the cast of Universal's "Blonde Dynamite." Reports from the Good Samaritan Hospital today pronounced his condition as "only fair."

Gertrude Michael Recovered

Gertrude Michael is still resting at the Doctors Hospital where she is recuperating from the effects of a toxic condition. Her recovery is complete.

West Appearance Off

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Mae West will be unable to appear at the B. & K. Chicago here, it was learned today, after an elaborate advertising campaign. It was said an attack of influenza prevented her appearance for three weeks. "The Big Broadcast of 1937" will play for two weeks instead.

RCA-NBC to Exhibit Television Advance

Technical improvements made during the past year in television, will be revealed jointly by the Radio Corporation of America and National Broadcasting at a demonstration in Radio City tomorrow. O. B. Hanson, NBC chief engineer, will be in charge. It is expected that Dr. Zworykin, inventor of the iconoscope, principal feature of the RCA television system, will also be present.

David Sarnoff, president of RCA, and Lenox R. Lohr, president of NBC, will provide current information as to the results of field tests conducted by RCA and NBC since Sept. 1 last, and accomplishments in the actual operation of television.

The audience will view the televised broadcast on the 62nd floor of Radio City. The actual performances will take place in the NBC television studio on the third floor from which point it will be piped by wire to the NBC-RCA television transmitter in the Empire State Bldg., and thence back to the audience.

Program Secret

Picture and "live" talent will be used for the experiment. Pathe Films is now preparing a special picture, the subject matter of which is being carefully guarded until the afternoon of the broadcast. Identities of the NBC artists who will be televised are also being held secret.

Friday's television broadcast will be the second such experiment to emanate from Radio City. The previous broadcast took place last July, and was viewed solely by officials of RCA and NBC. No statement as to the success or failure of the broadcast was ever issued. Those who participated in the broadcast were the Pickens Sisters, Ed Wynn, Graham McNamee, the Rockettes, and Jim Barton.

U. A. in Australia Deal

SYDNEY, Oct. 13. (By Air Mail, Via London).—Cecil Marks, general manager in Australasia of United Artists, has closed with J. C. Williamson Picture Corp., of New Zealand for United Artists' entire new season output, 52 features and 18 Disney cartoons, involving 45 houses.

Two More Take G. B. List

Deals for GB product have been signed by George W. Weeks with the Essaness circuit of Chicago and with the Warner circuit in the Milwaukee territory. The former deal is for the entire GB list while the Warner contract, which was signed by William Marshall, involves first runs in key spots.

out by Friday. The Chicago advertising agent who has been handling the deal has left for the east.

Should the current negotiations be successfully consummated, it is believed that Paul Harrison, local N.E.A. film representative, will conduct the broadcasts from the sound stages.

Station Loses Orchestra

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Affiliated Broadcasting Co., has lost its orchestra, Armand Buisseret's, and now "pipes" its orchestral numbers to the chain from new studios in Hammond, Ind. Buisseret was dropped after the Chicago Federation of Musicians refused to allow the firm to cut down the orchestra's size. It consisted of 12 members, plus two pianists, an organist and a relief organist. A. B. C. executives said the orchestra payroll was $2,000 a week.

Set "Virginian" Air Cast

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—The supporting cast of "The Virginian," which will go out over CBS on the Lux hour with Gary Cooper starring and Charles Bickford, Helen Mack and John Howard in featured roles, has been set here. The cast includes Chester Clute, Hal K. Dawson, Earl Ross, Ynes Seabury, Patricia Lyon, James Eagles, Lou Merrill, Frank Nelson and Norman Field. Cecil B. DeMille directs the show.

Train Announcer on Air

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—Edward Everett Horton will interview Jack Pudny, train caller for the Southern Pacific, as a feature of Shell Chateau Saturday.

Marjorie Gestring, 13-year-old Olympic champion, will also be interviewed by Horton on the NBC program.

Dave Killy Smith on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4. — Dave Killy Smith, in charge of Radio Sale, Inc., has arrived from Chicago for conference with Harry O'Neil, advertising representative for drug trade products.

They will discuss a new talent show for KNX and the Columbia network.

Schlaifer Off the Air

OMAHA, Nov. 4.—Charles Schlaifer, Tri-States ad and publicity man here, has delayed returning to the air with his patented feature, "The Hollywood Tattler," a combined commercial-chatter column, until all details in connection with reopening of the Paramount are ironed out.

M-G-M Signs Lind Hayes

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—Lind Hayes, who performed imitations on the Eddie Cantor program Sunday night, has been signed to a six month M-G-M contract on the strength of his performance. Hayes is the son of Grace Hayes, radio artist.

Dave Carter Comes East

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—Dave Carter, publicity director for CBS on the coast, is en route to New York by train to attend a special board of directors meeting. Carter is the only representative from the coast.

NBC Holds Inside Track on Proposed Ford-MGM Lineup

The NBC Blue network will snare the choicest radio plum of the year—the proposed Ford-M-G-M program—and not the Columbia chain, it is indicated in a survey of time conditions prevailing over the networks.

This survey discloses that it would be difficult to fit an hour program in the CBS schedule, particularly on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, the two most likely nights for the proposed new program.

Wednesdays on Columbia, from 9 to 10:30 P. M. EST, is occupied by the Chesterfield, Colgate Palmolive Peet and Gang Buster series, successively. Thursdays, from 8 to 10:30, EST, the CBS channel is taken up by the Kate Smith, Major Bowes, Sears, Roebuck and March of Time presentations.

NBC's Blue network schedule is open for an hour-long sponsored program on these evenings. Blue time on Wednesdays is open after 9 P. M., EST, and on Thursdays, from 8 to 11 P. M., none but unimportant sustainers is scheduled.

The present Ford incumbent who will be effected by the new program, if and when it materializes, will be Fred Waring, and not the Sunday Evening Hour symphony orchestra, according to information which became available to MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday. A visitor close to Henry Ford pointed out that guest artists for the Sunday Evening Hour have been booked solidly ahead for several months to come and that the Waring contract with Ford, in force for the past three years, expires on Christmas Day. Above and beyond any contractual obligations, however, is Ford's personal affection for music in the symphonic form and his reported belief that three years of the Waring "gang" had paved the way for a new attraction.

Waring air time for Ford is now split between CBS and NBC's Blue network—Tuesdays at 9 P. M. on CBC, and Fridays on IBC's Red at 9 P. M., EST.

Benny Heads Air Favorites

For the first time in more than two years Major Bowes' Amateur Hour no longer officially heads the popularity list, according to the figures issued yesterday by the survey organization to which most sponsors and ad agencies subscribe. Jack Benny is now in the lead with a rating of 27.7. Bowes occupies the runner-up position, with 23.7, and Eddie Cantor is third, with 21.8.

Radio programs featuring motion picture guests, which today are reputed to be tops in interest, made a comparatively weak showing. The Lux Radio Theatre got sixth in the ratings; Hollywood Hotel, seventh; the Rudy Vallee program, ninth; Bing Crosby hour, eleventh, and Fred Astaire's show next.

"Personal Column of the Air"

A new series, written by Octavus Roy Cohen, bows in over NBC's Red and Blue networks Nov. 16, under the sponsorship of Procter and Gamble. The program will be known as the "Personal Column of the Air" and will feature dramatizations of personal notices culled from newspapers throughout the nation. A dramatic company, headed by Bill Adams, veteran air actor, will enact the plots.

The schedule brings the show to WJZ and the Blue network at 11:15 A. M., Mondays through Friday; at WEAF and the Red network at 2:45 P. M. Mondays to Thursdays, and to KMOX, St. Louis Columbia station, daily.

Among Their Troubles

The networks were deluged with election phone calls, some of them funny. Here are a few of the more humorous ones:

On Italian listener, with 12 votes in his family, called to inform NBC that all had cast Roosevelt votes—and wouldn't it be possible to broadcast that information? He spelled out his name laboriously.

Several Communists residing in Queens called to find out why election bulletins did not include tabulation of Red votes in Queens.

One woman called to inform NBC that the operator controlling the spotlight on the Times Bldg. had gone insane, because the light was swinging back and forth madly. She was informed that that was the Times' signal conceding the election of Roosevelt.

3-Way Dicker Continues

Elmer Murray, radio head of the William Morris agency, has made no headway in his efforts to sell Ronald Colman, Isabel Jewell and Jane Wyatt to Sears, Roebuck, sponsors of the "Then and Now" CBS series, according to his own admission. The price for the services of the film trio has been reported as being $11,000. While Murray has not completely abandoned negotiations, he holds small hope of consummating the deal.

Lowe For Crosby Program

Edmund Lowe has been engaged for a guest appearance on Bing Crosby's Kraft Music Hall series, Nov. 12. The program is an NBC-Red network feature.

Smith and Dale, Regan, Et Al

Short Shots: Smith and Dale have been penciled in for tomorrow night's Kate Smith broadcast. . . . Phil Regan will sing the numbers from his forthcoming picture, "Happy Go Lucky," on next Tuesday's Ken Murray program. . . . Loretta Lee, now on tour with a Fanchon and Marco unit, flies back to New York on Monday for a date on Al Pierce's CBS Monday night program. . . . Ben Bernie-American Can Co. guests include Cab Calloway and Dick Stabile on Nov. 17, Tamara on Nov. 24 and Sam Schlepperman on Dec. 1. . . . Don Thornburgh, head of CBS west coast division, is in New York on official business. . . . Ed P. Small, formerly spot time purchaser for Geyer, Cornell and Newell, is now with the media department of Benton and Bowles. Small will handle the Continental Baking account. . . . Frank Knight, former CBS announcer, engaged for similar duties at WOR. . . . Vernon Radcliffe, of NBC's local production division, resigns this week for similar job with the N. W. Ayer agency. . . . Shep Fields will play the score from the Grand National picture, "Hats Off," on his NBC program Sunday night.

And on the Coast

Short Shots from Hollywood.—Helen Ward, soloist with Benny Goodman's orchestra, here for a vacation from the Camel Caravan. . . . Chester G. Matson of the Don Lee-KHJ sales staff has resigned to join the Hillman-Shane coast advertising agency. . . . Greta Steuckgold has been set for the Kraft program Nov. 12, her third appearance on that hour. . . . Victor Young will introduce the song number, "Where Have You Been All My Life" on the Shell Chateau program as the initial radio exploitation for Grand National's musical, "Hats Off."

Makes Staff Changes

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—Recent staff changes at KMOX since the transfer of Robert Hafter, former program director, to WBBM, Chicago, make C. G. Renier production director, Sid Saunders, Vic Hugh, announcers, Don Ownby on news and Van Woodward on continuity.

KGW and KEX Get News

PORTLAND, Nov. 4.—Stations KGW and KEX today became affiliates of Trans Radio News service.

According to W. Carey Jennings, manager of the stations, the new service will augment the customary KGW- KEX news broadcasts, of which there have been four each day, except Sunday where there has been but one.

Sutherland Wins Again

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 4.—For the second time in three years, Bill Sutherland of KDKA has walked off with the H. P. Davis medal and prize for the best diction among Pittsburgh's announcers. Sutherland won it in 1934, too. Coming in second and third, according to the judges, were Bill Schaugency and Ernest Neff.

Louise Fitch to Wrigley

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Nov. 4.—Louise Fitch of Council Bluffs, member of Omaha Community Playhouse casts, has been signed by Wrigley as ingenue in a new series of coast-to-coast broadcasts over CBS to start this month. Miss Fitch also stays under option to Columbia, which will use her in sustaining and other broadcasts.

Rivals Amos and Andy

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—"Mr. Fixit," a local feature on Station WIL is Amos and Andy's closest rival for continuous service on the air. Ray Schroeder, former newspaper reporter, who acts as "Mr. Fixit," opened his seventh consecutive year on the air recently.

Starts New Series

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—Station KSD has started a weekly series of radio dramas, titled "Old St. Louis," and built around historic buildings and sites in the city.

Men Active on Films Retain Congress Jobs

have not been received on Representatives Dunn of Pennsylvania, Colden and Kramer of California, Peterson of Florida, Barden of North Carolina, Buckler of Minnesota and Amlie of Wisconsin. Among the Republican members, McLeod of Michigan and Risk of Rhode Island were defeated, but Hartley of New Jersey was returned to office.

The unprecedented popular vote by which President Roosevelt was returned to office for a second term was taken in Washington today as a "vote of confidence" and a mandate from the people to continue the New Deal. With a majority in Congress even greater than last year, and comprised of men who have been elected on the same platform on which the President stood during the campaign, the indications are that the Chief Executive will have little difficulty in securing Congressional approval of such policies as he may propose.

Exactly what the effect of the election upon film legislation will be could not be evaluated today, since with the exception of an outburst against "unconscionable" picture salaries during the NRA period, the President has said little about the industry, although he has favored governmental regulation of certain other major industries.

Action on Films Expected

However, with the return to Congress of members who were foremost in pushing the block booking and copyright legislation last year, it is to be expected that both subjects will be revived early in the session and a drive will be made to secure action on the measures. In contrast with the past two sessions when heavy programs were outlined by the President, it is expected that there will be considerable time during the coming session for the consideration of other than emergency matters. This should give the proponents of film legislation an opportunity to bring it before the House and Senate.

With the results of the election known, business and industry are awaiting information as to the President's message to the incoming Congress in January to learn what steps he may have in mind for the further control of industry, taxation and other legislation.

Birdwell Coming East

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—Russell Birdwell, chief of publicity for Selznick International, is flying to New York on Saturday for the opening of "The Garden of Allah" and to organize a crew of eight exploitation men to work in advance of important play dates.

Plan Newsreel House

Plans for a Grand Central Terminal newsreel theatre may be completed within the next two weeks. The projected house would be erected on a site between the Terminal and the Graybar Bldg. on Lexington Ave., now used as a parking space.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Traitor"

(Puritan)

Conflicts between Mexican smugglers and the Texas rangers, with a subplot involving the brother of the heroine with the outlaws and good western melodrama, is the essence of this film which has qualities for pleasing its audience.

Working under cover, and with the aid of a dishonorable discharge which was engineered to get him a contact with the gang, Tim McCoy, a ranger, brings about the demise of the culprits after following a somewhat routine story. Romance in the person of Frances Grant, who ably plays opposite McCoy, rounds out the drama. But interwoven there are those he-man situations, tense and exciting, from which McCoy emerges in good style.

Sam Newfield directed. Jack Greenhalgh's photography is good. The cast includes Frank Glendon, Pedro Regas and Frank Multon. John Neville wrote the story.

Production Code Seal No. 2,332. Running time, 55 minutes. "G."

"Nightingale"

(Amkino)

The first all-color feature to come from the Russian Mezhrabpomfilm studio does not offer much insofar as color and dramatic content are concerned. The tinting is uneven and static, but at times there are snatches of eye-pleasing beauty. However, this is inconsistent and the lapse is noticeable.

The direction of the script is slow-moving until the very end, when it speeds toward fundamental climactics. And, as is the custom, the story is one of the class struggles, this time featuring the uprising of women workers in a china factory against the highly exaggerated tyranny of the employers. Building from a ponderous start, the film reaches its high point when the women, enraged by information which places the blame for a fatal factory fire on their employers, in the course of their revolt drive off troops with a barrage of chinaware. Said to be based on an actual occurrence in the period embracing 1910-12, the ending is in a manner left hanging in mid-air.

There is an absence of superimposed English titles. Instead, due to the problem brought about by the color, there are narrative inserts, after the fashion of silent films.

Nicolai Ekk directed. The photography is by Fedor Provorov.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 96 minutes. "A."

Overseas Previews

"Helene"

(Films Marquis)

PARIS, Oct. 26.—This film is one of the most important and most intelligent yet made in France and reflects the great improvement in French production standards.

"Helene" was adapted from Vicki Baum's novel, "Helene Wilfur," and was directed by Jean Benoit-Levy. The story deals with the life of Helene, a poor student in medicine in a French provincial university. She and Pierre, another student forced to study medicine despite a passion for music, fall in love and the film centers principally around their romance. Pierre, finding that there is no hope of his ever marrying the girl he loves, poisons himself in her presence and she is left to face the world, knowing she is to bear his child. Pierre, at the time of his suicide, however, knows nothing of this.

A secondary thread of minor interest revolves around the private life of Professor Amboise. When, after Pierre's death, Helene is accused of his murder, it is Professor Amboise who clears her and shields her from the other students. She repays him by restoring his faith in woman which the behavior of his wife earlier had shattered.

The film, remarkably well produced and photographed, shows the real student life in Grenoble in the heart of the French Alps and, thus, gives opportunity for magnificent outdoor shots. There is a deep attraction in the film. Some scenes are perhaps inclined to be depressing and morbid and the central theme, of course, contravenes the American production code. However, it is splendidly acted by Madeleine Renaud as Helene, Constant Remy as Professor Amboise and Jean-Louis Barrault as Pierre, a newcomer who shows promise. The rest of the cast is good.

Running time, 120 minutes. "A." AUTRE.

Importers Only at Anti-Nazi Meeting that belated invitations may possibly be extended to representatives of major distributors or the large theatre circuits. However, it was explained that the larger American units are not considered as playing any part in the showing of Nazi films.

Dr. William Kalb, research director of the league, is expected to preside at the session tomorrow, which is designed as an extention of the movement to halt the attempts of Nazi interests to import films into this country, with a concealment of origin in order to evade opposition to them which exists here.

Among those scheduled to attend, according to the league, is Martin J. Lewis, in his capacity as head of Metropolis Film Co., distributor of foreign product, who is at the same time the managing director of the 55th St. Playhouse, where "Amphitryon," revealed as of German origin by MOTION PICTURE DAILY, had been scheduled to play as a French-produced film.

those stocks. Financial executives of the company have consistently attributed the sensational advances of these shares in recent weeks solely to an improved earnings position.

Paramount's first preferred is a six per cent cumulative convertible stock of $100 par on which no dividends have been paid since the date of issue, Jan. 1, 1935. Back dividends, therefore, will amount to $12 a share by the end of the year. The possibility of dividend action has been admitted by company officials. Paramount's third quarter financial report is expected to be released in 10 days to two weeks.

Para. Wants Gilbert & Sullivan

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—Negotiations are reported under way here between Paramount and William Morris, Jr., and Harry Foster, representing the D'Oyly Carte Opera Co., for the international film rights to 13 Gilbert & Sullivan operas. The works are in the public domain in this country, but the D'Oyly Carte company owns the British copyright for 25 more years.

Paramount's eastern story department said it was not aware of the negotiations. William Morris, Jr., now in New York, could not be reached for confirmation.

Hamrick Men Shifted

SEATTLE, Nov. 4.—The following changes among Hamrick-Evergreen managers will become effective next week:

James Q. Clemmer, from the Music Box to the new Music Hall; Roy Bialkowski, from assistant manager of the Fifth Avenue to the Music Hall; John Berg advanced to assistant manager of the Fifth Avenue; Ron Kelly from assistant manager of the Paramount to manager of the Music Box.

New Canadian Music Tax Is Slash of 25%

smaller theatre earnings there as compared with the United States.

The Canadian music tax schedule agreed upon is 15 cents per seat for theatres seating over 1,600; 12 cents for theatres seating from 801 to 1,599; 10 cents for theatres under 800 seats and five cents for theatres under 800 seats which are open only three days a week or less. A minimum fee of $10 per year was established.

The former rates, which were the same as those now prevailing in the United States, were 20 cents per seat for theatres over 1,600; 15 cents for theatres from 801 to 1,599; 10 cents a seat for theatres under 800, and five cents for those under 800 open three days a week or less.

The Canadian exhibitors have been offered four-year licenses at the new rates.

Mills confirmed Toronto dispatches to Motion Picture Daily which stated that the new rate schedule could not be enforced against exhibitors who refused to pay it. It has been accepted by the Motion Picture Distributors and Exhibitors of Canada and specifically by the larger theatre companies operating in the Dominion, such as Famous Players Canadian and Loew's. These have recommended its acceptance by other Canadian theatre operators as a fair schedule, Mills said.

Ascap Expects Protests

In the event that some of the exhibition interests which held that a flat five-cent a seat rate was equitable, refused to pay the new schedule they would file a protest with the newly established Canadian music tax commission, which would hear their complaint and rule on the fairness of the new rates. If the commission ruled that the protesting exhibitors did not have to pay these rates, the Canadian Performing Rights Society would cease to license them and such exhibitors would be required to negotiate with individual owners of music copyrights for the use of their music, Mills said.

Ascap is anticipating protests to the rate commission against the new schedules, but believes that an amicable adjudication can be reached with complaining exhibitors without the necessity of a hearing before the rate commission.

Tri-States Reports Scale Rises Success

Omaha, Nov. 4.—First attempts to raise prices in this territory have been met with success, according to District Manager E. R. Cummings of Tri-States.

The most successful move was the putting of the recently reopened Paramount on a single-feature, 55-cent top basis.

Tri-States started five-cent raises two months ago in five subsequents at Sioux City, Ia. Then came similar raises at Grand Island, Hastings and Fairbury in Nebraska.

"Business has improved since the price raises," Cummings said.

Overseas Previews

"The Flying Doctor"

(National Prod.-G.B.)

Melbourne, Oct. 13.—Quite apart from any question of merit, "The Flying Doctor" claims international attention. It is the first talking picture made in Australia by an Australian producing organization in association with a British corporation. It is the first film made in the Commonwealth by a British director with British technicians, and its star is the American, Charles Farrell. Moreover, its distribution will be handled on the Australian market by Twentieth Century-Fox free of cost as a gesture towards the local producing industry, thereby saving National Prod., Ltd., an estimated £12,000.

Judged on Australian standards, "The Flying Doctor" rates high. While it lacks the polish of imported product, it nevertheless represents a decided advance over previous Australian pictures, leading one to believe that with experience, local studios will deliver something that looks more like the work of professionals and less like the efforts of amateurs.

In contrast to the earlier Australian pictures, the players have created an illusion of reality, and that awkward "staginess" which has always been a depressing feature of local product is for the most part absent. Farrell's performance is up to the best he has delivered in Hollywood films. The feminine members of the cast are inadequate. Mary McGuire, who has since found a niche for herself in Hollywood with Twentieth Century-Fox, photographs brilliantly, but acts with a total lack of animation and imagination. If she has latent talent, more strenuous direction should help her considerably.

The story is weak. Had the director, Miles Mander, and the players been given an expertly prepared script, they might have turned out a praiseworthy venture.

From a color standpoint, "The Flying Doctor" leaves nothing to be desired. Sound and photography are faultless. Overseas audiences will see typical Australian scenes and landmarks that should interest them. Not only will they see glimpses of out-back station life, but the rush and bustle of Australian cities, the famous Sydney harbor and harbor bridge, Australian's surging beaches, its night life and other features of an interesting country.

According to official word, "The Flying Doctor" cost £40,000 to produce. It is expected to be distributed in the United States and the British Isles.

The original story is by Robert Waldron. Adaption and scenario are by J. O. C. Orton. Photography is by Derik Williams. Running time, 92 minutes "G" Holt.

"Cavalry"

(ICI-United Artists)

Rome, Oct. 26.—From a period of Italian history that lends itself well to romantic interpretation—the middle era of Piedmontese aristocracy in 1899—this production is one of high artistic merit, emphasized in the sequences depicting the famous cavalry school at Pinerolo and a fox hunt. The Government cooperated in the filming by permitting 2,000 crack cavalry troops to participate.

There is little plot. Beginning in Turin, the story reveals the love of two sisters for a famous cavalry officer. One of the sisters is secretly engaged to him, but jilts him when she must marry a rich German to save her family's fortune. The male lead, played by A. Nazzari, renounces the two and devotes his life to his career in the cavalry. Years pass and the two girls are now married. Chance brings Nazzari's former fiancee to him and there is a brief reunion. As duty triumphs over love, they part. Nazzari joins the air force and is later killed in action in the World War. There is much refined atmosphere and a correct impression of European life is given in the interpretation.

Nazzari gives a fine performance. As a romantic figure he should please feminine audiences. Elisa Cegani and Silvana Jacchino, as the sisters, have all the attributes of stars. The film was awarded the prize for best direction and technique at the Venice Film Exhibit. Alessandrini directed.

Running time, 95 minutes. "G." Malpassuti

"Polo Joe," now current at the Criterion, was previewed from Hollywood by wire on Sept. 21.

"As You Like It," opening this morning at the Radio City Music Hall was reviewed by cable from London on Sept. 14.

"Without Orders," reviewed by wire from Hollywood on Sept. 22, is being shown at the Rialto.

"Libeled Lady," at the Capitol, "Big Broadcast of 1937," at the Paramount "Ladies in Love," at the Rivoli, and "Charge of the Light Brigade," at the Strand, are holdovers.

American Seating Is Not in Reade Setup

American Seating Co. has not now and will have no connection with the new theatre circuit being developed by Walter Reade, he said yesterday. The circuit head's statement was made in connection with a letter from H. M. Taliaferro, president of American Seating, denying that the company is interested in the circuit.

An indication that American Seating might be connected with the enterprise resulted from the revelation at the luncheon a month ago, when Reade announced his plans, that L. N. Olmstead, vice-president of American Seating, was associated with him. Reade explained yesterday that Olmstead's association in the circuit was entirely that of an individual and was not to be taken as indicative of an affiliation of the seating company in the new circuit.

Figures relative to current theatre building conditions referred to by Reade in his original announcement were at the time revealed as having been prepared by Olmstead and Thomas W. Lamb, architect. These figures were prepared by Olmstead of his own volition, and not at Reade's request, the latter said yesterday.

"Green Waters" Mediocre; Theme Is Film Untouchable

fling; two illegitimate sons, Dennis O'Dea and young Jackie Jordan. But it is a house of estrangement and hate. You are given a picture of a father repentant for the indulgence of his youth, reaching out for understanding and friendship with his adult son. And a portrait of that son, sensitive to the cruelty of his fate, remembering the jibes of the boys at school, rebelling against the inevitable and letting loose the fury of his resentment at the one object within his reach, his father.

The younger boy knows nothing of his birthright until the third son, legitimatized by marriage, returns for a holiday. O'Dea falls in love with his sister-in-law and she, with him. In a secondary plot development, a faithful servant in a drunken moment kills a neighbor to protect the household and, in the mob frenzy that ensues, the youngest of the Frasers dies from a gun shot. Alone and facing their future, the remainder of the play traces the crumbling of O'Dea's opposition to his father's misdeed and their final, which is also their first, reconciliation. Doris Dalton keeps the love thread alive by returning to their side, having forsaken her husband.

All Quite Simple

It may sound involved, but it is not. Rather is it all somewhat long drawn out and mediocre which gives this new Shubert offering as complete a one-word description as the typewriter at the zero hour is capable of producing. The acting, generally, lands on about the identic plane, barring Miss Dalton's proclivities for gestures. They are not good gestures, either.

From the scene of its locale to New York is a hefty distance over land and sea and the subject matter is not sufficiently germane to the American scene to have survived the journey.

Hollywood will have no interest in this play. It transgresses the code and the misdemeanor cannot be whitewashed. The tune of the original Highland fling is too persistent to be drowned out.

"St. Helena" Closing

"St. Helena," stage play which opened at the Lyceum Oct. 6, closes Saturday night. It will have run 39 performances.

Ohio Theatres Face Return of 10% Tax

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4.—The Ohio constitutional amendment calling for the repeal of the three per cent tax on food for home consumption was carried two to one yesterday. The exemption is effective Nov. 11.

Exhibitors face a reinstatement of the 10 per cent admission tax to help compensate an estimated $1,500,000 loss to the state resulting from tax exemption on food. The I.T.O. of Ohio, major distributing companies, the legitimate theatres and other amusement interests have organized to fight the reinstatement on the ground that it is discriminatory and prejudicial to the amusement industry.

Cooling!

The New York Post, recording briefly that the old Warner on Broadway, more recently the Cine Roma, will be opened as a burlesque house by Minsky on Nov. 14, declares the theatre will start with "a lively revue and an elaborate cooling system."

Richey Has 7-Point Program for Allied

Richey said. It was intimated that each member would be asked to pledge himself not to buy any such pictures.

Routine business and a speech by M. A. Rosenberg, president of the M.P.T.O. of Western Pennsylvania, in which he stressed the importance of dealing with percentage pictures, occupied the opening session.

Tomorrow Abram F. Myers and Nathan Yamins, who were grounded while flying here, and Aaron Saperstein will speak.

Election of officers and a banquet will close the sessions.

Vote Sunday Opening In Three Pa. Towns

HARRISBURG, Nov. 4.—A dozen scattered communities voted on Sunday theatre openings yesterday, but up to a late hour last night word had been received from only three. These approved the proposal.

They were: Verona, Allegheny County, approved by 894 to 697; St. Clair, Schuylkill County, approved by a ratio of two to one, and Port Carbon, also Schuylkill.

National Opens at Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—The newly-formed National Screen Accessories, division of National Screen Service, opened offices with a party attended by some 200 local film men.

Displays of ticket-selling material, lobby displays and similar merchandise were set up in the temporary quarters on Golden Gate Ave. near Leavenworth.

National Screen Service will launch a bay area trailer division in the near future. Heretofore, this territory has been serviced by the Los Angeles branch.

Barr in Chest Drive

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 4.—Maurice F. Barr, division manager of Saenger Theatres, has been named chairman of trailer distribution for the Community Chest campaign, and Harold Wheelahan, manager of WSMB, is chairman of radio programs.

Britons Pass "Pastures"

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The film version of "The Green Pastures" has been passed by the censor board, headed by Lord Tyrrell. The Warner office stated that it will be shown in a West End theatre in about a month.

"U" Will Drop 15 Corporate Subsidiaries

Corp., one of the oldest companies in the Universal setup, which was organized in 1912 to engage in production and distribution, will be dissolved later. It functioned as the top company until 1925 when Universal Pictures, Inc., was organized through the public sale of securities, and although it was wholly owned by Universal Pictures Co., Inc., it continued nevertheless as the principal operating company.

Motion Picture Export Corp., the third important subsidiary that is being eliminated, was incorporated in New York in 1931 as the principal holding company for Universal's foreign units. With the elimination of these and 12 minor subsidiaries, all producing and distributing operations will be carried on by Universal Pictures Co., Inc., either directly or through wholly owned subsidiaries. Control of the latter company is vested in Universal Corp., which was organized last March to acquire the holdings of Carl Laemmle and associates.

"These various changes are being undertaken in the interest of economy and efficiency," J. Cheever Cowdin, Universal Corp. chairman, said. "They will effect a saving in taxes, in accounting and bookkeeping costs and will eliminate duplication of activities. Our purpose is to so revise our corporate structure that the various units will operate with a minimum of intercompany relationships."

The changes are scheduled to be made as soon as the legal details can be arranged, Cowdin said.

NRA Revival By Amendment Is Foreseen

Expect President to Ask Constitution Change

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Revival of the principles of the NRA, possibly through a constitutional amendment redefining interstate commerce, is seen likely in Washington as President Roosevelt's return to labor for the support given him in the Tuesday elections.

While there have been many rumors that the Blue Eagle was due for resurrection, it is not believed that the President would attempt to set up any organization along the line of the NRA or embodying the principles of Gen. Hugh Johnson's program in view of the sweeping decision rendered last year by the Supreme Court.

But it is seen very possible that, heartened by the tremendous vote given him this week, the President will ask Congress to pass an amendment to the Constitution which would so redefine interstate commerce so as to give the Government authority to regulate labor practices. No effort,

M-G-M Will Open 3 Abroad During '37

Three new foreign theatres will be opened by M-G-M next June. Two new structures were opened by the company last month, one in Montevideo, a 1,500-seat house, and the second in Rio de Janeiro, also seating 1,500.

Last week construction was started on a new 1,800-seat theatre in Durban, South Africa. It is expected that it will be ready June 19. Building will get under way at once on a 1,500-seat theatre in Bombay, which is scheduled to open June 1. A 1,200-seat house will be started next week in Brisbane, Australia. This also is due to open June 1.

Talks Here Aim at Radio-Film Accord

An initial move to develop an agreement which would solve current competitive problems arising from the appearances of film stars on radio programs during hours at which peak theatre attendance is expected, was made yesterday at a luncheon meeting at the Harvard Club, called by Will H. Hays and attended by representatives of both the film and radio industries.

The meeting consisted of a general discussion of the problems involved, with no attempt being made to arrive at solutions, it was said. The session was regarded entirely as a preliminary move and it will be followed by later meetings when definite recommendations will be made and agreements sought for. It was indicated that exhibitor leaders would be called in for

Interstate to Use Postal as Checker

With 38 Postal Telegraph representatives acting as field agents, Interstate Checking Service yesterday announced plans for checking theatre engagements in association with the telegraph company.

As far as could be learned, no distributor has signed for the new service, although announcement brochures had been sent out to home offices and local exchanges. According to the plan, orders for checking theatres are addressed to local revenue accountants of the Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. These men are authorized to check gross on percentage runs, which are wired daily to home offices of the distributors ordering the check.

The list of 38 representatives follows: L. V. Enoch, Albany; B. W.

20th-Fox Net $4,451,851 For 39 Weeks

Is $2,455,527 Ahead of Same Period in 1935

Consolidated net operating profit of $4,451,851 for the 39 weeks ending Sept. 26, last, was reported by Twentieth Century-Fox yesterday. The report compares with a profit of $1,996,524 for the corresponding period of 1935 and is after all charges, including Federal income taxes, but is before making provision for surtax on undistributed profits.

The company's third quarter earnings, after all charges and taxes, amounted to $1,682,661, which compares with a profit of $640,543 for the third quarter of 1935. The first quarter of 1936 showed a profit of $1,239,760, and the second quarter a profit of $1,529,430. Joseph M. Schenck, chairman, recently estimated that the company's earnings for the 12 months ending Dec. 26, next, would approximate $7,500,000, which would indicate a profit expectancy of slightly more than $3,000,000 for the final quarter.

On the basis of 1,357,831 shares of $1.50 dividend cumulative convertible preferred stock outstanding, the consolidated net operating profit for the first three quarters of the year amounts to $3.27 per share on the

Key City Grosses Recover Stride; Total $1,690,044

Late October key city grosses came back into their stride after a slump during the first two weeks of the month, with the result that the total take for 29 keys was $1,690,044 for the week ending Oct. 23-24 and $1,780,168 for the week ending Oct. 16-17.

These figures compare favorably with the boom that set in early in September and which resulted in exceptionally high takes.

The number of first run houses continues to hold to about 175, a somewhat higher figure than the summer average.

Comparative grosses are listed on page 10.

Orders 306 Records To Court on Monday

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Callahan yesterday ordered the district attorney of New York County to produce on Monday before him all the records of Local 306 which were seized by the police last Friday during a raid on the union's offices. The order was issued by Justice Callahan at the hearing on the show cause order obtained by Joseph D. Basson, 306 president, from Justice Wasservogel on Wednesday.

Justice Callahan ordered the assistant district attorney and assistant corporation counsel, who appeared, to submit briefs in the case by Saturday. Matthew M. Levy represented Basson and the union. Callahan refused to listen to the city official's plea of justification for the seizure, insisting on confining the hearing to whether or not the seizure of records was legal or illegal. The union contends illegality, and declares that nothing seized could be considered evidence in the bombing of a number of local theatres which gave rise to the raid. The court will decide Monday whether the records are to be returned to 306.

Permit Sought for Fibre Film Packing

Application has been made by major companies to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to ship film in fiber board boxes. The change is desired for reasons of efficiency and economy and would apply only to film not designed for reshipment, which is shipped now in wooden boxes.

The lighter fiber board material is non-combustible and its use would effect a saving in shipping charges, the application asserts. Trial shipments using the new container were pronounced highly satisfactory in every respect and demonstrated that eight to 10 reels could be shipped as a unit instead of the 6,000 feet customarily packed in the wooden boxes now in use.

The new packing material is intended only for use in film shipments from studio to exchanges. Reshipments from exchanges to theatres would be made, as always, in the usual metal containers.

Lloyd to Do 2 Annually

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.—Harold Lloyd will make two comedies annually for Paramount instead of one as originally provided. His first film will start in a month. The second, recently purchased, will be "Walls of Jericho."

Loew Signs Billy Gordon

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.—Billy Gordon has been signed by David Loew as casting director on the first two Joe E. Brown pictures. The first "When's Your Birthday?" starts Nov. 9 with Harry Beaumont directing.

Pathe Statement Today

Pathe's financial statement for the third quarter of the current fiscal year will be distributed to stockholders today.

F. A. Jenkins on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.—Felix A. Jenkins arrived today for Twentieth Century-Fox executive conferences.

Evidence

When the minions of the law swooped down on the headquarters of Local 306, they took, among other things, a box containing 1,000 (approximately) political campaign buttons which bore the likeness of President Roosevelt.

They're no good now, anyway.

802 in Protest on Actress Appearance

A telegram was sent late yesterday afternoon to Olivia de Havilland, signed by Jack Rosenberg, executive secretary of Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians, and Ralph Whitehead of the American Federation of Actors, protesting her scheduled personal appearance at the Strand tonight. Her appearance is in connection with the showing of "The Charge of the Light Brigade," in which she appears.

The telegram of protest noted that the house is being picketed by members of 802 in its drive to bring about the reemployment of musicians at film theatres. It also called attention to the refusal several weeks ago of Anita Louise to go on with a scheduled personal appearance at the Strand when she discovered the house was being picketed and ascertained the reason, the union claims.

Alperson in Phila. On Exhibitor's Row

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—A truce has apparently been established between local exhibitors and Grand National, whose president, Edward L. Alperson, has been conferring throughout the week with local leaders.

Executives of United M.P.T.O. have refused to divulge the results of the conferences, saying that an official statement will appear tomorrow in Contact, the organization's publication. It is believed that Alperson has made certain concessions and will arrange a selling policy to meet most of the exhibitor demands.

Sullivan to Dallas

Ed Sullivan, assistant to Bob Weitman, managing director of the Paramount, will leave next Tuesday for Dallas where he will manage the Majestic.

Ben Griefer has been moved up to succeed Sullivan as assistant to Weitman, while Bob Shapiro, treasurer, steps into Griefer's present post. Eugene Pleshette will be the new treasurer of the house.

Dave Kaiser Married

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—Dave Kaiser, president of the Maryland Display Co., was married to Shirley Brown in Annapolis, Md., recently, and after a honeymoon trip to Philadelphia and Atlantic City have returned to their home here.

Harpo Marx Weds

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.—Harpo Marx was married to Susan Fleming Sept. 26.

New Sound Is Ready For 132 Loew Spots

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—New sound equipment is now being installed in 132 theatres of the Loew circuit, all installations utilizing the two track system and the Shearer Horn developed at M-G-M under the supervision of Douglas Shearer, it was stated by John Hilliard, associate of Shearer, on his return here today.

Specifications for the installations were laid out by Hilliard and the work supervised by him in the theatres of New York, Chicago, Detroit, Toronto, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Buffalo, St. Louis and other key spots. It took two months to complete the job. Working with Hilliard during part of the time were Lester B. Isaac, Loew sound and projection chief, and C. C. Moskowitz, vice-president of the company. Final inspection of the work will be made by Shearer and Hilliard in the spring.

Hilliard addressed the sales forces of exhibitors, giving explanation and demonstration of the new system.

Mirrophonic for Universal

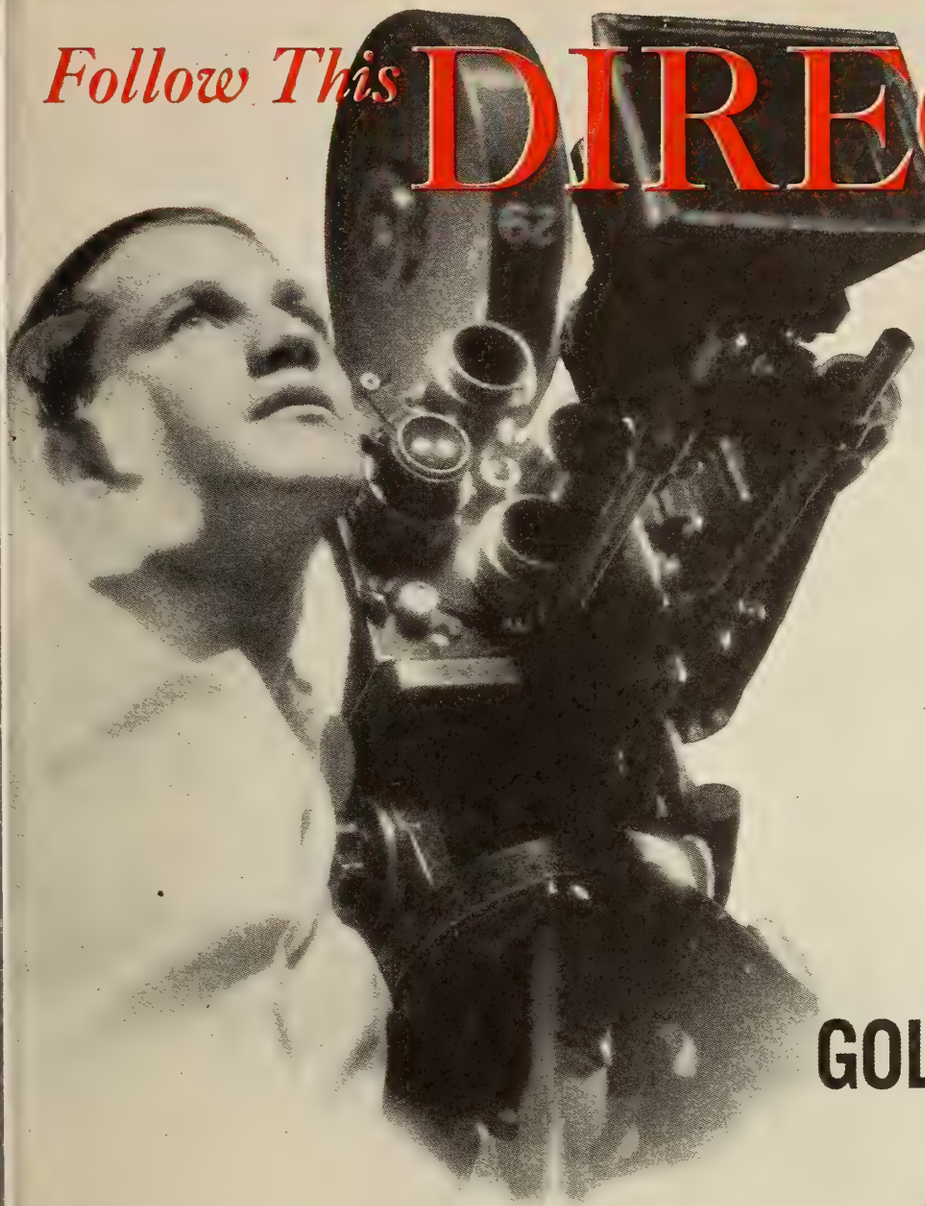
Universal has closed with Erpi for complete re-equipping of the studio with new Western Electric Mirrophonic recording apparatus, Erpi stated yesterday. The new equipment will give the studio push-pull recording throughout.

The contract embraces the addition of a new Erpi "Q" portable channel, modernization of the present five truck channels, installation of three additional Mirrophonic recording machines, modernization of the three fixed scoring and dubbing channels and new sound reproduction equipment for all four of the studio's new projection rooms.

Whitford Drake, executive vice-president of Erpi, left for the coast yesterday on a three-week visit to the company's coast office and studios. Negotiations with production company representatives on new recording licenses, which have been carried on under Drake's direction for more than a year past, have been advanced to a stage where the new license agreements may be signed by several of the major companies in the near future, it was stated at Erpi yesterday.

Nealeans Joins Waters

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 5. — George Nealeans, for the past four years with Wilby-Kincey here as assistant manager of the Alabama, has resigned to become general manager of the Waters Theatres Co. Claude E. Kenner, assistant manager of the Paramount, in Nashville, will succeed Nealeans at the Alabama.



Fight Maryland Ban

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—Public Welfare Corp. has filed an appeal from the ruling of the Maryland Censor Board banning "Girls For Sale" in the Baltimore City Court before Judge Joseph N. Ulman, who will see the picture privately before the hearing on Nov. 6.

Weeks, Saputo Signed

OMAHA, Nov. 5.—Anson Weeks' orchestra and Frank Saputo, singer, have been signed for the Omaha auto show at the Ak-Sar-Ben coliseum, Nov. 11 to 15.

on the $3.50 convertible first preferred, but no dividends were paid on the "A" preferred. Surplus on Sept. 30 was $12,775,712.22.

Mears an RCA Vice-President

CAMDEN, Nov. 5.—N. A. Mears has been elected vice-president of RCA Mfg. Co., in charge of purchasing, and R. Shannon has been elected vice-president in charge of manufacturing, the company said today.

Mears was formerly manager of materials control for the company. Shannon has been manufacturing manager of RCA-Victor.

Renew on Ann Jamieson

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.—Ann Jamieson has had her option renewed for the Fred Astaire-Packard air show. She has been a guest star on the program for the last four broadcasts.

Long on WJSV Programs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Frederick A. Long, for four years in the CBS New York production department, has been named new program director for WJSV, local CBS outlet, according to A. D. Willard, Jr., station manager.

Willard was a fortnight ago promoted to his present position from sales manager.

Long takes the place of Ted Church, who resigned to become radio director for the Republican National Committee.

Interview Engaged Couples

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 5.—WHB has a new program of actual interviews of engaged couples. "Wedding Bells" is on the air Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, 11 A.M. Dan Cupid is the interviewer and asks about attitudes toward marriage, details of engagements, and plans for the weddings. Wedding gifts go to those interviewed and a small bonus of cash for names of engaged individuals.

Connecticut House on Air

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 5. — The Whalley, only New Haven theatre to go on the air daily, has added to its theatre and radio features, a Saturday afternoon Amateur Kiddie broadcast from the stage over WELI. The first program is scheduled for this Saturday afternoon, with 20 contestants registered.

Start Daily Television on West Coast on November 9

The Don Lee Broadcasting System will begin a regular daily television broadcast schedule beginning Nov. 9. On that date, W6XAC, the Don Lee television transmitter in Los Angeles, will go on the air from 8:30 A.M. to 6:30 P.M. Regular checks on image-reception will be made by officials and selected audiences who have been provided with television reception sets by the network. The program will be broadcast daily except Sunday.

Starting Nov. 10, the day following the inception of broadcasting by television, Station KHJ, Don Lee station in Los Angeles, will operate simultaneously with W6XAO, transmitting the voice accompaniment to the W6XAO images, from 9:30 to 9:45 P.M. All time mentions are Pacific Standard Time.

Goldwyn Signs Air Singer

Virginia Verrill, CBS singer, has been signed for a featured role in the "Follies of 1937," the Samuel Goldwyn picture which, when completed, will be released through United Artists. Miss Verrill leaves for the coast in May when production is scheduled to begin.

The irony in the story is this. Miss Verrill left Hollywood in disgust about a year and a half ago because her assignment as a voice double for Barbara Stanwyck, Jean Harlow, and others seemingly precluded the possibility of her ever getting a chance in pictures. Coming east, she was signed by CBS and has been heard on that network since.

Anniversary Speakers Named

Speakers who will address the 1,600 guests at NBC's 10th anniversary banquet at the Waldorf on Monday, Nov. 9, have been named. They are Anning S. Prall, chairman, Federal Communications Commission; David Sarnoff, president, RCA; Colby Chester, president, American Manufacturers Ass'n; Carl T. Compton, president, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Maurice Bambert, president, International Broadcasting Union; and Doctor Rockwell, comedian.

The speeches will be broadcast over the NBC-Blue network at 10 P.M. EST. Lenox R. Lohr, president of National Broadcasting, will act as official host to the distinguished body of European radio officials who will be the guests of honor.

Harlow Plans Set Back

Jean Harlow, due in New York this week for a vacation and a few radio programs, has changed her plans and will remain in Hollywood until after Thanksgiving. Thus, negotiations to feature her on the Rudy Vallee program have been halted temporarily.

Line Up 7 More Banks

Seven additional banks have joined the original group of 33 financial institutions who jointly are sponsoring a new program which begins Friday, Nov. 13, over the Columbia network. The program will be heard solely over CBS stations serving the banking areas of the cooperative group.

The new banks include the Second National, Houston, Tex.; State-Planters Bank and Trust, Richmond, Va.; Whitney National Bank, New Orleans; Mercantile National Bank, Dallas; National Shawmut Bank, Boston, and an as yet undetermined bank in Little Rock.

The program will feature the music of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Leopold Stokowski.

Films from Radio Studio

The first showing of films in a radio studio is scheduled for Sunday in CBS Playhouse No. 1, immediately after the Chevrolet program signs off the air.

The films will be shorts, especially prepared and produced for Chevrolet. Included will be a picture showing how Chevrolet cars are made and assembled and a regular newsreel. It is expected that the films will run 30 minutes.

Malcom Stuart of the Campbell-Ewald advertising agency, which handles the Chevrolet account, states that, while the pictures are primarily intended for entertainment purposes, mention of the Chevrolet name would be made several times during the running, exactly as is done on the air. The films will be presented as a regular weekly feature each Sunday.

Another Hollywood Angle

A new series of thrice weekly "Five Star Revue" programs will make its bow over the Columbia network on Monday, Nov. 16, from 1 to 1:15 P.M. E.S.T. The program, which will be heard each Monday, Wednesday and Friday thereafter, will feature Morton Bowe, tenor; Meribell, songstress; the music of Ray Sinatra's orchestra and Bill Johnson, who will provide Hollywood gossip.

The Corn Products Co. is sponsoring. E. W. Hellwig, New York, is the agency.

Sarnoff to Marconi

David Sarnoff, president of RCA, will exchange felicitations with Senator Guglielmo Marconi, 6,000 miles away in Rome, in a broadcast on Armistice Day, Nov. 11, at 2:15 P. M. EST over the NBC-Red network and via short wave to Europe. Robert Jardillier, French Minister of Communications, and Maurice Rambert, president of the International Broadcast Union, now in New York for NBC's 10th anniversary celebration, will also take part in the broadcast.

Spitalny Finishes a Short

Phil Spitalny and his all-girl orchestra yesterday completed a Paramount short named after their radio program, "Hour of Charm" and begin shooting on another immediately. "Hour of Charm" is slated for December release.

Gag Clearing House

Hollywood, Nov. 5.—Plans are on foot to establish a clearing house for radio gags as a result of recent duplications by various artists.

Although no definite steps have yet been taken it is understood that the plan has been approved by Eddie Cantor and Jack Benny.

Walter O'Keefe, ether comedian, is sponsoring the idea.

NBC Sells Sunday Time

After three barren years, NBC at last has succeeded in selling commercially its 8 to 8:30 P. M. Blue network Sunday spot. The American Rolling Mills Co., makers of Amoco products, will sponsor a series on the Blue, at the above time, beginning Nov. 29. Frank Simond's band, and vocals by Charles Sears, tenor, will provide the entertainment.

Sponsors have shunned this spot in the past because of the opposition of the Major Bowes Amateur Hour last year and previously because of the stiff competition provided by Chase and Sanborn's Great American Opera Hour on NBC, and Eddie Cantor's program at CBC.

Shell Chateau May Come East

J. Walter Thompson, advertising agency servicing the Shell Chateau program, admits that the program, now emanating from Hollywood, may be shifted to New York upon the expiration of Edward Everett Horton's contract which still has some six weeks to run. According to an agency spokesman, the show will be considerably revised when and if it moves to the east.

New Phillips Program

"Phillips Polly Follies," a new program sponsored by Phillips Petroleum Co. for gas and oil products, is scheduled to start over a hook-up of 21 western CBS stations on Nov. 10. The program will be broadcast each Tuesday thereafter from 10:30 to 11 P.M. E.S.T. Lambert and Feasley, Inc., placed the program.

Opposites in Politics

Sounds fictitious, but it's really the McCoy. Ted Jewett, who is the voice of Governor Landon on the "March of Time" program, voted for Roosevelt, while Bill Adams, who impersonates the President's voice on the same program, voted for Landon!

Hart, Crooks, Et Al

Short Shots: Herschel Hart, radio editor of the Detroit News, who conducts a program of his own over his paper's station, WWJ, arrives in New York today . . . Eddie Gilbert and Charles LaVeer, NBC musicians, both receive air pilot licenses next week . . . Richard Crooks has been named to guest sing on the Fireside program Nov. 9 . . . Billie Bailey, contralto, has been signed as a CBS artist. She was brought to New York last week from Station WBBM in Chicago . . . Jean Paul King, who walked out of the "Gang Busters" series some weeks ago because of a disagreement with Phil Lord, returns to the show as announcer next week . . . Tamara Geva will be Bide Dudley's guest on Sunday over WOR . . . "The Family Counsellor" will be heard over WOR Sundays from 6:30 to 6:45 P.M. beginning Sunday, instead of 11:45 A.M. as in the past . . . Deanna Durbin will not come east with the Eddie Cantor troupe this week, being held over by Universal for a few additional takes for her picture. She will follow in a few days . . . The CBS American School of the Air will play host to educators from the entire country at the Hotel Pennsylvania Nov. 14.

NRA Revival By Amendment Is Foreseen

however, would be made to regulate prices in any way.

It is confidently anticipated that organized labor, which was a prominent factor in the President's reelection, will lose no time in asking him to recognize that aid by seeking legislation improving labor's status. Better conditions for labor has been one of the major planks of the President's policy, and he has been represented as never having abandoned hope that eventually he would find a way of making effective the aims of the old NRA.

In view of the tremendous majority of votes which the President secured and the increased control of Congress, officials are said to believe that there would be little or no difficulty in securing enactment of a constitutional amendment and that it would be quickly ratified by the states.

It is not believed, however, that the President would care to go further than to propose the amendment, which is admittedly necessary if the Government is to control labor practices, in view of the Supreme Court's attitude. Any further step, it is pointed out, would in all probability lead to the same situation that prevailed under the NRA and to court rejection of the program.

Allied of Michigan Moves to Get Funds annual convention of Allied of Michigan today. The resolution calls for an assessment of 10 cents a seat on all members.

Another resolution asked for "a vigorous campaign" to urge every theatre owner in the state to stop buying percentage pictures and giving preferred playing time. Abram F. Myers, W. A. Steffes, Aaron Saperstein, M. A. Rosenberg and others addressed the meeting on these subjects, citing them as the chief evils of the industry and likely to put the small exhibitor out of business if not remedied.

An anticipated announcement by Myers concerning the national defense fund of Allied did not materialize, although it was said that units throughout the country are making regular contributions.

Officers reelected today were: Fred Delodder, president; F. A. Wetsman, vice-president, and William E. Schuttenhelm, treasurer. Edgar E. Kirchner was named secretary, to succeed B. H. Kilbride.

The annual banquet, dance and entertainment, attended by more than 200, wound up the two-day conclave tonight.

Kupper a Texas Ranger preferred. After allowing for the preferred dividend of $1.12½ per share for the 39 weeks, there remained a profit equivalent to $2.38 a share on the 1,228,041½ shares of common stock outstanding.

The report includes no income on Twentieth Century-Fox's 42 per cent interest in National Theatres Corp., as no dividends were declared by the theatre company during the period.

The company's 39-week report shows total income of $37,317,893, of which $36,378,431 was gross income from sales and rentals of film and literature. Amortization of production costs was charged at $18,525,520, and operating expenses of exchanges, head office and administration expenses at $8,735,770. Total expenses were reported at $31,778,778.

Warner $3,000,000 Net Now Predicted

$3,000,000 profit is understood to be the largest since 1929.

Harry M. Warner, president, and the rest of the officers are scheduled to be reelected at the Dec. 14 annual meeting in Wilmington. Samuel Carlisle, Stanleigh P. Freidman, Charles S. Guggenheimer, Sam E. Morris and Morris Wolf, directors whose three-year terms expire, are slated to be continued for another three years.

Loew's annual financial report is expected to show a profit of $6.50 a share on its common stock.

Warners common yesterday hit a new high of 16 and receded to 15⅞, where it closed.

No. 1 Football Fan

Kansas City, Nov. 5.—William Reinke, manager of the Tower, has been nominated by Landon Laird, Kansas City Star film critic, as Kansas City's No. 1 football fan. Bill went to Minneapolis Oct. 10 to see the Nebraska-Minnesota game; he flew to Chicago Oct. 17 to see Northwestern take Ohio State; on Oct. 24 he airplaned it to Pittsburgh to watch the latter do in Notre Dame, and Oct. 31 he went to Chicago to see Minnesota toppled from its perch by Northwestern.

Bill says this is the way he takes his vacation.

sound. Approximately 42,000,000 people attend film theatres in Russia daily. Opening at noon, houses run an average of five separate shows a day.

A theatre, with a seating capacity of 4,000, modeled after the best of American houses, will be built here, with construction to start shortly. It will be the largest house in Russia, called the Bolshoi Cinema Theatre of the U. S. S. R., and will employ American equipment. A cafe, reading and rest rooms will be part of the house. Stage room for a 90-piece orchestra is planned.

Although the excellence of American product is appreciated by officials of Soyuzintorgkino, the Russian film trust, few films are ever shown here, chiefly because of their lack of a social message. A specific requirement of all film importations to this country is that they convey a message in keeping with the Russian viewpoint.

Briggs, Pathe, Put On Board of DuPont

Pathe and a director of that company, is also a member of the DuPont Film board.

Atkins yesterday denied reports that he would resign from the board of Grand National Pictures following Kolbe's recent resignation from that board. Kolbe's action followed the disposal by Pathe of a large block of the stock which it received from Grand National when it turned over to the latter its interest in First Division Exchanges. The bulk of this stock was distributed in the form of dividends to Pathe stockholders. Pathe, however, still retains some Grand National stock and the presumption is that Atkins will remain on the picture company's board as the spokesman for these holdings.

Mexico, Argentine Films Taken by U. A.

United Artists has signed contracts in Mexico and Argentina for distribution of Spanish-language films produced in those countries. The Mexican company is Exito, U.C.P.R.S., which will deliver six in 18 months starting last month.

The Argentina company is Fortena Films, headed by Adolfo Z. Wilson, which will make six in 12 months. The distribution will be made in all Spanish-speaking countries as well as to Spanish theatres in various sections of this country.

Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager of Warners, will hold a mid-season sales session in Chicago, probably Nov. 14. Six district managers will attend in addition to home office assistants to Sears.

Abe Montague, general sales head for Columbia, will set the date and place for the company's winter sales gathering in a week or so.

Short Subjects

"Sindbad the Sailor"
(Fleischer-Paramount)

The screen passes another milestone with this cartoon. It is a two-reeler, in the new Fleischer process, and perhaps the producer's most ambitious effort to date. There are three-dimensional sets against which the characters are animated in many eye-appealing hues. But most important, it is chock full of hearty laughs, sly touches of humor and that highly entertaining routine of the muscular, spinach-imbibing sailor who is given more than the usual opportunity for creating excitement and rousing action.

Bluto plays the Arabian Nights character. A braggart, he owns an island guarded by all manner of monsters and beasts, particularly a two-headed item from mythology, a giant whose heads argue with one another in Greek restaurantese, a la George Givot. However, Sindbad arranges for Popeye's ship to be wrecked in his pursuit of Olive Oyl. Popeye makes shore with Wimpy and there the contest of strength occurs. Nothing is left to the imagination in the ensuing encounter between the two mariners. And, as usual Popeye comes through. It is among the best. Production Code Seal No. 0487. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Oh, Duchess!"
(Columbia)

Polly Moran, a fish peddler, known as "The Duchess," gets into those typical Moran situations when her daughter, Mary Blake, decides to marry Vernon Dent's son. Dent, when informed of her fish dispensing title gives a luncheon for her at his country club. Miss Moran in standard fashion keeps up the hoax until she gets tight and blows a horn which reminds her of her job and the jig is up. However, the youngsters go off and are married before Dent and Miss Moran arrive to stop and permit the the ceremony, respectively. In their heated argument which follows they, too, are wed. It has novelty and laughs. Production Code Seal No. 2,564. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Popular Science No. 6"
(Paramount)

New developments in the scientific world of interest to the layman in that they will affect him are here presented in another number of this fine series. They are filmed in Cinecolor and narrated with a snappy narrative. The items include a hair trimming comb, artificial fingernails, new radio device for transmission of pictures, and finally a fine sequence which reveals the effort which goes into the safety and comfort of modern flying. Production Code Seal No. 2,336. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Boulevardier from the Bronx"
(Merrie Melody-Vitaphone)

A color cartoon burlesque on baseball as it would be played by a collection of barnyard fowl representing a big league and a lesser team. It has moments of clever invention and is fairly pleasing. Production Code Seal No. 2,656. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Mad Holiday"
(Metropolis Pictures)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.—The general theme of this weak and forced murder mystery seems to be that if you stumble over a dead body the thing to do is to be nonchalant and pull a wisecrack.

Edmund Lowe, a film star who is fed up with detective roles, sails to get away from it all but is followed by Ted Healy, a press agent, who disgraces the entire publicity profession with tasteless antics during a series of murders.

Elissa Landi, authoress of Lowe's stories, helps to stage a phony murder as a gag to prove that the star has identified himself with screen parts. A number of real murders follow because of a valuable diamond aboard the ship. Lowe and Miss Landi sleuth unconvincingly, but energetically, until they catch up with the audience, which has spotted the villian early in the plot.

Edmund Gwenn, Zasu Pitts, Edgar Kennedy, Soo Yong, Walter Kingsford, Herbert Rawlinson, Raymond Hatton, Rafaela Ottiano, Harlan Briggs and Gustav von Seyffertitz are all good, but the emphasis placed on comedy defeats the tension and credibility of the story. Bright dialogue is supplied by Florence Ryerson and Edgar Allan Woolf. Harry Rapf produced.

Production Code Seal No. 2,779. Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Les Amours de Toni"
(M-G-M)

A highly dramatic, earthy type of story, this French production of Marcel Pagnol tells the story behind a murder, which, it is said, was taken from the actual police records in the case involved.

It is strong drama, with a curious combination of photographic artistry and essential crudeness of production. The latter characteristic may well be taken as indicative of the authenticity of the story's background and setting in the south of France, near Marseilles. Superimposed titles make for ready understanding of the story, one of the jealous love of two women for a man and the resultant tragedy of near suicide and murder.

In this country the film probably will have an appeal only for "class" audiences, especially since tragedy is the keynote and governs the conclusion. American authorities may not be expected to look too kindly on the fact of a man living openly with a woman without benefit of license, and there is an obvious cut in the film as shown, where a seduction occurs.

Virtually but an incident in the lives of laborers who flow into southern France from Italy and Spain, the film tells its story simply and effectively.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 81 minutes. "A."

Shift Pittsburgh Starts

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 5.—With the opening of "Tarzan Escapes" today, a day ahead of schedule, Loew's Penn here changes its opening day from Friday to Thursday until after Thanksgiving. The Harris-Alvin is doing the same starting with "East Meets West."

"Libeled" $58,000 Grosser at Capitol

Paramount ended the second week of the "Big Broadcast of 1937" at $47,000, which is very good. Clyde Lucas and his band were the stage attraction. The show is now in its third week.

The Roxy was disappointing, getting about $30,000 with "East Meets West." The Rivoli, on the first seven days of "Ladies in Love" took, $27,000. The Rialto, with "Wives Never Know," was fair with $5,500. "The Man I Marry" and "Dimples" at the Palace garnered about $8,500. "In His Steps" at the Criterion fared badly, taking in less than $10,000.

"Lloyds of London" is slated to open at the Astor on a two-a-day policy Nov. 24. "One Way Passage," produced by Warners about five years ago with Kay Francis and William Powell, has been dated into the Criterion to follow "Polo Joe," current attraction.

Drop K. C. ITO Office

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 5.—Offices of the I.T.O., which have been on Film Row for the past year, are being moved to the home of Emanuel Rolsky, president. This will eliminate all but routine office expenses for the association.

Remodel Hub Exchanges

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—Remodeling of the 16 Piedmont St. premises is well under way. Cameo Screen Attractions, Inc., intend to occupy the quarters the first of the month. Further down on the same street, the former quarters of the American Film Exchange are being remodeled for occupancy by Grand National.

"East Meets" Tops Capital With $5,800

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Doing the best relative business along the main stem, "East Meets West," at the Metropolitan took $5,800 to exceed average by $1,500.

Playing a repeat engagement of "His Brother's Wife," Loew's Columbia drew $4,100, topping par by $500.

Loew's Capitol, with the "Fall Frolic" on the stage and "The Devil Is a Sissy" on the screen, was good for $21,000, a single century over average.

"The Big Broadcast of 1937" took $16,500 at Loew's Palace, to go over par by $600. It was held.

The Earle, with "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie" and Lazy Dan headlining the stage show, slipped to $15,700, or $2,700 under average.

Total first run business was $75,700. Average is $76,700.

Rogers Stage Show Is St. Louis High

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 5.—The Ambassador led the local field, with $19,000, bettering average by $10,000. Charles Buddy Rogers on the stage was accounted responsible rather than the feature, "Wedding Present."

All houses went over average, with favorable weather helping. A show at the American and politics on the air were the chief competition.

Total first run business was $75,550. Average is $55,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 29:

"WEDDING PRESENT"
AMBASSADOR — (3,018), 25c-40c-55c, 7 days. Orchestra pit show led by Charles Buddy Rogers in person. Gross: $19,000. (Average, $9,000)

Hartley Quits G. B.

DES MOINES, Nov. 5.—George W. Hartley has resigned as manager of the local G.B. office and Lester Rosenthal, with G.B. in Omaha, has been named to replace him.

"Libeled" Is Kansas City Hit, $21,000

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 5.—"Libeled Lady" hit $21,000 at Loew's Midland's to lead on all counts in a week that was only fair for other first runs. This was $9,500 over the Midland's average, but the picture was not held.

The other houses felt the election competition. The Kansas City Philharmonic played its opening two-night performance of the season at the new Municipal Auditorium, where few seats were vacant.

"They Met in a Taxi" and stage show at the Tower went $300 over $6,500 average, and "Cain and Mabel" played to an $8,000 average house at the Mainstreet.

"Dimples" failed to hold up in its second week at the Uptown, taking $600 under $4,000 average, although it did over average its first period at the Mainstreet the preceding week. "The Magnificent Brute" proved something of a box-office weakling at the Newman, where the picture garnered $4,600, $2,400 under the line.

Total first run business was $43,800. Average is $37,000.

Estimated takings:

Week Ending Oct. 29:

"CAIN AND MABEL" (W.B.)

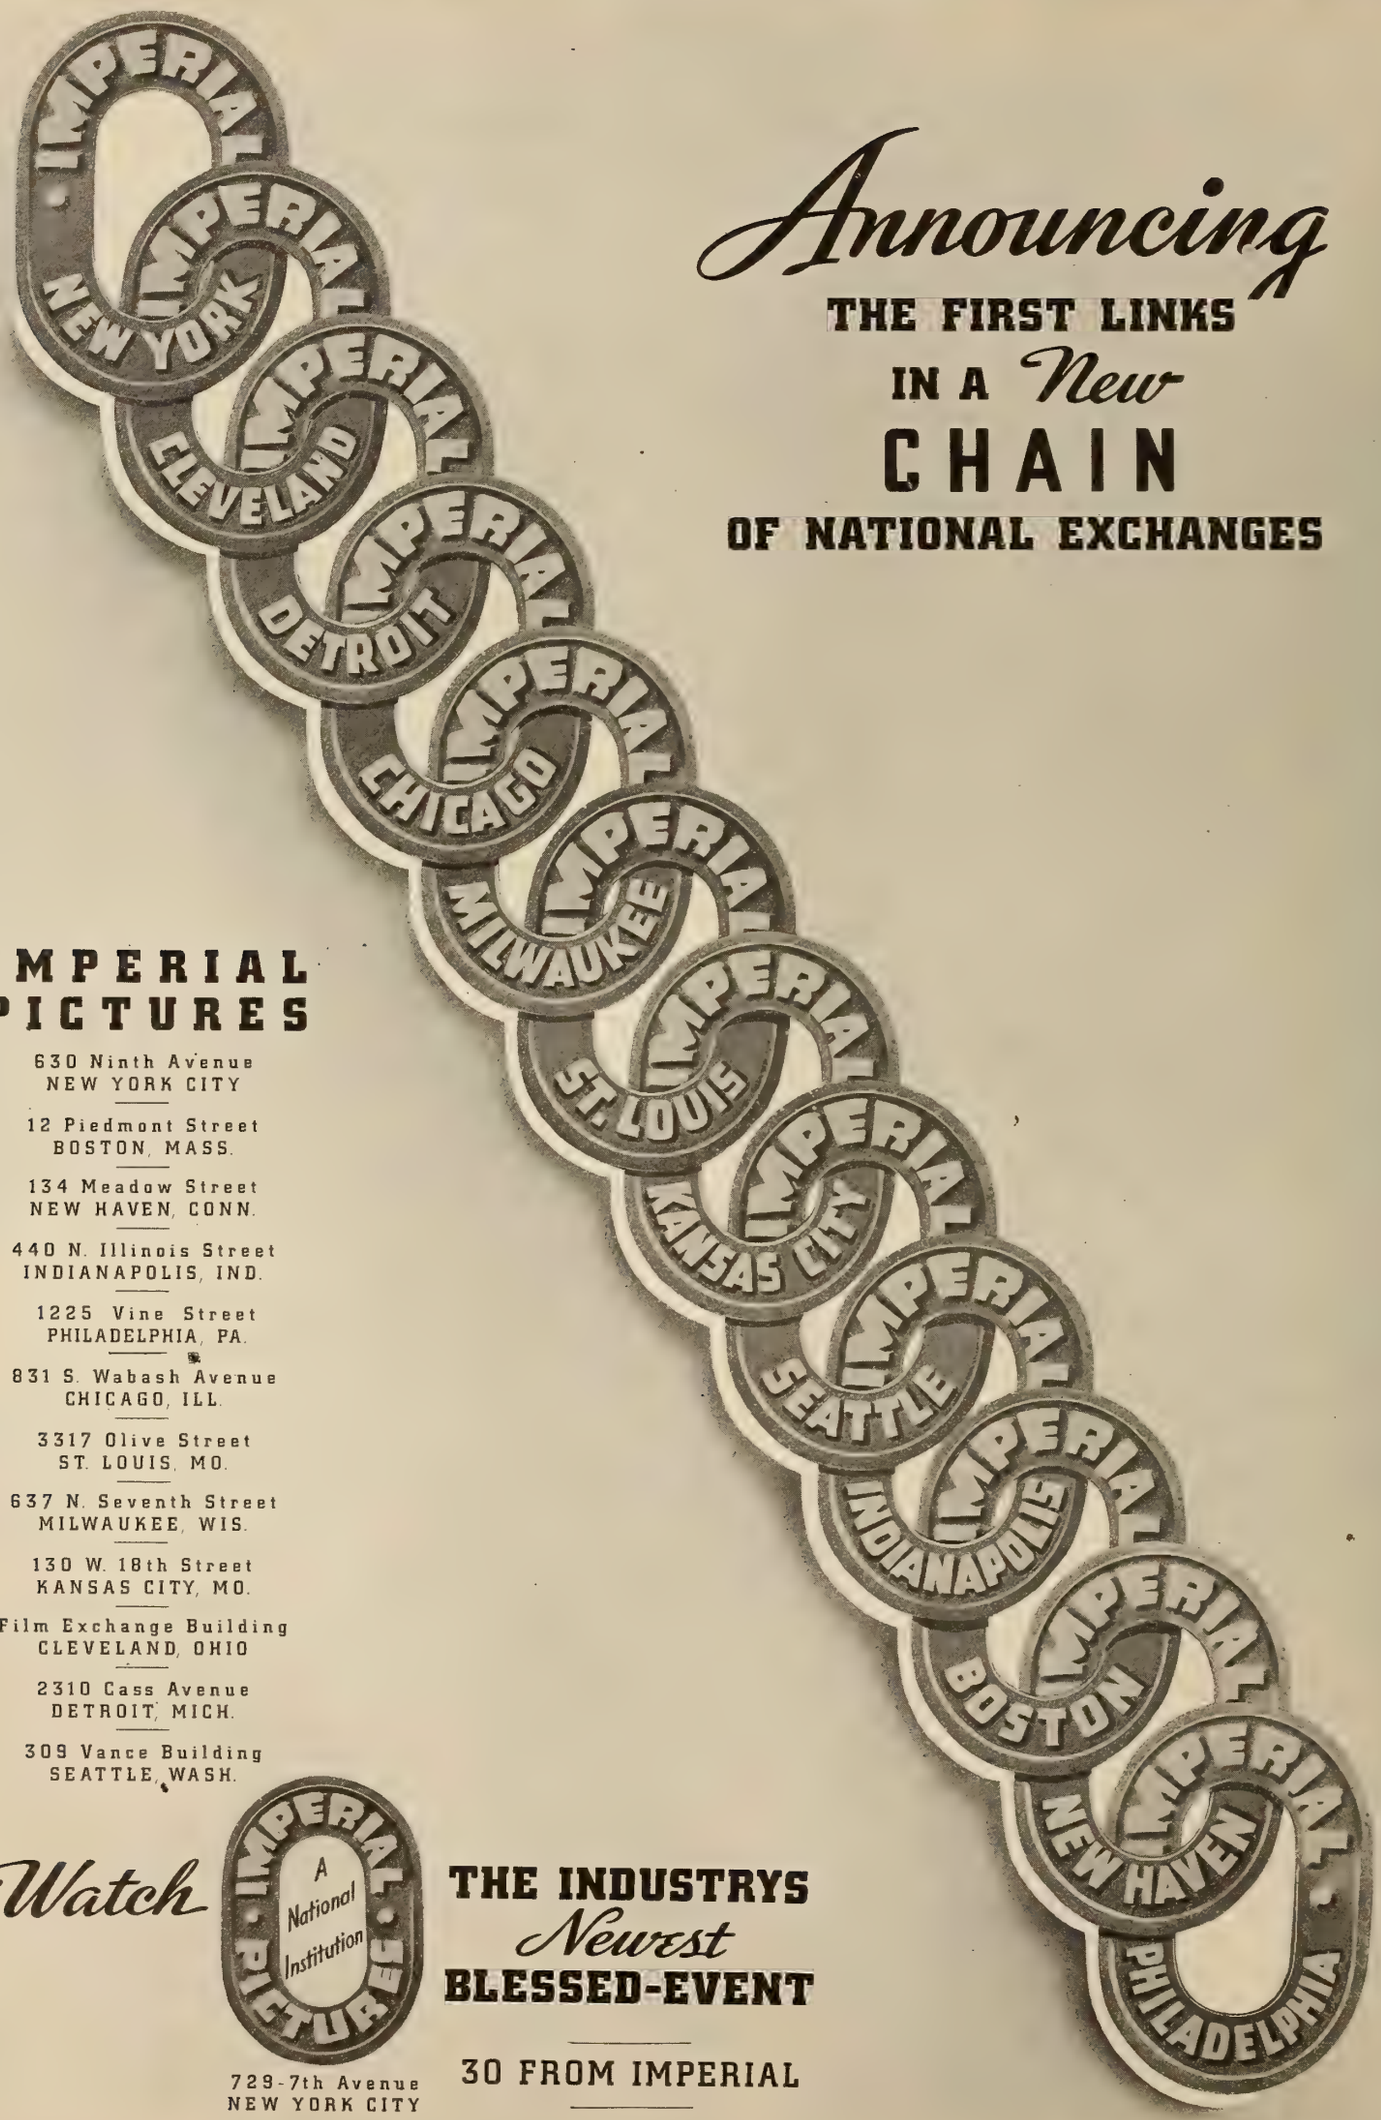
"Broadcast" Best Grosser in Buffalo

BUFFALO, Nov. 5.—"The Big Broadcast of 1937" did top business here last week. Despite several rainy days and a drop in temperature, it grossed $18,006 at the Buffalo, or $6,000 above average. The picture was shifted to the Great Lakes.

"Old Hutch" on a dual with "Don't Turn 'em Loose" at the Century, doubled par by pulling an even $10,000. "Libeled Lady" in its second week at the Great Lakes drew $9,700, bettering the normal take by $2,400.

Total first run business was $49,806. Average is $38,400.

Estimated takings for the week ending Oct. 31:



"THE BIG BROADCAST OF 1937" (Para.)
BUFFALO—(3,000), 30c-50c, 7 days. Gross: $18,006. (Average, $12,000)

No Radio-Film Solution Seen In Some Time

Talks Show Broadcasters Also Face Problems

No solution of the problems presented by the appearance of film stars on radio programs is looked for by either radio or film interests for some time to come, it was learned yesterday from participants in the intra-industry conference on the matter Thursday.

Not only was no date set for another meeting, although the intention is to hold one at some future date, but the discussion revealed that the situation is not without its problems for radio, too. The nature of radio's problems arising from film stars' broadcasts appears to call for consultations and understandings with numerous program sponsors, advertising agencies and talent bureaus, before any definite agreement could be attempted by the film and radio industry. Obviously,

Listings to Start On Social Security

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Plans for listing this month all employers and employes in the film industry who are covered by the Social Security Act were made public today by the Social Security Board.

Beginning Nov. 16, it was announced, postoffices throughout the country will distribute forms to employers which must be filled out and returned to the local postmaster not later than Nov. 21.

This form will be an application for an identification number, and will show the exact nature of the business, and the approximate number of persons employed in any capacity,

Pittsburgh Houses, Musicians in Pact

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 6.—Theatre managers and musicians reached an agreement here today after more than two months of negotiations and stage shows will be resumed at the Stanley as soon as bookings can be made. The new contract is for two years and calls for an immediate salary increase as well as a raise the second year of the pact.

The accord will probably bring

NBC Gives Television Show; Novel Now, But Looms Large

By RED KANN

Commercial television, on the basis of yesterday's performance, impressed this layman as a novelty with extremely interesting overtones looking toward the day when the development gets closer to perfection.

The scene was the 62nd floor of the RCA Bldg., where National Broadcasting staged a 40-minute show emanating from a television transmitter atop the Empire State Bldg. and

Protest Goes To Schenck on Olympic Films

The executive committee of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League, of which Samuel Untermeyer is listed as president, late yesterday addressed a telegram to Nicholas M. Schenck, president of M-G-M and Loew's virtually protesting against the distribution in this country of the M-G-M shorts on the Olympic Games, and requesting an answer.

The telegram was in the nature of an afterthought which emerged from the welter of personal recrimination, heated argument and general excitement which developed at the meeting called by the league yesterday to obtain the cooperation of distributors and exhibitors of foreign films in an effort to boycott German-made or German-financed films.

The original and publicized purpose

Interstate's New Checkers In Seven Keys

Interstate Checking Service, in association with Postal Telegraph, has started operations in seven key cities with an eighth to get under way next week. American Tobis and Alliance Films are the two accounts represented by the new checking outfit.

The seven situations where the company is operating are New York, Washington, Boston, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Next week checkers will start in New Orleans. In New York the theatre being clocked is the Filmarte.

Charles Schwerin, in charge of Interstate, yesterday stated all checkers are men employed by Postal Telegraph, which has 2,890 offices throughout the country with New York being counted as one office.

Under the plan 38 revenue accounts

Henry Hull Scores Heavily In Play of Variable Merit

It is a touching and sterling performance with which Henry Hull returned to the Broadway stage last night in a play called "Plumes in the Dust," written by Sophie Treadwell and squired by Arthur Hopkins. A performance in which sombreness, melancholy and a great deal of futility intermixed with the sardonic and the bitter in a dramatic vehicle that left something to be desired.

"Plumes in the Dust" deals with the tragic life of Edgar Allan Poe, the brilliant American poet, author and critic whose flights into the realms of dark fancy left their imprint on American letters and influenced an entire school of French thought years after he died at the age of 41 in a Baltimore hospital.

Some of the persuasive forces which must have coursed through Poe's fiery and restless brain, Miss Treadwell has captured. She draws a thoughtful, an interesting and, this reviewer thinks, essentially a true portrait of that almost divine madman—his scorn of the accepted in worldly chattels, his consuming desire to achieve a reputation
